Prominent among the attendants at the reunion is S. C. Nicholson, 103 years old, of Dallas. Mr. Nicholson is not only the oldest veteran at this convention, but has never missed a reunion. The convention, but two days old, may reach an attendance of 1,500 tonight.

Runnels Exhibit for Abilene and Angelo

Runnels county will again be represented at the West Texas Exposition at San Angelo and the West Texas Fair at Abilene with a display of agricultural products. C. W. Lehmburg, county agent; Mrs. Lura Hollingsworth, home demonstration agent; and J. D. Motley, secretary of the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce, are busy at the present gathering a composite display to take to Abilene the latter part of this month.

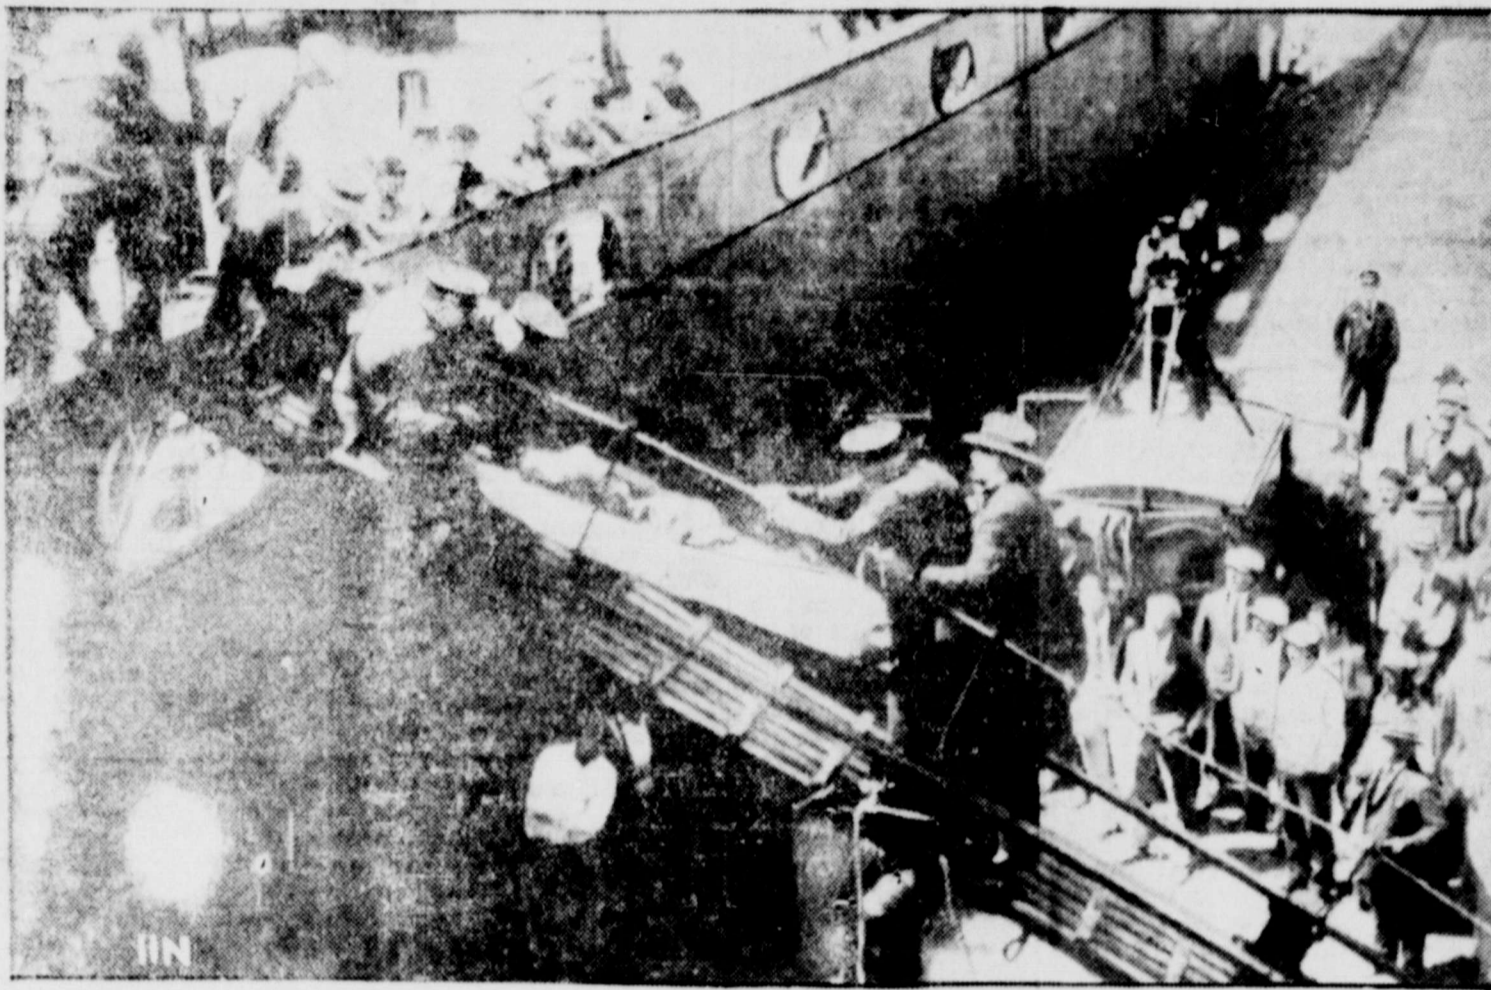

For the past two years Runnels county has won a place in the competition at Abilene and won the blue ribbon at San Angelo. The competition at the Abilene fair is always harder in agricultural products, but Runnels has invariably given the first place winner a run for the money. Those who will prepare the booth for showing there this year expect no trouble in getting the score card filled with products as good as any shown by this county in previous years.

The Runnels county booth at Abilene will be decorated two days before the opening of the fair there, September 23rd. Perishables will be added to the display on the morning of the fair opening so that everything will be fresh when it is judged on the first and second days of the regional exposition.

In addition to the county display there will be quite a number of individual farm entries and many entries in the poultry department. Runnels county is always well represented at Abilene both in entries and in attendance.

The West Texas Fair this year will offer an unusually fine entertainment program. The Winter Garden Revue will be the big feature in front of the grandstand, to be augmented by a number of circus acts. Harley Sadler and his company of players will be seen daily in the large municipal auditorium. Automobile races and football games will be afternoon features.

H. F. Wiatt, 36, husband of the dead woman, is under arrest. Police said he confessed that he hacked the pair to death when he returned home from work early this morning and found them sleeping with his seven-year-old son behind them. The child was not injured.

