To Probe Millions Spent In Washington Lobbies

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A far-reaching investigation into all forms of congressional lobbying which annually accounts for the expenditure of millions of dollars in Washington, appeared imminent today as the result of the Senate's adoption of the Caraway resolution authorizing the investigation by the Senate judiciary committee, of which Senator Norris, progressive Republican, is chairman. This committee is authorized to conduct the inquiry and no strings are tied to its activities.

There is widespread speculation in Washington today as to how far the committee will go in the probe. The committee itself will decide the limits of the investigation, and is meeting in a few days to map plans.

Petty Theft Cases Lead Weeks Docket

Four cases have been heard here this week before Judge C. H. Willingham in justice court, according to John D. White, deputy sheriff. Alex "Raz" Adams, negro, was arrested and charged with aggravated assault and bond set. Oscar Kresta was arrested and charged with theft of cotton. He entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to thirty days in jail and a $50 fine.

Coy Tubbeville and E. J. White, of the northern part of the county, were arrested for theft of cotton, brought to Ballinger and placed in jail. White entered a plea of guilty, but later repudiated the statement and pleaded not guilty. The other man did not make a statement. Both were released on $200 bond and told to appear before county court on October 15.

Grady Richards, negro, was arrested some time ago for pilfering from the G. A. Ladwig store on several occasions, and was arraigned Tuesday morning in examining trial with Frank C. Dickey as defense counsel. Judge Willingham, after hearing the evidence, set the negro's bond at $500 and he was returned to jail in absence of bail.

Of course it isn't important but we sometimes wonder just what happens when a bald headed man reads a hair raising story.

Local Sanitarium is Leased for Five Years

A deal was closed Tuesday afternoon in which the Halley & Love Sanitarium was leased for a period of five years to Messrs. W. M. Campbell, of Abilene, and J. T. Nelson, of Dallas. These men will arrive in Ballinger by October 15, and at that time will take over the management of the local hospital. Both the men are married and will be assisted in the work by their wives.

In making the announcement, Dr. A. S. Love stated that it would not effect in any way the work of Drs. Halley, Bailey or himself in the sanitarium. They will continue their practice there but the business department of the hospital will be managed by the new men.

Dr. Love stated that the institution would be looked after the same as any standard hospital and that any legitimate doctor would be entitled to practice there under the new management. There will be no change made in the Training School for Nurses, conducted in connection with the sanitarium. The lease on the institution includes the building and all equipment belonging to the sanitarium.

Dr. Bailey will remain with the institution, for the present at least, in the same capacity which he has formerly had.

Drs. Halley and Love have owned and operated the sanitarium here since 1905 and during that time many thousands of cases have passed through the institution. They have been highly successful in their surgical

Mrs. Holland is Buried Tuesday

The funeral for Mrs. Lillian Cavette Holland was held Tuesday afternoon from the chapel of the King-Holt funeral home and interment made in Evergreen Cemetery. Mrs. Holland was the wife of Doc Holland, well known entertainer of Runnels County Fair crowds. She died Monday night in her car a few miles east of Ballinger as she and her husband were en route here for the coming fair. Heart trouble was the immediate cause of her death.

A large crowd was present for the funeral and a beautiful floral offering covered the casket and decorated the chapel, the flowers being a token from friends in Ballinger. No relatives were present at the funeral, and Mr. Holland was too ill to leave his bed.

The service was conducted by Rev. R. B. Hooper, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

FIRST OF 1929 TAX RECEIPTS ISSUED

According to W. L. Brown, tax collector, W. P. Jones, of Route 3, Ballinger, was the first man to pay property taxes for 1929, and R. L. Sides, also of Route 3, Ballinger, was the first to pay a poll tax.

Since the first two tax receipts were issued a number have come in and settled with the government for another year. It is believed by officials that tax collections will be good this year, and that they will be paid rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Aterburn and Mrs. G. W. Dunlap went to Abilene Wednesday morning, and will visit Miss Hattie May Dunlap, who is a student in Simmons University.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Cantonese forces advancing upon Nanking are expected to occupy Wuchow in the near future, an Exchange Telegraph Company dispatch received here from Hong Kong stated today. The southerners expect to effect a bloodless seizure of the city.

