Tulsa Mother Watches 3 Sons Burn to Death

(By International News Service)
TULSA, Nov. 20.—While their frenzied mother fought and struggled with the firemen, three small sons of Mr. and Mrs. Colbert Roberts were burned to death in a fire at their home today. The mother had left for market and when she returned she found her home in a mass of flames.

Indian Brides Paid for with Automobiles

By Jack A. Bradbury
 (International News Service Staff Correspondent)
FAIRFAX, Okla., Nov. 20.—The ancient system of tribal marriage in the Osage Indian Nation has assumed a new aspect. In past years the father of the blushing bride, after the families had arranged for the marriage, demanded a certain head of horses for the hand of his daughter. Now the horse giving idea is a thing of the past and the bride's father seeks the latest model of automobile—and he always happens to pick out a high priced one. Sometimes he has his prospective son-in-law purchase an ambulance for him to ride around in. This action is being frowned upon by the Indian department who keep a watchful eye on the braves' funds and efforts have been made to discourage the tribal form of marriage. But the tribal leaders refuse to abolish the traditional custom and threaten to take the matter up with the "Great White Father" at Washington. An osage wedding is weird and fantastic. The marriage is arranged by representatives of the two families; the bride and groom have no voice in the matter. When the marriage pact is arranged and the father of the bride has been "paid" he demands that the date of the marriage be set. The father of the groom and his family, along with other relatives move near the home of the bride and set up tepees. Then the festivities start. Tribal members from all parts of the "Red" nation gather and for a week they dance the ancient tribal dances of the Osages. The next week the bride's family together with their entourage set up camp at a distance not more than a quarter of a mile away. At the groom's camp a great feast is prepared and placed on the ground on a special canvas. But the groom is strangely absent. At sundown some ancient squaw of the tribe, especially chosen for the purpose will emerge from a tent and emit loud calls in the tribal language which translated into English asked the groom to come into the camp that the bride is soon to arrive. Upon the arrival of the groom, the bride's camp is notified and the bridesmaids adorned in gorgeous finery come out of the tent of the bride, carrying her in a blanket, being careful that she does not touch the ground, and proceeds to the groom's camp. There is no minister to pronounce the marriage ceremony. The tribal chieftain from his place at the head of the table gives the signal to eat and when the feast is ended the two are man and wife.

Legion Votes Christmas Cheer

Pat Williams Post No. 8, American Legion, held a very interesting session at the hall Monday night at their regular monthly meeting. New officers, recently elected, were in their chairs Monday night for the first time and indications are that they will get a good start this year towards a well planned program of activities. All members present at the Monday meeting paid their dues for the coming year and plans were made for a membership drive which will be held this year around the first of December. The legion voted to again look after Christmas for the poor and soon after the first of December will start the American Legion Christmas Cheer Fund. The legion has handled this for the last four years and has done a good job with the work each year. Rev. E. W. McLaurin will take charge of the canvass to be made of the city and donations will be accepted through The Ledger. The money pots and clothing and toy barrels will be placed on the streets about December 10 to receive the offerings of the people. The legion announced the coming early in January of Harley Sadler and his company for a week's engagement here.

The leading agronomists of Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and Indiana have been invited to serve on the corn judging committees while the judges of small grains will be nominated by the agricultural colleges of Montana, Wisconsin, Michigan and Ontario.

NAVIGATING IN PARIS TRAFFIC EASIER THAN IN NEW YORK STREETS

(By International News Service)
PARIS, Nov. 20.—Navigating six miles of surface traffic in the downtown district at 5 p. m. on any weekday takes 32 minutes in Paris—but it takes 57 minutes in New York. The figures are those of a traffic expert who has undertaken practical experiments in both of these cities. Itineraries were selected to present similar traffic conditions, and experiments were made at four different hours of the day. The following results were obtained:
 11 a. m.—Paris 34, N. Y. 37, 2 p. m.—Paris 30, N. Y. 44, 5 p. m.—Paris 32, N. Y. 57, 9 p. m.—Paris 18, N. Y. 25. The itineraries were: Paris—Mauillot, Etoile, Concorde, S. Lazare station, Opera, St. Denis, Place Palais-Royal. New York—Manhattan Square, Lincoln Square, Times Square, Pennsylvania Station, Herald Squar, Grand Central, Union Square.