Wiatt and Rose were both attached to the First Medical Detachment of the Ambulance Troop at Fort Bliss.

Rotarians Hear of School Matters

The Ballinger Rotary Club met in regular session Wednesday at the Central Hotel. The attendance was large and new life seemed to prevail among the members with the coming of fall.

H. C. Lyon was the speaker at the Wednesday luncheon, and talked to the Rotarians about school matters and how the club members could best help the schools. Mr. Lyon urged the importance of electing good trustees to manage the schools. He showed that in many instances a board election went by with a handful of citizens going to the polls to cast their ballots. He urged that the teachers be encouraged, for the public to become acquainted with them, and to tell them when they do good work. He went into the boy problem in the schools and demonstrated by personal experiences how boys can be helped by some adult showing enough interest in them to talk to them about their errors. The speaker put special stress on the visits of patrons to the schools, where they could see the system in operation, and talk up the good qualities on the outside. He also referred to the student loan fund which is being raised by the local Rotary organization and begged more members to become interested in this activity.

At the conclusion of Mr. Lyon's talk, R. L. Harwell, chairman of the student loan committee, gave a brief report in regard to the accomplishments of the committee to date. The club has pledged nearly $500, with about one-half being paid in. Only about half of the members had paid any on the fund and this work will be pushed until there is sufficient in the treasury to operate on.

Dr. C. W. Cheatham was elected to the board of directors to fill the place made vacant by Cicero Smith, who has moved to Breckenridge to make his home.

FIELD MUSEUM HUNTERS FIND NEW CROCODILE

(By International News Service)
CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—While engaged in research work in his Field Museum laboratory here two years ago Karl Schmidt, noted herpetologist, discovered that a species of crocodile never before known to science existed in New Guinea.

Today, as leader of the Crane Pacific expedition of the museum, exploring in the jungles of New Guinea, has met his discovery in the flesh for the first time, according to a report sent here.