The American consul at Wuchow has been advised to evacuate all women and children in the district.

Parent-Teachers Have Good Meet

The Ballinger Parent-Teachers Association met Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance and one of the best programs of the year was presented. Miss Willie Schawe gave a very interesting talk on health work and compared the work here to that of New York city, where she has been stationed for the past several years. There, she stated, it was necessary to get the children away from the city where they could breathe pure air and receive the beneficent effects of sunshine in order to correct their defects, which here this was unnecessary.

Mrs. Chester Cherry, of the West Texas Utilities Company, talked to the association on safety work Mrs. Cherry has been connected with this work for several years and has made a close study of it. Her talk was very interesting.

Mrs. Joe Simmons gave a detailed report of health work in the local schools, following the recent examinations. A total of 317 children were examined during health week here and of that number only 126 were found perfect, 691 needing treatment of some nature. Her report classified the defects as follows: 136 were underweight; 67 overweight; not vaccination 273; bad eyes 58; bad eye lids 36; throat troubles 277; nose troubles 18; skin troubles 6; bad teeth 481; heart trouble 12; gland trouble 113; and ear trouble 9. A number of these afflictions have been corrected since the examination, especially those relating to eyes, throat and teeth, and many more are under treatment for the defects shown on the health cards given to the pupils.

Miss Addie Alexander, county health nurse, explained the state health button at this meeting.

It was announced that the local P.-T. A. had a membership of 127 which is considered a good showing for this time of the year, but not as many as hoped to be interested in the movement. Officials of the organization ask that every parent in Ballinger join the association, which if done would swell the membership to one of the largest in the country.

The meeting of the organization was held this week on Tuesday in order not to conflict with the county council meeting which was held here Wednesday afternoon.

To Begin Search for Jimmie Rodgers is Missing French Ace Big Success Here

(By International News Service)
PARIS, Oct. 2.—Preparations are being made today for a thorough search of land and air in the great Siberian wastes in an effort to find the trail of Captain Dieu-donne Coste and Maurice Bel-lonte, French flying aces, who are missing in an attempted record-breaking distance flight to the Far East.

Jimmie Rodgers, recording artist and nationally known entertainer who appeared here at the Palace Theatre Monday and Tuesday under the direction of the L. C. Daugherty Drug Store, played to the largest crowds ever to invade the theatre. Rodgers gave two performances each night and at both shows every one of the 550 seats were full and many standing along the walls at the rear.

It is estimated that some 2,000 saw and heard him sing and yodel the numbers which have made him popular through Victor records. At each performance he rendered numbers which were known to everyone through media of the phonograph and radio.

L. C. Daugherty had to place a guarantee to get this group of entertainers here, but after the showing he is more than satisfied with the results. He said Wednesday that the engagement paid for itself, and that besides being a financial success that it gave the people of Ballinger and surrounding territory a chance to see and hear in person a star of national fame.

Besides Rodgers the company was composed of three talented guitar players. This troupe is to start a tour of the R-K-O vaudeville circuit in the near future, and it is said that Rodgers' salary while on this 62-week engagement will be $3,000 per week.

MARION, N. C., Oct. 2.—Two persons killed and thirteen wounded was the toll of a spectacular gun battle staged between striking union workers and loyal employees at the Marion Manufacturing Company's plant here this morning. An exchange of shots ensued when loyal employees attempted to enter the mill and go to work today.

The list of wounded numbered both loyal and striking operatives. Several of the wounded are not expected to live.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 2.—Two companies of state militia were instructed to proceed to Marion, North Carolina today by Governor O. Max Gardner. The governor's action followed the receipt of a plea from city officials of Marion to send troops because the situation there was beyond local control.

Marion officials sent the request to the governor after two strikers were killed and nineteen persons were wounded in a pistol battle at a textile mill.

IOWA'S NEW GOAL POSTS ARE SET IN CONCRETE

(By International News Service)
IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 2.—If undergrads at the University of Iowa have cause to mourn football losses this fall, they will have at least one consolation—no one is going to swipe Iowa's goal posts.

The posts are being set at the Hawkeye school's new $500,000 stadium now.

And they are steel affairs, anchored in well over six feet of concrete. The contractor for the stadium has issued a defi to any enthusiastic students who figure they can uproot the goal posts and bear them off as souvenirs.

