Chamber plans citywide support

BRAC base tour inspires flags, ribbons for Reese

By Linda Carriger
The University Daily

When the Base Closure and Realignment Commission rolls through Lubbock and onto the Texas Tech campus April 5, the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce wants students and Lubbockites to show support for Reese Air Force Base by wearing yellow ribbons and waving American flags.

BRAC is visiting all of the bases that it has recommended for closure.

"We're going to make one last ditch effort to stand up for Reese," said Perry Tipton, vice president of business development at Plains National Bank. "It's things that you remember in your head that matter, and we want this decision to be hard for them to make."

Reese has a 10 percent chance of getting off the list, he said.

Tipton showed a possible route, to about 35 local businessmen and civic leaders

Wednesday, that the BRAC commission will travel before a luncheon with Lubbock Mayor David Langston April 6.

BRAC members Al Cornella, Wendi Stele and Benjamin Montoya will tour Reese Air Force Base that morning and tour Lubbock that afternoon.

The commission members will travel on Citibus or a trolley car from Reese, he said.

They will travel down Fourth Street to Loop 289. At Loop 289, they will snake around the loop and take the Slide Road exit. They will travel up Slide Road until they hit 50th Street. From 50th Street, they will take University Avenue to Tech. They will enter Tech at the Broadway entrance and exit Tech on Boston Avenue and take 19th Street to their next destination.

Kara Stuller, chamber membership director, said the Masked Rider, Raider Red and the Tech cheerleaders plan to be at the entrance to the campus to show support for Reese.

Stuller said she wanted other students there as well.

"We want the students to turn out, stand at the main entrance with the seal and stand along the street," she said.

On the trek to Tech, volunteers will let people know where BRAC is on the proposed route.

The chamber is encouraging people to stand along the route wearing yellow ribbons and waving American flags to show support for Reese.

Drivers are encouraged to turn their headlights on during the tour, Stuller said.

Please see BRAC, page 4.

House rejects constitutional amendment

'Contract' set back by term limit failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unvarnished setback for the "Contract With America," the House on Wednesday night rejected a constitutional amendment placing term limits on lawmakers. "This issue is not going to go away," vowed Speaker Newt Gingrich.

The vote was 227-204 on the proposal to limit lawmakers to 12 years' service in the House or Senate. That was more than 60 shy of the two-thirds majority necessary for passage.

The final roll call showed 189 of 230 Republicans voting for the measure, and only 38 of 204 Democrats. One Republican, Rep. Steve Stockman of Texas, voted present. He won his seat last fall by ousting a 21-term Democratic veteran.

The vote capped a long day of debate that produced expressions of profoundly differing views of government.

Freshman Rep. David McIntosh, R-Ind., noted the maxim that "power corrupts," and said he and other newly installed lawmakers must guard "against the possibility that this new majority would be corrupted by this power."

But Rep. Barney Frank, an eighth-term Democrat from Massachusetts, opposed the measure. "I believe in representative democracy untrammelled, unrestricted, unrestrained," he said. "Democracy is not simply what a given majority in a public opinion poll thinks at a given time."

Inclusion of term limits on last fall's "Contract With America" was a reflection of the political popularity of the concept, particularly with disaffected voters like those who backed Ross Perot in the 1992 presidential election.

Previous Democratic majorities in the House had bottled up these measures, refusing to permit floor votes, and Republicans sought to capitalize on that point even as they headed for evident defeat Wednesday night.

In the final speech of the day, Gingrich sought to pin the blame for the defeat on Democrats.

"My guess is tonight 60 to 65 percent of the Democratic party will vote against the American people and term limits," he said. If that's the case, he added, Republicans will use the issue as a campaign issue in 1996. If they reestablish their majority, he said, "term limits will be voted on as the first item in the new Congress." At a news conference moments after the vote, he added, "This issue is not going to go away."

None of the three top Democrats in the House, Minority Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri; Minority Whip David Bonior of Michigan and Rep. Vic Fazio of California, spoke during the debate. All voted against the measure on final passage.

The vote marked the Republican-controlled House's first rejection of any of the items in the GOP "Contract With America," even though Republican leaders have been forced to make concessions in order to win approval for previous measures.

Another "Contract" item — a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget by the year 2002 — won passage in the House but failed by one vote to get the required two-thirds majority in the Senate.

Gingrich firmly rejected the suggestion that the term limits defeat marked the unravelling of the "Contract." He and other top GOP leaders set a strategy meeting for later in the evening on assembling a majority to pass a package of tax and spending cuts scheduled to reach the floor next week.

Morales: U.S. using act to extreme

By Donald Gillilan
The University Daily

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales argued that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has used the Endangered Species Act to the extreme in a brief he filed with the U.S. Supreme Court Monday.

"It's an important issue that is important to the attorney general," said Ward Tisdale, Morales' chief press secretary. "The Endangered Species Act isn't being interpreted correctly."

The federal government is taking a more overexpansive interpretation of the act, Tisdale said.

The brief was filed in a case for Bruce Babbitt, Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior, vs.

Sweet Home Chapter of Communities for a Greater Oregon.

The case involves what types of action constitute harm to an endangered species.

The brief was filed on behalf of the state and more than 30 state groups, including the Texas Farm Bureau, Take Back Texas and the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association.

"I hope it will help," said Rodney Schoppa, Lubbock County Texas Farm Bureau president. "We need more states to do this cause we need all the help we can get."

Morales

The TFB is lobbying against any regulation that the federal government has passed or handed down since 1992 and have those repealed or re-examined, Schoppa said.

"I think they need to re-examine the Endangered Species Act because it has expired," said Joy Wiggins, Tech Students for Animal Welfare president.

In the Lubbock area, two-inch minnows in Lake Meredith threaten the use of the region's water supply if Fish and Wildlife efforts continue under the Endangered Species Act.

"The Fish and Wildlife Service 'harm' regulation intrudes into two deeply-rooted areas reserved to the states and protected by the Constitution: the control, allocation and use of water resources and land-use management," Morales said. "Fish and Wildlife's overexpansion interpretation of the word 'harm' results in a de facto comprehensive resource management scheme in Texas that is extensive and expensive."

Congress did not intend to empower federal bureaucrats to override state and local authorities or to endanger landowners' private property rights, Morales said.

"We must protect our ecology, and I support the broad purposes of the Endangered Species Act," he said. "However, we must use common sense as we strive to ensure a vigorous economy for ourselves and the coming generations of Texans."

Tech operator dies; flags fly half-staff

Flags will fly at half-staff Monday in honor of Beverly Gayle Stewart, 46, a centrex operator for the Texas Tech department of communication services, who died Saturday at University Medical Center.

Stewart died after a lengthy illness, friends of Stewart said. Services were conducted Tuesday at Rest Lawn Wilson Funeral Home in Wolfforth. Graveside services were conducted in Vera.

