Fifteen Sailors Drown When Sand Ship Sinks

(By Associated Press)
ERIE, Pa., July 29.—Fifteen members of the crew of the sand ship Thomas J. Whelan were drowned today when the vessel turned over near Dunkirk, New York.

Six of the Whelan's crew were rescued by the steamer Amaza Stone, whose officers said the Whelan turned over without warning. The sand ship floated for half an hour, part of the crew hanging to the wreck until it sank.

Lions 'Night Out' Occasion of Fun

The Ballinger Lions Club returned to the city Tuesday morning after a sleepless night on the Feb McWilliams ranch 20 miles from Ballinger. Twenty-six members were ready to take part in the fun Monday evening but the fun lasted too long for some of those who are used to a little nap during the night.

The object of the trip was to fish and eat fish breakfast Tuesday morning. The fish did not cooperate with the clubbers at all and the colored cooks were forced to prepare breakfast of bacon and eggs and returned the meal and cooking oil to the grocer unused. A number of trot lines were placed in the river and baited but besides a few soft-shelled turtles the catch was very light.

The pranks started soon after the clubbers had eaten supper. Jokes on individuals continued until late in the morning when it was decided to retire for the night. As soon as cots were made down and the crowd had retired for the night, or rather the early morning, the mosquitoes began a picnic on Lions' meat and caused considerable restlessness. Loud shrieks by members who had been drinking strong coffee and could not sleep, kept everyone else awake. Those who did succumb to Morpheus soon found their cots overturned and sought revenge on some other fellow.

Nevertheless most of the gang expressed themselves as having had a good time and are ready to go again next year when the annual "night out" is put on the calendar.

Following the breakfast at 6:00 o'clock Tuesday morning cars were loaded and the party returned to town to spend the day alternately working and dozing.

SOUTH TEXAS BEGINS CALL FOR COTTON PICKERS

(By Associated Press)
SAN ANTONIO, July 29.—A call for several thousand cotton pickers has been issued by J. H. Fallin, superintendent of the United States Department of Labor employment service bureau here.

The picker movement to the cotton areas of South Texas is unusually light this year, Fallin reported. The number of pickers leaving San Antonio daily on the Corpus Christi and Lower Rio Grande Valley highways totals only about 300. In order that the demand for pickers be properly met, the picker movement through this district should be at least 1,000 a day for the next 35 or 40 days, he said.

The crop is good, he reported, and picking wages are in keeping with the price being received for cotton by the farmers.

$1,000 Bond Set In Burglary Case

Sheriff R. E. McWilliams went to San Angelo Monday night to return Crescencio Gonzalez, former laborer on a railroad section crew, to this city. The Mexican was held to justice court presided over by Justice of the Peace John White Tuesday morning, and charged with burglary of the Crawford Service Station Sunday night. He was placed in the Runnels county jail in default of $1,000 bond set in this case to await action of the grand jury.

Another Mexican alleged to have participated in the burglary escaped but Gonzalez was captured by two members of the San Angelo city police force. The robbery is said to have been committed about 11:00 o'clock Sunday night and a number of tires, tubes, pistons and an assortment of cold patches taken. With the exception of the pistons all loot taken has been recovered.

Miles Field Crops In Fine Condition

(By Special Correspondent)
MILES, Tex., July 29.—Crops in this section are considered among the best in Runnels county. Especially this year of crops east of here. Some of the cotton is making as high as a ton of heads to the acre while cotton has been holding up nicely until this week. According to J. Stringer, prominent farmer who lives two miles east of this city, the next ten days will be the period during which the cotton crop in this section will be made. A good rain during the next few days may result in the highest yield of cotton per acre made in several years, while continued dry weather will curtail the present prospects. Some will make up a quarter of a bale to the acre without any more rain.

DUSTING COTTON CROP

Carelessness is Leading Fire Cause

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, July 29.—Carelessness is still the leading cause of fires, according to J. W. DeWeese, state fire insurance commissioner and fire marshal, whose department reviewed the causes of the 490 fires during June with an estimated loss of $827,286.

Careless disposal of matches and lighted cigars and cigarettes caused 45 fires with damage placed at $120,234.

DeWeese stressed the importance of keeping homes and other buildings free from fire and issued a plea against carelessness.

