

Tech not honoring Coming Out Day

by Ginger Pope/UD

Although today is National Coming Out Day, the celebration will not be observed on the Texas Tech campus.

Coming Out Day began nationally in 1988 and has been celebrated at Tech since 1991 by gay, lesbian and bisexual students who have joined others nationwide to announce their sexuality.

Sara Solloway, University Center Programs activities specialist, said the UC has participated in Coming Out Day events in the past but will not celebrate this year, not because of a lack of student interest, but because plans were not well-organized.

"We were going to have a brown bag discussion lunch, but things fell through," Solloway said.

Tech's Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Student Association is inactive this semester, which may contribute the lack of celebration, she said.

Roy Mendoza, a junior restaurant and hotel institutional management major from San Antonio, said not celebrating Coming Out Day at Tech is unfortunate.

"It is a day for an open, friendly environment one day of the year," Mendoza said. "It is a celebration in the gay community and a day of education in the heterosexual community."

Even though Tech is not having a Coming Out Day celebration, members of the Lubbock community plan to sponsor events throughout the weekend to celebrate the gay community.

The Metropolitan Community Church will have a Coming Out Day service at 7:30 p.m. today, and other gay organizations will have their own functions Saturday.

Senators begin nomination process

by Ginger Pope/UD

Texas Tech student senators began nominating students to serve on the proposed United Spirit Arena advisory board at the Student Senate meeting Thursday.

Student Association President Geoff Wayne, a senior accounting major from Lubbock, said the board is going to be in place as soon as possible.

"I want to get a good mix of people throughout the campus — about 20 people," Wayne said.

The arena advisory board will consist of Tech students who will work with administrators in scheduling events for the arena, he said.

Construction of new parking lots is scheduled to begin in January to replace the lots that will be taken up by the arena, Wayne said.

In other senate business, Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, spoke to student senators Thursday, advising them to encourage other students to register to vote in Lubbock.

"Don't believe in the party — believe in the person," Combest said. "And the more the system is used, the better it will be."

The senate needs to be a part of the system because students have an interest in what happens, Combest said.

"I want to get a good mix of people — about 20 people."

Geoff Wayne, Student Association president recognized Tech's music department may need an increase in its budget.

Amy Therwanger, a student senator and a senior history and psychology major from Waco, said Combest's visit was important.

"It's an honor to have leaders in government to talk to us and give us an example of how to be involved in the government," she said. "We all need to keep the voting process in line."

In other senate business, senators

Kristin Ketcham, SA internal vice president and senior education major from Andrews, said the student services committee will investigate whether Tech's music department needs an increased budget.

The committee will study the actual needs of the choir, band and orchestra.

The music department has expressed an increased need for funding for music, instruments and travel, Ketcham said.

If the student services committee determines increased funds are needed, the issue will go before the student service fees advisory committee for approval, she said.

No one really knows where velvet came from. Some say the Italian Renaissance. Then again, others say the Far East.
But no matter where it originated, velvet has thankfully evolved into a contemporary favorite right here at Harold's.
From fun new zippered tops to classically styled stretched polo pullovers, the look this season is textured luxury and the best examples are in velvet.
But don't look for them in the department stores, because you'll only find them at Harold's.

Texas Tech contributes to 1996 Farmer-Stockman Show's success

by Lacy Waldrop/UD

Texas Tech's involvement in the 1996 Farmer-Stockman Show contributed to the success of the Southwest's largest outdoor farming demonstration show.

The fourth annual show, which was located, 1.5 miles east of Loop 289 on 50th Street, began Tuesday and lasted through Thursday, attracting more visitors than in years past.

Tech participated in this year's Farmer-Stockman Show by offering many free services to the visitors. Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center offered free assessments of blood-sugar, cholesterol and blood pressure performed by representatives of the TTUHSC School of Nursing.

Tech's department of animal sciences and food technology, the equine sciences program and the College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources occupied the academic and educational tent at the show.

