New "Flight Integrator" Aids Pilots During Fog

Published Every Day Except Sunday by The Ballinger Printing Company... Offices of Publication, 711 Hutchings Ave., Ballinger, Texas.

(By Associated Press) SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 8.—A new device to aid aviation in its flight against hazards of fog flying has been developed by Capt. W. C. Ocker air corps flier.

CAPT. W. C. OKKER

He calls it a "flight integrator," an instrument to eliminate the tendency of a pilot flying blind to swing in circles and eventually drive his ship into the earth.

A dummy airplane simulates the up-and-down and tilting movements with respect to an artificial horizon, while a moveable screen in the background registers turning motions.

Painted on the screen are clouds, one of which moves into view for each 45 degrees the plane is turned, a horizon line, and the earth. Directed by a gyroscope, the picture moves to the left as the plane is turned to the right, and to the right in a left turn.

The device, Captain Ocker says, eliminates the illusion to a pilot flying blind or seeming to go to the right when his plane really is going to the left.

"Without sight," he explains, "the pilot relies on the 'inner ear' which, unfortunately, is a false indicator. Pilots even with instruments in front of them will doubt what they see and rely on their feelings."

The flight integrator aims at solving this problem. The moving screen registers for the flier, in a hooded cockpit or fog, the motion of the plane with respect to the earth and gives him the necessary balance.

The instrument weighs 10 pounds and was developed after experiments in which Captain Ocker found aviators could not depend on their senses.

While the first integrator is a crude instrument, he expects to develop it where it may become standard equipment.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by DR. LADOGALDSTON for the New York Academy of Medicine

EPIDEMIC

Have you ever watched the gas house works at night? Or the chimney of the furnace at the steel works, and have you noticed how periodically flames would break forth about the chimney stack, burn for a while, and then die out?

Were you curious to know why these flames broke forth with such regularity?

Had you ever inquired from some knowing person, you would have discovered that the flames were due to accumulated gas and that the periodic breaking forth of fire was due to the periodic accumulation of the gas.

As long as the gases were too thin, they would not ignite—when reaching a certain density, they would catch fire, and all of the gases would then be burnt up. A fireless period would follow, then the escaping gases would begin to accumulate, and so on.

There is a similarity between these bursting flames and certain epidemics which appear regularly. Measles, for example, is a disease which appears in epidemic form every two or three years.

The reason for its regularity is to be found in the fact that it takes that long for a new crop of susceptible babies to come into the world. Once the epidemic has run through a community it usually has affected most of the susceptible children.

The disease will remain sporadic—that is, appear here and there in isolated cases for a time until the infant and child population becomes dense enough, and then the disease will become epi-

LONDON EPICURES NOW FANCY SEA GULL EGGS

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Sea gull eggs are the latest delicacy displayed in the smart shops of London's west end.

Ever since it became illegal to sell plover eggs, London gourmets have been trying to find a substitute.

Sea gull eggs now sell for $1.50 a dozen and are said to be an even greater delicacy than plover eggs.

RICE CROP SHORT

BEAUMONT, Aug. 8.—The rice crop in the Beaumont area will be slightly below normal this year. A. H. Boyd, of the American Rice Growers' association has said, because of the extreme amount of rain at the beginning of the season and the drought which has existed since.

Sales will be started soon. Come in and see our specials for Saturday, City Grocery 1d&w

Politics are beginning to warm up. Gubernatorial candidates are making some pretty hot charges and personalities are being dealt in to some extent. Such methods make voters take a greater interest. They read campaign speeches, talk politics, and August 23rd may see many thousand more votes than is predicted.

When friends are parting we often hear them say "Be careful." This valedictory is used jokingly many times but the words themselves carry good wishes in them. For years the railroads of the country have been urging people to be careful of grade crossings and by repetition of this warning many motorists have been caused to think and really be careful at dangerous crossings. In this day when accidents are so numerous due to fast methods of transportation an educational campaign should constantly be conducted urging drivers to take heed and avoid serious accidents.