Nine rules for reducing the fire hazards in residences were issued by the commissioner. They are:

- Keep all gas lights and open flames away from woodwork or other material that will burn.
- Always disconnect the electric iron, toaster, heater or other appliances from the socket when not using them.
- Watch the gas stove. Do not use rubber gas connections.
- Keep floor mops in a metal container and do not place them in closets.
- Do not use gasoline for cleaning purposes.
- Do not start fire with coal oil, benzine or gasoline.
- Remove all rubbish and refuse matter; keep the attic and basement clean.
- Keep flues and chimneys clean.

In the case of Freeman bond of $1,000 was fixed, which has already been posted. Bradshaw's bond was set at $750 but had not been arranged Tuesday morning, and he remained in the Runnels county jail.

The shooting is reported to have resulted from the renewal of a quarrel of several weeks' duration between the men, and the climax of the dispute came in an exchange of shots in front of a Wilmeth store in which Freeman was slightly wounded by a charge of shot alleged to have been fired by Bradshaw. It is alleged that Freeman fired three shots with a pistol in return, missing each time.

T. & P. Extension Decree Postponed

The proposed extension of the Texas & Pacific from Ballinger to San Angelo has been deferred by the Interstate Commerce Commission until sometime in December. Following a hearing just closed in Washington the I. C. C. announced that it would render no decision in the matter until that time.

The Santa Fe had protested the extension saying that there was at present not enough business for its line and that the entrance of the T. & P. would be unfair. T. & P. Council countered that competition would strengthen business. It also struck at what it called the monopoly of hauling held by the Santa Fe in the San Angelo territory.

Ablene is to have Sunday shows according to an announcement from that city. The Paramount Theatre will open next Sunday afternoon, projecting pictures during the afternoon and evening and expects to make it a permanent arrangement. This is the first time Ablene has ever seen shows on Sunday. The Public house will inaugurate the move and other theatres are expected to follow suit.

All over West Texas this week the mercury has been soaring around the 100 degree mark. The heat wave has been one of the most severe in many years and has covered a wide area. Some relief was promised in Tuesday's weather report, shows being predicted in the extreme eastern and western portions of Texas. Crops have withered under the burning blasts from Old Sol and water supplies are vanishing from evaporation.

Tom Love and Dan Moody each have issued announcements that they will support Ross Sterling in the run-off for governor. Replying, Jim Ferguson has thanked both for helping Mrs. Ferguson's campaign by going to the other camp. About half the voters in the first primary will have to select a new candidate to vote for in the run-off. Just where these votes will go is speculation and is worrying each candidate seeking the governorship of Texas on August 23. Some expressing themselves in Ballinger show that each of the candidates will receive a portion of the unattached votes while others declare they will not vote in the next primary but will wait for the general election.

Some motorists never look behind them when they back away from the curb after parking down town. Of all dangerous things to do with an automobile there is only one worse and that is to look in the gas tank with the aid of a lighted match. It is difficult to back out after carefully looking down the street, and how some drivers can put the gas to it, sail out into the traffic at a fast clip and not wreck the machine and at least one other is a mystery. Just what protects this type of autoists is unknown. Providence may not always save them. There has been a number of persons injured here by this kind of driving and if it continues there will be more. Regardless of whether a driver has the right-of-way he should be considerate of others and try to avoid wrecks. The man who thinks he is the only one on the street should have his license revoked.

SUNDOWN STORIES

GEOLOGY'S COSTUME

By Mary Graham Bonner. "You must meet a friend of mine," the Little Black Clock said, as the children saw a strange looking gentleman coming toward them.

"My name," the gentleman began as he came toward them, "is Geology, but please call me by my initial G, for short. It's friendlier somehow. I've always felt my name was a little stiff, a little hard."

"All right, G. We'll call you that," the children shouted.

"Good!" shouted G. in a hearty, big voice, and the Little Black Clock looked much pleased.

Geology was really wonderful looking.

It looked as though it were made of rock and stone, and its appearance was something like pictures the children had seen of knights clad in armor.

His shoes looked as though they were made of coal, and from his hat waved some plumes which looked as though they had been made of wheat. His buttons were made of gold and he had trimmings on his suit made of tiny jewels.

"I like to wear the costume most becoming and most suitable just as everyone does. I'm sure Peggy will agree with me," Geology said.

Peggy grinned.

"So," he continued, "I wear the costume made out of my earth treasures."

"Then your shoes are made of coal?" John asked.