In ancient times men disguised themselves in lion's skins but now-a-days they try to do it with a sheepskin.

Car Registration Here Last Month Increased

Sixty-two cars and ten trucks were registered in the county during September, according to figures in the tax collector's office. The number was larger than the preceding months, and larger than for the same month last year. Twenty-five cars were registered last week, setting a new high mark for any one week, and helping greatly to run up a high total for the month.

Cars registered this year from January 1st to October 1st far outnumber those registered during the same period in 1928, according to Tax Collector W. L. Brown. For the first nine months of 1928 there were 5,340 cars and 498 trucks licensed, and for the same period in 1929, 6,120 cars and 715 trucks were placed on the county books.

Automobile sales over the entire county have increased and several new automobile firms have been established in different places, two of the agencies having been opened in Ballinger. Autos and trucks registered in September are as follows:

Sixty-odd Ballinger merchants signed on the dotted line to enter decorated cars in the opening parade of the Runnels County Fair. The time is growing short and we wonder how many of these firms have commenced actual work on their entries. The fact that a large number of cars will be in a parade has been advertised to the patrons of the fair will make bad advertising if they are not in the line Tuesday at one o'clock. The Ballinger Lions Club is in charge of the opening day parade and made a close canvass of the city to line up the cars. Cash prizes will be paid to the best decorated cars and to the most comical cars. These cars are expected to be reported to the parade marshal on Tenth Street near the Lynn wood yard at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday, ready for the big procession.

Ballinger citizens are to be congratulated on the spirit in which they have entered the clean-up campaign. Many weeds have been cut and burned during the present week and vacant lots and alleys are beginning to take on a neat appearance.

The Sweetwater fair opened this week with the largest first day crowd ever to attend that fair. This has been the experience of practically all fairs held in this section of the state and it is hoped that a similar report will go out next week regarding the Runnels County Fair here.

A large delegation of boosters headed by their band will be in Ballinger Saturday at noon on a good will trip to advertise the Coleman County Fair. Ballinger citizens are requested to arrange their midday meal so they can be present in large numbers to greet the neighbor town's boosters and help entertain them while they are here.

VALLEY TO FRONT FOR MAIN CHIEF'S NAME

The Houston news comes. CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—The village of Emerald Park is desirous to go to court to have the name of Theodore Schuetz, a police chief, who was slain in a roadside after, it is alleged, he whipped out his pistol and threatened the lives of many motorists.

Village officials have announced that they may seek a murder warrant for Policeman Fred Bryant, who shot Schuetz three times. Bryant has been exonerated by a coroner's jury.

The murder charge would not be filed for the purpose of convicting Bryant, the officials said, but solely to clear the name of Chief Schuetz, who was accused of being in a drunken rage and brandishing his revolver when slain.

"We don't believe Schuetz was drunk, as they said, and don't believe he was threatening to kill anyone," Attorney Daniel Webster said. "We tried to bring them out of the incident, but they would not let us question the witnesses. If we go into court on a murder charge we can question them."

"It is hard enough for Schuetz to have been killed. For the sake of his five children we want to clear his reputation if we can."

John Barrymore is Untamed Alpineer in Latest Film
Months of camera work on the 25-acre United Artists studios in Hollywood and at location sites, some are far distant as Canada, were required to film John Barrymore's latest United Artists starring vehicle, "Eternal Love," an Ernest Lubitsch production which comes to the Palace Theatre today for two-day engagement.

Hundreds of thousands of feet of film were shot, and out of this vast amount of photography, enough to make dozens of feature length motion pictures, Lubitsch and his staff spent weeks selecting the best action for "Eternal Love," as it will be seen on the screen. Marking a radical departure from any type of picture ever directed by the master director, "Eternal Love" is acclaimed by many critics as the year's finest entertainment.

The maker of "Passion" and other historical spectacles, of "The Marriage Circle," "Lady Windermere's Fan" and similar examples of screen sophistication, of the colorful "Old Heidelberg," of the grim masterpiece, "The Patriot," now presents to audiences his conception of a great love story. Lubitsch has taken Barrymore out of tight, immaculate uniforms and like habiliments, and made the romantic star a roughly dressed, primitive mountaineer. The action takes place in the high Swiss Alps, among simple, God-fearing people.

