NEW TILLAGE CONCEPT CHECKED-Last winter, a new tillage concept was started on Doyce Turner's farm eight miles west of Muleshoe. During the past few days, Bruce Shannon left, representative for Bush Hog; and Dr. Albert Trouse, soil specialist, in the pit, were back checking the progress of crops being grown where the new tillage system was used. Shannon and Dr. Trouse were pleased with this first tillage concept used in Bailey County, The top 10-12 inches of the soil can be seen compacted, and is 'hard pan,' with the virgin soil shown below.

Amarillo Judge Names Receiver For Lazbuddie Area Cattleman

Provoking a lot of conversation these days is the possible outcome of actions concerning Lazbuddie area farmer, rancher, cattleman Jim Kassahn, who has apparently run into serious financial difficulty.

Phillip Fiorini, Amarillo Globe News Business Editor wrote the following story following a hearing in Amarillo Friday:

A state district judge has appointed a receiver to oversee the assets of Texas Panhandle cattleman Jim Kassahn, who is accused of defrauding First National Bank of Amarillo to gain a $13 million loan.

Judge Jairl P. Powell of 108th
District Court in Amarillo approved Jim Clements, a financial consultant in Amarillo, to oversee Kassahn's cattle interests. A native of Amarillo,

Dedication, Open House Planned For Old Depot

Special activities are planned at the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation Center just east of the Bailey County Civic Center on Saturday, September 12.

It will be the grand opening, dedication, ribbon cutting and open house for the Santa Fe Depot.

Much work has gone into the renovation and furnishing of the Santa Fe Depot into a center for senior adults.

Designed to coincide with the Bailey County West Plains Fair at the Coliseum in September, the events get underway with an outside breakfast at 9:13 a.m., which would have been the time for a train to arrive.

On the menu will be a taco breakfast, including the choice from three tacos -- eggs and Chorizo; eggs and potatoes or eggs and refried beans; all served with Galante Picante sauce donated by the Bobby Free Farms. Also, there will be orange juice, coffee or milk.

The breakfast is being coordinated by Julie Cage.

Live entertainment will be under the direction of the Rev.

Richard Edwards and will feature local entertainment.

Phil Kent will be master of ceremonies for the 10:13 a.m. dedication, followed by the ribbon cutting and open house.

In the former waiting room, the Byron Gwyn room, Velma Gwyn and her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Waiker of Hobbs, N.M. will act as escorts.

From 3-5 p.m. the same afternoon, the facility will be re-opened for other open house hours. Senior adults of Muleshoe will act as hosts. Punch and coffee will be served in the Bryon Gwyn room.

Tickets will be available in the near future.

Machine Breaking Through Hard Pan; Lets Roots Grow

Tuesday afternoon, an all new concept in tillage was unveiled. This system was used this year on Doyce Turner's farm, some eight miles west of Muleshoe, and entails an all new system, which cut through the 'hard pan' and into soil below that which has been cultivated and farmed for many years.

It was displayed by Dr. Albert Trouse, a retired soil researcher from Auburn University. Dr. Trouse, a resident of Selma, Ala. is currently acting as a consultant for Bush Hog, andwas accompanied to Bailey County by Bruce Shannon, Bush Hog representative from Lubbock.

Dr. Trouse, a long time soil researcher, is retired from USDA after 23 years. He was with the National Tillage Lab at Auburn.

The soil specialist explained that the 'hard pan' in cultivated soil is typical worldwide, wherever man has tilled. He said man has ruined the upper soil by his cultivation methods and is helping devise ways to cut through the hard pan so crops can put roots down to water, 10-12 inches of the soil.

"We have to have the water going to the root," he said.

"The root cannot go through the pan to water, so a machine needed to be developed to cut through the pan so roots can grow through to where the water lies deep in the ground."

instead of just watering the top

According to Dr. Trouse, the pits dug in the edge of Turner's soybean field and in the edge of his cotton fields show what man and machines do to soils, and what crops do to soils.

Attending School 'Compulsory'

Says County Judge With the beginning of the 1987-88 school year 'just around the corner,' Bailey County Judge Gordon H. Green has issued an annual reminder.

"The school year is about to begin and I want to remind the public of the Compulsory School Attendance Law in Texas," said the judge.

"The Texas Education Code provides that every child in the state who is as much as seven years of age, and who has not completed the academic year in which his 16th birthday occurred, shall be required by the law to attend school unless excused as provided by law."

Judge Green continued, "Any parent or other guardian who fails to require their children to attend school as required by law is subject to criminal charges. Each day the child remains out of school may constitute a separate offense.