Inspector Declares Lifeboats Okehed U.S. Comptroller Resigns Position

(By International News Service)
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Edward Keane, government inspector of steamship hulls, was the first witness today in the new investigation of the sinking of the Vestris last week. He testified that 68 of the 191 life belts on the ill-fated steamer were rotten and were thrown out before the ship sailed on its last voyage. He said that he gave the life boats a severe test, putting more than a normal quota in each while overhauling them, and testified that the ropes running through the davit pulleys, which lowered the boats to the sea were in good condition. He said that he saw no life rafts on the vessel.

SIR AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN IS MIMICKED BY PARIS SHOE STORE ADVERTISER

(By International News Service)
PARIS, Nov. 20.—A rotund caricature of Sir Austen Chamberlain is being seen these days along the Grands Boulevards—distributing handbills for a local shoe store. Topper, monocle and every visible characteristic of the statesman has been duplicated. For a few francs per day the masquerader walks up and down the Boulevards, an object of much curiosity. He is always puffing at a cigar of formidable size. The cigar, at least, is worthy of Sir Austen—pure Havana leaf and expensive. "The store pays for my cigars," says the pseudo Chamberlain. "My daily cigar bill amounts to twice my salary."

Monday The Ledger reported more than 40,000 bales of cotton already ginned in Runnels county and approximately $50,000 worth of turkeys sold the week before. Such reports as this are what make Runnels county rank at the top of all other counties in Texas. This is already a good report and information gathered indicates a 14,000-bale rise in the figures and that the Christmas market on turkeys will be even greater than for Thanksgiving.

We are informed that the purchase of a new fire truck in Ballinger would lessen our insurance rate from 37 cents to 22 cents. If that is true the truck would more than pay for itself the first year and we would have the protection of a modern fire fighting machine at the same time. The truck, in an emergency, might save many times over its cost to property owners. Ballinger has been fortunate in regard to fires lately, but that is a good time to "knock on wood."

In the meeting last week of officers of the Texas National Guard held at Fort Worth, the Ballinger company was the only company in the state with all officers present. There are four commissioned officers here and all of them answered present at the meeting.

PROF MULLIKEN TELLS OF BIG NEW TELESCOPE

By Robert A. Mulliken
(Executive President, California Institute of Technology)
PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 20.—The International Education Board has made an appropriation to the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena for the construction of an astro-physical observatory to be equipped with a 200-inch reflecting telescope and many auxiliary instruments. A prime purpose of the gift is to assure the new observatory the advantage and experience of the strong group of investigators of the Institute and in the neighboring Mount Wilson observatory of the Carnegie Institute of Washington.

The terms of the gift are so broad as to offer a unique opportunity for securing scientific results of the greatest interest. This can be seen from the nature of the equipment, the problems to be solved, and the group of men assembled to attack them.

The new observatory which will be designed to supplement, not duplicate the Mount Wilson observatory, will comprise two main parts. One of them will be the 200-inch telescope with its buildings, dome and auxiliary equipment, to be erected on the most favorable mountain sites that can be found within effective working distance of associated groups of investigators and their extensive scientific equipment. The other will be an astro-physical laboratory on the campus of the California Institute of Technology.

What may be hoped to learn with the new telescope and its auxiliary instruments? It should render possible the exploration of many "island universes" beyond the Milky Way, the nearest two or three of which are now but slightly known. It should tell us something about the evolution of these spiral nebulae, millions of light years distant, and much about the development of the stars of our own galactic systems, one of which is the sun with its encircling planets.

It should solve many of the problems of physics or chemistry that depend upon the enormous masses or temperatures or upon the immense density of extremity tenuity, exhibited by celestial bodies in which titanic experiments exceeding the capacity of any terrestrial laboratory are constantly in progress.

Incidentally, it should reveal hundreds of thousands of nebulae beyond the ranges of existing telescopes.

WOMAN M. P. DECLARES FELLOW MEMBERS EAT TOO MUCH SOLID FOOD

"The trouble about the meals in the house," said Miss Wilkinson, wearing a charming frock of green and gold brocade, "is that they are much too solid. They are men's meals through and through, and we women members, since we are in such a tiny minority, have to make the best of them."

MAINE INDIANS GIVE SIMPLE MONUMENT TO HONOR RALE, JESUIT MISSIONARY

(By International News Service)

OLDTOWN, Me., Nov. 20.—Commemorating the achievements of Father Sebastian Rale, Jesuit missionary among the Indian tribes of Maine 200 years ago, a simple, yet impressive monument has been erected on the reservation of the Penobscot tribe of the Abanaki Indians here. The reservation is an island in the Penobscot river, opposite Oldtown.

