Regents planning to build arena on campus

Competition in Big 12 contributing factor; officials looking at two sites

Seating at Texas Tech basketball games could improve by fall 1998 with the construction of a new 12,500-seat, on-site basketball arena.

"This new basketball arena will provide 12,500 good seats as opposed to only 4,000 good seats in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum," said Tech Athletic Director Bob Bockrath. "This new facility will make all the seats on the sides and ends closer to the action."

Approval for the planning of the new basketball arena highlighted Tech's Board of Regents meeting May 11.

The new facility would be located at one of two locations, Bockrath said.

Sites for consideration are at Fourth Street and Indiana Avenue and the triangle area north of Methodist Hospital and west of Indiana Avenue between 19th Street and Tech Freeway.

Cost for the arena has been estimated at between $35 million and $40 million.

Architecture plans for the construction of the arena will be presented to the regents in August, he said.

"This arena is one of the most important things for the university from an athletics standpoint,"

"We can now stand shoulder to shoulder with other schools in the (Big 12)."

Bob Bockrath, Tech athletic director

Bockrath said.

"We are the only school in the Big 12 (that) doesn't have (its) own facility. After 75 years we can now stand shoulder to shoulder with other schools in the conference," he said.

Tech officials are scheduled to bring their construction plans for the arena before the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board in October, he said.

"If we miss this date, it puts everything off by at least four months," Bockrath said. "Tech needs to be on the fast track with (its) plans for this arena."

"If we can satisfy the board in October, it is conceivable we can be playing basketball in the arena by fall 1998," he said.

Lubbock residents may be beneficiaries of the arena as well, Bockrath said.

"There's a strong prospect that the city will use the arena for cultural events and concerts," he said. "We plan to negotiate with (city officials) in the hopes that they will become a financial contributor to the construction of the arena."

The new arena is an item many

Tech Arena Considerations

- Estimated cost: $35 million to $40 million
- 12,500 seats
- Finished by fall 1998
- Sites: Fourth & Indiana or West of Indiana between 19th Street & Tech Freeway
- Tech is only Big 12 school without similar facility

Tech officials deemed necessary for the school's success, he said. With the introduction of Tech athletics into the Big 12, Tech may be able to negotiate with the city for the arena's construction.

"With the success of our men's and women's basketball programs and the continuing success of the volleyball program, we feel we are in a position to justify the creation of this new arena," Bockrath said.

Tech Student Association President Geoff Wayne, a senior accounting major from Colleyville, said his focus in deliberations with the arena planning committee is making sure Tech students and their concerns remain at the forefront.

"The main reason it has taken so long to get the go-ahead for the arena is that, financially, Tech students do not have as much control as the alumni (who) are big contributors to the school," Wayne said. "What will probably happen is the financial backing for this proposal will come from a flat-rate fee which will be established for

15,000 CIA Vietnam documents find home at Tech

Chris Gray

The University Daily

The Archives of the Vietnam Conflict at Texas Tech received 15,000 pages of declassified CIA papers on the Vietnam War Monday.

Rep. Larry Combest presented the papers to Kathryn Fuller, archivist for the Archives of the Vietnam War at Texas Tech.

"We specifically requested this (information) from the CIA," he said. "And in January of 1995, an executive order was issued by (President) Clinton to declassify the CIA information."

"Some names and events have been blacked out," he said. "And the reason for this is we could have tremendous repercussions with our allies because things have not always been the same today as they were 20 years ago."

Combest said there is a standing request with the CIA to release documents in the future concerning the Vietnam War.

Because the documents were highly classified, it would be interesting to analyze the information, he said.

"What would be interesting to see is what (President) Johnson said to the public and what he actually said inside," Combest said.

There are many other archives on the Vietnam War ranging from State Department documents to the William Colby Collection, Fuller said.

Students interested in seeing documents in the archives must fill out a request form on the third floor of the library and carefully follow all procedures when handling the documents, Fuller said.

"Students can access these documents in the library but must follow the procedures to preserve and protect these documents," Fuller said.

The archives will be moving to the new Southwest Collection building next to the library in the fall, she said.

Column number 1

Ignore the wacky mug shot, read the semi-serious editorial piece

KIRK BAIRD

University Daily Editor

OK, The University Daily's back. After a brief shutdown between the spring and summer school sessions, the paper is printing again. Just to let you know, the paper prints on Tuesday and Friday only. Yes, it is a Wednesday, but it is the first day o' classes, so allowances were made.

Before I get into the meat o' this column, a li'l info about the summer UD.

UD.

First, it is tabloid size. Why? Smaller staff, less stories. Rather than having a four-page broadsheet-size paper and scrambling to fill space, it was determined some summers ago to shrink the paper down.

Who am I to mess with tradition? Plus, it just makes sense.

Next, you've probably noticed some aesthetic changes to the paper. This was done at the discretion of the editorial staff. Hopefully, you'll find the changes pleasing. If not...well, just 12 more weeks to go.

Now to more dramatic material.

It's the policy of this paper to print the views of the Tech community concerning various subjects. From heated political debates to benign treatise on ketchup, the opinion page is something for everyone. As part of this forum, The UD prints letters and columns from the community. Whether for or against a letter, column, columnists, story or editorial, the opinions expressed in readers' letters or columns matter.

With that being the case, here is some food for thought:

- The concealed handgun law is ludicrous.
- Parents should take more responsibility for their children.
- There should not be forced prayer in schools.
- Separation between church and state is imperative — even churches can't agree with one another on a majority of the issues.
- The rich should pay more and the poor should pay less.
- The trickle down theory is almost as goofy as saying ketchup is a vegetable. Wait, Reagan already tried that.
- Political Action Committees are too powerful.
- Elected officials should have to list ALL campaign contributors and their contribution amounts.
- Drugs should NOT be legalized.
- Affirmative action is necessary until ALL racism (both overt and covert) has been eliminated.
- Contrary to popular opinion, not all members of the media are left-wing wackos. Example: Rush Limbaugh — he's a right-wing wacko.
- The Board of Regents should provide a forum for students to ask chancellor and presidential candidates questions.
- And finally, children should not be allowed to play with matches.