'The Juvenile Code also provides that the unexcused voluntary absence of a child on ten or more days or parts of days within a six-month period for three or more days or parts of days within a four-week period from school is conduct for which the Juvenile Court may assume supervision of the child," he added.

"Unexcused absences will be reported by the school officials to the juvenile authorities and investigations will be made. All parents, guardians and school age children should understand and comply with the attendance

MICROWWAVE COOKING

By Linda Attaway

Rotating food during the cooking cycle in microwave ovens will help the food cook more evenly. This is especially true of foods that cannot be turned, such as casseroles.

A 1/4 turn twice during the cooking cycle should reposition the food enough to prevent spot overcook-

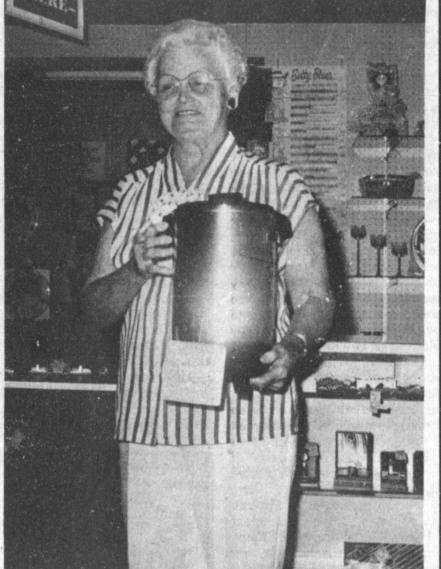

Once the time for cooking has expired, the food will continue to cook due to the heat being conducted from the center of the food to the outside.

Allow time for this cooking to complete the microwave process. This is usually referred to as "Stand" on most microwave ovens.

Cont. From Page 1 Dowell set a hearing for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in 108th District Court to address any modifications to the receiver's Citibank, who reportedly has lent money to Kassahn, objected to the court approving a receiver, the institution's attorney said. Meanwhile, other attorneys representing an interest in the case disagreed with the scope of the receiver's role.

The hearing was set to address a temporary restraining order to prevent Kassahn of disposing any cattle assets that may be tied to his J. P.'s Family Inc. or BC&K, a partnership that allegedly owns several thousand head of cattle. Cattle associated with BC&K alone were reported to be worth $28 million, attorneys said.

First National posted a $2 million bond on the assets and a $250,000 fidelity bond on Clements as receiver, the court said.

Kassahn is accused of defrauding First National, the region's largest bank, to gain a $13 million loan by allegedly misrepresenting the size of his cattle empire, court documents

Contending Kassahn did not abide by his loan requirements, First National declared the loan in default and now is calling in the $12.75 million that remains due, court records show.

First National also is suing Barrett-Crofoot Feedlot Inc., which owns feedlots in Deaf Smith County, to prevent the feedlot from selling cattle that the bank claims is collateral for Kassahn's multimillion dollar Added as a defendant in the case on Wednesday was Herbert F. Vogel and his Vogel Cattle Co.

Several private investors have intervened on behalf of cattle interests they have in connection with the case, including Gary McLaren; Alan White, a Lubbock banker; Roland Hosenoehl; Clyde C. Waddell Jr.; Jan Friederich, chief executive officer of Furr's Inc., the West Texas supermarket chain; and Diversified Investors Inc.

Attorneys for Barrett-Crofoot had filed a motion to dissolve the temporary restraining order and for a change of venue, Grady Terrill, the feedlot firm's attorney, told the Globe-News the case "needs to be moved to Lubbock where it belongs."

Kassahn, whose cattle empire reportedly is worth more than $36 million, is accused of telling First National he owned 37,000 head of cattle, court documents filed Aug. 12 show. But upon inspection by the bank of Barrett-Crofoot Feedlot Inc. operations in Deaf Smith County, the number of cattle Kassahn actually owned was put into question.

Kassahn is a board of director of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, based in Amarillo, and before Monday, sat on the board of directors at American State Bank in Lubbock.

According to court documents First National claims to have made the loan to Kassahn upon representation that the 37,000 head of cattle were owned "free and clear" by J.P.'s Family Inc., a firm owned by Kassahn and his wife, Paula.

The bank contends that Kassahn claimed in a monthly inventory report that his firm, J.P's Family Inc., still owned 37,000 feedlot cattle in Barrett-Crofoot feedlots just prior to Aug. 11.

To verify ownership, court documents show that William P. Snure, a vice president at First National, visited the feedlot on Aug. 11 and was told by Ed C. Barrett that Kassahn had an interest in only 16,000 head of cattle in his feedlot.

And Barrett told him during the inspection that the cattle in question were held jointly by a partnership of Kassahn, Barrett and Jay Crofoot of Lubbock, according to Snure's deposition.

