The more than $3 million in awards the Texas Tech Health Science Center received for research completed this year was highlighted Friday at the Texas Tech Board of Regents meeting.

"This increase is up 95 percent from last year," Tech President Robert Lawless said. "We only received $1.95 million in awards last year."

On average, Tech is the most cost efficient of the public institutions ranked by U.S. News and World Reports, Lawless said.

Other items discussed included the establishment of the Grover E. Murray special professorships at the TTUHSC, said Bernhard Mittemeyer, TTUHSC provost.

"These professorships will honor professors who gain national or international prominence for Tech in their research efforts,' Mittemeyer said. The contract between University Medical rekkies from all over Lubbock beamed in Saturday and Sunday to the Holiday Inn Lubbock Plaza to celebrate the Star Trek legacy.

Those attending had the chance to meet Denise Crosby.

Crosby played Lt. Tasha Yar and her daughter Sela on "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

During Crosby's question-and-answer session with more than 200 Star Trek fans, she talked about everything from her time on the series to her acting career and family.

"I wanted to come touch base with all the fans because everyone has been so loyal," she said. "And I speak for all of 'The Next Generation' cast when I say that."

Before the start of the series, Crosby read for a different role on the show.

"At the beginning, I went out for the Counselor Troi role, and Marina Sirtis, who eventually became Counselor Troi, went out for Tasha because my character was originally very different," she said.

Crosby said she liked to play her character because it was complicated.

"Tasha was a complicated live wire that felt out of place on the bridge of the Enterprise," she said.

Her decision to leave the show and the Tasha Yar character after 22 episodes was a mutual decision made with the management with no regrets on her part, Crosby said.

"I left because of a completely artistic decision after I had a series of conversations with the cast and ("Star Trek" and "Star Trek: The Next Generation" creator) Gene Rodenberry," she said. "I just felt that I wasn't used enough as an actor in the series."

After a three-year absence from the show, Crosby returned for other "Star Trek" episodes.

"The decision to bring me back to the show was my idea because I had such a great time in 'Yesterday' s Enterprise,'" she Crosby eventually made guest appearances on the show as Tasha's daughter, Sela. "I had a lot of fun playing that character, and I think there is a lot more for Sela to do," she said.

During her time on the show, Crosby said she learned to respect Rodenberry, who was not respected by the networks.

"The Next Generation' was one of the greatest shows in television history, and it was his accomplishment," she said.

"No matter if there are 80 million spinoffs of "Star Trek," they will never be his creation."

Ian Wilkinson, a sophomore philosophy major from Lubbock, joined the convention but thought the cost of admission to the convention was too much.

"The material at the convention was great, and it was a very good time, but it cost a lot for what you got," he said.

The plaything had a large, over-inflated head (obviously the result of an overactive ego) with a small spindly body. However, he was dressed to impress with a nifty little bowtie.

Appropriately, the colorful figure is named the Jibba Jabber. Believe it or not, the Jibba Jabber's claim to fame is its verbal NON-ability.

"I say nothing all the time," it proudly boasts on its biodegradable cardboard

All you have to do to hear its senseless babble is give it a couple of shakes.

What a great way to familiarize your young democrat or republican with his or her local, state or national politician. Though the box warns the Jibba Jabber is recommended for ages 18 months and older, serious parents could start their little future voters out even earlier. They can ask their colorful friend about an issue, give it a shake down or two and hear absolutely nothing except useless jabbering.

Children can stomp, squash and bang that head around.

Even the most scandalous behavior won't decrease the size of that noggin and the attitude that accompanies it.

Or for even more interactive stimulation, parents can buy their children two Jibba Jabbers.

Children can spend hours making their toys jabber back and forth saying "nothing all the time." Instead of calling it playtime, they could call it the presidential debates.

Of course, only the hardiest Jibba Jabbers remain. Only the most pampered, most expensive and most malleable will remain in office or in the toy room, as your child sees fit.

And once your little constituent tires of his or her current toy, he or she can trade it in for a new one, guaranteed to jabber day in and day out.

Parents can forget their old birthday and Christmas lists, the Jibba Jabber is It's anatomically incorrect and "politically" correct. It's the gift that keeps on gabbing.

Students between the ages of 25 and 55, who are married or have children, who work, who are transfer students or who have returned to school after a number of years, are classified as a non-traditional student, according to the Texas Tech Student Affairs Handbook.

Between being a full-time student, wife and mother, Powell manages to maintain a 3.6 GPA and execute her duties as president of the Tech Nursing Student Associa-

"Sometimes I feel like I'm going crazy, because it seems there aren't enough hours in the day," she said.

"Other times I know I am. I even find myself in tears, but I know what I'm doing is the right thing for me."

The right thing includes twin daughters, Amy and Mary, 2, who never seem to slow down.

"Momma, read to me," Amy said while shoving an ABCs book at her mother. Mary, the more outgoing of the pair, tries to crawl up on her Past years have been difficult for the Powell family, but this year has especially taken a toll.

"As soon as school started, the phone started ringing, and it hasn't stopped," Buffy Powell said.

"In past years we made do, but with TNSA and everything — I don't know what I would do without Corbin helping me out so much."

Buffy said, although TNSA takes up a lot of her time, being president is something she wanted to do and her husband, though weary, supports her.

Corbin went to fire school at Texas A&M University and was hired as a firefighter in Plainview.