The original discovery was made through Schmidt's examination of some decorated crocodile skulls used as fetiches by wild native tribesmen of New Guinea, which had been collected by an expedition.

Community Meetings Interest of Fair

C. W. Lehmburg, Mrs. Luramunities have spoken for both Hollingsworth and J. D. Motley the latter part of this week will commence holding community meetings in the interest of the Runnels County Fair. The first meeting will be held at Victory Friday night, Monday night the trio will visit Mann and Tuesday night Maverick. A schedule for the trips has not been completed but a complete itinerary of the county will be made and a night assigned each community interested in fair work.

Mr. Motley stated Wednesday that it would be an excellent idea to have a large delegation accompany the leaders to each of the communities to be visited. The presence of other citizens, it was pointed out, encourages not only the community where the meeting is held but the officials who are working so hard for the success of the fair.

The general purpose of visiting the communities is to organize the endeavor and to elect chairmen to carry on the work of preparing exhibits to be entered in the fair. About eighteen com-

AIRPLANE VACATIONS SEEN BY PAEGELOW

(By International News Service)
St. LOUIS, Sept. 4.—The time will come when the proper thing for long distance travel will be the airship, so declared Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field, Belleville, Illinois, in a formal address on aviation before the Lions' Club here recently.

The airplane will be the airship's auxiliary, Colonel Paegelow said. He also said the time will come when the airplane will be used as a "feeder" to the airship, for people who want to go on vacations. The airplane will fly to meet the airship. The plane will be released and allowed to go back to its field.

Fines Paid in Game Violations

Game Warden Jim Flynt sent four fines to Austin Wednesday for violations of the state game laws. Three San Angelo men were found with bass too small at Christoval this week, and paid fines. The other fine was collected several weeks ago.

Mr. Flynt said Wednesday that he was going to keep an extra sharp watch for game violators during the hunting season, and would give special attention to the shooting in or across a public road. He stated that a warning had been given on that phase of the law, and that execution would be accepted.

Mebane Cotton Group Getting Better Results

About five months ago a number of Runnels county farmers, who were deeply interested in getting a pureline cotton program started in the county met in the court house and organized what is known as the Runnels County Purebred Mebane Cotton Seed Association.

This association now numbers over 100 members. Early in the spring this association shipped into the county several carloads of pure Mebane cotton seed, purchased directly from the E. D. Mebane seed farm at Lockhart.

Approximately 7,000 acres have been planted in this seed. At a recent meeting a check-up was made on the condition of this pure line cotton. The members expressed themselves very favorable with the way this cotton has stood up under the drought, the close fruiting and the large and well formed bolls. Several of the members estimated their crops at one-third bale per acre, while their neighbors, just across the fence, who planted common gin run seed, will require 7 to 8 acres to the bale.

At this meeting it was decided to gin all the Pureline Mebane cotton in the Farm Bureau gin, located on Eighth Street, near the fair grounds, in Ballinger. It was also definitely decided that the cotton seed association take over all the seed that will do for planting purposes. This seed will be cured, graded, sacked and stored by the association and will be sold for planting seed next spring. The producer will receive a bonus of $5 per ton at the gin, that is, the gin will buy the seed from the producer at market price and pay him a bonus of $5 per ton. Any profits accruing from the sale of the seed next spring will be apportioned to the producer on a per dollar basis.

A committee of three was appointed to inspect every farm planted in this seed and pass on the quality of the cotton so that the seed can be graded according to quality and purity. The hearty co-operation of all the members is requested in putting over this worthwhile project 100 per cent, with the one purpose in view—that of greatly increasing the acreage planted in pure line seed next spring.

Postal Receipts For August Gain

The Ballinger postoffice continued to show an increase in postal receipts during the month of August, just passed, over the corresponding period in 1928. The past month showed an increase of only a few dollars over the same month last year, but is a creditable showing when the curve of business generally was downward. The receipts for August 1928 were $1,429.10, and for August 1929 $1,441.25.

OIL-ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE HAULS CANADIAN LIMITED

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—The new "9,000" oil-electric locomotive of the Canadian National Railways today is making its initial run hauling the second section of the International Limited, Montreal to Toronto and Chicago. The 650 ton two unit engine can develop a tractive force of 100,000 pounds in acceleration and maintain a 42,000 pound force.