Readers Ask

Provided as a reader service by Texas Tech's Student Health Services.

QUESTION: My hair is really getting damaged in this dry weather. I'm from South Texas and the humidity there kept my hair in better shape. What can I do?

ANSWER: Here are a few tips for keeping your hair in good condition in the West Texas weather. After you shampoo, put a leave-in conditioner on your hair. Don't brush tangles, use a wide-tooth pick. Give your hair a 30-minute moisture treatment by wrapping your hair in a hot, wet towel and then covering that towel with a dry one to hold in the heat and moisture. Finally, air drying your hair is best, however, if you use a blow dryer, leave your hair a little damp to cut down on dryness and breakage.

QUESTION: Why are Toric lenses more expensive than regular contacts? It's insane!

ANSWER:
1. Toric lenses are designed for eyes with astigmatism which causes them to be harder to fit than regular contacts.

2. The manufacturing process is much more complex for Toric lenses because they have a more complex surface than regular contacts.

3. Manufacturers must stock Toric lenses with literally thousands of variations which is extremely costly in inventory for the relatively small market.

QUESTION: Can masturbation, over a long period of time, be physically harmful?

ANSWER: No. There is no harm in masturbation. I assume you are talking about normal masturbation and not masturbation involving instruments. FYI, the male wet dream is physiological masturbation.

QUESTION: The low fat cookbook I bought the other day has a lot of recipes where you use egg white but not the yolk. I hate to waste the yolk — do you have any suggestions for using them?

ANSWER: I recently read a suggestion that might help you. If you're a pet owner you may feed the yolks to your cat or dog. The fat content in the yolk gives your pet a lustrous coat, however, there are a few things you need to be aware of. First, make sure your vet OKs feeding it to your pet because the animal needs to be healthy and not on a restricted diet. You have heard, I'm sure, about the danger to humans of eating eggs without the yolks cooked, and this goes for your pet also. Scramble up the yolk and cook it prior to feeding. One egg yolk a day should do the trick and you can store the rest in your freezer till needed.

QUESTION: My girlfriend and I plan to take the second summer session off and travel. Can you give us any safety tips for out-of-the-country traveling?

ANSWER: Here are a few travel tips that might help make your trip more fun, more affordable and give you some peace of mind. Have you ever taken a taxi ride and paid what you considered to be an exorbitant amount for the trip? To avoid this, ask a security guard or policeman at the airport what the normal rates are. The hotel where you are staying may also be able to provide you with this information. Then when you get in the cab, let the driver know what you consider to be a fair price before driving off to your destination. Unless you plan to rent a pack mule, you will have to leave most of your belongings in your hotel room while sightseeing.

To be on the safe side, check the windows and the balcony doors to see that they are locked from the inside. Pick a hotel that doesn't look like it is in the worst neighborhood. When you are in the room for the night, use a rubber or wooden door stop so if someone tries to open the door to your room they won't be able to. I also suggest purchasing an inexpensive money-carrying pouch that you wear next to your body to hold your money. Each morning take out what you think you'll use for a few hours. When you run out, take a restroom break and get a little out of your stash for your purse or wallet. This way, if someone picks your pocket or grabs your purse, you don't lose everything.

Using your common sense is the best advice yet when traveling and I hope the two of you have a great time and a much needed rest from school!

American State replaces Norwest in UC

Chris Gray

The University Daily

Norwest Bank, Texas Tech University Center's only bank, is being replaced by American State Bank in late August because Norwest officials lost the bid.

Accounts will be transferred to other banks in Lubbock, said JoAnn Gamboa, manager of Norwest Bank in the UC.

"Students and faculty will have eight other branches in the Lubbock area to accommodate their banking needs," she said. "We still have more automatic teller machines in Lubbock than any other bank."

"And the one in the UC will stay there," she said.

Gamboa's main concern was keeping Norwest's current customers.

"I don't want any of our customers taking this move defensively," she said.

"We value our customers and will work with them in any way," Gamboa said.

The last day of business for Norwest Bank is set for Aug. 15. American State bank is scheduled to take control of the space Aug. 31.

"We sent out bid specifications to all (bank) institutions in Lubbock, and American State Bank won the bid," said Tom Shubert, UC director.

There has been branch banking in Texas for seven years, and the only bank in the UC has been Norwest and its affiliates, he said.

Before the banks, Raider Express occupied that space, he said.

American State Bank officials were offered the bid before, said Mike Long, senior vice president for administrative affairs at American State Bank.

"We were not in the branching mode at the time of the first bid," he said. "But the second time the bid came to us, we took it."

There will be some special services to help Tech students and faculty on campus, Long said.

"We are going to offer checking accounts with the Double T logo on the checks," he said.

"And student loans are going to be offered," Long said.

One of the main reasons American State Bank officials wanted the space was to better serve their customers, Long said.

"The ATM in the UC and the new branch in Albertsons on Fourth Street has been very busy with Tech students and faculty," he said.

As soon as Norwest Bank moves out, American State Bank officials are ready to begin remodeling procedures and moving equipment into that space, Long said.

"We plan to be in the UC by Sept. 9 or 10, depending when Norwest decides to leave," he said.

Coast Guard: Less oil in spill than thought

GALVESTON (AP)—Coast Guard Capt. Kevin Eldridge said officials estimated less than 42,000 gallons spilled from the ruptured tanks of Buffalo 286.

Officials had first thought 210,000 gallons had leaked into the bay, about midway along the 55-mile Houston Ship Channel. By midday Tuesday, some 36 hours after the leak first was detected, most of the oil had been skimmed off the water or dissipated into the air, Eldridge said.

the construction of the arena."

There will be many benefits to Tech students with the addition of this facility, he said.