Hans Kraly wrote the screen adaptation from Jacob Christoph Herr's novel which has enjoyed wide popularity in Europe. Lubitsch selected the strongest possible cast to appear in the supporting roles. Although Camilla Horn is the leading lady, feminine honors are reported to be about equally divided between her and Mona Rico, Lubitsch's Mexican discovery, who had only eight days' experience in pictures when she was picked from the extra ranks and given one of the year's best screen roles.

Miss Rico plays a wild mountain girl who tricks Barrymore into marriage and steals him away from his sweetheart (Miss Horn).

Other principals in the cast are

Victor Varconi, Robert Bosworth, Bodil Rosing and Evelyn Selbie. Oliver Marsh headed the camera battery which photographed "Eternal Love," and Walter Reimann, noted German artist, was brought to America from Berlin to design the sets and costumes.

The RED LAMP

By MAH ROBERTS RINEHART

SYNOPSIS

Events of the story from June to September, as set forth in the Journal by William A. Porter, professor of English literature.

JUNE—The professor's uncle, Horace Porter, died under somewhat mysterious circumstances at his home, Twin Hollows, which is now Professor Porter's property. Jane, the professor's wife, has never recovered from the shock. Her sister, Mrs. Foy, who lives in Lockhart, has taken it upon her to investigate the case. She has been successful in securing a copy of the will, which reveals that the professor's property is to be divided among his children and a nephew, Cameron, a fellow professor of Porter's and president of the Society for Psychological Research. Inclined to the idea of psychic photography, Mrs. Porter shows a pronounced disinclination to spend the summer vacation at Twin Hollows. A letter from Horace Porter had been written at the time of his sudden death, revealing he had been interested in spiritualism and had mentioned some implied "danger" and of the "genius of an idea." A "small red lamp" is also mentioned. Mrs. Porter's reluctance to live at Twin Hollows cannot be overcome, and, with Edith, Porter's niece, they take up their residence in the Lodge house near the estate. Warren Halliday, in law with Edith, comes to live in a boat-house near the Lodge. A reference Professor Porter had once made to a certain cabalistic design returns to plague him. He finds in the village a superstition that there is something mysterious about the red lamp. There are mysterious happenings, and Mrs. Porter is sure Uncle Horace's spirit is hovering about them. A number of sheep are killed in the vicinity by some unknown person.

JULY—The sheep slayer leaves at the scene of the killings the cabalistic design about which Professor Porter had looked Greenough, a detective, arrives, and Porter has an uneasy feeling that he is under suspicion. Twin Hollows is visited by an elderly, partially paralyzed man, Hatcher, who, with his secretary, Gordon, takes possession. A youth, Carroway, is watched for the sheep killer disappears. Porter has the red lamp hidden in a room of which he alone has the key. That night, people, including the professor himself, believe they have seen its reflection at Twin Hollows. Halliday is attacked and seriously injured, the attacker escaping. Carroway is found in the hay, murdered. Mackie Morrison, cook employed by the Porters, disappears. A neighbor, Mrs. Livingston, shows an unexplained interest in Mr. Bethel, Gordon, Bethel's secretary, is found by Porter on the grounds of Twin Hollows, unconscious from a blow on the head. Halliday throws himself into an investigation of the mystery.

played up well; she pushed back her plate at last, and with her elbows on the table and her chin in her hands said:

"And now, tell us about the night you were hurt."

"I'll do that," he said, with his twisted smile. "If Mr. Porter will tell me how he and the doctor both happened to be such Johnnies on the spot."

But he carried that no further, and although the covert insolence of the speech brought the color to Edith's face, she continued to smile.

"There isn't much to tell," he went on. "The fellow got into the house all right; I turned to go in by the door and heard him off, and that's all I remember."

"But you rang the bell first, didn't you?"

Whether because he hated to acknowledge that call for help, or for some reason none of us can determine tonight, he hesitated.

"Yes," he said finally. "I was pretty well excited, but I suppose I did."

Almost immediately he asked me if I had tried hearing the bell as far away as the highroad, "with a motor engine going."