Everyone appreciates good roads when he has to use them. The tourist on a long trip can almost double his mileage when traveling on pavement. Ballinger tourists who made long trips this summer praise the good roads, but worn-out gravel and dirt roads come in for much condemnation. Just what is the right way to build roads and pay for them are difficult problems, but the idea of making the man who uses the highway pay for them appeals to most people. The gasoline tax is deemed a fair method—the man who travels a little pays a little and at the same time keeps his property free from burdensome taxes. The state bond issue proposal is not condemned for the way the money is to be raised so much as the amount that might be spent quickly thereby getting poor construction and opening an avenue for graft.

SUNDOWN STORIES

MID-SUMMER PARTY

By Mary Graham Bonner Madam Summer, wearing a golden costume, with a wreath of flowers around her head, sat on a stump at the edge of the woods overlooking many fields.

There were some orchard orioles perching on some fruit trees not far away and they were chirping and singing their joy at being at the party.

Peggy and John and the Little Black Clock were sitting on the old stumps.

More and more birds flew to the party and now many interesting looking beetles had crawled over to join the members of their family.

The wind was blowing ever so slightly, and as it blew a little tune through the trees the bees began to buzz and hum, and the birds chirped and sang a little, and the crickets and katy-dids joined in the chorus.

Now the Breeze messengers brought Madam Summer messages of greeting from her friends in the fields who could not come. The long waving members of the wheat family sent their greetings and so did the members of the clover family, and so did the fields of corn.

She had delicious refreshments for her party, fruit and spring water and then the music began once more. It was so drowsy, so sleepy an afternoon with the humming music, the sunshine and the gentle wind that John and Peggy could hardly keep their eyes open.

In fact they actually took naps! But did Madam Summer mind? Not a bit of it! It was just what she had hoped her guests would do!

"Heat Control" in Summer?

Yes... for Your Oven!

Keeps You Out of the Kitchen

ARE YOU ONE of those women that other women call 'good managers'? The kind that seem to always have time for everything they want to do. If not, perhaps you have wondered how they manage so well.

Of course, we don't know for sure, but we believe that if you would take a peep into their kitchen, you would see a small inconspicuous dial on the side of their oven. This little dial is called an oven heat control... and it means hours of freedom from your kitchen.

A heat controlled oven cooks bread, pastries, meats and even a whole meal perfectly and without the slightest attention. Prepare your food, put it in the oven, set the heat control, and you are free for the afternoon.

In the hot summer afternoons when the hours seem to have no ending... when you would like to take a cool refreshing plunge... then, more than ever, will you need a heat controlled oven to give you priceless extra hours of leisure.

The Lone Star Gas Company takes great pride in the part they are playing in helping the modern woman to lead a more care-free and enjoyable life. The whole organization is proud of their enviable record in constantly keeping your local gas company supplied to meet your every demand for gas.

Lamb Crop in West Shows Big Increase

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Aug. 8.—An increase of approximately 1,600,000 in the number of lambs in the 13 western range states has been noted in a statistical report prepared by Carl H. Robinson and F. E. Finley, statisticians of the United States department of agriculture at Austin. The 1930 crop is 9.5 per cent larger than in 1929 and 7.5 percent larger than in 1928.

The increase was attributed to a larger number of ewes and to a higher percentage of lambs saved. Total number of lambs estimated to be in the area was 18,724,000. Twenty-two percent was classed as "early" lambs. Most of the early lambs are produced in California, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Arizona.

Summer ranges in these states were reported to be satisfactory except in portions of Montana and other spots in the great plains area further south. The report pointed out, however, that in most lamb and sheep raising sections the water and moisture reserves were rather short so that prospects for range feed and water later in the season were none too good. Forced shipments from Montana and other localities was predicted by the bureau unless the drought was lifted.

