Candidates without opposition can now rest easy. The time for announcing has passed and the closing date finds a number of candidates for county and precinct offices with a clear field for their jobs for two more years. Those who have opposition are taking to the highways and byways in efforts to get their friends to rally behind them and go to the polls and vote. So far interest in politics has been slight. So many candidates for state offices, especially the governorship, have confused the people and many express themselves as not having their minds made up yet to vote for. Some of these office seekers are strangers to a majority of the voters and they want information on the candidates' platforms before going to the polls. County candidates are generally well known and very few of their voters will be transferred between now and July 27. Voters have made up their minds in these races where they personally know the candidates and about all left of interest is the counting of the ballots.

Vacation and celebrating season is in full swing in West Texas. A number of towns are advertising events which will stage in the next few weeks. Streams are being swarmed with campers and tourist travel through here is increasing daily. Tourists spend very little time here—a drink, some gas, directions to a favorite stream or to some other city, is about all they seek—and then move on.

With crop prospects made brighter by recent rains, business here is better. A number of business men report inquiries regarding credit on the prospects of crop. Especially is this noticeable by automobile agencies. It is a long time from now to harvest, however, and old timers have seen many things happen at a later date than this. The careful merchant wants more security than a gambler's chance on a crop that has just commenced to grow.

SUNDOWN STORIES

THEIR NAPS

By Mary Graham Bonner

They were all stretched out, and soon they were all sound asleep.

The pine trees had stopped swaying, and were only moving a little bit—just so that they were singing very, very softly.

John and Peggy and the Little Black Clock whispered in very low tones.

"Did you ever see the members of the Wind family asleep before?" the Little Black Clock whispered.

"Never," said John.

"Never," said Peggy.

"I didn't, somehow, think they ever went to sleep," said John.

"Oh, yes," said the Little Black Clock. "Most certainly. They love to sleep. They have splendid rests."

"They all like to go to sleep at times, and when they do they go to one of their quiet homes. You know the members of the Wind family have lots of homes—but this is one of their places they like particularly when they feel sleepy."

"Haven't you ever heard about the wind dying down and going away?"

"Yes," said John. "I have."

"I think I have, too," chimed in Peggy.

"Well, when you hear that you'll know that the wind and all the members of the Wind family go to sleep on their mossy beds at such times and no one can find them, for they keep so still."

"I was only allowed to show you their sleeping place as a special treat. I don't know whether we would be able to find our way here again."

"But we've seen where they take their naps," said Peggy.

"And to think they lie down and go to sleep—just like that," said John, shaking his head, for it still seemed a strange thing for members of the Wind family to do.

HOUSTON, June 17.—Women promoter Morris Sigel observes, are going more and more frequently, and in greater numbers, to wrestling matches. They do so, he believed, because of an increasing familiarity with the "fine points" of the game.

HOW'S your HEALTH

by DR. IAGO GALDSTON

POISON IVY

Poison ivy is the most common and best known of a group of plants belonging to the sumac class whose resinous sap produces a characteristic inflammation when coming in contact with the skin of a susceptible individual.

In this group of poisonous plants there are at least 60 or 70 members.

The more common are poison ivy, (distinguished from other suspected creepers of a similar appearance by its possession of three leaflets instead of five) poison oak, a shrub or small tree common to the western part of the United States, and poison sumac, poison dogwood or poison elder which grows in this country in swampy places.

Contrary to the common impression the sap is not volatile, does not pass through the air. To be affected, one must come in actual contact with it.

However, this contact need not be direct. The sap may first come in contact with clothes, tools, insects, etc., and then be transferred to the skin of a person.

son, many miles distant from the plant.

The sap, when coming in contact with the skin, causes an intense irritation. There is an inflammation of the affected parts, frequently beginning between the fingers, swelling and the formation of blebs, or blisters.

The person affected not infrequently suffers fever, loss of appetite and constipation.

When one suspects having come in contact with poison ivy, the exposed part of the body, hands and face should be freely washed with an alkaline soap and water.