Kassahn attributed the reduction of 21,000 head to a legitimate, contracted sale, but First National discovered that was not true, according to court documents.

In question are Kassahn's cattle numbering anywhere from 16,000 to 37,000 that were carried under names of J.P.'s Family Inc., Kassahn or BC&K, the alleged partnership formed by Kassahn, Barrett and Crofoot, court documents show.

First National claims Barrett told bank officials the cattle in question are owned by the alleged partnership. But that's despite the fact that "many, if not all of the cattle" bear ear tags and other identification stipulating that they're owned by J.P.'s Family Inc., the bank charges.

Kassahn, who owns a feedlot near Lazbuddie, told First National when he sought the $13 million loan last December that he owned about 57,000 head of pasture cattle valued at more than $17.8 million and 5,600 feedlot cattle worth $3.4 million.

In an inventory count prior to the inspection by the bank two weeks ago, Kassahn told First National that cattle totals had increased giving him a collateral base of $35.1 million, plus another $1.1 million in assets at J.P.'s Family Inc., unrelated to

He also explained that the eight to 10 inch pan in Bailey County is shallow compared to the 20-32 inch pans found in the Seminole area during the past week.

Around Seminole, Dr. Trouse said the pan was so deep because of the increased 'sandfighting' done by big tractors, in that sandy area's never ending battle against sand.

Also, the doctor said farmers in this mechanized age tend to ignore farm conditions and what the big machinery does when it makes passes through the land, compacting the soil.

"Farmers are spending time and money which is detrimental to crops," he continued. "Farmers are going to have to start farming in a different way to save both time and money.'

He said the pits show the depth of the pan, which keeps the roots from growing normally, and said at least 2/3 of the fertilizer broadcast does not reach the roots of the plants. Dr. Trouse said most of the water from rains 'runs off' into playa lakes instead of soaking into the land, because of the hard pan that stops it.

Water Your Grass Properly For Growth

Although some turfgrasses might live through a hot, dry summer without any water, they all need water once in awhile to stay green and actively growing. Because water is fairly expensive and is liminted in some parts of Texas, it makes good sense to water your lawn properly, says Spencer Tanksley, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In much of Texas, clay soils develop rather impressive cracks -- some several inches across and even a few feet deep. These cracks do not serilously affect grass plants, but may turn what started as a neighborhood football or baseball game into a medical emergency if a child steps into a crack and is injured. These same shrinkable clay soils also can do a great deal of damage to a home's foundation. A good irrigation program can help prevent these problems, Thaksley points out.

When watering a lawn, the "rule of thumb" is to soak the soil to a depth of about 5 or 6 inches. This sounds simple but it takes some work. First, there are a lot of different sprinklers available. which spray water in an even pattern are more efficient, although a well - designed ground system is probably most efficient.

Ideally, a sprinkler should put out water at the same rate the water drains into the soil, says Tanksley. However, often a sprinkler applies water too quickly, resulting in runoff. Put another way, some soils are so heavy they cannot absorb water as fast as it's applied by even the slowest of sprinklers.

The absolute first step of running a sprinkler is to find out how much water it emits in a given period of time. This information should be available from the manufacturer or installer. If not, just set out some old coffee cans, run the sprinkler for an hour, and measure the amount of water collected, Tanksley explains.

In most high clay soils, it takes about an inch or so of water to wet the soil deep enough. If a soil is high in sand, as little as half an inch of water will do the job.

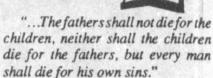

Very likely the lawn will start to puddle or show runoff before the desired amount of water is applied. Stop the sprinkler just before this occurs, advises Tanksley. Allow enough time for the water to soak in and then start the sprinkler again. These on-off cycles must be developed through experience since few lawns are the same. Variables in soil type, slope and height of the lawn all affect the water infiltration rate.

If water infiltration is exfremely slow, two measures might speed things up. First, a machine called an "aerifier" can be used to punch small holes up to about three inches deep in the soil. Many rental stores have aerifiers. Another possible help is a chemical called a wetting agent. This soap-like chemical makes water "wetter" and moves it into the soil faster, explains Tanksley.

After soaking the lawn 5 to 6 inches deep, leave it alone until it dries out again -- usually five to seven days. One of the worst things you can do is water your lawn every day. That will lead to a shallow root system and the strong possibility of disease, Tanksley emphasizes.

> Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor.

Just a note to let you know that I really appreciated the friendly helpful people in Muleshoe when we broke down with 8 horses in our trailer.

"A Bossman" of Fry & Cox Implement Co. loaned us his pickup to drive looking for parts, the auto partsman called around to find what he didn't have, the service station man loaned us tools, and we had a good meal on the way back through with friendly people.