Present conditions point to above average development of the late lamb crop, better lambs than in 1929 being expected from the region around the Great Basin while lambs probably will average below normal in the Great Plains area and in portions of the north west.

The federal observers reported that very few lambs have been placed under contract for late summer and fall deliveries and there was practically no activity in the way of contracting for lambs at the present time.

The United States lamb crop for 1930 is about eight per cent larger than in 1929 and 1928 and about 18 per cent larger than the 1927 crop. The larger crop was due to increases both in native lamb states and in the western lamb area. The native lamb crop was listed at 9,734,000 for 1930.

All of the western lamb states showed increases in 1930 over the 1929 crop with the exception of Texas where the crop was only slightly smaller than last year.

Armida and Don Terry at the Palace in "Border Romance"
A story of love and adventure south of the Rio Grande is told in "Border Romance," the Tiffany all-talking outdoor drama with music which begins a two-day engagement at the Palace Theatre today. Don Terry and Armida are the hero and heroine of the story, an original by John Francis Natteford. Vic Potel and Marjorie Kane supply the comedy and other important roles are played by Wesley Barry, Harry von Meter, Nita Martan and J. Frank Glendon.

"Border Romance" is the story of a young horse trader's adventure in hearts. He has his herd of horses stolen and it is while in pursuit of the leader of the gang that he runs into a beautiful Mexican girl and steals her heart. Eventually he makes her like his being a thief and recovers his herd and catches the thieves, but he has an exciting time doing so, because on his own head there is a price, for he has killed a man! Fortunately, for the course of true love, it turns out that his crime is not as bad as it would seem—and all ends the way all romance should end.

Armida and Don Terry display their vocal powers in "Border Romance" with the singing of a song, "Yo Te Adoro," by Will Jason and Val Burton. The rurales, the country police of Mexico, also have a song.

Broadway's Prize Songster, Harry Richman in Talkie

In prominence of cast, and the authentic atmosphere of Broadway, "Puttin' on the Ritz," the United Artists' all-dialogue musical spectacle starring Harry Richman, coming to the Palace Theatre Sunday afternoon for three-day engagement, promises to be the foremost offering in the record of talking, "singing pictures."

The present in the cast of Richman alone is sufficient to assure plenty of entertainment, for Richman has been one of New York's greatest attractions in musical comedy and night clubs for several years.

Second only to Richman and Joan Bennett, leading lady, is

James Gleason, an outstanding figure in the theatrical business, who does everything there is to do about the theatre except take tickets. He is the author of "Is Zat So?" and "The Shannons of Broadway." In addition to writing these plays, he starred in them as well. He writes original screen stories and dialogue, acts in pictures and does odd jobs of directing on the side.

Purnell Pratt and Eddie Kane, also prominent in the cast, are favorites of the stage and consequently old hands at the business of entertainment.

Miss Bennett, who played on the stage in "Jarnegan" with her distinguished father, Richard Bennett, plays the lead opposite Richman. It is her fifth consecutive talking picture, and in all of them she has scored outstanding successes.

Alleen Pringle and Lilyan Tashman, two of Hollywood's outstanding personalities, play prominent roles in the picture, and demonstrate that the western show center can hold its own with Broadway in providing entertainers.

"Puttin' on the Ritz," the story of which almost parallels Richman's actual career as a vaudeville performer, musical comedy star and night club king, was written by John W. Considine Jr. and dialogued by William K. Wells.

"Art" Says Dancer; "Oh, Yeah?" Censor

Faith Bacon, dainty, "Vanities" dancer will have a chance to tell a jury that the dance New York police found objectionable is art to her.

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Two fans of that art to starry-eyed Faith Bacon.

But the police censors didn't get the same slant when they watched Sir Francis Bacon's golden-haired descendant on the stage.

Faith, who came from Los Angeles and was what she describes as the "principal nude" in Earl Carroll's "Vanities," must let 12 good men and true decide, instead of three solemn judges.

