THE DAILY LEDGER

Published every afternoon except Sunday by the Ballinger Printing Co.

The season of the sweet girl graduate is rapidly drawing near—the happiest of the year.

Read the Ballinger bank statements published in this paper, and start a savings account.

When you get in the clean up campaign you are taking a stand for good health, happiness and prosperity. Swat 'em.

A man in New York was sent to jail for five days for stealing one kiss. The punishment was too severe. Come to Texas.

Five thousand barrels of whiskey floated down the Ohio river during the recent flood. It makes a man's head swim to read such wet stories. Well, it was pretty good size toddy any way.

Mississippi received ten inches of rain in eighteen hours. If we could receive half as much in eighteen weeks we would show the world the most prosperous spot on the map.

A lady in describing her spring hat refers to the plumes as "beautiful exclamation points" but the exclamation points that father makes when he is called on to pay the bill will not do to print.

If every man in Texas who is being mentioned for governor enters the race the ticket next year will be the longest ever printed. We predict, however, that all the would be governors will die from discouragement before the campaign opens.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dooze and little daughter came in at noon Thursday from Talpa and will make home in Ballinger in the future.

W. H. Whitley left Thursday at noon for Miles.

SCHOOL MA'AM, 26, WANTS TO WED PUPIL OF 18

Love is no respecter of age. When the little winged god shoots his dart, there is no telling just where it will land, but it invariably "makes two hearts beat as one," and this is exactly what has happened to Miss Alice Dunlop 26, and Edwin Crouling, 18.

Monday night Miss Dunlop entered the Texas & Pacific terminal passenger station; close upon her heels followed Edwin. A worried expression was upon the young woman's face, but Edwin grinned, yes grinned just like a big country boy can. In the woman's mind was a picture of a grand statesman leading the multitudes, but the boy could see nothing but the big station and the hurrying crowds that seemed to be going everywhere at once. To the woman the future statesman was the big country boy at her heels. For did she not love him and know that he loved her? She would spend her savings on the young man in obtaining an education for him. He would attend school, yes, even college and she would continue to teach in the rural schools.

All this she told to Mrs. Mae Wright, traveler's aid, a few minutes later, for she applied to Mrs. Wright for assistance. "I am in trouble," she told Mrs. Wright, and at once the travelers' aid grew sympathetic and turned a listening ear.

Wants to Educate Him.
"Tell me what I can do for you" was the encouraging and motherly reply of the travelers' aid, and then the young woman unburdened her heart. She was sick from worry. People out west in Callahan county had said hateful things, but she was willing to hear everything if she could but place Edward in Britton's Training School at Cisco, where he could obtain the proper education. He would be so thankful to her that he always would be fond of her, and Oh! she knew that he some day would be a leader of men.

But Edwin could not be educated by her unless they were married. Father Crouling was willing that she and Edwin should marry, Mother Crouling and the county clerks at Eastland, Abilene, Weatherford and Fort Worth did not agree with father, and Edwin being under 21, they were compelled to seek elsewhere for the necessary document authorizing a marriage ceremony.

Seek License in Dallas.
Edwin had even been one of Miss Dunlop's pupils at the little country school at Chautauqua. He worked hard and she became interested in him, in time the friendly interested developed into love that is portrayed in novels, and Edwin became ambitious to acquire a big education. Miss Dunlop realized the young man's future. But they must marry first and to marry they must first have a license; she would help him to it.

This is why Miss Alice Dunlop, 26, of Hamilton, and Edwin Crouling, 18, of Chautauqua, came to Fort Worth Monday afternoon and this is why they went to Dallas Tuesday.—Fort Worth Record

MISSISSIPPI RIVER
LEVEE CRUSHES

With Roar That Could Be Heard
Many Miles Mighty Torrents
Tears Through Levee

Memphis, April 9.—After a day of torren- tial rains and stiff wind one levee gave way before the flood waters of the Mississippi early tonight and at half a dozen other points a desperate fight is being waged to hold the turbu- lent water within bounds with the odds against the flood fighters. Admittedly the levees are weaken- ing. The water already at an un- precedented height, is pounding against the dikes with increasing force and whether the embank- ments can longer withstand the pressure is problematical.

The levee near Wilson, Ark. went out late this evening, said to be due to the desertion of about 150 negro laborers this morning. With a roar that could be heard for a mile or more about 100 feet of the earthen revetment collapsed into the storm and it was by a narrow margin that the workers along the levee who kept up the fight to the last minute, reached a place of safety.

Large Area Will Be Flooded

As a result of the break parts of Mississippi, Poinsett, Cross and Crittenden counties will be flooded and, with the water coming through the crevasse at Graves Bayou, about 40 per cent or 600,000 acres of the St. Francis basin will be flooded. The greater part of this area is timber land and Wilson, a settlement of about 250 lumber workers and their families is the most important town that will be swept by the first rush of water. "Backwater" may reach within two miles of Osceola on the north and Marion on the south.