Stewart was an employee for five years, said J.K. Brownlow, Tech director of communication services.

"We are going to miss her terribly," Brownlow said. "She was a great employee. We have been awfully close. It has been hard on all of us."

B.J. Melrath, Tech centrex supervisor, said Stewart was liked by all her co-workers.

"She was a very compassionate person," Melrath said.

5-year-old boy appears to recover from AIDS

NEW YORK (AP) — A Los Angeles boy who was infected with the AIDS virus at birth apparently fought off the infection and is virus-free at age 5, astonishing his doctors.

Dr. Yvonne J. Bryson, a pediatrician and AIDS specialist at the UCLA School of Medicine in Los Angeles, said she believes it is the first carefully documented case of someone casting off all signs of infection.

Tests proved conclusively that the boy was infected for at least a month during the first two months of his life. Later examinations found no sign of the virus, Bryson said.

"It's like a miracle to me and a miracle to his mother. It's every mother's dream that their child won't be infected," Bryson said.

Bryson said she and her colleagues are studying the boy's immune system for clues that could be used to stop AIDS infections in others.

"It just opens up a lot of things to look at. Before now, there was such skepticism about the possibility that this could occur," said Bryson, whose findings appear Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The boy's mother remains infected but does not yet have symptoms of AIDS, Bryson said. The boy and his mother were not identified.

Doctors cannot be certain the virus isn't hiding somewhere in the boy's body. But his continuing good health is additional evidence that the infection has disappeared.

Most children infected at birth get sick during the first three years of life, Bryson explained. If the boy were still infected, he would almost certainly be sick by now, she said.

"Our reaction first was that we must have made a mistake," Bryson said. "I was skeptical, as other people would be."

Bryson has since identified another child who appears to have accomplished the same improbable feat. Studies are now under way to confirm the second case, she said.

Dr. Gene Shearer of the National Cancer Institute said he has seen a few patients resist AIDS infection when exposed to the virus. But he said he hasn't seen patients recover after becoming infected.

He said Bryson's findings "are probably real." The boy could have developed an immunity to the virus before birth, Shearer said.

Bryson warned AIDS patients, however, not to cling to the remote hope that their infections could disappear. "It's probably a rare event, but it may be more common than we recognize."

NASA should not be cut to save Clinton programs

President Clinton has insisted $13 billion be cut from four federal agencies to prove that government can cut without "a mean spirit or meat ax." What a bunch of political backtalk. Where is a spin doctor when you need one?

This cut, which would trim employees and funding from NASA, the Small Business Administration, the Interior Department and Federal Emergency Management Agency, is just a way to save Clinton programs already targeted by Republican budget plans.

Clinton has said he is behind the U.S. goals for space exploration, but how is NASA supposed to conduct adequate research when $8 billion dollars and 2,000 jobs are being removed from the mix?

They have enough trouble now.

Texas would feel the effects of a cut since Houston is a space center location.

With the state taking a pretty big hit on the recent base realignment and closing list, a loss of NASA would only add salt to the wound.

But what about the other agencies? FEMA and the SBA are just as important as NASA.

There are more small businesses in this country than large corporations, and many of those businesses would be hurt if this program was reduced.

When a disaster happens in this country, FEMA is one of the first agencies on the scene. If the president cuts FEMA, then who will rush to the aid of Americans when a national disaster occurs?

The line for aid was long enough after the Northridge earthquake and Hurricane Andrew. Taking away potential help will only weaken the nation's effort to rebound from another disaster.

People might not know what the Interior Department does, but regardless, it is just as important as the other three agencies.