FREIGHT SHIPMENTS LIGHT FOR THE PREVIOUS MONTH

Freight shipments from Ballinger for the month of August were rather light, according to J. J. Beck, local Santa Fe agent. Mr. Beck stated that a small amount of cotton had started moving, which is expected to be increased very shortly.

Sand and gravel continue to be shipped from here in great quantities, and cars are loaded day and night for shipment to other points in the state.

Romantic and Psychic

THE RED LAMP

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

One of Mrs. Rinehart's best mystery stories. Equal to "The Bat," but vastly different from it. Has strong elements of the psychic. The various threads of a fascinating mystery are gathered and woven into a logical fabric, so far as the human elements are concerned; but there are certain things of a psychic nature which, being unexplainable, the author makes no attempt to explain. Excellent fiction and very agreeable romance.

Ballinger invariably receives rain about the time it is necessary for the city to install a pump on the Colorado River. That time is not here, but it is not far off. The Elm Creek reservoir is being lowered rapidly and unless there is rain soon some other arrangement will have to be made.

Estimates on the cotton crop in Runnels county are furnishing much conversation at present. Some people who are more or less pessimistic are placing their estimates as low as 20,000 bales, while others who are probably over-enthusiastic are guessing as high as 50,000. Cotton men and those who have visited all sections of the county are sticking to prognostications of around 35,000 bales.

One good work for civic organizations now is to look up all children of the school age who have not enrolled and find out why they are not in the classrooms. In some instances parents do not feel financially able, and possibly a little help would make it possible for the children to attend. The child who is compelled to miss a whole term of school will be thrown far behind and the loss of the one year may be the cause of him never completing his education.

Ballinger and Runnels county will do their part this year in swelling the enrollment at colleges and universities. A list is being tabulated by The Ledger of students who will soon leave for higher institutions of learning, and to complete this list we will be glad to learn of anyone who has made up his mind to go away to school, and where. There will be more to attend college from here this year than in former years, especially in the schools in this section of West Texas.

THAT ISN'T ALL

Fairs have been potent factors in the development of our civilization. From the very dawn of history men have gathered at them to barter and exchange, to gather new ideas, to keep up with what the world is doing. At the fairs of ancient France, burly Saxons, dressed in skins, half savage, used to rub shoulders with swart Roman legionnaires; East met West at the great fairs of medieval Europe for which certain cities were famed; and in the England of Dr Johnson, of Addison, of Pope, whole counties would gather at the rural fairs. They were all of them colorful events, for they were devised not only to meet utilitarian ends but also to divert and entertain. Feats of skill, contests of all kinds, were arranged. The nobles had their costly tournaments; the burghers and the yeomen had their fairs.

They are among the few worthwhile survivals of medieval civilization. It is good for men and women thus to meet during the slack season of their year. They come away from fairs with a new vigor, a new inspiration. And that isn't all; frequently they leave with a new idea that will result in an added prosperity. A farmer discovers a variety of corn profitable for him to plant; his wife a new recipe or two; and the young son—well, father couldn't resist the covetous light in the boy's eye when he saw the prize-winning Jersey heifer.

Fairs are institutions well meriting support and preservation.—West Texas Today.

Mabel Bowen, Dallas Hitch Hiker, Reaches Goal; "Too Modest to Brag"

By Mabel Bowen (Written Exclusively for International News Service)

(The last of a series of seven letters, telling how a young girl alone, hitch hiked her way from Dallas, Texas, to Bayonne, N. J. in seven days.)

Seventh Day (Last)

Dear Chum: Well, I did it—made it in seven little days alone, something awful near two thousand miles and transportation as free as the air I breathe. I'll be modest and not brag on me, but I could have done worse.

But I'm getting ahead of myself—this isn't telling you everything. Have a big confession to make. Today into my life there came a Gentleman of the Old South a young man who suddenly made me wish I weren't so trampish looking. He and an uncle were returning to New Jersey after a visit home in North Carolina.

Up until this day my objective was to reach the lights of Broadway in the very shortest possible time, but I changed my mind quite definitely. I had planned to go by way of Washington and get a tiny glimpse of important things there, but the certainty of being taken within thirty miles of my destination was too great a temptation, and besides—well, please don't think I was unpatriotic when I decided I could visit my national capitol another time.