Father Rale entered the missionary field among the Maine Indians in 1694, and from that time until his untimely and tragic death in 1714 spent practically all his time there. He studied their languages and also compiled a dictionary of Abanaki tongue. At Norridgewock, he caused a chapel to be erected and established a settlement, where the work of educating the Indian tribes was begun.

An expedition from Massachusetts visited the colony in 1705 and burned it to the ground. The Indians at the time were away.

The settlement was re-established and grew until 1714, when on August 23 of that year, an expedition under Captain Harmon from Massachusetts again attacked it. Father Rale was shot as he attempted to temporize with the attacking party so that the women and children might have time to escape.

The monument stands on the lawn of the rectory of St. Ann's church where the Indians worship. It consists of a cement base in the top of which is embedded the cross which for years marked Father Rale's grave at Norridgewock.

This cross, a crude affair, was brought from Norridgewock to Indian Island by the Indians almost two centuries ago when they abandoned the Kennebec River and came to Penobscot.

LEIPZIG SPRING FAIR BUILDS NEW PALACES FOR EXHIBITS

LEIPZIG, Nov. 20.—The great Leipzig "sample fair," the oldest and largest in Europe, assumes steadily such increased proportions that the space available for exhibitors is no longer adequate.

The spring fair, beginning on March 3, 1929, will see two new "fair palaces" ready for use.

One, the "Peterhoff," in the Peterstrasse, will be six stories high and have 11,000 square yards of floor surface. Four stories will be for the toy industry and one each for musical instruments and applied art.

The second building, in the Grimmaischestrasse, will have room for 200 exhibitors of confectionery.

The artificial silk industry plans to build its own fair building on one of Leipzig's main squares.

A prize competition will soon be established for the harmonizing of the buildings of the technical fair, which were constructed at different periods.

These grounds, with a total area of 657,000 square yards, whereof nearly 120,000 square yards are already occupied by exposition halls, are by far the greatest fairgrounds in the world.

From 1924 to 1928 the number of foreign visitors at the Leipzig fair increased from 13,500 to 29,500, and advance orders indicate that the spring fair of 1929 will bring a further increase.

Two companies in Brady have already opened business to handle the turkey market. It is not known how the turkey crop will compare with former years, although it is known that a large number of birds will be shipped East.

The authorities at Spearman are cooperating with the towns of Perryton, Woodward, Booker, Darouzett, Follet and Shattuck in improving the roads in that community, particularly between Shattuck and Woodward. Telephone service will also be improved.

Year Spent On One Scene

More than a year was spent in preparation before a single scene was photographed for "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," the first National picture of John Erskine's brilliant story which comes to the Palace Theatre Wednesday for a two day run.

Soon after its publication the novel became a nation-wide best-seller and for two years led the list of all novels in sales.

Richard A. Rowland, vice-president of First National Pictures, saw film possibilities in the book despite the fact that there was little incident of pictorial value in the story, and purchased the screen rights to it.

It was then turned over to Carey Wilson, First National scenarist and producer, who began at once to work upon the huge task of preparing such a production for the screen.

A story, following the spirit of Erskine's book, had to be prepared. The aid of the research department was solicited and a mass of material was collected.

Max Ree, noted designer and head of the studio costume department, made literally hundreds of costume sketches and Horace Jackson, who designed the settings for "Ben Hur" and other pictures of similar magnitude, went to work on the sets.

With Alexander Korda, who was chosen as director of the picture, Wilson worked for months on the story, supervising the task of designing sets and costumes and selecting players.

Maria Corda, wife of the director, and a star of stage and screen in Europe, was selected for the role of Helen and Lewis Stone as Menelaos, her husband. Tests of virtually every leading man and star in the film industry were made before Ricardo Cortez was chosen for the highly important part of Paris, and equal care was exercised in choosing players for supporting roles.

More weeks were spent in the production of the picture with extreme care directed toward picture beauty and photographic perfection.

Suspense Found In Fairbanks As Gaucho

From below the equator comes Douglas Fairbanks as The Gaucho, which new United Artists' production bids fair to create a sensation. The picture opens Friday at the Palace Theatre.