"I don't believe it could be done," he said, with his sideways glance at me. "He's got good ears, the doctor."

He said something before he left about looking for another job, as this one was too confining, and the old man not easy to live with. "I only took it for the summer," he said, "and I'm about fed up with it. It's too confining. And he'd let that car of his rot before he'd let me take it out!"

With which cynical attempt to allude himself regarding the car, he took his departure. Edith believes that in some manner he knows that the car has been examined, and she may be right. . . .

Halliday's investigation of his room during his absence proceeded with difficulty. With my keys and Annie Cochran's connivance he made an easy entry. Mr. Bethel having retired for his after-luncheon siesta.

At first glance the room offered nothing and leaving Annie Cochran on guard outside under pretense of cleaning the passage, Halliday made a more intensive search. The bed disclosed nothing, nor did the closet; his suitcase was locked, and over it Halliday spent more time than was entirely safe.

"Toward the end," he says, "I was pretty shaky. I kept thinking I heard him, and of course the more I hurried the more I laughed the thing."

He got it open at last without breaking the lock, and found in it the note-book.

(Note: I find I have given no description of the note-book in the original Journal. As it played a considerable part in the approaching tragedy, it deserves some attention.)

It was a small compact volume of the loose-leaf type, a sort of diary, but not regularly kept. Most of the entries, due to the occupation of the cipher, were very short. One or two, however, occupied almost a page, and all of them had been typed.

Needless to say, the cipher was the one we had found on the scrap of paper picked up in my garage.

The discovery of the note-book with its cipher sent his excitement to fever pitch. He ran through it for the code word, but was unable to find it. Then, replacing the book and leaving the suitcase as he had found it, he set to work more carefully on the room itself.

The coil of rope and the knife were behind a row of books on the bookshelf, a packet of typing paper and a box of carbon sheets thrown over them with apparent casualness, to conceal them still further.

So closely had he calculated the time that he had barely restored them to their places when Gordon slammed the entrance door downstairs.

Halliday had not time to make the back staircase, however. Annie Cochran opened the linen-closet door, and he bolted in there. He heard Gordon unlock his room and enter it, and almost immediately reappear and demand of Annie Cochran if she had been in it during his absence. An angry dispute followed, within a foot or two of the linen-closet, and the less acrimonious because of its lowered voices, and of an almost hysterical quality to Gordon's.

Every particle of his veneer had dropped from him, and the threats he made if he should find she had been in his room are not even to be recorded here.

And now, once again, where are we? We have, as against Gordon:

(a) The knife and the coil of rope.

(b) Our belief that he uses the car, clandestinely, at night.

(c) At least an indication that he set the fire under the boathouse.

(d) The cipher, found in my garage.

(e) The note-book, in the same cipher. A man does not record his thoughts in this manner, unless he wishes to keep them hidden.

(f) The linen strips muffling the car-locks, and suggested to Halliday today by his place of concealment.

The inventory of the main house shows a certain number of linen sheets. If one is missing it will prove a strong factor in connecting him with the boat.

(g) The locking of his bedroom.

(h) Last and not least, an unpleasant personality. Halliday uses the word "degenerate," but I am not prepared to go so far.

As against all this, however, we have:

(a) The attack on him at the kitchen door, and the manner in which he was tied, corresponding to the rope about Carroway.

(b) The sheep-killing and murder of Carroway, taking place as they did before his arrival.

(c) The fact that Halliday cannot identify him as the man he picked up in his car.

(d) The distinguishing mark by which the criminal has signed his crimes, so to speak, in the circle and triangle, drawn in chalk; while this is not vital, Halliday found no chalk in the room.

I have put to Halliday the boy's veiled inquiry about the doctor. It is impossible for us to experiment with the bell, but he thinks it could be distinctly heard from the main road.

On the other hand, the arrival of Hayward on the scene almost as soon as I had got there is extremely puzzling. We have tonight paced off the distance, in view of my statement that I had lighted only one match when the doctor's flashlight was turned on me.

There seems to be no doubt that Hayward was on the property last night. But I do not accept the possibility suggested by Halliday, that as he was in Greenough's confidence, he had been watching me. A man does not, I imagine, go out on such an errand with his medical bag in his hand, and the doctor had carried his bag. I recall distinctly his taking from it the dressings for Gordon's head.