There just has been a change in the way in which she, with Carroll, Jimmy Savo and Kay Carroll, charged with giving an obscene performance, will have their day in court. "I did not dance in complete nude as the police censor said," Miss Bacon says. "I wouldn't unless I knew everyone in the audience was an artist who would see only the esthetic beauties of such a dance."

"People ask me if I'm not embarrassed to appear with so few clothes on. I'm not, because ever since I was a little girl I have been posing for artists. To me it is just a part of the job for art."

It is a paradoxical background against which this dancer of the long, golden curls lives. It is reflected in her dressing room, in the three pictures that form a triangle above her mirror. One is a portrait of herself, another is a painting of a sea nymph, and the third is a religious picture.

"I was reared in a convent, you know," says Faith. "But I really am a Presbyterian."

She says she is intensely religious. A trip to visit the home of her illustrious ancestor, Sir Francis—that decided a stage career for Miss Bacon. She met Maurice Chevalier in Paris and became premier danseuse in his revue.

She has never taken a dance lesson in her life, but she taught dancing at Carnegie Hall.

She can paint and cook, and her ambition is to have a dancing school for children.

New Warden is a Good Business Man

GREENVILLE, Aug. 8.—Walter W. Waid of Greenville, new Warden of the Texas penitentiary at Huntsville, has made good both as a peace officer and business man in the opinion of citizens of Hunt county where he has spent most of his life. Mr. Waid is a man of middle age, has facial characteristics suggesting determination and his hair is slightly tinged with gray.

Born in Collin county near McKinney, the new warden was brought to Hunt county by his parents when only six months old. With the exception of a brief period in Oklahoma, Mr. Waid has since made Hunt county his home, first at Wolfe City where he was alderman and city marshal and later Greenville after his election as sheriff of the county.

Waid's first touch of adventure and excitement came early in life when as a lad he stood beside a chuck wagon in the Oklahoma Indian territory and watched a run into the newly opened Cherokee strip. His father participated in this run and claimed land upon which the family settled near Enid and lived for five years. The family then moved back to Wolfe City.

Waid served as city alderman for six years and was then selected city marshal, serving in that office for eight years. During his tenures in these offices, however, he conducted an ice, coal and bottling company and was successful in its operation for twenty-six years. He also bought and shipped cattle and six years ago, when elected sheriff was engaged in that occupation.

In the fourteen years that Mr. Waid has served as peace officer he has drawn his gun but a few times and has been forced to use it but once. On that occasion, he shot and wounded a negro. "I didn't shoot to kill and the negro completely recovered," Mr. Waid said. As city marshal, he had placed a negro youth under arrest. The boy's father interfered by drawing a gun. Mr. Waid promptly shot him, first in on arm and again in the other as he attempted to retrieve the gun with his free hand.

Only once has a prisoner escaped from Waid. That was during his tenure as sheriff when he had arrested a negro for disposing of mortgaged property. The black was considered gentle than mean. Waid did not handcuff him, but he lost him when he made an excuse to go to the rear of the train on which they were riding and jumped to the ground. Six months later, the sheriff caught him in a far corner of Oklahoma.

It was not by "six-gun" and flying bullets that Waid made his record. Before he entered public life he had equipped himself with a business knowledge that helped him when he entered upon his duties as sheriff. Waid turned to the county officers each year a balance that gave mute evidence that he was curbing law breakers in this county. He was zealous and courageous and his efforts to give satisfactory service and spent day and night in vigilant pursuit of his duties.

Kind, yet firm, Waid commanded the respect of prisoners in the Hunt county jail. He was popular with his inmates, as exemplified by forty prisoners signing a petition urging his election to a second term. He was reelected.

Waid plans to move his family consisting of his wife and three children to Huntsville. He has a son and daughter away from home. "As warden of Texas' penitentiary, I will work in whole-hearted cooperation with General Manager Lee Simmons and will do everything in my power to help him put over his program," Waid said. He declared he considered Simmons as the best man Texas could procure for the general manager post.