Treasure lure is the dominating mood of the Fairbanks story. A cruel usurper has seized the "city of the miracle," whose shrine has attracted pilgrims from afar. The Gauche outlaw, Doug, occupies the town unknown to the usurper. A wild mountain girl, and a girl of the shrine are strangely contrasted roles, and until the end of the play it is uncertain which girl the Gaucho will claim.

Conflict and suspense reign throughout. Spectacles and thrills are supplied by vast herds of cattle, and incomparably beautiful scenery. Doug's bravado, humor and agility are strongly featured, and his use of that old missile, the bolas, adds the ever present touch of novelty.

In the cast are Nigel de Bruiler, Michael Vavitch, Charles Stevens, Al MacQuarrie, Carlotta Monti, Eve Southern, Lupe Velez and Fred de Silva.

Football Banquet Thursday Night

The Ballinger Lions Club will host Thursday evening to the coach, heads of the school and the Ballinger football team at a banquet. The affair will be held in the club dining room at the Central Hotel.

A short program of pep talks will be heard from team members and others on the eve of the Winters-Ballinger game for the championship of this district. Coach Wright will okeh the menu that is to be served to the boys so that nothing will be eaten by them which will interfere in any way with their training.

Immediately following the banquet at the hotel the team, Lions Club and visitors will go to Fair Park where a city-wide rally will be held. A short program will be arranged this week for the rally at the park and a large bonfire will make merry for the occasion.

With these preliminary events before the game it is thought that a great deal of enthusiasm will be worked up and many more people will attend the game at Winters the following day.

Aviation Will Cause Changes In U.S. Cavalry

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Radical reorganization of the cavalry arm through the introduction of aviation, armored car and tank units, and reduction in the regimental and divisional peace time strength looking toward increased efficiency and mobility, during the past year, marked the annual report of Maj. Gen. H. B. Crosby, chief of cavalry, made public recently.

The reorganization, Crosby said, while reducing overhead and retaining for the cavalry its characteristic of mobility, has increased fire power, introduced effective anti-aircraft and anti-tank units, and has provided some motor transportation in the place of animal-drawn vehicles.

"It is believed the changes accomplished," the report said, "represent a degree of progress which will enable our cavalry to render a most satisfactory account of itself in the event of another war."

Various changes have been made in the peace time organization of the machine gun units. Regimental machine gun troops have replaced the two brigade machine gun squadrons of three machine gun troops each, that existed under the former organization, making a total of 14 such troops of 112 guns. An anti-tank section provided with two 37 mm pack guns, has been included in each machine gun troop.

The new peace time strength regiment has an enlisted strength of 690 men as against the old strength of 880 men, but the reduced number has twice the fire power of the old regiment, and its mobility is in no way impaired, Crosby said.

The outstanding feature of the new division is the incorporation of a division air service, of one observation squadron and a photo section; the incorporation of an armored car troop of 12 armored cars; the addition of a light tank company, partial motorization of the division train, quartermaster corps and the rear echelon of division headquarters.

Peace strength is put at 5,000 and like the regimental organization, doubled when on a war basis. The new peace time division, Crosby said, forms a well balanced force which in time of war can be rapidly made a highly mobile unit.

"The addition of the air service and the armored cars," Crosby said, "will largely increase the radius of reconnaissance that can be conducted by the division acting alone, while the addition of the tank company and the increase in the fire power of the cavalry regiments will make the division infinitely more powerful in battle, even at peace strength, than our war strength cavalry division that previously existed."

ARMY SEEKING NEW TYPE MOTOR FOR TRANSPORT OF INFANTRY IN FUTURE

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Motorization of the infantry is still some distance off and the doughboy bids fair to remain one until further studies are made of type of motor transport suitable to supplant the "hike."

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Allen, chief of infantry, in his annual report to the secretary of war, made public today, said this concerning motorization and mechanization of the infantry.

"Studies have been made of various schemes for placing our forces on a motorized and mechanized status. As a summary, it may be said that motorization and mechanization have many advantages over our present form of transportation but that extensive experiments should be carried on before definitely committing ourselves to any one type of material and of organization. New forms of motor transport and of mechanized weapons now on hand, or appropriated for, are wholly inadequate for proper experimentation in organization and tactical methods. Complete combat units, the reinforced battalion and the reinforced brigade, should be equipped with the new forms of motor transport, etc., and given thorough tests in tactical employment under widely differing conditions and terrain and climate. Tests should be so conducted as to take advantage of the ingenuity of the greatest number of experienced individuals."