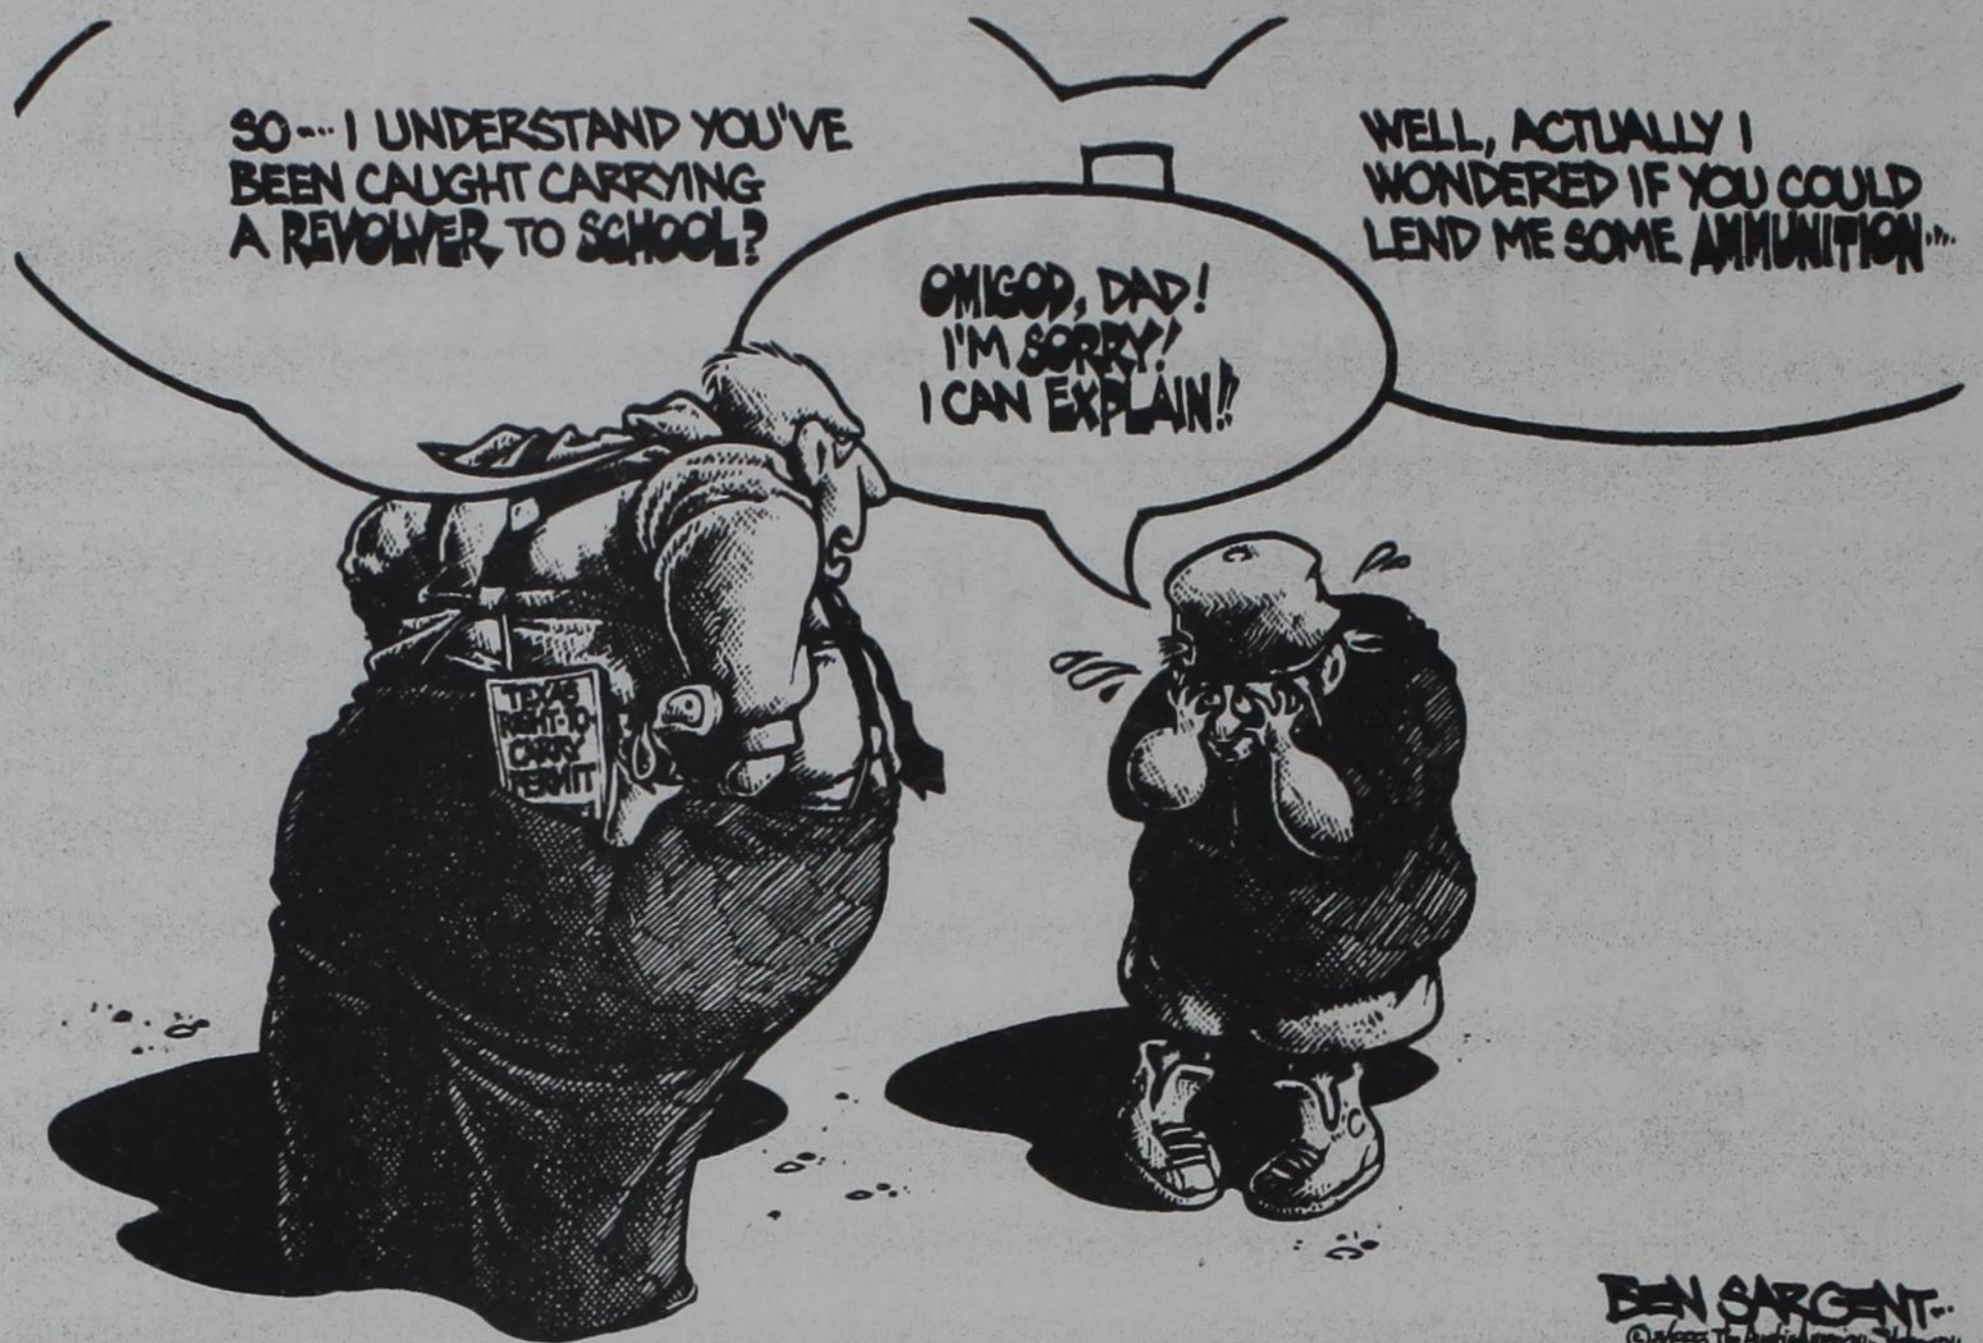

If the Interior Department suffers cuts, then that means there will be less money to maintain the many national parks and monuments around the country.

For all we know Jellystone Park may have to lay off Ranger Smith and then who would keep Yogi Bear away from the pick-a-nick baskets?

But seriously, park rangers are responsible for maintaining national parks and helping visitors stay safe and not lost in the woods.

Clinton should realize that these are just as important as the summer jobs, the school drug programs and the national service initiative that he champions.

The University Daily editorial board voted 7-0 on this issue.

Question: Since the pedestrian accidents on and off campus happened, I've heard a couple of horror stories about a student in Houston who got hit by a car while on his bike and since he didn't have any ID on him he lay in a hospital in a coma for over a month before they finally traced his family down through his bike registration. I also heard that Tech had a hard time locating the family of one of our pedestrian accident victims. How can I be sure that this doesn't happen to me or one of my friends.

Answer: Your question is a two-way street. Number one — Texas Tech needs to have updated information on you and your family so that if something happens to you we can immediately reach them either at home or at work. Number two — if any emergency occurs back home, your family needs to be able to locate you right away.

The main "keeper of the information" is the Office of Admissions and Records. In the event that an official at Texas Tech needs to locate your family and/or next of kin you are responsible for notifying Admissions and Records of any change of address or phone number for both you and your family.

These changes must be made in person and you have to show your ID in order to do it. This is done for security reasons. Admissions and Records is located in West Hall, room 100. Just a few minutes of your time to make these changes could be critical in a situation where permission must be granted by next of kin for your immediate health care.