"Yes, indeed. You will notice that the top part of my suit is not so firm as the lower part, although I wear a fine mantle, made from our splendid mantle rock, over my shoulders. It might be too heavy for some people, but not for Geology, not for G. I understand and appreciate the good old earth—that's why I was given my name. I stand for the earth—and the earth stands for me."

"I must tell you that I have a wonderful sleeping place, too."

"Have you?" John asked.

"What's it like?" Peggy inquired.

"I'll tell you," Geology answered cheerfully.

Thanks Voters. I want to thank the good people in constable precinct No. 1 for the overwhelming vote accorded me in Saturday's election. I have served as a peace officer in Ballinger for many years and have always been ready to perform any duty which the people called me to do. I am still ready for any kind of service and will go anywhere any time to help uphold the laws of our country. Call on me any time I can be of service to any part of Runnels county. B. W. PARIS, July 29.—Chips are like households—they always have a few horrors on their hands in the way of art objects which ought to be suppressed and have to display them prominently.

But Paris, which isn't like other cities, has a neat way of disposing of these ugly ducklings of the studio that nobody wants.

They ship them off to trim up the provinces.

When they are too bad for the provinces to swallow, the colonies are honored.

Speculation. The provinces get a great many of the paintings and statues purchased by the Luxembourg Museum from painters and sculptors whom the state wishes to honor for one reason or other.

Sometimes the reason has nothing whatever to do with art. Several American painters' paintings, purchased by the Luxembourg, are in rapid circulation in the provinces. Of course the Luxembourg Museum purchases many worthy works of art by competent artists.

It is more or less the speculative buying department for the Fine Arts which obtains contemporary works for the state while they are still selling at contemporary prices.

Some of these works prove of lasting value. Others diminish in interest and value with a change in art ideas. A few represent mistakes in judgment.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by DR. IAGO GALDSTON for the New York Academy of Medicine

THE PERMANENT TEETH. Humans have two sets of teeth—a temporary set of 20 small teeth, and a permanent set of 32 large teeth.

The reason for this apparent "second chance" is easy to understand when the growth of the jaw is considered. Teeth do not grow after they have broken through the gums and taken their place in the mouth—the small temporary teeth, therefore, would fit badly in an adult jaw.

The first permanent tooth appears between the fifth and sixth year of life. The rest grow into the mouth between this time and the twenty-fifth year of life.

The first permanent tooth, the so-called sixth molar, is of great importance to the proper development of the teeth and every effort should be made to preserve it against injury and decay.

The sixth-year molar may be identified by counting from the middle line between the two front teeth backward until the sixth tooth is reached. The sixth-year molar is larger than any of the temporary teeth.

Not infrequently parents, under the impression that the sixth-year molar is a temporary tooth, allow it to decay, believing that it will be replaced by a permanent tooth. This does not occur, and the consequent loss of the sixth-year molar means the derangement of all the other permanent teeth.

The sixth-year molar holds the jaws in a definite relation to each other while the 20 temporary teeth are being shed and permanent ones are taking their place. To safeguard against the loss of this tooth, parents should look for its appearance when the child is five or six years old.

Methodist Revival Set for September

The First Methodist Church of Ballinger has announced its fall revival which will begin on the second Sunday in September and continue for two weeks, covering three Sundays. This is the first evangelistic campaign to be sponsored by this church this year. A very successful one-week campaign was held the week preceding Easter, and at that time it was announced that the general revival would be held in the early fall.

Dr. Geo. W. Shearer, of Eastland, has been secured by the local congregation to do the preaching for this revival. Rev. T. E. Bowman, pastor of the local church, announced Dr. Shearer's acceptance and all plans will be completed for an extensive religious campaign which it is hoped will be citywide.

Music and young peoples work will be looked after by members of the church and no special workers will be brought here for that purpose. These arrangements have not been completed but will be arranged before the meeting begins.

Services will be held twice daily in the main auditorium of the church. It is thought that the weather will be cool enough to be comfortable in the building with fans running.

Rev. Bowman stated that all Christians would be invited to cooperate in the services. Advertising matter will be printed and distributed in all communities where citizens probably will attend the services.

Dr. Shearer is an outstanding preacher and will bring many inspirational talks to Ballinger. He has been very successful as an evangelist and was selected by the local church after a number of prominent evangelists were discussed. He is pastor of the Methodist church at Eastland.