Other points considered in the greatest danger tonight are Mound City and Osceola, Ark. At both points the crest of the levee is a foot or more above the water but the river is being beaten into high waves and sweeping the rain-soaked embankments.

Unprecedented rainfall was re- ported from throughout the cen- tral Mississippi valley and long streams tributary to the Missis- sippi river. At Little Rock, Ark. the precipitation for 18 hours ended at 3 p. m. today was 9.56 inches.

At Hot Springs and other towns the damage was confined to the flooding of cellars and the wash- ing out of county roads.

The gas supply at Memphis was cut off today when the levee about the gas plant in the flooded section of a northern suburb col- lapsed. Other than this the situ- ation in this city is practically unchanged.

With the exception of the St. Louis and San Francisco lines all of the railroads operating west of Memphis went out of commis- sion today, because of washouts in the roadbed.

BALLINGER REPRODUC-

Motion Picture Company Makes
Proposition to Make Moving Picture of Ballinger for Ad Purpose.

The secretary of the Business League is in receipt of a letter from a moving picture company of Denver, Colorado, in which the picture company proposes to come to Ballinger and make a thousand foot film of scenes in and around Ballinger, and to show same in 2000 theatres in the United States. Of course the Business League is not in shape to consider the proposition now, but the idea is indeed an interesting one, and if it could be worked out, would be the best advertising scheme that the town could pull off. Following is an extract from the letter written the Business League:

Denver, Colo., April 7, 1913.
Secretary Chamber of Commerce,
Ballinger, Texas.

Dear Sir:

Representing The Pioneer Motion Picture Advertising Company of Denver, Colorado. I would like to call your attention to the fact that we are desirous of making a one thousand reel of motion pictures to be entitled, "Seeing Ballinger, Tex.," made for the Chamber of Commerce of Ballinger, Tex. The object of this film will be to take in all the interesting points around Ballinger as well as the town itself. Showing scenery, tourists attraction, agri- cultural and industrial opportuni- ties. We will run a film of this kind for you in over 2,000 theatres and picture shows in the United States and Colorado inclusive. We will furnish you such a film for $750. Extra prints will be ob- tainable for $100 each. Of course we make the extra films to circuit these theatres at our expense. For the amount of money invested and taking into consideration the class of publicity it is no doubt the best advertising medium that was ever offered for you disposal. You should have little trouble in raising this money from various people in your city and I think if you would run the film at your local theatres the attendance would make a profit as well as your original investment.

Before the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT granted us a charter to do a banking business, they made themselves absolutely sure that there was both CHARACTER and money behind our bank. A National Bank is restricted in doing business according to the National Banking laws, and the U. S. Government Bank Examiners see that these are observed.

Besides this, the good names of reliable men of finan- cial responsibility are behind our bank.

The modern business code insists that business men shall be well dressed

No man is well-dressed who does not take thought of the appearance of his feet. Being well shod means buying shoes in a business- like way, buying shoes that not only look good, but bearing the trade-mark of a well-known maker who will stand behind and guarantee his product. This means that you should look for the McELWAIN trade- mark upon every pair of shoes you buy.

FRIEDMAN FORTUNE IS UP TO UNCLE SAM.

New York, April 8.—Washington took note yesterday of the plans reported from this city for commercial speculation in Dr. Frederic Franz Friedmann's tubercle culture for tuberculosis and gave notice that the law must be reckoned with in advance of widespread exploitation. Any notion that, pending issue of patent or indorsement by the public health and marine hospital service, the culture may be marketed and some concern may thereby make a fortune in profits on the chance that it will be pronounced all right was shelved officially by assistant Secretary Curtis of the treasury department.

Mr. Curtis confirmed the announcement made last week by Surgeon General Hue that Dr. Friedmann must reveal his secrets if he expects to administer the "cure" under official sanction of this country. He says that specifications in the papers submitted as a basis for a patent do not meet the requirements, as patent applications habitually withhold the data on which outsiders may utilize the invention. Consequently, in a matter of this vital importance the government will insist on knowing all about it before permitting the "cure" to become an article of interstate commerce.

"Any such thing as a general exploitation of Dr. Friedmann's tubercle cure," Mr. Curtis added, "would be impossible without a permit from the treasury department. No federal objection stands in the way of New York capitalists if they wish to establish a local sanitarium in which sufferers from tuberculosis may receive Dr. Friedmann's treatment but no syndicate or individual will be permitted to put the cure into interstate commerce without a federal license.

"Such license will not be issued until the merits of Dr. Friedmann's treatment shall have been fully demonstrated and the federal authorities know exactly what it will and will not accomplish."