To merely state that the day was romantic is to put it lightly. Straight across the beautiful state of Pennsylvania we journeyed. I was amazed at the prosperity of the countryside. Couldn't resist comparing our little towns in certain parts of Texas with these. No tiny two-room shacks standing in dilapidation in the middle of a cotton patch—no muddy, dreary burgs with shabby two-story buildings lining either side of the usual "Main Street." In Pennsylvania there seems to be no such thing as a farm house. Instead there are sturdy-looking modern homes—big homes—hundreds of them. Little towns self-conscious with pride in being the homes of great manufacturing concerns where world famed products are originated.

And I had thought that beer gardens were things of the past with the jovial Dutch inhabitants of the state. It may be that Mrs. Willebrandt knows more than anyone about prohibition, but I found out one thing for sure. A fellow may stop almost anywhere and frankly order a mug of the foaming ale and be served as quickly and easily and freely as though it were soda pop. It's enough to make one weep for the struggling bootleggers down home who were forced to pay fines for even buying cocks!

As we entered New Jersey and I realized I was nearing my journey's end I don't mind admitting I felt a little sad. Well, anyway, to make a long story longer, I left the Dixie boy a couple of hours out of New York, with a little tingy feeling around my heart from all the pretty things he had said about a future together, and after all is said and done, I can think of a lot of things worse than settling down in "Jolsey."

After they had left me I was lonely and a little afraid of the bigness of the approaching city. From then on everything is sort of vague in my memory—down too close together to know when one left off and another began—a bus into New York—the Hudson tunnel—Somehow I can't get it all straight. In some way I found myself on a ferry just at dusk—crossing to the Jersey side again—and then—my first glimpse of the skyline—New York! I very foolishly felt like crying. It was beautiful to me, even the ferries plying to and fro on the bay—the reflection of the many lights on the water.

Somehow I found my way thru a maze of buses, "rattlers" which made me determined to at least stay in this country long enough to find my way around and not feel so helpless, then Bayonne, "the Peninsula of Industry." I think it is called. There was a long tiring tramp through many streets, a search through a telephone directory a foot thick, and at the end of it all found myself being gathered into the arms of my beloved sister—and that's all I can remember.

It's over—I've loved it all and I wouldn't trade it for the finest private railway train in the world, but I'm tired, so it's—

"Bye for this time— Love BUBBLES.

HATCHEL NEWS

People are very busy picking cotton. Everyone seems to be down hearted about the crop prospects, but it could be worse. It seems that the price will be better this year as every one who has been on vacation this summer says we have good crops considering what other parts of Texas and other states have and we feel that on account of the shortage of cotton that the next government report will be much shorter than the last report. This will put cotton up and if cotton could go higher, maybe the price will make up for the shortage.

On last Friday night the Bales family gathered at the Bales home, north of Hatchel, where they spent quite an enjoyable time together. Ice cream was the biggest attraction for the evening and everyone reported a very pleasant evening. There was a family reunion at the Mathis home Sunday. All the children came home for the day. The Mathis family have lived in this community for a great number of years, and have been very prominent in social religion affairs. There is a large family of real helpers in a community. We are very glad to own them as one of the good families that make Hatchel one of the best places in the county to live. Those present were Mrs. Monroe Vogalsang and Mrs. Jack Robinson of San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Horn of Norton; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mathis, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mathis, Mr. and Mrs. Jew-

Many things about Men and Women

DR. CALDWELL loved people.

He studied the habits of his patients and tried to improve their ways of living. His observations over a long period of time convinced him many people were ruining their health by a careless choice of laxatives. Then he determined to write a prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it quickly and safely.

How successful his efforts were is best shown by the fact that the prescription he wrote back in 1886 has become the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness, and lack of appetite, or energy showed him that the bowels of men, women or children were sluggish. It proved successful in the most obstinate cases. So men liked it. Old folks liked it because it never gripped. Children liked its pleasant taste. And everybody is pleased with the gentle way it accomplishes its purpose.

By 1888, the demand for this laxative was so great that the doctor permitted it to be bottled and sold by drugstores. Today you can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from any drugstore in the world.

Underwood the fleet footed boy from Winters, is a bright prospect for the backfield this year.

The backfield now looks like it can furnish two complete shifts with plenty of punch in both choices.

Dankworth is kicking the ball for 50 to 55 yards pretty regularly. He has never had much experience in kicking behind a line and if he can get away with them fast enough he will make one of the best punters in the district.