Amusements

"Strictly Unconventional" is a brilliant satire on marriage. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announces the opening tomorrow at the Palace Theatre of "Strictly Unconventional," all-talking adaptation of W. Somerset Maugham's matrimonial satire, "The Circle."

The picture is rated as one of the few all-star stories ever written. It has six parts, all of them of exactly equal value, and it abounds in clever lines.

In fact, as the all-star vehicle of John Drew and Mrs. Leslie Carter a few years ago, it scored one of the most conspicuous successes the American stage has known. Its sharp, keen wit, and its laughable situations broke house records all over the United States and Canada.

Direction of this satire was put in the hands of David Burton, considered one of the most competent artists to come from the stage to talking pictures.

He chose for his cast a group of well-known players. Lewis Stone steps from "Their Own Desire" into the part of Clive Champion Cheyney, deserted thirty years before, by his wife, Lady Kitty. Kitty is beloved by Lord Porteous, now grown old with her. This part is played by Ernest Torrence. It is the role originally played by John Drew.

The two young "mad fools" who rush into love despite the horrible example of Porteous and Lady Kitty, are played by Catherine Dale Owen (direct from her success in "The Rogue Song"), and

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescriptional product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

a new-comer, Paul Cavanagh. Tyrell Davis, of the stage production, "The Swan," and the screen's "His Glorious Night," plays Miss Owen's stodgy young politician-husband, while Mary Forbes of "The Thirteenth Chair" is the sophisticated Mrs. Shenstone.

Scenes on horseback and an English garden are said to furnish the exteriors of the production, while the dramatic scenes of the picture are played out largely in the interior of the luxurious country home of Clive Champion Cheyney.

Vallee's Band is Unchanged in Two Years

Not unlike the strolling minstrels of old who went about the country charming their hearers and propagating love for a new type of entertainment, are the members of Rudy Vallee's "Connecticut Yankees" orchestra, appearing in and supply the orchestration for Radio Pictures' "The Vagabond Lover," which closes a three-day run at the Palace Theatre tonight.

For nearly two years, they have followed their leader, Rudy Vallee, from radio station to theatre to night club, bringing with them King Jazz's latest innovations, establishing an international reputation as entertainers—going at last to Hollywood.

The outstanding characteristics of the octette are youth, enthusiasm for new scores and a loyal admiration for Rudy Vallee—the man who led them to success.

Rudy makes his talking picture debut in "The Vagabond Lover." He is supported by Sally Blane, Norman Peck, Danny O'Shea, Eddie Nugent, Marie Dressler, Nella Walker and Alan Roscoe.

COLLEGE TOWN MAKES TOOTHPICKS FOR U. S.

(By Associated Press) COIMBRA, Portugal, July 29.—Americans who use tiny wooden sticks to pick their teeth are dependent upon this small university town on the banks of the Mondego River for almost all of their supplies.

Cheek by jowl with the time-worn walls of Portugal's historic Alma Mater, are scores of small factories turning out snow white toothpicks by the million. They are shipped almost exclusively to the New World.

For home consumption the factories make highly ornamental picks. These are not thrown away after having served their purpose, but are tucked into the wallet for future use.

Queen Marie Seeks Quiet at Shore Retreat

By Alexander Coler
(Associated Press Correspondent)
BALCIC, Rumania, July 29.—Queen Marie, dowager of Rumania, took refuge here from the turmoil of politics caused by the return of her son Carol to the throne.

The country hereabouts is parched and dust-covered but the summer residence of the queen stands out like an oasis on the very shore of the Black Sea. The palace is set in gardens containing all kinds of flowers whose brilliant colors contrast with groves of silver poplars.

The palace itself is white, with a red roof. It is built on Turkish lines with a slender minaret extending skyward and the building is perched on a bold headland.

From the first floor windows one can look far out over the open sea. The rooms are furnished in bright colors, with deep upholstery and many rugs, pictures and flowers. Comfort and beauty have been combined in the arrangements.

In the gardens are several artificial waterfalls which tumble into pools drained by little meandering streams. In the middle of a great plot of vari-hued irises stands a wee chapel and at other points are pools with lilies. Wonderfully kept lawns are everywhere.

Only four years ago the site was occupied by an old mill, but that was demolished when Queen Marie acquired the property for her summer residence.

aroused the women. The women claim that if they had been represented on the juries such severe punishments would not have been meted out.

POLISH WOMEN DEMAND PLACES ON TRIAL JURIES

(By Associated Press)
WARSAW, July 29.—The women of Poland are making a concerted fight to get women on court juries.