External application of alcohol or gasoline will sometimes avert the poisoning.

Clothing suspected of having sap, should be discarded for a while, and exposed to the sun. Such exposure tends to destroy the irritating substance.

Again Konjola Shows How It "Makes Good"

Stomach Trouble and Extreme Nervousness Are Banished By New and Different Medicine

MRS. EUGENE HARRIS

"Konjola has greatly improved my health and I am more than glad to recommend such a splendid medicine," said Mrs. Eugene Harris, 126 Barton street, Little Rock. "For about twelve years I have had trouble with my stomach. After practically every meal I had a distressing feeling in my stomach. Bloating and sharp pains of indigestion kept me in almost constant misery, and I became extremely nervous.

"My sister, who lives in Illinois, knew of my condition and she wrote me to give Konjola a trial. I decided to follow her advice. Now, even though I have only taken a short treatment, my stomach troubles have disappeared. Gas forms no longer, after eating. My nerves have settled, and the tonic qualities of Konjola have built me up in every respect."

Quickly Konjola goes to the very source of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness. When taken over a period of six to eight weeks the results will surprise those with even the most stubborn ailments.

Konjola is sold in Ballinger, Texas, at Weeks Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS PECAN-GROWERS MEETING

A number of local citizens went to Maverick Tuesday morning to attend the all-day pecan demonstration and school on the Bert Fletcher place. C. W. Lehmborg, county agent, who is sponsoring the meeting, stated just before leaving town Tuesday morning that the gathering place would have to be transferred on account of the high waters of the Colorado River. The waters have receded but the banks are too muddy to meet in the pecan groves on the Fletcher farm. The main program was staged at another shady place near Maverick and an inspection tour of the Fletcher farm was made late Tuesday afternoon.

Several counties sent large delegations to the meeting and all speakers expected had wired that they would be present.

SICK HEADACHES

Disagreeable Feeling All Went Away Following Use of Black-Draught.

Paducah, Ky.—"For a long time I suffered with severe sick headaches that would unfit me for my work for two or three days at a time," says Mrs. C. H. Hall, of 222 Tennessee Street, this city.

"I would have these headaches if I let myself get constipated. I would also feel very dull and stupid and have a very bad taste in my mouth.

"After I heard of Thedford's Black-Draught and began taking it, all this bad feeling would disappear and I would not have the headache, so that now I just keep a box of Black-Draught on hand, and when I feel the least bit bad I take a dose and it relieves me at once. I am glad to recommend Black-Draught, in fact I have done so many times, to friends and neighbors.

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable cathartic or laxative medicine, composed of selected medicinal herbs and roots. Black-Draught is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in an easy, natural way.

Genial and Alice White, with Jack Mulhall, the Irish American actor, is co-featured with Alice White in "Show Girl in Hollywood." First National's amusing screen drama of the conema metropolis, which closes a three-day engagement at the Palace Theatre tonight.

Several years back Miss White was given her first leading role opposite Mulhall for "conditioning." The studio figured that playing with this experienced actor would help her develop her own screen technique. And now they are together again in one of the finest pictures of the year, "Show Girl in Hollywood" is the story of Dixie Dugan's rise to fame on the screen, "with music and song effects." The big musical sequences are filmed in Technicolor. Mervyn LeRoy directed, and the cast includes Blanche Sweet, Ford Sterling, John Miljan, Virginia Sale, Lee Shumway and Herman Bing.

"Lord Byron of Broadway" is Screen Musical Comedy

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's newest all-talking screen romance, "Lord Byron of Broadway," enhanced by songs, dances and striking Technicolor scenes, will open tomorrow for two-day run at the Palace Theatre. The picture, which was adapted from the novel by Nell Martin, achieves distinction in introducing to the screen Ethelind Terry, star of Ziegfeld's musical comedy hit, "Rio Rita," and Charles Kaley, well-known Broadway juvenile recently featured in Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

The picture, a story of the rise of a cafe piano player to vaudeville matinee idol and his disastrous love affairs with five show girls, was directed by William Nigh and Harry Beaumont with the dialogue continuity in the joint hands of Willard Mack and Crane Wilbur.

Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, composers of "Singin' in the Rain," "Wedding of the Painted Doll" and other hits, were engaged to write the music and lyrics, while the dance routines were supervised by Sammy Lee, former Ziegfeld dance coach.

The supporting cast includes Marion Shilling, featured in "Wise Girls," Cliff Edwards, Gwen Lee, Benny Rubin, Drew Demorest, Rita Flynn and a number of others.

From advance reports, the picture leans towards the musical-spectacle type exemplified by "The Hollywood Revue" and "Broadway Melody," but lays more emphasis to plot and narrative than did the former pictures. It is stated the film gives every opportunity for display of the vivid personalities of its stage stars as well as serving as the background for an engrossing and amusing tale of Broadway life in its true perspective.

Ballinger Boy "Overseas" Writes Interesting Story

(Editor's note: The following letter from J. L. McWhirter, written from Rotterdam, Holland, tells of many interesting experiences. McWhirter and Philip Walker left Ballinger several months ago, went to Houston and secured employment on a ship to Europe. They are now touring the old country and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Chastain have received several letters since the boys landed over seas, which tell of many interesting sights and an enjoyable trip.)

Rotterdam, Holland.
June 1, 1930.

Dear Folks:

I will write you a few lines to let you know I am O. K. and enjoying myself immensely.

We arrived here from Dunkerque day before yesterday, and I haven't done a thing but sight-seeing. I feel that I have visited everything of importance here, but I will continue my narrative from Le Havre.

Dunkerque (or Dunkerque) was our next stop, the oldest port in France, and is very picturesque, very quaint and not at all modern or civilized. The town was partly destroyed during the war by German ships that slipped into the harbor during a fog and shot things up a bit, but outside of that, it is just as it was several hundred years ago.

Four of us, the Bos'n, from Sherman, Texas, the radio operator from Austin, Philip and myself, rented an old cab, Queen Victoria style, horse drawn, and made an all-day tour of the little villages around Dunkirk. There aren't any over one mile apart so we very easily made them all in a radius of 10 miles of Dunkirk. We saw things that I thought were dead, like an old age come to life again. For instance we stopped at a small inn to have lunch and when we were about half finished, we looked up the street and here comes a wedding procession, about 20 people, all in their best "tuck and bib," led by a man playing an accordion. The bride and groom and the families of the respective members, as soon as they got even with the door of the inn, all joined hands and began the wedding dance as they flew in the door, then they came over to our table and asked us to join in the dance which was just catching hands in a circle and jumping up and down, kicking first one foot and then the other. We did very well considering the unfamiliarity of the customs. Following this we were presented to the bride and groom in a courtly fashion. Of course all this was done more or less in gestures for they spoke no English at all, and we very little French.

Afterward we took our leave and left them in possession of the place, from the advice of our cab driver, for they don't welcome foreigners to affairs of that nature. We could probably tour for years and never run upon a thing like that, again; nor could we take any pictures of it.

If I only had time and space I could describe many other interesting things that happened that day, but I will go on and just touch the high spots.

We left Dunkirk and got here (Rotterdam) Friday. This is the largest and most modern of all the places we will visit; outside of the language you would hardly know you were out of the States, with American automobiles, radio, newspapers and everything. I don't know what the people did before America was discovered; I don't see how they got along, but there are some very interesting things here. This is the first port that was open to commerce in Europe, and their famous dykes, canals and wonderful drainage system, like the Englishman says "God made the world but the Dutch made Holland."

We visited the church and place where the Pilgrims worshipped and lived before they went to America. It is still in pretty good condition.

Just to stand there, within those silent portals and think of the people who have been there, plans that were made there, and the romances which started there. We also went out to Dordecht, an industrial center about twelve miles out, but it was too modern, just like an American city, and we didn't find anything of interest. Ran into a bunch of American tourists from Georgia yesterday and we had quite a long chat with them. They arrived the same day we did.