The Powell's lived in Plainview while Buffy commuted to Tech for classes.

After working for the Plainview fire department for two years, he began working in Midland.

"Everything bad always seems to happen when I am gone," Corbin said.

Buffy met her husband while attending a summer camp when she was 17.

The couple dated for more than five years and marriage seemed like the next logical step.

"I'm not sure he ever really did propose," Buffy said, smiling at her husband.

"We ended up in a ring store together and it just happened." After graduating from Texas A&M in Although their life is hectic, Buffy and Corbin said they would not change anything about their lives.

"It's hard, one male living with three females," Corbin said. "I started stocking up on toilet paper before they were even old enough to use it. I wouldn't change a thing about my life."

After Buffy graduates, the family plans on moving to Midland, where Corbin will continue school.

Corbin said he wants to go to paramedic school in Midland and get his degree, and Buffy said she wants to work in the emergency room,

"Everything has put a lot of pressure on us, but it's something I have always wanted to do and I couldn't be happier with how things turned out," Buffy said.

"I like Texas Tech, and I love my life - I wouldn't change a thing."

Hey, you wouldn't give your money away to just anyone, would you? Neither can we. Offers expire January 15, 1996. No payment of principal or interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during this 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest which will be included in the repayment schedule. The monthly payment quoted above is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $1,9057, which includes a sample purchase price of $1,795 for the Performa 640CD system shown above. The total loan amount also includes a 6.0% loan origination fee. Interest is variable based on the Commercial Paper Rate plus a spread of 6.35%. For example, the month of October 1995 had an interest rate of 12.17% with an annual percentage rate (APR) of 13.95%. Monthly payment for the total loan amount described above would be $32.79. Monthly payment and APR shown assumes no deferment of principal and does not include state or local sales tax. Monthly payments may vary depending on actual computer system prices, total loan amounts, state and local sales taxes, and a change in the monthly variable interest rate. Prequalification expedites the loan process, but does not guarantee final loan approval. Subsequent acceptable verification documents must be received before your loan is approved. # HOLIDAY PREVIEW

TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY PPP NOVEMBER 6, 1995

Buffet offers holiday alternative

Darrel Thomas: The University Daily

Holiday happenings: Before the traditional Carol of Lights display, students can come by the all-you-can-eat prime rib buffet sponsored by the Residence Halls Association. The dinners should come to an end about 7:30 p.m., allowing students plenty of time to walk over to the science quadrangle and witness the annual Carol of Lights activities.

Merry Christmas

RHA

pre-Carol of Lights prime rib
dinner

Before spending an evening singing carols, looking at the lights and watching the annual procession of Raider Red and the Saddle Tramps at the Carol of Lights, students have the opportunity to sample various entrees at the Carol of Lights buffet.

The all-you-can-eat buffet, which is located in the Wall/Gates dining hall, is sponsored by the Residence Halls Association (RHA). Hours of preparation go into the planning of this reception and buffet, with Sam Bennett, assistant director for Residence Dining Services, overseeing the event.

"Everyone anticipates the turning on of the lights," Bennett said. "Our Carol of Lights campus-wide buffets help set the tone for the holiday season with the Tech community."

With the exception of the traditional prime rib, each dining manager creates his or her own menu for the evening.

"What's really neat about this year's buffet is that it's a 'feast style' buffet," said Luis Hilliard, indoor chairman for the Carol of Lights. "It's not the typical stand in line and wait. You can approach the buffet from all directions."

The campus-wide buffet began 37 years ago. Many of the dining halls had a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday night buffet.

The idea was to do the same buffet theme the same night throughout all the campus dining halls, allowing everyone to participate.

RHA provides the dining halls with the theme color coordination and the number of expected diners. It also provides table tents promoting the event.

RHA Carol of Lights Chairmen also will present awards at the Wall/Gates buffet for those people assisting in the production of the Carol of Lights.

Residents may use their ID and visitors and guests may use Tech Express or purchase a guest ticket for $6 at the hall office.

Aalon Salon on cutting edge of hairstyle fashion

With more than 65 years of combined experience, the expert staff members at Aalon Salon are sure to find a hairstyle which will provide "shear" satisfaction for Texas Tech students.

The salon, which is conveniently located at 2422 Broadway across from the Tech fountain, employs nine friendly professionals who are ready to give Tech students, faculty and the entire Lubbock community new looks or repair bad cuts or hair coloring problems.

"We are able to give anyone the style that is right for them - from the most innovative cuts, styles and color to the more classic looks," said owner Brad Woodward.

"We are constantly going to hair shows to be trained further in the newest looks."

In addition to haircuts, the welltrained staff also offers perms, coloring, high lights, waxing and makeup application.

They also provide quality salon products including: Lanza, Paul Mitchell, Aveda makeup, Matrix Essentials and Sorbie.

Aalon Salon also is the only local salon to use Schwarzkof color, a unique color which has been around since 1898.

It employs the only Schwarzkof educator in Lubbock.

The managers of Aalon Salon understand the financial situations Tech students, as well as working professionals, find themselves in.

Ahmanson Theater presents 'Candide'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Los Angeles Music Center is giving its newly remodeled Ahmanson Theater some cultural cachet by giving director Gordon Davidson a chance to stage the Voltaire-inspired satire "Candide."

"It's one of those pieces that you keep wanting to find a way to do, so the idea of reopening the theater with it came to me as a kind of perfect closure," Davidson said.