"Most importantly it will be on the Tech campus and will host basketball games, volleyball games and commencement activities," Wayne said. "Another big thing is concerts. This facility will be able to draw big names and be a big addition to Tech's environment."

Fine tuning the arena proposal process has begun, and officials are trying to finish by the regent's meeting in August, Wayne said.

"Tech's athletic department has been very cooperative in this venture," he said. "They are very concerned about students getting what they want and understand the importance of student input."

All of the people involved in this process have been aware of the deadlines, Wayne said.

"We foresee no problem (in) being able to give the regents an update in August and receive their approval to take it to the Coordinating Board in October," he said.

Other items discussed at the May 11 Board of Regent's meeting was the approval of Tech's budget and the budget for Tech's Health Sciences Center.

The combined budget for the institutions for the 1996-97 school year was set at $510 million, an increase of 8.6 percent.

The TTUHSC budget approved for 1996-97 was $277.8 million, and the Tech budget will be $273 million, an increase of 8.3 percent.

Tuition, on-campus housing, student service fees, nursing school applications and orientation fees will all increase for the 1996-97 school year. In the budget, state appropriations contribute 63 percent, and tuition and fees make up 19 percent.

Other items for the regent's agenda included making spending appropriations for full-time recruiters in the Houston and Dallas/Forth Worth areas. Tech will spend $250,000 next year for student recruiting. Also, the regents approved a $1.9 million computerized student information system that allows students to register by phone beginning in the 1997-98 academic year.

This phone registration was something that was taken off the back burner and brought to the forefront by Robert Ewalt, Tech's vice president for student affairs,

Board of Regents

Approved the following:

- TTUHSC 1996-97 budget at $277.8 million
- Texas Tech 1996-97 budget at $273 million
- Creating spending appropriations for full-time recruiters in the Houston and Dallas/Forth Worth areas. Tech will spend $250,000 next year on student recruitment.
- A $1.9 million computerized student information system allowing student registration by phone.

Wayne said.

"It has been something we have wanted to do for a long time," he said. "The money for it had already been approved, and it just needed to be pulled up to the front of current issues."

Some think phone registration takes the personal touch out of registration, but Wayne said he believes there will be more benefits to students with the implementation of such a program.

"Lowerclassmen will still have to go to an adviser before they register," he said. "But this program will give upperclassmen the option of going to an adviser or registering for classes on their own."

TechBriefs

Continuing education director retiring

Michael Mezack, Texas Tech Continuing Education executive director, is retiring June 1.

Mezack's last day at Tech is Friday, he said.

He has been in the Continuing Education department for the past 21 years and was in Penn State University's Continuing Education department for the previous 13 years, Mezack said.

After retirement, he will teach a course for Tech in the fall at Abilene Christian University, Mezack said.

He will instruct a graduate-only course under Tech's College of Education.

"I will also be doing some consulting work in the area of distance learning and some travelling," Mezack said.

KTXT-TV Station Manager John Henson will be the interim executive director.

Three finalists are being interviewed for the position, and the new director should be named sometime in June, Mezack said.

New assistant dean of students hired

S. Paige White, director of organizations and activities at the University of Kansas, was chosen over 117 candidates in Tech's national search for an assistant dean who will have many duties, but whose main focus will be enhancement of the Tech freshman experience, said Tech's Dean of Students Michael Shonrock.

The main focus of this position is to work with a number of different areas involving the freshman experience, such as academics and involving organizations cooperatively to retain freshmen and enhance their student life, Shonrock said.

"This is a new position in our office, and we will continue to redefine the position," he said. "The bottom line is to maintain success for Tech students."

White completed her undergraduate work at Kansas State University and then worked as an admissions consultant there, she said.

Hot tub dip turns tragic for teen-ager

Unprotected drain from broken grate leads to death

WALL TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Tanya Nickens' friends jumped into the hot tub and tried to pull her free, but the 16-year-old was hopelessly trapped by 12 tons of suction pressure in a drain left unprotected by a broken grate.

"She's not coming up!" one classmate exclaimed.

Frantically they tried to bail out the tub with their hands, hoping to lower the water enough so the girl could breathe.

Several minutes elapsed before someone finally reached the emergency shutoff in the basement. By then it was too late.

"Everyone's eyes were on Tanya when they pulled her out of the water," said Carla Morris, 17. The girl coughed — "We said, 'All right, Tanya, you're going to make it,' and she went back down again."

She was pronounced dead late Saturday at Jersey Shore Medical Center.

Tanya had missed the junior prom Friday night because she forgot to pay a deposit. But she joined 300 high school classmates at a midnight-to-dawn post-prom party — alcohol-free and supervised — at the Atlantic Club.

At about 5 a.m., she hopped out of a swimming pool and into the 10-person, 3-foot-deep hot tub to warm up, ducking underwater to douse her hair.

At the same time, someone flipped a nearby switch to turn on the whirlpool pump, which is on a 10-minute timer.

The force of the water was 170 pounds per square inch, flowing through three 1-foot-square openings covered by plastic grates, county public health coordinator Lester Jargowsky said Tuesday.

But one grate was broken in several pieces, he said, and the 12 tons of suction, generated by a 10-horsepower motor, pulled Tanya's thighs and buttocks into the drain and pinned her at the bottom of the pool.

A club lifeguard tried to pull Tanya free, but "she couldn't move this girl an inch," said Kevin P. McHugh, the club's general manager.

A police officer hired for the party jumped in — uniform, gun and all. Several other officers arrived and also joined the fruitless struggle.

McHugh said it was the first time anything has gone wrong in seven years of "Project Prom" parties at the club.

Jargowsky said the grate may have broken from years of stress. He said the club met all codes and standards, but that having a safety cutoff switch near the pool should be a requirement.

McHugh expressed surprise at the report and refused to comment until he read it. "I'm not sure if it's accurate," he said.

At Lakewood High School, counselors spoke to students Tuesday. Tanya's friends remembered her as lively and cheerful, a member of clubs including a peer mediation group and Kids Against a Racial Environment.