SUPERFLUOUS LAWS ARE BLAMED FOR CRIMINALS

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Too many laws constitute one of our greatest causes of crime, according to Municipal Judge Daniel P. Trude, one of the greatest criminal lawyers of Chicago.

Cancellation of many state and city laws, better department laws and more conscientious jury service by the average citizen will cure Chicago of its present reign of racketeering, Judge Trude believes.

"Every man in Chicago probably breaks some unknown law every day of his life," said Trude. "We have far too many laws that mean little or nothing yet in court where technicalities count or much they are often a great hindrance to justice."

"On the other hand there are many state laws that provide for the deportation of aliens. But I have found that in many cases it is impossible to enforce them."

"For instance, a Russian I ordered deported was turned back at the docks of New York because our federal government does not recognize the Russian government."

S. D. Smith, chief of the Chicago office of the immigration service, who conferred with Judge Trude, suggested that the United States employ a system now in use in Europe in which all strangers are required to register.

"The honest alien would not object," said Trude. "It is the ones who have a criminal intent who would find it embarrassing to register here and there as they move about the country."

Life Size Cave Man and His Home Are Reproduced for Field Museum

(By International News Service) CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—With completion of the first authoritative life-size reproduction ever made of a cave man, his family and his cave home at Field Museum of Natural History, this city today is the only community in the world where the dim past of pre-historic man is thus visualized.

The reconstruction represents one of the earliest types of prehistoric man, the ape-like Neanderthal or Mousterian man whose race lived in western Europe during the last glacial period, and represents the earliest stage of human existence of which complete skeletons have been found. Scientists estimate that the race lived some 50 years ago.

Realization of the cave man group is one of the results of the recent Captain Marshall Field archaeological expedition to Europe under the leadership of Henry Field, a member of the museum's anthropological staff in the work of the expedition and the preparation of the group the scientists have had the co-operation of leading anthropologists of England and France.

The individual figures of the group consist of a man about 55 years old, a boy about 12, a woman about 30 with a baby in her arms, and an older woman. These figures have all been carefully reconstructed from measurements, casts and models made of skulls and skeletons of Neanderthals which have been found in various localities of Europe. The figures are in lifelike attitudes, and are represented as engaged in occupations typical of their time and stage of development.

Special characteristics of the Neanderthal race are carefully represented. These include very prominent and continuous brow ridges extending from temple to temple; short thick necks with heads thrown forward because of peculiar construction of the spinal column which made it impossible for these people to stand quite erect, broad flat noses; bent knees like a gorilla's, which it was impossible for them to straighten.

Their bodies, the group shows, were short and of stout build. Their heads were proportionately large and the size of their brains was not below that of modern man's according to Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology. While in volume their brain substance apparently equalled that of modern man, the proportions were more like those of apes, according to Dr. Farrington. The hands were extremely large and lacked the mobility of those of modern man. The arms were relatively shorter than the legs, and the shin bones shorter than the thigh bones, thus indicating that these people were clumsy and slow-moving beings.

1,000 WILD HORSES ARE SHIPPED TO CANNERIES

(By International News Service) WENATCHEE, Wash., Oct. 2.—Nearly 4,000 wild horses, grazing on the Colville Indian reservation, have been corralled during the past month and either shipped to canneries, or the carcasses turned into manufactured products.

The round-up was staged by stockmen co-operating with the Indian department at Nepelem. Five carloads of the range horses were shipped to Portland, where they are prepared for the European markets.

Akron to Take First Place as Dirigible City

(By International News Service) AKRON, Oct. 2.—Although separated by thousands of miles of land and water, two cities of the world are in a sense joined in a friendly "brotherhood of the air," and working hand in hand in the task of a "baby blimp" that has been constructed by Goodyear Company here during the last four years.

In 1925 the first of the "baby blimps" series was built. It was called the Puritan. It now has five sister ships, the largest and newest of which is one named the Defender.

The Goodyear Company has brought experts in lighter than air work from Germany to assist with the development of the work in this country.

Only since the visit of the Graf during the latter part of August have the activities of America's "dirigible city" come into the limelight of public attention. In a sense Akron owes much of its prominence today to the world flight of the German dirigible, which entered the arena on a air-minded world on the amazing possibilities of lighter than air craft and brought forth the query: Where is America in his phase of aeronautics?