Parents need to request the following from their sons or daughters:

- Student's residence hall or off-campus phone number
- If in a residence hall, the hall office phone number
- Student's work phone number
- Student's class schedule each semester

• Student's social security number

• The phone number of a friend not living with the student

• The phone number of a neighbor (if possible)

In case of emergency (i.e. family illness or death), if family has been unable to reach the student or leave a message, they may call the Dean of Students Office at 806-742-2192. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Information we will be required to provide will be the circumstances of the emergency, the student's name and social security number (if they have it), and the phone number they wish the student to call to receive the emergency message. If the student is scheduled to be in class or will be in class later that day, the Dean of Students Office will attempt to do the following.

- 1) Call the building where the class will be held
- 2) Have a message delivered to the classes at the time the student is expected to be there.

3) The message will instruct the student to contact a particular individual in the Dean of Students Office to receive an emergency message.

4) When the student contacts the Dean of Students Office, the emergency phone number will be related, but not the circumstances surrounding the emergency

5) This allows the Dean of Students to offer support to the student to take care of any academic matters should they have to leave suddenly.

If an emergency occurs after hours, other helpful numbers are:

Tech basketball season disappointment

To the editor: As the 1994-95 men's basketball season recently came to a close, I found myself extremely disappointed in the end results.

Coming into this season, the Tech team was forecasted by a large majority to win the SWC crown hands down and advance to the NCAA tournament.

After the promise that these guys showed us last season, and with every player returning plus some additions, anything less would be a disappointment. AND IT WAS!

Coach Dickey has done a remarkable job of recruiting and assembling a big-time athletic and competitive team over the last four years.

As well, he has done an excellent job of upgrading the schedule and acquiring television games to bring greater exposure to both the university and his program.

A disappointing non-conference record and a very tough conference tournament loss to Texas kept our ultra-talented Red Raiders out of the NAAs. For Tech students and fans this was a hard pill to swallow. Even more frustrating was Coach Dickey's incomprehensible and seemingly inept coaching decisions down the stretch of the UT (conference tourney) debacle.

Throughout the 1993-94 season and for the first part of this season, we've listened to Coach Dickey consistently moan and groan about his team's lack of a true point guard. Then with the UT game on the line and Texas' pressure defense running full-tilt he chose to sit Jason Martin, ball handler extraordinaire and our point guard answer, out in favor of Koy Smith (an outstanding two-guard, yet shaky floor general and ball handler).

No offense Mr. Smith! A pair of Smith turnovers would then prove costly in Texas' comeback. I find this extremely ironic.

So then are we to assume that Coach Dickey has a difficult time recognizing a game situation and how his personnel are best utilized, or that he was just making another excuse out of his point guard situation for the last year in hopes of fending off any criticism over his Raiders' mediocre achievements. The answer may be a little of both.

To add even more fuel to the UT fire, Coach Dickey seemed to have our guys in a zone defense on Texas' last possession while protecting a three-point Tech lead.

This makes little or no sense considering that Texas had been bombing three's versus the Tech zone the entire second half and now trailed by three points with just ticks left on the clock. I believe the Texas game and an ensuing automatic bid to the NCAA was Coach Dickey's to lose. And he did just that.

Yes, he has elevated our program to a level of play and respectability unseen in these parts for a decade. Unfortunately, (at least in this case) he has not shown the decision-making abilities to turn his excellent talent into an excellent team!

Better luck next year coach.

GLBS should not be given SA funding

To the editor: Why does Texas Tech University and the Student Senate even have to deal with the Gay Lesbian Bisexual Student association?

Not only should it be banned funding because of political reasons but according to the Student Senate rules, "groups that are declared by the senate as inappropriate," should have excluded the GLBS along time ago.

I have but one answer to these incompetent and de-humanizing pleas from the GLBS and that is the words of Amendment 2 of the Colorado Constitution (which Texas should adopt so the pleas from these capitalist destroying liberal individuals, who live on homosexual tendencies that suggest humans are no more superior and competent than animals, won't waste our time).

These words are: "Neither the State of Colorado, through any of its branches or departments, nor any of its agencies, political subdivisions, municipalities or school districts, shall enact, adopt or enforce any statute, regulation, ordinance or policy whereby homosexual, lesbian, or bisexual orientation, conduct, practices or relationships shall constitute or otherwise be the basis of, or entitle any person or class of persons to have or claim any minority status, quota preferences, protected status or claim of discrimination."

This section of the (Colorado) Constitution shall be self-executing." As to the GLBS, consider yourself lucky that you have any privileges at all.

Division of Continuing Education offers Super Saturdays to students

By Gary Black
The University Daily

Lubbock-area students will be able to participate in Super Saturdays, an extracurricular program sponsored by Texas Tech's Division of Continuing Education, beginning April 1.

The program is scheduled every Saturday through May 6 and is aimed at students in kindergarten through seventh grade.

"It is an academic enrichment program by the Institute for the Gifted," said Russell Baker, Super Saturdays program coordinator. "It is used to supplement learning with hands-on experience. It provides extra academic opportunities that are not available in the classroom."

Benefits from the program are great, Baker said. "It provides an environment meant to stimulate curiosity," he said. "You get extracurricular experience, and your experiences are hands-on."

Art, archaeology, physical science and computer science will be some of the subjects students will study, Baker said.

"The Super Saturdays offer a broad range of topics designed to appeal to any student from any background," he said.

"We try to set a broad range of classes. We let the students explore subjects that they want to," Baker said.

Students must meet one of five requirements to be enrolled in the program, Baker said.

Students must have an IQ of 130 or above, a GPA of B plus or better, a score in the 90th percentile or above on a standardized test, current enrollment in a school-sponsored gifted-and-talented program, or the student must have demonstrated outstanding potential in an area of creativity or leadership.

The program was created by the division and has been conducted for about 10 years now, said Deborah Milosevich, Super Saturdays program coordinator.

"The program was created at the Institute for the Gifted," Milosevich said. "There was a need for programs that were not in public schools for high-ability kids."

The public schools have been supportive, she said.

"We are recommended to the gifted-and-talented kids by the schools," she said. "They help distribute our literature."

Super Saturdays teachers will include Tech faculty, staff and graduate students, and community professionals, Milosevich said.

For more information about the Super Saturdays program, contact Baker or Milosevich at 742-2352, extension 241.

Sam Walton's widow's speech focuses on Christian faith, family life, success

By Lisa Ray
The University Daily

Christian beliefs and close-knit family values were the focus of a lecture by Helen Robson Walton, widow of Wal-Mart Discount Stores mogul Sam Walton, Wednesday afternoon in the Texas Tech human sciences building.

The President's Council and Eta Omicron Nu, a Tech Honors program student organization, sponsored Walton's visit as part of their annual distinguished lecture series.