Recent tests by the British War Department show that the tank is obsolete. We still have a few nightclubs here and there in America, however.

T. E. Kuykendoll, campaign manager of the West Texas Utilities company, L. F. Hoffman and Mrs. Stella Floyd, Hot Point Range specialists for the Southwest General Electric company, are here this week in a cooking school and range demonstration.

The school is being held in the auditorium at the American Legion Hall each afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Floyd is in charge of the school and is cooking many good things to eat and serving them to those attending at the conclusion of the session.

Thursday afternoon of this week Mrs. Floyd will cook a part of the eight-point buck killed by Alton Brady last week and serve the venison to the crowd. She also makes many delicious cakes and other desserts that will be educational to the housewife and will demonstrate the correct way of cooking these foods.

Also, each afternoon the company gives away many beautiful and useful electric gifts to the patrons of the school. These prizes do not cost the visitors a thing. They are absolutely free and are gifts that you will be proud of. You must be present to receive one of these gifts and aside from them, the school and demonstration are well worth the time necessary to be in attendance.

The auditorium is well heated and is made perfectly comfortable for guests and everyone is cordially invited to attend. The school will close Thursday afternoon with the serving of the venison and the awarding of electrical gifts.

RICKARD BANS FLYING FOR YOUNG STRIBLING ON HIS WAY TO BATTLES

(By International News Service) ATLANTA, Nov. 20.—"Young" Stribling, the Georgian aspirant to the laurels relinquished by Gene Tunney, is no longer "up in the air."

The "Georgia Peach," a licensed pilot, has been ordered to stop flying over the country to meet his ring opponents.

It was noticed when Stribling paid a visit to Atlanta that he hadn't been doing much flying of late. Why?

The answer came from "Pa" Stribling. "That's orders," said Pa, "from Tex Rickard via telegraph."

"Tex thinks there may be some danger of the boy getting bumped off—up in the air," continued Pa. "I don't, however. I think he's a great little pilot. But those are the orders from Tex."

Stribling is matched with Napoleon Jack Dorval in Madison Square Garden on November 23 in his first fight of Mr. Rickard's elimination tourney.

Turkeys are cheaper this year. Last year you had to turn in a six-cylinder sedan as a down payment. This year you can almost get one outright for a four-cylinder roadster.

Sea-Going Flapper

DOROTHY MACKAILL

Dorothy Mackaill dons her navy ducks and sings, "Yo-ho, and a bottle of sunburn lotion," in her new First National picture, "Waterfront," in which she is co-starred with Jack Mulhall. The picture tells the amusing story of the flapper daughter of a tug-boat captain who longs for the sea. Shipping as a boy, she gets her share of rough treatment on the decks of a freighter. The cast includes James Bradbury, Sr., Kaate Erickson, Ben Hendricks, Jr., William Bailey and Pat Haruna. William A. Selter directed the production.

FEW SKYSCRAPERS IN AMERICAN CITIES, IS REPORT OF ARCHITECT

(By International News Service) CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—America is not a land of sky-scrapers, despite the popular belief to that effect, according to a study which has been made for Walter W. Ahlschlager, Chicago architect, who has designed the 75-story Chicago Apparel Mart, which, when completed, will be the tallest and largest building in the world.

The average height of American office buildings is approximately 12 stories, according to the study made for Ahlschlager, and a 12-story building is not a skyscraper in the modern conception of the term.

New York and Chicago are the only two cities where the height of commercial buildings is in much excess of the national average. Thirty-two of the largest skyscrapers in New York have an average of 34 stories each, while in Chicago the average height of a similar number of the largest skyscrapers is 22 stories.

Throughout the rest of the country, zoning restrictions or economic conditions have kept the number of tall buildings down. The study shows that in Utica, N. Y., the highest building is 167 feet; in Syracuse, N. Y., 350 feet; in Cincinnati, 495 feet; in Cleveland, 708 feet; in St. Louis, 445 feet; in Boston, 495 feet; in Philadelphia, 548 feet; in Baltimore, 357 feet; in St. Paul, 245 feet; and in Milwaukee, 250 feet.

American Gives Aid for Vienna Cancer Survey

By Alfred Tyrnauer (International News Service Correspondent)

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—An international research institute, connected with a hospital for cancer and blood diseases has been founded in Vienna by the American millionaire S. Canning Childs, who deposited $100,000 for this purpose with a Vienna bank.