"You could be depressed and she would come up and say 'I love you,'" said her friend Jill Medina.

Outside the one-story school, a weather-beaten wooden sign reading "Home of the Piners" had a maroon T-shirt draped from it reading, "Lakewood High School Project Prom After Prom Party."

Below it about a dozen bouquets were spread across the ground. At the parking lot entrance down the block, the school message board read "In Memoriam" on one side and "We Love U Tanya" on the other.

At the family's request, the viewing will be held Wednesday at the school gym.

"She was so young," said her brother, Stephen Andre Nickens. "We all loved her. Now we'll just try to stick together as a family to get through this."

U.S. soldier dies of injuries received in Bosnia fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Army soldier critically injured in an accidental fire in Bosnia earlier this month died of his injuries Tuesday, the Army announced.

Sgt. 1st Class Curtis Wilson, 35, of Farnhamville, Iowa, was pronounced dead at Brooke

Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, said Army spokeswoman J.C. Been.

Wilson and a fellow soldier, Pfc. Tiffany N. Frazier, 21, of Detroit, were burned in the fire May 7. Both were members of the NATO-led police force in Bosnia and were injured when gasoline-fueled kitchen stoves exploded.

Wilson was a member of the 92nd Military Police.

The fire apparently started when a cooking stove exploded while being turned on to prepare breakfast, setting off a chain reaction that included small arms fire, firefighters said.

Outtakes show confusion after JFK assassination

DALLAS (AP) — TV footage broadcast for the first time Tuesday depicts events surrounding the assassination of President Kennedy, including scenes of him holding hands with his wife, perhaps for the last time — about 45 minutes before his death.

The silent 16mm film, recently turned over to the independent Assassination Records Review Board, also captured a rare image of Jack Ruby attending Lee Harvey Oswald's meeting with reporters the night of the assassination.

Roy Cooper Jr., a photographer for television station KTVT, went digging through the trash in the days following the assassination to save the outtakes, The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday.

Portions of the film were aired Tuesday on the "CBS Evening News."

A throng of reporters milled in the lobby of the review board's headquarters in Washington.

"This film fills in little gaps," said assassination historian Gary Mack, who was shown the tapes by Cooper in the 1970s. "But I didn't see anything in there that changed any significant facts about the assassination."

Cooper took home the clips he salvaged from the trash, and a few years later spliced them together with a friend, Eli Sturges.

Sturges and Cooper, who retired from KTVT in the early 1990s, tried to sell the film over the years, but the only buyer was a 1988 British TV program that purchased about two minutes.

Both men have since died, and the film, which was hidden beneath a house for years, was nearly destroyed in a fire a year ago.

A few weeks ago, Sturges' daughter decided it was time to release the film after reading that the review board could use it.

The board transferred the footage to videotape last week at the National Archives, where researchers and the public will be able to view it as part of the JFK Collection.

The film also includes the only known footage of Vice President Lyndon Johnson leaving Parkland Memorial Hospital after the president was pronounced dead and another image of Jack Ruby waiting for Lee Harvey Oswald at an appearance before reporters the night of the assassination.

Tapes one element of timeline in ValuJet's Everglades crash

MIAMI (AP) — The newly recovered cockpit voice recorder and other data from ValuJet Flight 592 will be used to construct a timeline of the doomed flight's final minutes, investigators said Tuesday.

The cockpit tape, radar readings, flight data recorder and air traffic control conversations all will be used to piece together the DC-9's 10- to 12-minute flight before it crashed nose-first into the Florida Everglades, killing all 110 people aboard.

It will be at least weeks before the recordings are fully analyzed and months before the timeline is ready, said Michael Benson, spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board.

"It takes so much time and analysis, we need experts to sit down and decipher what a noise could be," said NTSB spokesman Patrick Cariseo. "Any sound the tape records, noise of machinery, a human voice, is so valuable."

Meanwhile, four more victims of Flight 592 were identified Tuesday by the medical examiner's office, bringing the total to 12, spokesman Charles Nicolas said. The names were not released.

The jet slammed into the swampy Everglades May 11 shortly after takeoff from Miami International Airport.

Preliminary analysis of the voice recorder, found Sunday, indicates that moments before the jet crashed, the cockpit door opened and someone reported fire in the cabin.

There also was word that passengers were having problems getting oxygen.

Air traffic control conversations showed the pilot also reported smoke in the cockpit and was unable to locate the nearest airport.

The data recorder, recovered May 13, showed a sudden decline in altitude and air speed that ground radar didn't register.

Representatives from the plane manufacturer, McDonnell Douglas, the engine maker, Pratt & Whitney, ValuJet, the NTSB and Federal Aviation Administration were studying the voice recorder, which tapes cockpit conversations, mechanical and other background sounds.

Meanwhile, salvage workers are building a pontoon platform bridge to the crash crater so that heavy equipment can dredge for heavy pieces of wreckage.

Investigators still are searching for evidence to support the theory that a fire was ignited or fueled by hazardous oxygen canisters in the front cargo hold.

SPLISH, SPLASH! Students enjoy an afternoon of swimming and sun bathing at the Texas Tech Aquatic Center. The pool opens at noon each day and is available for lap swimming, water activities and outdoor tanning.

Outdoor Programs

Outdoor Equipment Rental

The Outdoor Shop is open weekday afternoons. Items can be rented and picked up during hours of operation. Equipment can be reserved two weeks in advance with payment of the rental fee and completion of the rental contract. Summer hours are:

Monday & Friday Noon-5 p.m.
Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday 1-4 p.m.

Summer Workshops

Camping June 6 3 p.m.

If you have never gone camping before or it has been a long time, this workshop is for you. The workshop will prepare you for the camping season by teaching how to set up a tent and how to use a stove and lantern. It will also provide a checklist for any camping excursion. Other topics to be discussed may include where to go, what to take and what to eat.

Rappelling June 19 3 p.m.