I must close; give everyone my regards and I will write again from here, or from Antwerp for we may leave here in a few days.

Love to all, J. L.

TOY MODEL TEST SHOWS EFFECT OF STREAM LINES

(By Associated Press)
ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 17.—The demand for faster automobiles may be answered through stream-lined lessons learned in aviation.

Tests conducted by University of Michigan students in charge of Felix W. Pawlowski showed the wind resistance of an ordinary motor car is between 110 and 170 pounds, absorbing between 15 and 23 horsepower of the engine, at 50 miles an hour.

Toy models were subjected to the air stream of a wind tunnel for tests. At 100 miles an hour, the resistance and absorbed horsepower were four times as great.

"Faster cars are resulting from more powerful engines," Pawlowski said in reporting the studies to the Society of Automotive Engineers, "and although gasoline is cheap, the question of reducing motor power through reduction of wind resistance is attracting more attention."

"A perfect stream-lined motor car would have lessened resistance and would not "rip up dust clouds on gravel roads, but the exceedingly long sterns would be very objectionable, at least for the already acute parking conditions."

In the place of perfect stream-lining, he recommended the rounding of sharp corners and edges and beveling tops and flanks of car bodies. Eddies set up by the blunt rear ends were found to be reduced by spare tires and luggage carriers.

AIRPLANE PAYS OWN WAY ON GEORGIA COTTON FARM

(By Associated Press)
STOCKBRIDGE, Ga., June 17.—Georgia's "flying farmer" is satisfied with the experiment and offers his testimony that aviation is an aid to agriculture.

It cost Gordon Bellah a year's crop to become the owner of a plane, but he declares it has paid for itself several times over in the three years he has owned it.

The chief use he has found for the plane is dusting his cotton fields to combat boll weevil and the distribution of fertilizer. He has secured special attachments for these purposes.

This spring the farm plane has been brought into service for delivery of cabbage plants to nearby cities. Young plants are delicate. Mr. Bellah explained and must be transplanted quickly for best results. By using the air delivery he has been enabled to handle a large volume of business from many sections of the state.

CONOCO Celebrates its Conquest in America's Greatest Motor Classic!

GERM-PROCESSED is the First Stock Motor Oil to "place" in INDIANAPOLIS Speedway Races! . . . Now PENETRATIVE LUBRICITY Proves it's Worth in the Terrific Punishment of Racing Motors

Dave Evans, driving a one hundred twenty-two cubic inch front drive Miller Special, placed sixth out of thirty-eight starters. Evans added less than one-half the amount of oil usually consumed in the average racing motor, in five hours, twenty-four minutes, fifty-four seconds of driving, at an average speed of 92.57 miles per hour.

More than one hundred and seventy thousand cheering, excited people, Friday, May 30, saw CONOCO do something that no other stock oil has ever done before! . . . saw CONOCO'S claims for sensational new Germ-Processed oil verified beyond the shadow of a doubt . . . saw the supreme test applied to America's newest oil . . . saw Germ-Processed oil "place" among the leaders of the Indianapolis Race . . . saw CONOCO victorious in the domestic oil market of the Nation!

It was only good strategy for CONOCO to again bring the superiority of Germ-Processed oil to your attention in this sensational way. At a time when motorists in every section of the country have been lending willing ears to the story of the Germ Process . . . learning that this is the first fundamental improvement in oils since 1901 . . . reading sensational disclosures following claims, confirmed its challenge and justified this request of you: "If you value the life of your motor, if you would reduce your operating costs, if you want better lubrication than any other oil can give you, go to the Sign of the Red Triangle and ask for . . ."

For the Germ-Processed oil used in this race was the same stock oil that you can buy at any service

CONOCO GERM PROCESSED PARAFFIN BASE MOTOR OIL

CONTEST BOARD CERTIFIED TEST

The Contest Board of the AAA took all the necessary steps to make sure that the oil used was the real CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil.
