Poultry dealers report that the poultry crop in this country has been wonderfully cut down by the army of cotton pickers brought here from other counties. No we don't mean that the cotton pickers have been stealing chickens, the farmers have been feeding their cotton pickers on chickens, because chicken is cheaper than bacon, and the cotton pickers chicken pie. All of which is good argument for a bigger chicken crop next year.

FOLLOWING WARNINGS According to reports received today from the Wingate section of the county, all is quiet there and no further trouble is expected from night caps, who on Wednesday night threatened to drive the negro cotton pickers of the section away from the fields by means of posting placards and warnings on their tents. The feeling of anxiety which prevailed among the citizens of that section over the outcome of the matter, has been transformed into almost a feeling of surety that nothing further will