Learn about the equipment, procedures and safety of rappelling. Then rappel over a 30-foot wall inside the Rec Center. Sign up for this workshop in advance. Meet on the top floor of the SRC, north end.

Summer intramurals planned

All intramural tournaments are open to students, faculty, staff and spouses who possess current Rec Center privileges.

Those participating should register in the Recreational Sports Office by the entry deadline listed below.

Entries will be accepted the first day of classes each session. Entries to all events are limited, so register early.

'Mission: Impossible' almost lives up to hype

Peter Wilkins

The University Daily

Rarely does a movie debut amid as much hype as "Mission: Impossible." With such elements going for it as mega-star Tom Cruise, a huge nostalgia factor and that great theme song, it is little wonder the film opened to long lines and big bucks. The question then becomes: Does "Mission: Impossible" live up to the hoopla?

Well...almost. Unlike its summer blockbuster predecessor, "Twister," which relied entirely on special effects, "Mission: Impossible" actually has an intriguing story line. In the tradition of classic James Bond-style spy thrillers, there are plenty of plot twists, high-tech gadgets and pretty explosions to keep viewers on their toes.

Cruise portrays covert operative Ethan Hunt, the point man for a team of crackerjack spies headed by Jon Voight. Everything is coming up roses for the team until a routine mission turns deadly and all of Hunt's cohorts are wiped out — all except the beautiful Emmanuelle Beart. Naturally, suspicion falls on Hunt as a "mole," and he and Beart are forced to go underground to evade the very people they are supposed to be working for.

FILM: Mission: Impossible

STARRING:

Tom Cruise
Jon Voight
Vanessa Redgrave

UD RATING:
out of five

It doesn't take Hunt long to realize he is being set up, so he recruits the help of a couple of disgraced intelligence officers to get to the bottom of things.

The plot gets a little curvy here, but it also provides one of the film's best scenes: a tense sequence where Cruise and company infiltrate an impossibly fortified room inside the Pentagon.

The film's climactic scene aboard a high-speed train zipping along under the English Channel will probably go down as a classic in the action movie genre, but Director Brian De Palma ("Body Double," "The Untouchables") is careful not to let his action sequences become the defining characteristic of the movie.

He is confident enough to let the story unfold without blasting his audience into oblivion.

As Hunt, Cruise is entirely adequate. He has joined the ranks of Hollywood superstars whose most salient feature seems to be their blandness.

Along with such actors as Kevin Costner and Steven Segal, Cruise has achieved mega-stardom despite bringing little to his characters other than unthreatening good looks. But it doesn't matter — "Mission: Impossible" succeeds as an entertaining spy thriller.

It doesn't need intense, eccentric actors to accomplish its goal of good old-fashioned thrills. It may not live up to the surrounding hype, but it's still good enough to warrant checking out.

Great special effects can't lift 'Twister' above lousy plot

Peter Wilkins

The University Daily

"Twister," the summer's first big release, should leave viewers alternately reeling from the spectacular special effects and laughing out loud at the ludicrous plot and unbelievably silly dialogue.

Thankfully, viewers don't have to put up with the hokey plot for more than a couple of minutes before the next twister comes tearing along, bearing an assortment of flying cows, pickup trucks and various farm implements.

The story begins when retired tornado-chaser Bill Paxton ("Aliens," "Apollo 13") and his fiancée Jami Gertz catch up with his estranged wife, Helen Hunt (TV's "Mad About You") in order for her to sign divorce papers. As luck would have it, they encounter her on the most improbable weather day of the century, and before you can say "predictable," — presto! Along comes a tornado.

Suddenly Paxton finds himself back in the driver's seat, chasing tornadoes with his ex-, his girlfriend and a merry band of wonderfully eccentric twister-buffs bent on unlocking the secrets of nature's destructive li'l whirling dervishes.

So much for the plot. There are a few other elements in there, like the tension between Paxton and Hunt, but these developments are so lame, they're not worth talking about. Neither is the acting, which is unremarkable except for Gertz's awful performance as the frightened girlfriend whom most viewers will wish would get sucked up into that great retirement community in the sky.

"Twister" would have benefited from a little judicious editing, like cutting out every scene that did not contain a tornado. Instead of insulting his audience with an unforgivably cheesy story line, director Jan De Bont ("Speed") would have been better off just setting up every scene with a quick voice-over, such as, "In this scene, Paxton and Gertz come to the painful realization that they weren't meant to be together, so they decide to split up. Now, back to those crazy tornadoes!"

FILM: Twister

STARRING: Bill Paxton
Helen Hunt
Jami Gertz

UD RATING:
out of five

Which is not to say "Twister" is total garbage — it's actually a lot of fun. "Twister" is definitely worth seeing, although, ideally, it would be viewed with one finger on the fast-forward button.

Nursing student set to visit England

Peter Wilkins
The University Daily

To the long list of accomplishments Heather Knous has racked up as a nursing student, including becoming the president of the Texas Tech Student Nurses Association in April, may be added yet another. Knous recently was named a Fuld Fellow by deans and directors of nursing schools from around the country. As a result, she will travel to England this summer to attend the International Conference on Cancer Nursing in Brighton, Sussex.

Knous, a junior nursing student from Big Spring, is one of 52 nursing students chosen to become a Fuld Fellow by the Helene Fuld Health Trust. One student from each state is chosen, as well as one from the District of Columbia and Guam. Knous is the first nursing student from Tech to be named a Fuld Fellow.

The trip takes place from Aug. 9 to Aug. 19. While there she will attend the International Conference on Cancer Nursing, followed by a work-study tour of London. Despite a heavy schedule and serious subject matter, Knous is looking forward to enjoying her time in England.

"I'm very excited about going, I've never been to England before," Knous said. "I've been to France and Germany. I don't have much free time, but I'm planning to take in as much as I can."

Among the events scheduled for the nursing students is a violin concerto featuring the music of Tchaikovsky at the Brighton Dome Theatre. Knous said she also will try to get in some swimming, if weather allows, and to sample England's world-famous fish and chips.