Walton is a founding partner of the Wal-Mart Discount Stores and serves on the national Presbyterian Church Foundation Executive Committee.

Her keys to success are hard work, listening and making her own decisions, she said.

She believes the greatest aspect of life is a strong Christian faith which allows her to enjoy working and her husband's success, Walton said.

She described her childhood as one in which her parents strived to raise the family in a Christian environment.

The environment had a profound effect on how she raised her own family, she said.

"In our family, church is a very big part of life," Walton said.

Some of the family's rules also dealt with what her children could do Sundays, she said.

Her parents never argued in front of their children, another family ideal that Walton instilled in her own family, she said.

During her 49-year marriage to Sam Walton, she said arguments were never shouted. Instead, the Walton household had many quiet spells.

The couple's first disagreement was about whether they should buy a Ford or a Chevrolet as their first car, Walton said.

"Sam's family drove Chevrolts and mine drove Fords," she said.

The couple's marriage was accomplished through Christian love and determination, she said. Sharing is essential in the family, a lesson she learned growing up in the Depression era, Walton said.

"I think sharing could be described very much like the love of Christ," she said.

Walton said she admires mothers who work and rear families. She was fortunate not to have worked in the family's stores so that she could stay home and rear her four children, she said.

Sam Walton made time to spend with the children, especially to go to the children's baseball games.

The family would take long, extensive vacations touring the country, camping or canoeing, Walton said.

Walking through Wal-Mart stores with her husband helped her relate to celebrity spouses, she said.

"The stores treated Sam as if he was the president," she said.

Walton concluded her lecture by discussing how blessed she and her family have been.

"She is so inspirational," said Elizabeth Geary, Eta Omicron Nu president.

"It's such a boost to see someone who made it to the top without compromising their values."

John Earley, a Tech MBA graduate student in the Health Organization Management program, also said he benefited from Walton's lecture.

"It is great to know someone who is in her financial situation is blessed and knows it and has such a strong Christian faith," Earley said.

Rehab center asking for donations

By Jamie McDonald
The University Daily

Some of Lubbock's small animals at the South Plains Wildlife Rehabilitation Center may benefit from an annual garage sale to raise money for food and housing supplies.

But donations are needed for the garage sale to be conducted April 8 at 3101 77th Street, said Carol Mitchell, South Plains Wildlife Rehabilitation Center Inc. director.

"From past experience, most anything will sell," Mitchell said. "Household items and furniture go easily. We also like things like cages and aquariums that we can use at the center."

The goal of the event is to raise $1,000, said Debbie Tennyson, South Plains Wildlife Rehabilitation Center Inc. manager.

"The only support we get is through donations," Tennyson said. "Our entire staff is made up of volunteers."

Spring is baby season, and it can be expensive, she said.

"We need milk for the babies to get through the summer months," she said. "We will care for 200 to 300 animals and birds at one time."

The center is not a zoo, and they do not advertise, Tennyson said.

"The garage sale is just to let people be aware that there is a center in case they find a baby bird or animal," she said. "Our animals are sick or hurt, and we don't want to exploit them. We care for everything except skunks, raccoons or bats because of rabies."

The center is used to rehabilitate small animals and to educate the public about wildlife, Mitchell said.

"We provide care to ill, injured or displaced animals," she said. "Our real purpose is education to the public. We teach respect for wildlife."

Solving wildlife conflicts is also one of the center's goal, Mitchell said.

"We have relocated birds that are in danger because of construction," she said.

After bringing health back to an animal, the center releases it back into the wild, Tennyson said.

"Our release rate is 65 percent," she said. "Most casualties are man-made. Some are intentional, and some are unintentional."

Depending on their injury, some animals take longer to heal than others, she said.

"Helping them gives them a second chance on life," Tennyson said. "Without coming here, the 65 percent would have died. When a hawk comes here with a broken wing, and we fix it and let it soar in the sky, it is the best feeling."

During their stay at the center, the animals are not treated like pets, Tennyson said.

"We keep them wild animals," she said. "The only human contact they have is when we medicate or feed them."

Sometimes the animals cannot be helped, she said.

"Sometimes you have to make tough decisions," Tennyson said. "Sometimes you have to put an animal down, if there is no way to help them."

The center plays an important role in Lubbock because it is the only facility of its kind in a 120-mile radius, she said.

"Wildlife is a natural resource — that is the bottom line," Mitchell said.

Donations should be dropped at the center at 3308 95th St., Tennyson said.

Driver not sure about seeing Bronco at O.J.'s

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With his powers of observation challenged, a limousine driver waffled Wednesday, testifying he was not sure O.J. Simpson's Ford Bronco wasn't parked outside his estate the night of a double murder.

"I wouldn't say I'm positive," Allan Park told jurors. "I wasn't looking for a car; I was looking for an address."

Park's second day on the stand was preceded by an explosive defense disclosure outside the jury's presence. Attorney Carl Douglas said prosecutor Marcia Clark misrepresented to the judge new evidence she said would show Simpson argued fiercely with his ex-wife a mere eight hours before her murder June 12, 1994.

Douglas said the witness Clark quoted in a sidebar conference denies ever saying she saw Simpson having an "angry, yelling" conversation on his cellular phone at the Riviera Country Club.

Douglas demanded monetary sanctions against Clark; the judge said he would review the sidebar transcript and the phone records before ruling.

Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden also drew sharp criticism from the defense when he announced he would have new evidence Thursday regarding a small black bag, which witnesses have said Simpson insisted on handling himself the night of the murders.

"We hope to present more evidence tomorrow relative to what happened to the bag in which the bloody clothes were carried in," Darden said.

Police said they have found no bloody clothes and no murder weapon.

"All his case is based on hopes and dreams," defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. snapped, accusing Darden of trying to grab attention by creating "a sound bite."

For jurors, it was a theatrical day, with defense attorneys and a prosecutor hauling pieces of luggage up to the witness stand for Park to examine.

The limo driver identified two pieces of luggage as identical to those he loaded for Simpson. Park was confused, however, about a golf bag.

Prevention of child abuse, neglect aim of month

By Shannon Murphy

The University Daily

"Hug a Child, Launch a Life" is the theme aimed at increasing awareness of child abuse and neglect during Child Abuse Prevention Month beginning Saturday.

"The purpose of this month is awareness, so that people will know there are programs out there to help families and children," said Lynnette Wilson, Lubbock Family Outreach Center staff member. "The whole key is prevention and that people should be kind to children. If we can teach people how to prevent disagreements from escalating into violence, then we have done our job."

The Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services received and referred an estimated 109,375 reports for investigation of alleged child abuse and neglect in 1994.

About 56,607 children were found to be substantiated or indicated victims of child abuse and neglect in Texas last year, DPRS reports stated.