Members of the Friedmann party were annoyed by publication of the admission by an officer of the Hunter's Point manufacturing concern that negotiations were under way to commercialize the "cure" in anticipation. Dr. Friedmann, the specialist, repeats his disavowal of interest in any such project, and said that overtures or plans in that direction had not proceeded with his knowledge or consent. He asserted again that he had acted and would continue to act in entire good faith with the authorities.

His associates let him do all the talking on this subject, but the announcement that one commercial company was in the open for the control of the culture had the effect of reviving sundry rumors involving various persons who have figured more or less publicly with Dr. Friedmann. These rumors were based on the supposition that several months must elapse before the "cure" could receive official sanction. Meanwhile there might be a tremendous sale of the culture among unfortunates ready to grasp at any straw for relief.

Arrangements for treatment at the Seton hospital in Spuyten Duyvil had to be cancelled yesterday by the breaking down of Dr. Friedmann's culture incubator, with which he was preparing had been selected for treatment at the hospital. Many of the cases are far advanced. The government surgeons regarded these tests of great importance in demonstrating the efficiency of the "cure," though Dr. Friedmann had all along disclaimed ability to perform miracles with his injections. These tests will be next in order after repairs to the incubator have been made.

"DR. GAR EL HAMA"

In rapidity of action, abundance of thrills, excellence of photography and else that go to make up a three reel feature of premier quality, this is an exceptional offering. The story deals directly with the many thrilling escapes of the bold criminal Gar El Hama who for many years had been leading a dual life. His crimes are not depicted on the screen, but his cunning and ingenuity in freeing himself from the grasp of the law when hope seems lost, is made the subject of a strikingly sensational series which follow in sequence.

At the opening of the story Gar El Hama is seen lying prostrate on an embankment close to a railroad track. While passing the spot on a hand car, several workmen discover the senseless man and carry him to a nearby cottage where an effort is made to revive him. But his injuries appear too serious and the cottager speeds on his bicycle to summon Dr. Watson, a young practitioner of the neighborhood. The latter recognizes in his patient the notorious criminal, Gar El Hama, and convinces the workman and his wife by reading from a newspaper an accurate description of the man now lying seemingly helpless under their roof. Dr. Watson hastens to summon the police, but during his absence Gar El Hama, who has overheard the cottager and his wife discussing the hasty mission of Dr. Watson, asks feebly for a glass of water. Just as it is being handed to him he leaps from the couch, overpowers the cottager and rushes outdoors.

The hand car stands some little distance from the door. He boards this at one bound and compels the astonished section hand at the point of a revolver, to grasp one of the handle bars and pump with all his might. They are off at top speed. In the meantime Dr. Watson has returned to the cottage accompanied by the police. When they learn of the escape, little time is lost in pressing a locomotive into service for the purpose of taking up the pursuit. They board the car as the speed increases, the audience is permitted to share with Dr. Watson and the police officers, a clear view of track ahead. Gar El Hama has rid himself of the company of the section hand and is seen working frantically at the handle bar.

Suddenly, to the horror of those in the locomotive's cab, another train on the side track is seen approaching around a curve. The tension is nerve racking on the locomotive, but Gar El Hama, who is not predestined to meet death in a railroad wreck, hurls himself from the handcar and disappears in the undergrowth. With the hand car standing between them, the locomotives are halted just in time to avoid a collision, and the sleuths resume their quest. Gar El Hama proves himself resourceful. In his hiding place he discards an extra pair of trousers turns his reversible coat and hat and so disguises himself in the space of a few moments, that he has little difficulty in seeking shelter in a dismantled boiler lying near the railroad track.

Action follows now in rapid sequence. Dr. Watson calls upon the anti crime enthusiast to consult him in reference to a threatening letter he has received from Gar El Hama. He fails to recognize the latter and is about to take his departure when he is pushed by the arch criminal and falls through a secret panel to the pipe room below. He finds the trap door, but upon removing it is greeted by a deluge of water. The tide has risen since Gar El Hama entered.

In the meantime the doctor's wife has become alarmed and has apprised the police of her suspicions. While the search is being instituted thrilling glimpses of the doctor's struggles are given from time to time. When the water finally reaches the level of the opening he swims out to safety. He hurries to the mansion and arrives in time to see his heroic wife directing the arrest of Gar El Hama. But the latter is not without hope. He attempts another thrilling escape while on his way to prison, but his lucky star has set and he is lodged safely behind the grim walls that had so long awaited his coming. Nick Stallworth, of the Pony creek country, was transacting business in Ballinger Wednesday afternoon.

Gave Up Hope

"I suffered five years, with awful pains, due to womanly troubles," writes Mrs. M. D. McPherson, from Chadbourn, N. C. "They grew worse, till I would often faint. I could not walk at all, and I had an awful hurting in my side; also a headache and a backache.

I gave up and thought I would die, but my husband urged me to try Cardui, so, I began, and the first bottle helped me. By the time the third bottle was used, I could do all my work. All the people around here said I would die, but Cardui relieved me."