Unbeknownst to the average person, Akron, which has popularly been conceived of as only a "tire city," has been virtually the center of the lighter than air craft work in this country for more than 20 years.

At this "Zeppelin city" today is being built the largest structure of its kind in the world for the housing of two navy dirigibles, both of which will be nearly twice as large as the monster Graf of across the seas.

In 1910, when flying by either heavier than air or lighter than air crafts was still considered by the masses as the crazy dream of a lunatic, experimenters were plodding away with the study of free balloons and with only an indefinite and hazy vision of the future of lighter than air crafts.

Three years later an Akron balloon brought recognition to the United States in an international balloon race flying out of Paris.

Proof of Akron's interest and to some extent, her faith, in lighter than air crafts, was the construction of a flying field at Wingfoot Lake near Akron, where a large airship hangar was built.

Since those pioneering days of free balloons, more than 1,000 balloons and more than 100 airships have been built in Akron. Outstanding among the airships are the "series" of "baby blimps" that have been constructed by Goodyear Company here during the last four years.

There is a total 133 state officials and 13 congressmen to be nominated. They include governor, attorney general, treasurer, land commissioner, commissioner of agriculture, comptroller, state superintendent and lieutenant governor, 150 members of the legislature, 15 senators, and a member of the railroad commission supreme court, and a member of each of the 11 courts of civil appeals.

ucation department is expected to be in the race for a new term. George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, has announced he will retire.

S. H. Terrell is likely to seek reelection as comptroller. And as far as is known, Judge Pierson and Lattimore will ask renomination to their benches.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT USES NEW MILKING SYSTEM

(By International News Service) BELTSVILLE, Md., Oct. 2.—A new system of milking cows which promises to reduce the cost and labor of milk production, facilitate the keeping of records, and produce a cleaner product, is being used at the United States department of agriculture dairy experiment farm here.

The new method was originated by R. R. Graves who is in charge of dairy cattle feeding, breeding, and management investigations in the bureau of dairy industry.

Briefly, the system consists of a mechanical milking unit of standard make, but instead of the usual portable receptacle for the milk it is drawn into a stationary container located between two stalls and somewhat above the cows. The receptacle is of unbreakable glass and is suspended from a weighing mechanism. Its transparency makes the rate of milking visible to the operator at all times, both by the amount of milk in the receptacle and by the weight registered by the scale. When the milk ceases to flow into the receptacle, the operator records the weight of the milking and opens a valve which permits the milk to be drawn from the bottom of the container through a sanitary pipe line to a large vacuum tank in the dairy house nearby.

CATTLE RUSTLERS ARE NOW USING AIRPLANES

(By International News Service) SALINAS, Calif., Oct. 2.—Believe it not, but cattle rustlers operating by airplane are reported hereabouts.

This was revealed when the R. E. Jack Company, owners of extensive cattle holdings in Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Kings and Kern counties, posted a reward of $1,000, in an effort to solve the mysterious disappearance of thousands of cattle during the past few months.

The stolen steers were quartered on the ground and carried off. There were no tracks of horse or auto. Then, how come? The answer is believed to be airplane cattle rustlers.

One cattleman said that "these birdmen are carrying things too far—it was bad enough when cattle were rustled with horses and mules."

Several other ranch operators expressed the belief that "flying rustlers" shoot steers in daylight, cut them up and fly off with valuable cuts of beef.

When a man reaches the point where he thinks he can't learn anything from his fellowman he's on the highway that leads to demphooldom.

How a Family Doctor made Millions of Friends

FIFTEEN years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became one of the best-known members of his profession. A single prescription made him famous. And for forty years it has continued to make friends.

As fast as people could tell others about the marvelous way this prescription corrects constipation and relieves other troubles caused by sluggish bowels, demand for it spread until Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it filled in quantities; bottled and distributed through drug stores.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people would never think of using anything else when they're headachy, bilious, feverish, or sick; when breath is bad, tongue is coated or they are suffering from nausea, from gas, or lack of appetite, etc.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as you buy it from your drug store is made in accordance with the original formula from only herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant tasting; its action is thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.