Although many visitors heralded the show a success, some had complaints about the show's organization.

"I would like to see them integrate the academic and educational booths into the industrial booths so visitors don't have to go out of their way to find the educational tent since it is away from the others," said R.T. Ervin, associate professor of the agricultural economics.

"I enjoyed Craig Cameron's horse-manship demonstration."

The live cattle and horse cutting demonstrations drew large crowds to

Wes Underwood/UD

In training: Horse trainer Craig Cameron uses a lariat as he demonstrates a technique used in training at the Farmer-Stockman Show Wednesday. Later in the day, Cameron rode the horse to prove his success in training it.

The man-made arena on the show needed to successfully cut cattle out of a group.

Cowboys demonstrated the amount of patience and strategy tillage demonstrations interesting.

"The Farmer-Stockman Show is a great way to advertise special offers and new products," said Randy Redinger, a sales manager for the South Plains region of Triumph Seed Company.

"The exhibitor tents are a great way for participating businesses to solicit their products."

New farm and ranching equipment appeared to be the backbone of the event.

Visitors were able to view some of the latest models from companies such as John Deere and Caterpillar.

"This area of the show benefited Tech students who came see the display and look at the ideas on new types of equipment that are being introduced," said Farmer-Stockman Show representative Monica Hightower.

At the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association, visitors were able to feel real cotton with seeds and without seeds and view many bacterias that affect cotton growth.

Visitors also learned about the rising boll weevil scare, which affects a large part of West Texas cotton crops.

Johnny Salazar, a technician with Tech's International Textile Center, and Babetta Nelson, a secretary with the center, were busy entertaining visitors with a "sock machine".

"This machine replaces hours of human labor by simply turning ordinary cotton into pairs of red and black socks," Nelson said while handing visitors pairs of the finished product.

Theatre students to honor former teacher

by Darcy Rosie/UD

If George Sorenson, retired professor of theatre, could write the script to the conclusion of his career, it would not compare with the way it is really turning out.

More than 125 of Sorenson's former students will participate in a variety show in his honor Saturday.

The George Sorenson Endowment Scholarship Alumni Show features students spanning the 20 years Sorenson taught at Texas Tech.

"It's staggering," Sorenson said. "They're taking pay cuts, time off from work and it's all very humbling. I can't think of a better ending to my career at Tech than to have this happen."

Although the event has been in the works for more than a year, Sorenson did not find out about the show until recently.

"I didn't know about it until I read it in the paper," he said. "I only knew I had to be around this weekend."

Although the show was a surprise, Sorenson has been getting used to the unexpected.

At 11 a.m. Monday, the doorbell rang at Sorenson's house. He gathered himself and opened the door to a throng of theatre arts students.

The students were doing warm-up exercises in his driveway.

For most professors this might represent a peculiar class project. For Sorenson, it symbolizes the bond he shares with his students.

In his 20 years with Tech theatre his proudest moments have come from watching his students develop as actors and people.

Jeff Young, a former student of Sorenson's, said the retired professor has made a major impact on students and the theater department itself.

"This department is George Sorenson," said Young, now a first-year law student.

"He is the only reason I came to Tech. I have learned more from him in a semester than my full career."

He was all about making good choices, Young said. He would never let you make a weak choice.

Sorenson was as influential early in his career, said Fred Christoffel, Tech's director of theatre arts.

It was not so much what Sorenson taught, but how he taught it that Christoffel remembers.

"I was a student in the '70s and was here for two years when George started," Christoffel said. "I took an acting class from him. I did so apprehensively, but it turned out to be one of the best classes I could have taken as a designer."

Sorenson is a genuine human being, said Christoffel, who has worked along side the theater arts professor for nine years. Sorenson's faith in his students makes him unique.

"He unconditionally believes in his students and actors," he said.

Sorenson will never take the credit he deserves, and that is just his nature, Christoffel said.

Perhaps this weekend he'll be able to sit back and enjoy the performance dedicated entirely to him.