In Lubbock County, 2,382 reports of alleged child abuse and neglect were investigated in the last year, DPRS reports stated.

A kick-off ceremony will be sponsored by the South Plains Coalition for the Prevention of Child Abuse from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday in Buddy Holly Park.

The coalition consists of several agencies that work with children who have come together to make the month successful, said Rebeca Wallace, Lubbock MHMR director of children and adolescent services.

"Several agencies have come together to make a united stand in the community against child abuse and neglect," Wallace said.

"If the agencies that work with children had to do this on their own, it might not ever work to get our message out."

Each agency involved in the coalition has tried to contribute what it can, whether in manpower or other methods, she said.

"I am only one of many people who has put their heart and soul into this cause," she said.

The Family Outreach Center will conduct a blue-ribbon campaign throughout the month, and ribbons will be displayed around town.

"The ribbons will read, 'Childhood should be a blue ribbon experience,' and they will also read, 'This is to recognize that a child is hurting,'" Wilson said.

Chuck Phillips, a Tech psychology major from Canada and center volunteer, said the work he does with the center is gratifying.

"The main goal of the program is to aid in the prevention of abuse and neglect," Phillips said.

Phillips, who has two daughters, said working with the center's program has helped him as a father.

"My family and I are almost like role models for other families," he said. "I try and demonstrate positive ways to respond to children."

A poster contest also will be sponsored during the month by St. Mary Hospital for first graders to heighten awareness of child abuse, he said.

The theme of the contest is "Family time is fun time," and children are asked to draw pictures of children having fun with their families.

Winners will be recognized with a pizza party.

"We have had this contest for the past four years," Phillips said. "I am excited about it."

Gun storage, access focus of House bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would require gun owners to store their weapons so that children can't gain access to them has won tentative approval by the Texas House.

The measure would create criminal penalties for the illegal storage of guns and require gun dealers to post a warning regarding the offense.

The House tentatively approved the bill with a voice vote on Wednesday. It faces a final vote of the House before going to the Senate for consideration.

Rep. Al Edwards, the measure's sponsor, called it "a bill for our children."

"We are saying to our adults, 'We want you to be responsible for keeping your guns out of the hands of children,'" said Edwards, D-Houston.

Rep. Sherri Greenberg, D-Austin, said she hoped the bill would reduce the number of accidental shootings involving youths. Approximately one child a week died in an accidental shooting in Texas in 1993, according to state crime statistics.

"People who have guns in their homes just need to be aware and understand that they need to use reasonable judgment in not leaving the handgun on the coffee table for the 8-year-old to play with and accidentally kill themselves or somebody else," Greenberg said.

Under the bill, an individual would face criminal penalties if a child age 16 or younger gained access to a gun and the individual was criminally negligent in failing to secure the gun.

An offense would be a Class C misdemeanor, punishable with a fine of up to $500. If a child discharged the gun, either killing or injuring himself or others, the offense would be a Class A misdemeanor, punishable with up to a year in jail and a $4,000 fine.

Courts could require an offender who receives probation to attend a firearms safety course or perform public service in a hospital trauma unit. The bill also would allow school districts to provide instruction in firearms safety for students in kindergarten through 12th grade.

Appeals court rejects condom rape case

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin man convicted of raping a woman who asked him to wear a condom has again had his case rejected by the 3rd Court of Appeals.

The appeals court in February upheld the 40-year sentence of Joel Rene Valdez, the so-called "condom rapist."

Attorneys for Valdez filed a motion asking the court to reconsider its ruling, but the 3rd Court of Appeals denied the motion without comment Wednesday.

The attorneys, who allege jury misconduct in his May 1993 trial, have said they will appeal the case to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Valdez was found guilty of repeatedly raping an Austin woman at knife point after she asked him to wear a condom. Valdez testified that he agreed to wear the condom and that the woman's request meant she wanted to have sex.

The woman tearfully testified that her request was a desperate attempt to protect herself from AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases.

The case gained national attention when a grand jury initially declined to indict Valdez.

BRAC

South Plains Mall officials are sectioning off some parking for military veterans.

Several veterans groups said they plan to use the space to cheer for Reese as BRAC passes.

Local flower shop, Accent Floral, is offering yellow ribbons to anyone wishing to participate in the effort.

Various banks on 50th Street will pass out hand-held flags for people to wave at BRAC members as they drive by.

Other businesses agreed to post pro-Reese posters on their store fronts, display American and Texas flags and place pro-Reese messages on their marquees.

The specific time the commission will take the motor tour and other specific details will be announced Monday, Stuller said.

Tipton said Enid, Okla., which is home to Vance Air Force Base — Reese's closest competitor in the race to keep off BRAC's list — is planning a similar effort when BRAC visits their base.

However, Enid does not have many retired officers who stay in the area.

Country musicians featured in review

By Amy Osmulski

The University Daily
West Texas loves its country music, and the Cactus Theatre is stirring up a toe-tapping good time.

The KLLL/Boot City/Cactus Country Music Review begins at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Cactus Theatre, located at 1812 Ave. H.

"It's a monthly live country music show, with about a dozen local country musicians," said Don Caldwell, general manager of the Cactus Theatre and president of Cactus Theatre Inc.

"This is the fourth time we have had the review, and the response so far has been pretty good."

Caldwell, who produces and participates in the music review, said the idea for the show originated in 1977.

"I started the KLLL West Texas Saturday Night Opry in 1977, through Caldwell studios," he said.

Music review

When: 7 p.m., Saturday

Where: Cactus Theatre, 1812 Ave. H

Tickets: $7.50, available at Cactus Theatre, Boot City, Boot City Too

each day," he said.

"I'm working with what is going to be the major label recording artists of tomorrow from West Texas."

Although the review usually focuses on current country hits, Saturday's show will focus more on classic country.

The night will feature songs from classic country singers like Hank Williams, Patsy Cline and Buck Owens.

"We have had a lot of college kids come out, and I think they will especially enjoy this show," Caldwell said.

"A lot of the big hits of today were also big hits of yesterday."

Mark Paden, a guitarist in the country music review, said the experience has been enjoyable but challenging.

"I lived in Nashville and have done country music for a number of years," Paden said.

"I have had a lot of fun working with Don and the others, but it is pretty challenging."

Paden said it takes a lot to learn 30 songs in one day, back up the band and play songs on his own.

"We practice all day on Saturday and sometimes four or five hours on Friday night," he said. "When you see the enthusiasm of the audience, it's worth it."

Gary Belshaw, traffic manager of the Cactus Theatre, said there has been a good response from the community to the review.

"We have had a couple close to sell-outs," Belshaw said. "I think people like the idea that it is over by 9:30 (p.m.), so they can get to bed early or go out partying in the Depot District."

Tickets to the performance cost $7.50 and are available at Cactus Theatre, Boot City and Boot City Too.