This donation, which is perhaps the most important one ever made by Americans in Central Europe, establishes a new world center of cancer research and therapeutic tests in Vienna.

It will be known as "Canning Childs Hospital for Research of International Diseases and Cancer."

The director of the foundation is Dr. Adolph Edelmann, a Viennese specialist for internal diseases, whose research works in the field of cancer and blood diseases aroused international interest.

He was formerly the head physician of the international section of the Vienna Wilhelminen Hospital and was connected with other renowned institutions.

Dr. Edelmann hopes to open the new hospital within three or four months. He has already gathered around him a staff of 18 scientists and he expects to place 20 or 25 more specialists in his institute.

The capital necessary for the further development and sustenance of the hospital will be raised by the American friends of the founder.

This is not the first medical endowment of Canning Childs. He has laid the foundation of two other hospitals: one in the United States and one in England.

For the research institute he has, however, selected Vienna because he believes that this city is at the present the focal point of medical science, and is certainly a meeting place of medical students and patients from all over the world.

SCOURD ANGLE WORMS MAKE BETTER BAIT, IS NEW VIEW OF EXPERT

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—It probably will come as a surprise to many a fisherman who knows that angleworms are an excellent bait, that to get the very best results from worms they should go through a process known as "scouring."

W. R. Walton, of the department of agriculture, who has made a serious study of the earthworm in connection with the damage the worms sometimes do to lawns and golf greens, has also shown that the scouring of worms has been well known to some anglers for hundreds of years and was well described by Izaak Walton, patron saint of fishermen in 1653.

Scoured worms, this entomologist says, are much more desirable than those freshly dug. They will live longer on the hook and will take more fish.

PARLIAMENT WILL TRY TO REDUCE RIGHTS OF CROWN IN LITIGATION

(By International News Service) LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Crown—that is to say the government—in Britain still possesses certain medieval rights against litigants and a determined effort is being made in parliament this session to sweep away these anomalies.

The Crown, in law, comprises no less than 21 government departments. Each of these, in its relations with the public, has extraordinary legal privileges.

If one of them commits a breach of contract the ordinary man has no legal remedy as of right against them and has to rely on arbitration.

If one of them loses in a lawsuit it is not bound to pay the costs of the successful litigants.

If one of them refuses to produce documents there is no power at law to compel it. No proceedings can be taken against them except in the supreme courts.

The bill is backed by a strong committee of judges and lawyers and it is hoped to pass it within a few months.

Harvard Using Films to Teach Nature Studies

(By International News Service)
 CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 20.—A new experiment in the field of education, the use of moving pictures in teaching, research and graduate study, has been tried at Harvard University with marked success. The first production of the University Film Foundation was a two-reel film on Present-day Harvard, showing its grounds and buildings, the work of its classes, and its athletic life.

The object of the foundation was to operate, in connection with Harvard University, a completely equipped center where films and photographs of scientific and educational value might be produced, collected and preserved. The Film Foundation is unique in the field of American education, for while previous photographers have made films on educational subjects, no such organization working in conjunction with the college has hitherto been known.

In Nature Studies
 Officials of the foundation project the use of moving pictures to aid in studying subjects in botany, zoology, fine arts, industrial management and most of the other fields of educational endeavor. Already such widely separate fields as anthropology and astronomy have found the medium a useful one.

The foundation, a non-profitable organization incorporated under laws of Massachusetts, has collaborated with the university in the construction of films of educational values to be made available to educational and cultural institutions at a minimum cost. By an agreement with the president and the fellows of Harvard, the foundation has been extended the free use of laboratories and equipment. Its work will not be confined to the production of films made in conjunction with Harvard, but the foundation will work under the scientific direction and with the assistance of specialists from other institutions and organizations as well as from Harvard University.

Training Experts
 Young scientists in several departments at Harvard have been undergoing a training in motion picture technique, which will enable them to approach the work of their science from a hitherto unknown angle, and to make researches through the medium of the camera which are beyond the power and speed of the eye. Full use of slow motion will be made and the various teaching aids offered by the motion picture.

All films edited and produced will be available at a minimum cost to schools, colleges, libraries, museums, churches and clubs in all countries.

Already some of the films edited by the foundation have been used experimentally in connection with several courses of the Harvard Business School.

BOY MANNERED GIRLS IN PARIS ARE BLAMED AS MONSIEURS MISBEHAVE

By Robert W. Thompson
 (International News Service Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Boyish-mannered mademoiselles are making monsieurs misbehave.