The main purpose of the trip, however, will be to expand her knowledge of oncology nursing.

Knous

"Oncology nursing is an area I find very interesting," Knous said. "It's an area where the patients require very good nursing care. That's something that shouldn't be taken lightly."

Knous' experience with cancer nursing took on a personal nature in 1994. In October of that year, the father of Knous' best friend was diagnosed with cancer. During the course of his treatment, which included chemotherapy and radiation, he took the time to give a detailed account of the physical and emotional effects of treatment to Knous.

The experience taught Knous much about the emotional side of nursing, and she subsequently wrote about her encounter in an essay written as part of her application to become a Fuld Fellow.

That essay, along with a strong academic record and a number of positive personal qualities, are what distinguished Knous from the field of 400 applicants from Texas, said Christine Stroud, administrative counselor for the Tech School of Nursing.

"Heather is very intelligent and very outgoing," Stroud said. "She is dedicated and compassionate and is able to participate in outside activities and still get good grades."

While in London the Fuld Fellows will visit The Lighthouse, known around the world as a premier AIDS care facility. Knous said she is looking forward to touring the facility, "just because of the fact that there's a place for AIDS patients to go to get good care without being judged."

Upon returning to the United States, Knous said she would consider running for state office in the Texas Student Nurses Association, but she is most excited about her graduation in December 1997. Knous said her most likely course will be to work at a large oncology center, preferably one such as M.D. Anderson in Houston.

"I would like to return to Europe, but probably won't be able to," she said. "Which is OK because the U.S. is the best place to work as a nurse."

UC Film Series begins with 'Toy Story'

The Texas Tech University Center Summer Film Series debuts today with a screening of "Toy Story" at 7 p.m. in the UC Allen Theatre. Admission is free with a Tech I.D., and each student is allowed one free guest admission.

The Summer Film Series continues at 7 p.m. June 6 with a showing of "Seven," starring Brad Pitt and Morgan Freeman. Subsequent Thursday showings include, among others, such blockbuster films as "Broken Arrow," June 20; "Braveheart," July 11; and "The Birdcage," Aug. 8.

The Summer Film Series is sponsored by UC Programs. For more information, call 742-3621.

Pirates steal win from Astros

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Charlie Hayes hit a two-run home run and Jason Kendall tripled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning Tuesday night to rally the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-5 win over the Houston Astros.

Trailing 4-2 in the eighth, Hayes tied it with his two-run shot off Greg Swindell (0-2). Swindell got two outs before Jay Bell singled and Hayes followed with his eighth homer.

John Wehner then walked and scored when Kendall tripled off the center-field wall. Kendall scored on the play when center fielder Brian Hunter bobbled the ball.

The Astros rallied in the ninth and pulled to 6-5 on John Cangelosi's one-out RBI single off Francisco Cordova. Brian Hunter's single moved Cangelosi to second before Craig Biggio singled — his fourth hit — to right and Cangelosi was thrown out at the plate by right fielder Orlando Merced.

Catcher Kendall caught Merced's throw on the first base side of the plate but was able to dive back and tag Cangelosi. Cordova then struck out Jeff Bagwell for his third save.

The loss ended Houston's season-high four-game winning streak.

Biggio, who went 4-for-4 after a 3-for-3 performance on Monday night, put the Astros ahead 3-2 with a double in the eighth. Biggio has 15 hits in his last 26 at-bats.

Pittsburgh starter Matt Ruebel, making his second major league start, allowed five hits in seven innings.

Houston's Mike Hampton made his first start since May 12 after being sidelined with shoulder tendinitis. He worked just four innings because he was on a 75-pitch limit.

Penguins take first series lead

Barrasso shows Stanley Cup Finals form in shutting out Florida 3-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins proved they don't have to play wide open to win in the playoffs, adopting Florida's defensive style to shut down the Panthers 3-0 Tuesday night and take a 3-2 lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

Mario Lemieux and Jaromir Jagr were held without a goal for the fourth time in five games, but each set up scores as Pittsburgh moved to within a victory of its third Stanley Cup finals in six years.

The Panthers, who led the series 1-0 and 2-1, must win Game 6 Thursday in Miami to retain any hope of playing for the Cup in only their third season. Game 7, if necessary, would be Saturday in Pittsburgh.

For the first time in the series, Pittsburgh dominated a game from start to finish as J.J. Daigneault, Petr Nedved and Tomas Sandstrom scored and Tom Barrasso, benched earlier in the playoffs, again was reminiscent of the goaltender who dominated the 1991 and 1992 Stanley Cup finals. The shutout was the fifth of his career in the playoffs.

The Panthers have scored only once on 61 shots in two games since burying Barrasso with 61 shots while winning 5-2 in Game 3. Barrasso made 28 saves Tuesday night.

The Penguins, who haven't lost once they've passed Game 3 in any of their three playoff series, wrestled not only the lead but the momentum away from Florida. The Panthers managed only a split in the first four games despite dictating the flow with their tight forechecking and shadowing of Lemieux and Jagr.

The Panthers again were their persistent best as goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck again made a succession of big saves on breakaways and excellent scoring chances, only to have their offense let them down.

Lemieux, who has scored more goals against Vanbiesbrouck than any other NHL goaltender, was stopped twice on breakaways, and Jagr was turned aside as he charged down the slot midway through the third period.

Pittsburgh tried to set the tone early as Jagr, banged and bruised by two huge hits in Pittsburgh's come-from-behind 2-1 win in Game 3, came out hitting and drew a high-sticking penalty only 1:06 into the game.

But Florida's power-play unit, scoreless in 17 of its last 18 attempts, couldn't score, and Daigneault gave Pittsburgh the critical early lead with a power-play goal at 8:48 of the first period.

Despite leading this series for the first time, the Penguins have proven capable of blowing 3-2 series leads.

They did it against the Philadelphia Flyers in 1989 and the New York Islanders in 1993.