Texan testifies in O.J. Simpson trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A onetime Texan has taken the stand in the O.J. Simpson murder trial in Los Angeles.

The ex-girlfriend of Simpson's former house guest, Brian "Kato" Kaelin, is a Houston area graduate.

Kaelin's former girlfriend, Rachel Ferrara, testified Tuesday that she was on the phone with Kaelin on the night of the killings when he suddenly said he heard a bang.

She said Kaelin asked her if there had been an earthquake after he heard noises outside his guestroom that evening.

Jana Jacobs-Miller said she graduated with Ferrara from Cypress Creek High School in 1984. Then Ferrara went on to gain a degree in communications from Stephen F. Austin State University.

Miller said she last met Ferrara five years ago while Ferrara was working as a waitress to raise money to move back to her native California.

'Gump' author plans revenge, sequel

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Look out, David Letterman. Next time you see kind, lovable Forrest Gump, he may be out for revenge.

Winston Groom, the man who wrote the Gump saga, didn't even rate a mention at the Academy Awards as the movie was pulling in the Oscars.

Not even best actor winner Tom Hanks gave credit to Groom.

The novelist said Tuesday

he's already working on a sequel. He told the Mobile Press-Register he intends to end it by sending Gump and his son, Forrest Jr., to the Oscar ceremony, where the younger Gump will nail Letterman between the eyes with a spitwad.

Then, he said, Letterman will ask the elder Gump if he has anything to say.

"Forrest says, 'Yes, I've been saving this up ... I've got to pee,'" Groom said.

Captain Kangaroo offers parenting advice

PLANO (AP) — Employees of a department store chain have been treated to advice on parenting from the man who played Captain Kangaroo on television for almost 30 years.

Bob Keeshan was at J.C. Penney's corporate headquarters on Tuesday to autograph copies of his book, "Growing Up Happy," a book on parenting.

He spoke to several hundred employees during a brown-bag lunch seminar on the topic.

The visit was sponsored by Corporate Child Care Management Services, which operates a day-care center at the company's headquarters. Keeshan helped establish the nationwide service in 1987.

Most attending the lecture were old enough to recall morning television visits with "The Captain" and his friends Mr. Moose, Bunny Rabbit, Dancing Bear, Mr. Greenjeans and Grandfather Clock during his 29 years on CBS.

"There is no more important job than being a parent to a child," Keeshan said, his voice instantly recognizable to those in the crowd who grew up watching Captain Kangaroo on television.

Keeshan said day-care centers like the one at Penney's corporate headquarters are "developmental" centers, designed to help the child develop their learning and social skills.

After spending Tuesday visiting the center, he called it a "wonderful example."

Singer speaks to kids

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Good golly, there's no retirement in sight for Little Richard.

"I'm still doing it," the 62-year-old performer told a group of children on an outing at the International House of Blues Foundation. Richard told the youngsters how he listened to blues while growing up.

Charges against Oprah's father dropped

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Indecent-exposure charges against Oprah Winfrey's father were dropped Wednesday for lack of evidence.

A Tennessee State University junior had accused 62-year-old Vernon Winfrey of forcing her to touch his genitals.

"I believe what happened today vindicates him," said Thomas Binkley, Winfrey's lawyer. "He's real glad it's over with and I am, too."

Winfrey could have gotten six months in jail and a $500 fine.

James Caan files for divorce, seeks custody of 3-year-old son

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Caan has filed for divorce after 4 1/2 years of marriage.

The 55-year-old actor, who was nominated for an Oscar in 1972 for his role as hotheaded Sonny Corleone in the movie "The Godfather," cited irreconcilable differences Tuesday.

He and Ingrid Hajek Caan, 34, married in 1990.

It was his third marriage and her second.

Caan is seeking joint custody of the couple's 3-year-old son.

Hutchinson wins chili cook-off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congressional Chili Cook-Off title has been returned to what many consider its rightful home: Texas.

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, on Tuesday night recaptured the crown that had eluded chili-loving Texans since 1990 when a fellow Texas senator, Phil Gramm, prevailed.

In the ensuing years, the title was held by lawmakers from Florida, Virginia, Minnesota and Nevada.

Coming down firmly on the side of beans in the heated debate over whether chili should be meat-only or not, Hutchison sauntered to victory over 10 other competitors. Among the vanquished were two Texas Democrats: Reps. Chet Edwards of Waco and Pete Geren of Fort Worth.

The concoction, entitled "Kay's Shadywood Showdown Chili," was prepared with the help of Hutchison staffer Natasha Moore of Pasadena.

The victory makes Hutchison the first Republican woman champion in the annual cook-off's 18-year history. The judges at the Congressional Club event included Navy Secretary John Dalton and Marine Corps Commandant Carl Mundy.

Four sports clubs compete at national club competitions

By Bryan Adams
The University Daily

Four Texas Tech club sports teams have qualified for national competitions this semester.

The men's volleyball, women's volleyball, gymnastics and taekwondo teams have all made the cut to travel to national tournaments.

Both volleyball teams make a trip north to the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis for the Collegiate Volleyball Sports Club Championships.

The event will be April 13-15 and is sponsored by the National Intramural Recreational Sports Association.

"I think our chances of winning it all are fairly good," said men's volleyball club president John Volpe. "We finished third in our division which includes 10 schools. Some familiar teams that will be there are UT, A&M and Baylor."

Volpe said the division championship is this weekend, and if the club can get past rival A&M, they should win it all.

"It's about 50-50 with us and A&M," Volpe said. "We should win the whole thing though."

Volpe said the trip to Minneapolis is mainly funded through the players' pockets with a little help from Tech's recreational sports department.

The gymnastics club is sending one individual to Denton for the men's National Gymnastics Championship April 13-15.

Patrick Ruland took first in the all-around at a meet in College Station and fourth in the all-around at the state championships in Austin to qualify for the national meet.

"This is my fifth year of competition but only my first collegiate year," Ruland said. "I'm kind of nervous because I haven't seen most of the competition. Last year, UCLA was varsity, and this is their first year as a club sport."

Ruland, a product of Abilene High, said college gymnastics are more relaxed than the high school atmosphere.

"In college, we don't have a coach to make us work out three times a week," Ruland said. "In high school, I didn't have to worry about any expenses, either."

The taekwondo team qualified two members, Steve Hawkins and president Al Sterling, for the national competition in Houston the last week in April.

Tech's taekwondo team finished third in the West Texas championships in February. Sterling said a first, second or third-place finish in Houston is a stepping stone to go to the U.S. team trials and then an opportunity to try out for the Olympic team.

"Once we get to nationals, we're competing against teams from other states, and the state of Texas always wins the majority of the medals," Sterling said. "Taekwondo has been a demonstration event in the Olympics ever since Seoul (1988). In the year 2000, it will be considered a full-medal event."