Park agency investigates country star

RAY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — For country star Shania Twain, nothing could be more natural than making music in the mountains.

But officials are investigating whether wetlands were destroyed to build her studio in the Adirondack Mountains and whether it is in tune with local zoning restrictions.

Twain and her husband-producer, Robert "Mutt" Lange, claim their studio is exempt from the need for a permit.

"What do you do there? That's what we're trying to find out," said William Curran of the Adirondack Park Agency.

'Speed' star studies courtroom drama

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Keanu Reeves' latest excellent adventure took him a Florida courthouse to watch an armed robbery trial.

The star of "Speed" and "Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure" wore a dark suit Wednesday as he sat in court and studied the lawyers in preparation for his upcoming role in the movie "Devil's Advocate."

Ono says unlicensed stamps a no-no

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Yoko Ono and the surviving Beatles say a stamp distributor shouldn't be selling Fab Four stamps issued by Third World nations.

"This is bootleg merchandise which is hiding behind the fact that small, Third World countries put a seal of approval on them," said their lawyer, Paul Licalsi.

Running back showdown awaits Red Raider spikers face Kansas tandem

by Heath Robinson/UD
 Texas Tech's football team will attempt to stretch its winning streak to three games and get back into the thick of the Big 12 Conference race against the Kansas Jayhawks at 1 p.m. Saturday in Lawrence, Kan.
 Tech (3-2 overall, and 2-1 in the Big 12) has beaten up on Utah State and Baylor the past two games, but now must face a stretch of games over the next month against Kansas, Nebraska, Texas A&M and Texas. All four teams ended last season ranked in the top-25 and in bowl games.
 Kansas (3-1 overall, 1-0 in the Big 12) has an explosive offense and, much like Tech, favors the running game more than the pass. The Jayhawks average 252.3 yards per game on the ground, led by the nation's third-leading rusher in senior June Henley. Henley averages 166.8 a game rushing on 32 carries and has scored 11 touchdowns.

 Kansas quarterback Matt Johner has completed more than 59 percent of his passes this season, and the Jayhawks average 187.8 yards a game through the air. Isaac Bird is the big-play receiver, and backup tailback Eric Vann is adept at catching the screen passes from out of the backfield.
 The Kansas defense is seemingly the part of the team failing to execute. The only loss this year for Kansas was a 45-42 defeat at Utah Sept. 28.
 The Jayhawks are giving up 273.5 yards a game through the air and 142 yards on the ground this season.

The ground is where Kansas will be tested by the Red Raiders, as Tech brings in the second-best ground game in the country to Lawrence at 335.6 yards a contest. Tech tailback Byron Hanspard is averaging 222.4 alone, good for second in the country behind Troy Davis of Iowa State.
 "We play good backs each and every week," Kansas coach Glen Mason said.
 "Hanspard is a terrific runner, but heck, everyone in this conference has a great running back."
 Tech likely will be without the services of linebacker Anthony Armour for the second straight week with a sprained knee.
 The contest will be televised only on a pay-per-view basis on Cox Cable.

by Christy Apple/UD
 The Texas Tech volleyball team takes on Kansas at 7 p.m. today and No. 23 Kansas State at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.
 The No. 25 Texas Tech volleyball team dropped one spot in the polls this week. Tech is 15-2 overall and 2-2 in the Big 12 Conference.
 Tech enters this weekend of Big 12 action after coming off a weekend in which it lost to Texas and Texas A&M, both in three games.
 "I think that it is a matter of having success once or twice," said Tech coach Jeff Nelson.
 "We need to get beat a couple of times to find out our weakness and come back and fix them."