Ripken's move to hot corner dowsed

SEATTLE (AP) — Cal Ripken, he's going to keep things the way it turns out, won't be going anywhere anytime soon.

Ripken was in the lineup at his usual shortstop spot Tuesday night, and Baltimore Orioles manager Davey Johnson said his notion to move baseball's most durable player to third base is on hold.

"I came to the ballpark and met with Davey today and he indicated that things are going to remain the same," Ripken said. "We're playing well. And we're winning and he's going to keep things the way they are.

"The whole issue just seemed to be blown out of proportion. The team was banged up in a couple positions and that was just an option."

Johnson was thinking about making a temporary move with Ripken because starting third baseman B.J. Surhoff is on the disabled list and Bobby Bonilla has a sprained ankle.

Ripken began his major league career as a third baseman, but hasn't played there since July 8, 1982, at the Kingdome.

Judge backs Worm: Tattoo T-shirt too close for comfort

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — For now, Dennis Rodman's tattoos will remain on his body and not on T-shirts. But he may have to bare his torso to make the ruling stick.

A federal judge ruled Tuesday a New Jersey T-shirt maker appears to be unfairly profiting from Rodman's fame and tattoos. He issued a preliminary injunction continuing to bar Fanatix Apparel Inc. and its 24-year-old president from marketing a long-sleeve, cream-colored T-shirt that has images of tattoos on the back, sleeves and front.

U.S. District Judge Alfred Wolin, who granted a restraining order sought by Rodman earlier this month, ruled following a half-hour hearing in federal court. Rodman, whose Chicago Bulls clinched a spot in the NBA Finals on Monday, did not attend.

But Wolin also ruled that lawyers for T-shirt entrepreneur Micky Goldschmidt have the right to take a deposition from Rodman two weeks after the Bulls' season ends.

And Wolin left open the possibility that Rodman could be required to remove his shirt to show the dozen tattoos on his upper body and arms. Jules Zalon, Rodman's lawyer, said there are less intrusive methods to show opposing lawyers the tattoos, but added he has not decided whether to seek a protective order limiting what Rodman is required to do.

He likened Goldschmidt to a bootlegger capitalizing on Rodman's personality by selling T-shirts that depict tattoos "virtually identical" to those worn by the player.

Goldschmidt claims few would equate the T-shirt with Rodman. But Wolin, noting invoices from Fanatix calling the garment the "Dennis Rodman Tattoo T-Shirt," said buyers incorrectly believed they are getting an item endorsed by the player.

Rodman's name or image does not appear on the shirts, but Wolin examined one and said the designs were similar to those on Rodman's body.

Rodman has about a dozen tattoos on his upper body, including that of a baby's face. The T-shirt also features a baby's face.

"I am greatly offended and disturbed by having my tattoos, particularly my daughter's image, misappropriated and mass produced on a T-shirt and sold nationwide," Rodman said in a declaration attached to his lawsuit.

Women's softball finishes on down note

The Texas Tech women's softball team's inaugural season came to a close with a 4-3 loss to Iowa State May 10 at the ASA Hall of Fame Stadium in Oklahoma City. The loss dropped Tech's overall record to 4-44.

Sophomore pitcher Jenny Cannon (0-16) took the loss, going six innings and allowing 10 hits. The Cyclones' Debbie Nease turned in a complete game, giving up two earned runs, five hits and two walks while striking out five.

Tryout slated today for Davy Cricket's sidekick

The Crickets are holding an open mascot tryout at 5:30 p.m. today at the Cricket front office, located next to Dan Law Field. The tryout is for Davy Cricket's sidekick.

Costumes or references of prior experience should be brought to the tryout.

The mascot will represent the Crickets at all home games and special appearances. The mascot will receive monetary compensation per game throughout the season.

The Crickets come off the road to open their home schedule by taking on the Amarillo Dillas at 7:05 p.m. Thursday at Dan Law Field. Raising of the championship flag and the presentation of championship rings will be part of the festivities surrounding the home opener.

Women's golf places in NCAA tournament

The Texas Tech women's golf team ended its season by placing 12th in the NCAA Women's Golf Championships May 22 through Saturday in Palm Springs, Calif. The Red Raiders advanced to the National Tournament by finishing ninth in the West Regional May 9-11.

Tech coach Jeff Mitchell led Tech, a team that had never been to the NCAA Tournament before his arrival, to a berth in the NCAA Tournament in three of the past four seasons.

For his efforts, Mitchell was named the 1996 NCAA West District Coach of the Year to go along with his Southwest Conference Coach of the Year award.

The Tech men's golf team also saw NCAA Tournament action with its second consecutive NCAA Men's Golf Championships regional bid. The Red Raiders finished 18th at the regional tournament played May 16-18 at the University of Michigan Golf Course in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Tech men's tennis exits NCAAs early

The Texas Tech men's tennis team's trip to the NCAA Championship Tournament was a shorter one than it had desired. The No. 6 seed Red Raiders lost to No. 3 seed Texas A&M, 4-3, in the first round of the Region VI Tournament May 10 in Austin.

Although the team's season ended abruptly, Tech's doubles team of sophomore Tylir Jimenez and junior Dieter Schwendinger advanced to the individual doubles championships where they lost to the No. 3 doubles team in the nation from UNLV.

With the loss to the Aggies, Tech finished the season with a record of 14-12. Even though the team didn't advance past the first round, the season was still a success, said Tech coach Tim Siegel.

"We finished in the top-50 (in the nation), and we went to the NCAA Tournament for the second time in three years," he said.

Siegel said the Red Raiders' performance after the dismissal of Mattias Rohlin from the team was something on which to build.

"I was really proud of the team's response after the incident with Mattias," he said.

Red Raiders falter in extra-inning battle

(Special) — The Texas Tech baseball team was forced to go extra innings to determine its fate in the NCAA Tournament.

The fate was revealed when No. 1 Southern California ended Tech's dream of a trip to the College World Series by defeating the Red Raiders 13-10 in front of 5,814 fans Sunday at Dan Law Field.