In past years, Tech's taekwondo team has been denied the opportunity to go to nationals because of a lack of funding. This year, because the tournament is in Texas, Tech will get a crack at it.

"It's in Houston, so it doesn't cost that much," Sterling said. "The last couple years it's been in Chicago and St. Paul, Minn. Still, we're representing Texas Tech University, and we're going to nationals."

Super kick: Al Sterling, president of the Tech Wednesday. Sterling and Steve Hawkins will taekwondo club, demonstrates a kick compete at the national meet next month.

Crowd spirit needed when Tech enters Big 12

Jonathan Harris

Well, basketball season has almost come to an end, and it's down to the last four teams in the country for both the men and women.

I had the pleasure to go to Knoxville, Tenn., last weekend and see the Midwest regional and to see one of the best teams in the nation.

Tennessee is very talented and should go all the way to the finals. I was going to say the Big D^#&e, but I am so sick of hearing sportscasters refer to it as that.

While in Knoxville, I saw one of the biggest and best crowds I have ever seen at a women's game.

The crowd was loud and definitely made a difference in the game, like a crowd should.

Tech had good crowds this past season, but nothing like the Vols' crowd. The whole area around the campus was covered with orange and light blue.

Where else could you see orange Coke machines and McDonald's. This was before a women's basketball game — could you imagine before a football game?

Tech needs this kind of support in Lubbock, especially before it joins the Big 12.

Well, now that I have that off my chest, I want to thank Marsha Sharp and her team for a great season.

Good Teams in Final Four

Now to the men's final. We are down to the Final Four, and we have a plethora of good teams.

Let's start with the Tar Heels. They surprised half the nation by upsetting the Wildcats Saturday. Dean Smith has two future NBA lottery picks.

Let's hope they do not decide to declare themselves eligible this year. I think give them another year, and they could increase their chances in the NBA because Smith does a good job of molding players — example: a certain No. 23, I mean No. 45.

UCLA — what a team. They are extremely talented, those O'Bannons and Tyus Edny, Hell of a shot against UConn Tyus, strike a pose.

Whoop Pig Sooley, it should be it Almost Went Blooey. There are going to be some broken ankles jumping on and off the Arkansas bandwagon.

Arkansas finally put together a full game against Virginia.

And then there are the Cowboys of Oklahoma State. It's been 51 years since they have gotten there and maybe even more till they return again.

Bryant Reeves is the modern version of Gomer Pyle, but he can play some ball.

My personal opinion (that and 50 cents will buy you a Coke) on the tournament will be Carolina over Arkansas Saturday.

Everyone is talking about how Arkansas will win it all because they are defending champs. Well, the Tar Heels were the champs before Arkansas.

Let's take a little timeout to remember that game against Michigan. Oh, we're out of them, never mind.

UCLA should sternly beat the Cowboys, and besides, Reeves has to get back to the farm, planting season is around the corner, I think.

In the finals, I have UCLA and North Carolina.

I like the Tar Heels, but that means a whole lot to everyone in Seattle.

Jonathan Harris is a sports reporter for The University Daily.

Dickey gets coaching award

Texas Tech men's basketball coach James Dickey was selected National Association of Basketball Coaches District Nine coach of the year for the second time in three years.

Dickey

Dickey, who led Tech to its second berth in the NIT and seventh 20-win season, won the award in 1993 when the Red Raiders won the Southwest Conference tournament.

Dickey is one of 15 finalists for the NABC national honor.

It will be given at the 1995 NABC convention at the Final Four in Seattle.

Ex-Irish wideout cleared

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Notre Dame receiver Mike Miller says he's ready for the NFL draft after a Fort Bend County grand jury no-billed him on charges of participating in a fake check scheme.

District Attorney John Healey said Tuesday that the grand jury's decision Monday not to indict Miller, in effect clears him of the charge.

"I just got word this morning, and I want people to know the truth — that I haven't done anything wrong," Miller said Tuesday.

Miller, 22, was arrested by police last November and accused of participating in a scheme to steal and forge checks to buy $50,000 worth of airline tickets, clothes and alcohol.

Defense lawyer Wendell Odom said Miller only received a $627 airline ticket from friends to travel from South Bend, Ind., to Houston last summer but didn't know the ticket was bought with a hot check.

"I missed out on football on my last year of school, basically for something I didn't do," Miller said.

The former Texas schoolboy star said he plans to petition Notre Dame for re-admission so he can finish the last two semesters of his degree work.

Miller, a junior, has submitted his name for next month's NFL draft.

COLLEGE DILEMMAS

HASSLE #1: CLEANING

My Gosh! How can you live like this? There's something green growing in your sink!

Me neither!

But my room is cleaned once a week!

Hey, lay off! Between classes and work, I don't have time to clean!

How do you manage that?

I get weekly maid service at the U.P.! I don't have to worry about growing unwanted foliage!

That maid service thing sounds great! Uh...could you step on that brown thing by your foot! I think it just moved!

HASSLE #2: RESTRICTIONS

You have visitation hours?

Oh great! Well, lets go to my room at the U.P.! We won't have to worry about any dumb restrictions!

Omigosh! Look what time it is! Visitation hours are almost over!

Yeah, we're going to have to study someplace else!

Of course not! The U.P. treats me like an adult! I've outgrown the need for babysitters, haven't you?

You mean I won't get kicked out later?

HASSLE #3: RACING THE CLOCK

I told you not to move so far away from campus! Now you have to fight traffic AND find a parking spot!

Well, no.... but it sure makes it easier living right across the street from campus! If I oversleep, I'm only 5 minutes from class!

Uh-huh! You definitely need to get more sleep!

I can't believe I was late for my 8 o'clock class again!

I guess living at the U.P. means you're always on time for your classes huh?

What? And give up that 15-minute search for a spot in commuter? It's so enjoyable!

HASSLE #4: CAR SAFETY

I can't believe my brand new car has hail damage!

Well, I live in an apartment, and there's no place to park!

Yeah, that would be really cool, but who in Lubbock offers that?

Wow, what a bummer! How'd that happen?

Yuk! Why don't you and that awesome car live somewhere with covered parking?

The U.P., dummy! I can't predict this West Texas weather, but I know my car is safe from it!

HASSLE #5: MY OWN BATHROOM

Look at you! You look like you just got out of the shower!

Uh-oh!

I'm glad, I don't have to worry about that! I have a bathroom in my room at the U.P., which I only share with my suite-mate!

Well, guess what? I did! I accidentally left my keys in my dorm room when I went down the hall to shower this morning!

Yeah, then I had to go all the way downstairs to the lobby desk with nothing but a towel and a smile to get another key! I barely had time to throw on some clothes to get to class on time!

Sounds like you've got it made, and me, I'm all wet!