Tech will face a Kansas Jayhawks team that comes in with a 1-3 record.
 "Kansas is one of the teams that we have to beat in terms of the conference and the NCAA," Nelson said.
 Sophomore setter Lisa Hilgers looks to this weekend as a regrouping time for the Red Raiders. She said the team's mentality is good and it is looking ahead to the games this weekend.
 "Everyone knows that we have to work hard and prepare for this weekend," Hilgers said. "Kansas is the big game, and we have to get ready for them."
 Tech's second game is against No. 23 Kansas State, which along with Tech, is 15-2. Nelson said he thinks this game is going to be Tech's feature game of the week.

"Kansas State is a great team, and they are off to a great start at 15-2," Nelson said. "They have a player, Casey Clerk, who was the national player of the week already."
 Kansas State beat Oklahoma and Kansas, both in three games, and beat national champion Nebraska in five games.
 Senior middle blocker Jill Burness and senior outside hitter Cristine Martin are among the nation's elite in blocks and aces.
 Burness is ranked fourth nationally with 1.86 aces per game while Martin has recorded an ace in 14 of Tech's 17 games this season.
 Tech's Sonia Moric will not be able to play for the second straight week because of a stomach virus.

TEXAS TECH VS KANSAS

SCOUTING REPORT

It's hard to imagine what head coach Glen Mason and the 1996 Jayhawk football team can do for an encore.

Last season, the Jayhawks enjoyed one of the most impressive seasons in school history as Kansas finished with a 10-2 record, including a second-place tie in the final year of the Big Eight Conference and the school's first top-10 ranking since 1968. With linebackers Ronnie Ward and Jason Thoren patrolling the Memorial Stadium turf together this season for the first time, opponents will face what could be one of the Big 12 Conference's top defensive tandems. They are also joined by returning outside linebacker Chris Jones.

A standout starter in 1993 and 1994, Ward missed last season with a shoulder injury. That opened the door for Thoren to shine. He won the team's defensive MVP award in '95. If that isn't enough to spark the defense, consider the Jayhawk defensive line returns every starter.

Kansas lost marquee players at quarterback and running back after last season.

After splitting time at tailback last year, senior June Henley leads the charge for Kansas. Backup Eric Vann, who broke loose for a 67-yard touchdown in a 51-30 Aloha Bowl victory over UCLA, also is back.

Kansas returns wide receiver Isaac Byrd who caught 48 passes for 604 yards last season and five touchdowns.

Matt Johner plays at the quarterback position and all but two players have returned on the Kansas Jayhawks' offensive line.

QUOTES OF THE WEEK

"I don't think I have ever been on the field with one that is as good as he is."
Baylor coach Chuck Reedy on Tech tailback Byron Hanspard

"If Hanspard was at Ohio State or Notre Dame, he already would be working on his acceptance speech."
Amarillo Globe's John Mark Bielue after Hanspard's 287-yard performance against Baylor

"If they can take this show on the road, they could find themselves in St. Louis."
Fort Worth Star-Telegram's Jimmy Birch after Tech's 45-24 win over Baylor

PLAYER PROFILE

Henley

As a teenager, June Henley's best friend lived with him in the Henley household in Columbus, Ohio. Henley left to play at Kansas because they wanted him to be a defensive back at Ohio State. His best friend, now New England Patriot's wide receiver Terry Glenn, became an all-American standout at Ohio State.

Henley is now making a name for himself. He is currently third in the nation with 667 yards rushing and a career total of 3,159 yards.

Currently second on the Kansas all-time rushing list, he had to pass a couple of NFL Hall of Famers in Gale Sayers and John Riggins to reach his current status.

In it's final year of existence, Henley was a second team All-Big Eight selection last season.

RAIDER REWIND

- Texas Tech rolled to 624 yards of total offense against Baylor, the third-most in school history.
- Tailback Byron Hanspard set a new school record with 287 yards rushing against the Bears.
- Tech has won 11 consecutive games at home, with the last loss being against Nebraska in 1994.
- Tech has scored on its first possession in its last four games.
- Saturday's attendance of 50,594 set a Baylor-Tech series record and was the fifth-largest in Tech coach Spike Dykes' 10-year reign.