The schedule for district even has not been announced yet but will be made within the next few days.

Meal A Minute French Editor's Memory of U. S.

By Frederic K. Abbott (International News Staff Correspondent) PARIS, Sept. 4.—"A meal a minute! A skyscraper in the wink of an eye! A subway in the snap of a finger! That's my idea of America."

M. Rene Puaux, foreign news editor of Le Temps, has just returned from his first visit to the United States and that is his reaction.

"What a clanging and a banging of the building up and the tearing down! I don't know which there is the most of—building up or tearing down—there seems to be equal parts of both.

"To what unbelievable limit will America go in that all sacred name 'efficiency'?"

Monseur Puaux thinks the United States is a wonderful country but he decided in his opinion that Americans are not happy.

"Americans are too busy being efficient and successful to be happy," says M. Puaux. "They do not know the art of doing nothing and therefore do not live."

"Americans do not even know how to eat, let alone cook. They ruin their cooking with complications—trying new refinements and by so doing they ruin the dish, and eventually they will ruin their stomachs."

Good old fashioned, plain food is no longer on the American bill-of-fair, according to M. Puaux.

"Americans are no longer content with just plain lamb chop—that's too simple. American cooks must mix up a lot of mustard and pepper and horse radish and pour that over the chops—then perhaps add a slice of pineapple and a dash of grape fruit."

"The result is terrible concoction but moderation means nothing to an American. Everything they do is done to excess. My old janitor, who sits all day with his pipe in his mouth is really happier than all the Americans put together with their radios, autos and talkies."

M. Puaux holds out some hope for the salvation of Americans, however, when he says that the present "hectic conditions" are merely temporary.

"In two generations this era of tremendous commercial activity will have burned itself out and then the American people will settle down to some real living, a saner existence and will devote themselves to the amenities of life."

"For the moment there is no individuality—that is because everything over there is too highly organized. I once pitied the poor American tourist when I saw them hauled about Paris in sightseeing cars—but now I understand."

Film Magic In Unusual Drama At Palace

Flying cameras that follow actors through doors and even float out the windows, magic light filters that turn a bright summer sea into grim winter ocean, the first filming of an actual sunset—these are just some of the details of film magic in "Wonder of Women," Clarence Brown's sensational European drama featuring Lewis Stone, Peggy Wood and Lella Hyams, which will open at the Palace Theatre with sound synchronization and talking sequences Monday and Tuesday.

The drama, a most unusual one, is embellished by scientific devices as interesting as the story itself which is an adaptation of Hermann Sudermann's "The Wife of Stephen Trocholt."

A replica of a modern German town was constructed, as well as two replicas of Germany's queer railroad trains, two railway stations, a great opera house, and a magnificent concert hall.

Quaint German home life is contrasted with futuristic apartments in the Bohemian "musical set" of Berlin, a great symphony marks the climax of the drama and haunting music figures as an integral part of it, a thing never before done on the screen.

One of the film's unusual feats occurred when the sound of the Pacific ocean was transported ten miles to be recorded in it. In the scene in Peggy Wood's German home it was necessary to have the sound of the surf constantly in the sequence. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer portable recording plant was sent to Playa Del Rey, on the Pacific, to make a record of the waves. This was "played back" into the scene and recorded accompanied by the voices of the players.

Woman in Mill Holds One Job For 64 Years

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 4.—A little girl who went to work in the Wamsutta Mills while the city bells were still tolling the news of Lincoln's assassination, has just rounded out 64 years of employment in the same plant.

At the age of 71 Miss Julia Hanlon looks back on 64 years of textile work with satisfaction and expects to remain at her present job in the sheeting department for many years to come.

When presented with a gold pin by the Chamber of Commerce recently it was revealed that Miss Hanlon holds the record for continuous employment in this city—and likely in most other cities.

Arriving in New Bedford at the age of seven, Miss Hanlon secured a job as a sweeper at the mills. She progressed through the part, working on spinning frames, as a spooler, and finally as a weaver. Most of the cloth sent to the St. Louis Exposition was woven by Miss Hanlon. During the world war she devoted her loom to the production of airplane, gasmask and uniform cloth. At present she is employed in the pressing room where she finds the work slightly less remunerative but easier and more pleasant.