At present jury courts exist only in that part of Poland which was in Austria before the World War, but there is a bill pending which would introduce the jury system all over the country though women would be excluded from service.

Two recent jury verdicts have

Platinum Prices Descend
WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP)—The price of platinum is coming down. Increased production by Russian and South Africa mines and a decrease in luxury buying are given as contributing factors.

Every Little Cell In Your System Says Thanks For Nourishment

You've seen "flowers in the rain, lift up their heads again". Well! that's how it is with hungry little cells when you answer their cry for food. At first the call is a whisper; you're just a little restless, or languid and tired. This happens at mid-meal hours; around 10-2 & 4 o'clock. Go then. Don't wait. Drink a bite to eat and see how much better you'll feel.

A little nourishment at such a time tides you over 'til another meal; puts an edge on your brain and body; picks you up and puts you "on your toes." Try it... at regular hours... for just one week. No kidding! It works. Not a thing in it can harm you. It's one good habit to get. It won't get you.

Hollywood Sights
By Robbin Coons
HOLLYWOOD, July 29.—Casting directors considering applicants for a role almost always have rejected those who never have played that type of role before. "This girl can't be a roughneck; she's always been a shy little violet," is the typical verdict. But that attitude may be changed ere long, and it is principally the new actors from the stage who are bringing the change.

Whereas most screen actors have been ruthlessly typed, held in a rut of sameness in picture after picture many stage people successfully and obstinately have resisted such classification, and screen brothers and sisters are profiting by the example.

Variety Wins
Ylara Bow always is the "It" but Ruth Chatterton steps a novel to a mansion, from as to heights, in the range of characterizations. Alice White is the perennial chatter, but Ann Harding, whose beauty and dignity probably forbid such roles, can carry parts as widely separated as those of the society girl in "Holiday" and the diamond-in-the-rough heroine of "The Girl of the Golden West."

Billie Dove is eternally the beauty, but Marie Dressler is equally convincing as scrubwoman or queen.

In almost all his recent pictures the screen's William Boyd has been seen in one uniform or another, but the other William Boyd, from the stage, has portrayed romantic heroes, a master crook, a "strong silent man" and a gang leader.

Rebellion
Edward G. Robinson, playing the gangster in "Little Caesar" after a similar role in "Sweet Mama," has put his foot down flatly, and "Little Caesar" will be the last of that type of characterization.

At a preview recently, Sidney Blackmer appeared in the feature picture as the "heavy" and immediately afterwards, in the preview, the audience momentarily was confused to find him as the hero.

As for Walter Huston, an audience seldom knows what to expect—he's good one day and wicked the next.

This sort of thing may be upsetting to movie fans grown accustomed to "spotting" the hero and the villain instantly, but it should raise the movies' standard of acting.

BATON ROUGE, July 29.—A boost was given cotton by a "Cotton Revue" presented by the Baton Rouge Business and Professional Women's Club. Those attending wore modish frocks made from southern cotton in printed nets, organdies and voiles.

The program consisting of southern melodies and dances was opened by the reading of "The Cotton Blossom" by a girl dressed to represent a huge ball of cotton.

HEALTH ALL UPSET

Lady Didn't Sleep Well; Was Weak, Suffering Before She Took Cardui.

CAIRO, Ill.—A year and a half ago, when she was in a run-down, weakened condition, Mrs. John A. Medlin, of 2011 Commercial Avenue, this city, took Cardui. Here is what she has to say about it:

"At times I would have bad headaches. My legs hurt a great deal. My nerves were all to pieces, and I did not sleep well. I got so I could not sleep a night through."

"I read about Cardui. I began taking this medicine and found it in every way suited to my need."

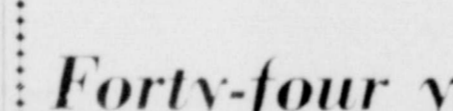

"I began to feel better very shortly, but I continued taking Cardui as I wanted to feel strong and well."

"Before long I was feeling just fine. I slept well. I had a good appetite. Soon everybody was telling me how well I looked. My color was good and I felt like doing my work without any great effort."

"I am glad I took Cardui. I recommend it to others, as my health greatly improved after I had taken it."

If you are run-down, nervous, or suffer every month, take Cardui, a purely vegetable, reconstructive medicine, used by women for over fifty years.