The win propelled the Trojans (44-16-1) into the championship game of the Central II Region where they were defeated 10-2 by Oklahoma State.

"You've got to take your hats off to USC, they never quit," Tech coach Larry Hays said.

"We were almost there a few times, and they took advantage of our mistakes."

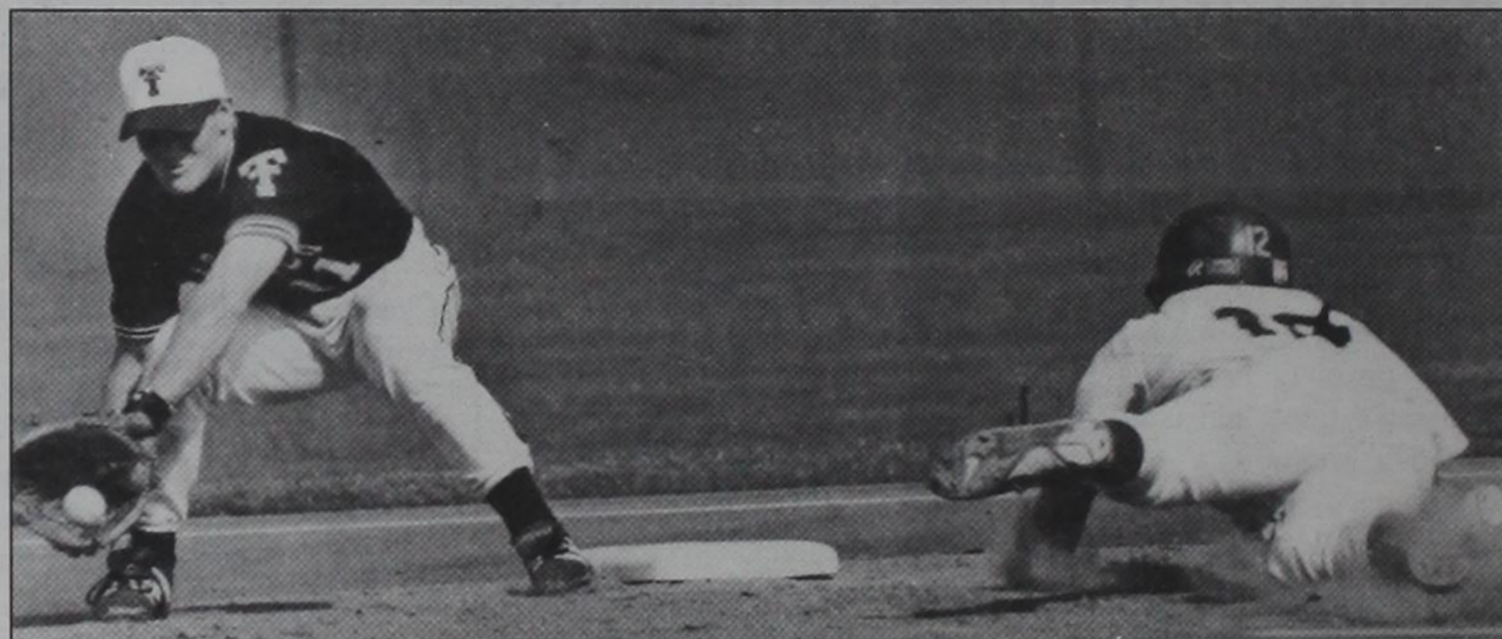

USC right fielder Jeff Inglin ended the game by hitting a Jimmy Frush mistake over the left-field fence to complete a six-run 11th inning.

"Everyone came through today, and I was glad that I was able to come through for the team one last time after struggling all game," Inglin said.

After falling behind 2-1 in the second inning, The Men of Troy took a 4-2 lead in the third when first baseman Greg Walbridge doubled in three runs off of Monty Ward.

Tech (49-15) tied the game with single runs in the fourth and fifth and took a 6-4 lead with the help of RBI singles from second baseman Joe Dillon and shortstop Stubby Clapp.

Boys of summer: Texas Tech second baseman Stubby Clapp prepares to slap the tag on an Akron runner in the Red Raiders' 7-2 victory Friday at Dan Law Field. Tech was knocked out of the Central Region II after losing 13-10 to Southern California Sunday at Dan Law Field.

COLLEGE WORLD SERIES

The College World Series is scheduled to begin Friday and run through June 8 in Omaha, Neb. The following are the eight teams which earned World Series spots by winning their respective regions.

- |                |                 |
|----------------|-----------------|
| Oklahoma State | Alabama         |
| Clemson        | Miami           |
| Florida        | Florida State   |
| Wichita State  | Louisiana State |

again when Frush (10-6), on in relief of Monty Ward, gave up an RBI single to USC designated hitter Paul Cruz in the eighth.

Both teams had unsuccessful rallies in the ninth, with Tech stranding two runners and USC leaving three men on base.

Red Raider right fielder Marshall Bennett put Tech in front 7-6 in the 10th inning with his fourth round-tripper of the season.

However, the Trojans countered in the bottom of the inning when catcher Dave Lindstrom, an all-tournament selection along with Ryan Brewer and Matt Miller, let a wild pitch get by him.

Tech looked to put the game away in the top of the 11th by scoring three runs on six hits, including one by Frush. But Frush relinquished the lead by giving up six runs and four hits, including the three-run homer to end the game. "I'm afraid that I don't have anything special to say after a win like this," USC coach Mike Gillespie said.

"We're thrilled with a win like this. It probably ranks at the top of the greatest comebacks in USC baseball history.

"I am just glad that baseball doesn't have a clock."

A bright spot for Tech was the play of Dillon.

He went 6-for-6 with two RBIs while playing out of position at second base because of an injury to shortstop Dion Ruecker.

"They were throwing me fastballs in and soft stuff away," Dillon said.

"Every time I hit the ball, it found a hole.

"Baseball is a funny game. Sometimes you can go good and sometimes it can go bad."