The trim little lady, who looks considerably less than her age, attributes her remarkably good health to sane, regular living. Her hobbies are fancy needlework, for which she has won a number of prizes at fairs, and reading. She lives in an attractive two-story house which she owns together with her sister, Miss Katherine F. Hanlon.

Miss Hanlon became slightly indignant in refuting the common impression that mill work is unhealthy.

"During all my 64 years," she pointed out, "I have never been sick seriously enough to need a physician, and the only effects of my work is that the constant roar of the machinery has made me slightly deaf."

ST. LOUISAN SUGGESTS A THREE MONTH DIET

(By International News Service) ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4.—Now it's the 192 day course instead of the eighteen day diet.

Park G. Hammer, 65, former paint manufacturing head and amateur physiologist in his recently published book professes to have found the path to the "Foundation of Youth." His rejuvenating plan includes sleeping and eating face downward on a log, going about naked, swimming 12 out of 24 hours daily and the adoption of a coconut diet.

In his work entitled "Growing Young and Staying Young" Hammer recommends a south sea island as an excellent laboratory for testing his plan.

Also at various places is carved on the cane a picture of the "Liberty Bell," the words "America" and "U. S. A." and "C. O. Tuttle."

CONNELLY'S BAKERY

Credit Yankee With Assisting Gerbault Trip

By Alice Langelier
(International News Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Sept. 3.—An American Yankee with a good eye for business, but none-the-less worthy of admiration was the able precursor of the "one French sailor" Alain Gerbault, who has recently returned from his long tour of the world in a small cork vessel.

Professor Boussagol of the Sorbonne in Paris writes in "Comœdia" that he remembers how in 1891, when Spain was celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, the government of Nicaragua sent a delegation on board the "Leon XIII."

Then a Captain Andrews decided he would celebrate too and the Sardinian manufacturers offered him a little sail-boat and told him to follow the same route, in the other direction, that had been taken by the Spaniard adventurer four hundred years previous.

The "Leon XIII" met the sailor more than halfway across the ocean. The Captain approached the little barque and Andrews asked him if he knew just where he was. The Captain gave him the longitude and latitude and asked if there was anything he needed. In answer, the Yankee hurried several cans of tinned goods over to the large boat and went on his way.

A few days later they met again in Paris where a great ovation was made for the lone sailor who exhibited his little boat and pocketed a rather pretty sum of dollars, "in true American fashion," adds the Frenchman.

It will not be at all surprising if Young Gerbault returns to the sea within a very few weeks.

Arriving in the capital one of his friends said to him:

"Ah, You're just in time, here we are in the midst of an important crisis. Briand is going to become Premier."

"But, everybody was talking of him in 1924," replied the navigator "and there were several crises that year."

His concierge informed him that the cost of living is going higher and higher that meat prices are going sky high and vegetables even more so. Gerbault showed little interest and merely said he thought the same was true five years ago.

When told that the walking tour of France might be won by a Belgian and the Coupe Davis by an American, he said sadly:

"It was all too short. Very soon I shall start out again, and this time on a long, long voyage."

Many French householders are rejoicing over a new law containing a clause which gives tenants greater rights than they have ever enjoyed in regard to telephone, water, gas and electricity installations.

In the future the landlord will not be able to refuse the introduction of such commodities, providing that the tenant is willing to pay the expenses for installation. He will then have the right to carry away his bath-tub, telephone and gas meter when he leaves the property.

NEW ENGLAND IN STUDY OF EARTHQUAKE SIGNS

(By International News Service)

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 4.—Professor William G. Foye, head of Wesleyan University's department of geology, is spending his time working out a scheme by which time and probable location of earthquakes in New England, especially Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, can be predicted.

The National Research Council has furnished the funds for Prof. Foye's employment.

MAVERICK MUSINGS

We Maverick people have at last decided we will not have rain in time to do very much good, so we are going ahead saving what we have made and will make the best we can of a bad situation and look forward to the coming year with hopes that we will make up in a financial way what we may lose this year.

The social entertainments at the Lees and R. A. Marquis on Wednesday and Saturday evenings were enjoyed by large crowds. The younger people around Maverick appreciate and enjoy the social gathering in the homes and the older folks should take notice and provide our young people with more such gatherings.

Sunday school at the Baptist and Methodist churches were well attended Sunday. There are still others that should be in Sunday school.

Mr. J. P. Hutton and family returned from Santa Anna Sunday evening, after a visit of two or three days there.