Once a lily-white hand was gracefully kissed. Now it is just smacked.

This is the conclusion of M. Andre de Fouquieres, accepted as a judge of elegant manners and masculine styles who has decreed what is "comme il faut" for many years.

"Look at those boys, they will meet a girl in the street and kiss her hand—a courtesy reserved for the drawing room or boudoir," complained M. de Fouquieres.

"And how they kiss them! Instead of bending over a woman's finger tips they jerk them up to their lips.

"And that isn't all, I have actually seen a man raise a feminine hand to kiss it while keep-

"Other times the gesture was reserved for married women. Now a boarding school girl can expect it.

"Show me a man who asks a woman for permission to smoke. He lights up when he pleases. Is the woman offended? Not at all. She probably asks him for a cigarette.

"Right there is the explanation—our young folks are reared well, but the girls have that post war negligence. They refuse to draw a line on manners, so the boys go the limit."

CALLING PRISONERS BY NUMBERS IS CONDEMNED BY WISCONSIN WARDEN

(By International News Service)
 MADISON, Nov. 20.—Prisoners should not lose their identity under numbers and people should be called by their names during service of prison sentences, according to Henry A. Town, Madison, for 20 years warden of the state penitentiary at Waupun, in praising the recent decree of the Peruvian government which provides that prisoners are to be used in the future for nothing more than the prison record.

In Wisconsin, prisoners have never been called by number. It is put on their clothing but where it is not seen, and is for identification only. Prisoners here are called by their own names, and the number is kept in the registers to avoid any confusion of names. Mr. Town believes that the calling of prisoners by number is humiliating and unnecessary.

FAMOUS SWEDISH BOTANIST AT AGE OF 80, ON WORLD COMMISSION FROM KING

(By International News Service) CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The Rev. Dr. Sven Johan Enander, more than 80 years old, a celebrated Swedish botanist, now travelling around the world, with a commission from King Gustav, to make researches in connection with the willows of all lands, is at present in Chicago, studying the large willow collections in the herbarium of Field Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Enander, despite his years, is spry and active, and travels with equal ease by ship, railroad, automobile, airplane or afoot, all of which methods he is employing on his tour. With Field Museum botanists he tramped through the Indian sand dunes recently in search of that region's special varieties of willows. Previous to visiting Chicago, he explored the White Mountains, the Gaspé Peninsula, Labrador, Alaska, and in parts of Canada. When he has completed his work here he will go to Banff, then Wyoming, Nevada, North and South Dakota and California. After that he will sail for Japan, China and India. He plans to continue his search for willows in the Himalayas, before returning to Sweden.

GREENWICH VILLAGE IS LOSING ITS COLORFUL ARTISTIC ATMOSPHERE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Greenwich Village, famous melting pot for the embryo artists, poets, and novelists who descend upon New York annually in great numbers is losing its colorful atmosphere.

In the past, the eccentric artists and others who lend color to the village by living and dressing differently from normal Americans, lived in Greenwich Village because rent was cheap.

Americans of adequate means flocked to the village to absorb the "atmosphere" and Bohemian life of the quarter. Gradually these folks of regular income began moving into the village. They were willing to pay higher rent in order to acquire the apartments and living quarters.

The last scrimmage was held Monday afternoon with no casualties. The remainder of the week will be limited to signal practice and a study of Winters' formations.

HYSTERICAL

South Carolina Lady Then Tried Cardui and Says She Noticed Remarkable Improvement.

Anderson, S. C.—"I suffered a long time before I tried Cardui, and my only regret is that I did not know about it sooner," says Mrs. Lillie Pruitt, 130 "K" Street, this city.

"I was badly run down in health. My nerves 'went to pieces', and I had to go to bed. I was not able to do my house work for many months. I got so bad off, I could not bear to have anybody walk across the floor of my room. The least little thing upset me. Sometimes I became hysterical. I had bad pains in my back and sides, and my head and limbs would take spells of aching, which almost set me wild.

"One day I was reading and I saw where a woman, who had a trouble like my own, had been relieved by Cardui. I decided at once to try it; so I began on a course of the 'Home Treatment'.

"It began to help me from the very first. I took Cardui regularly, for several months, and my improvement was so remarkable, that my family and friends were delighted.

"Cardui has no equal, in my opinion. I gladly recommend it to others."