W. W. Wiggie and family went to Abilene Sunday to visit their daughter and sister, Mrs. Lawrence Miller of that place.

The Girls 4-H Club met in a very interesting meeting Monday morning and the Women's Club met that afternoon. Mrs. Hollingsworth met with them and they studied rug making. Some of the members reported that some very beautiful rugs are being made by the club.

The Young Men's Business League and the 4-H Club will hold a joint meeting next Tuesday evening to discuss plans for exhibiting the community products at the coming County Fair. Those who are interested in making the exhibits are especially anxious that everyone in the community be present at this meeting.

J. C. Lee was operated on for appendicitis at the Halley & Love sanitarium Friday morning, and is improving rapidly at this writing. J. C. is the son of R. T. Lee, and wife of this place and every one is glad with Mr. and Mrs. Lee that he is doing so nicely.

H. E. Petty and nephew left for the Plains country Tuesday morning.

J. W. Borders, A. M. Smith and others that we did not get their names, started for Leveled Tuesday morning to thresh maize for awhile.

C. R. Robinson and family have moved to Maverick to make their home during the school months.

DALE NEWS

Still hot and dry, we hope to be able to report different by next week.

Cotton picking is the order of the day, and it's really surprising that cotton is as good as it is, having had no rain for about three months.

Mr. Clinton Gills and family visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brevard, Sunday night.

The Winters high school opened Monday and quite a few from this community entered school, namely: Miss Lois Green, Miss Vergin'a Carter, Miss Olga Brevard, Miss Lila Bell Mayo, Miss Elma P. Omar, Adami, Erwin Uekert, Wilma Davis, R. S. Davis, Edwin and Franklyn Knight and Leland Cain.

Start of Bare-Legs and Suntan Fad Traced to Basque Maidens

By David P. Sentner
(International News Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The cradle of the original sports-girl lies in the sun-kissed hills of the Pyrenees according to Rita Weiman, short story writer and playwright who just returned from a vacation in the little Basque village of St. Jean de Luz overlooking the Bay of Biscay.

This mystery race whose origin has been lost in the maze of history has produced tall, broad shouldered Amazon womanhood with the rhythm of the sea in their stride.

"They are superb types of girlhood with a traditional love of the outdoors," said Miss Weiman. "They walk like queens, swim like mermaids and dance their native fandango with joyous grace."

And if you think that the bare-legged and suntan fads are American, you are very much mistaken.

The Basque maidens have been going without stockings and bronzing themselves on the sands since long before Columbus made his famous ferry trip across the Atlantic.

Miss Weiman told of the naive of these Pyrenees lasses. One came out of the sea and stretched out a large towel. She dropped down and by a series of lightning-like manipulations she discarded her one-piece bathing suit and exposed herself completely without exposing an inch of unauthorized skin.

"She did it so gracefully and skillfully that one could not get any impression of immodesty," said Miss Weiman.

Born to the outdoor, the Basque girl wears clothing to keep her body free. Miss Weiman believes that there is a distinct influence from the Basque apparent in present sports styles.

"One large American department store ordered a large consignment of the rope-soled sandals which the Basque girls use," she said. "And the fad of wearing bright-colored smocks and berets is increasing in America."

"Incidentally, you can tell the American girl from the native Basque by the way she wears her beret. A native wears the beret straight across her forehead as her grandmother did before her. But the American girl puts on her beret at a jaunty angle."

One of the charming qualities of these people is their play instinct, said Miss Weiman. The umbrella repairer sings a song telling of his trade outside his customer's door. And at the village fetes, the entire populace makes-believe and runs hither and thither in pretended fright as a native bearing a papier-mache bull spouting rifle charges across the square.

Miss Weiman was accompanied by her husband, Maurice Marks, advertising man at St. Jean, they collaborated on a one-act sketch featuring a mechanical man.

Work on the new institute will begin this fall according to the present plans.

CIMARRON SALT CROP IS BEING HARVESTED

(By International News Service)

COLDWATER, Kan., Sept. 4.—The harvesting of the salt crop along the flats of the Cimarron River here, is under way.

The flats produce salt in such great quantities that the farmers scoop it into trucks and haul it to their farms. This year the yield is about average, the salt covering the flats measuring more than two inches in depths.

Many Comanche County stockmen obtain their year's supply this way. Other farmers obtain it to sell.