MANY FRIENDS ATTEND ELLIS FUNERAL FRIDAY
Funeral services were held for A. G. Ellis at the First Methodist Church Friday morning at 10:00 o'clock, with a large crowd of sorrowing friends present. Mr. Ellis had lived in this county for 26 years and in Ballinger most of that time.

Until recently he was active and found about the streets during the season buying cotton. He was a member of the Methodist church, and Rev. W. H. Doss, his personal friend, participated in the services Friday morning. Rev. E. W. McLaurin, his neighbor and a close friend of the family, read the scripture, offered a prayer and made a short talk of condolence to the family.

Following the services at the church the procession formed and followed the remains to the Evergreen Cemetery where the rites were concluded.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1930

"PONTIAC PRAYING TO THE SUN"—By H. M. Herget. Pontiac, chief of the Ottawa tribe, born about 1720, was one of the greatest Indians in American history. He took part in several important battles in and about the Pittsburgh district, leading the Ottawas against General Braddock in July, 1755, attacked and besieged Fort Pitt in 1763, and the same year fought the relief expedition, led by Colonel Henry Bouquet, at Bushy Run, near the present town of Irwin. Pontiac had unusual powers of organization among his followers. He was killed near St. Louis in 1769, his death resulting in a bitter war between the Ottawa and Illinois tribes. The artist, who lives in St. Louis, has painted many Indian scenes and characters. Reproduced through the courtesy of the Wunderly Brothers Galleries.

TRULY Majestic is the million dollar radio set. It took years of hard work, years of research, years of tireless effort on the part of forty picked scientists and engineers. It took more than a million dollars cash for experimental work to produce these great receivers. Each and every one of them shows what master minds working with unlimited resources may achieve in glorious Colorful Tone. Their reproduction of every intonation—every voice and musical instrument—is as natural as if the artist or speaker were present in your own living room.

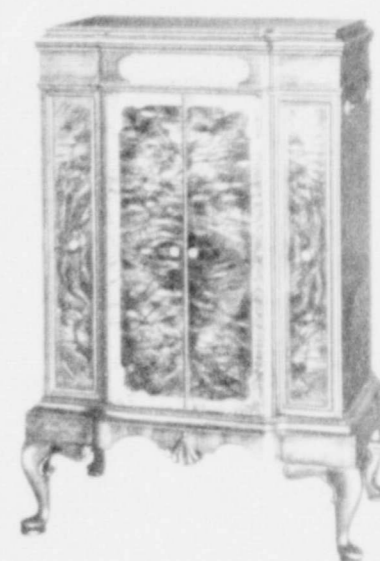

In addition to our own research, we have paid hundreds of thousands for the discoveries of other famous laboratories. We retained independent engineers and sound experts. We studied and analyzed every part used in radio. We measured their tone—their power—their life. We found their weaknesses—redesigned and improved them. We traced and ended every source of distortion. We spared no effort or expense in our determination to reach absolute perfection in radio.

These wonderful new Majestics give you a choice of two famous circuits, two powerful kinds of tubes, speakers developed beyond any others known in radio. They are yours in a choice of ten beautiful cabinet styles, ten sizes and prices. There is a Majestic for every home—every purse—every taste.

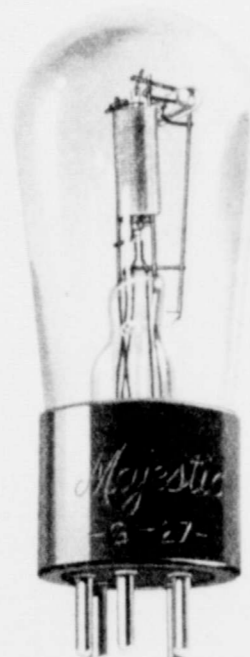

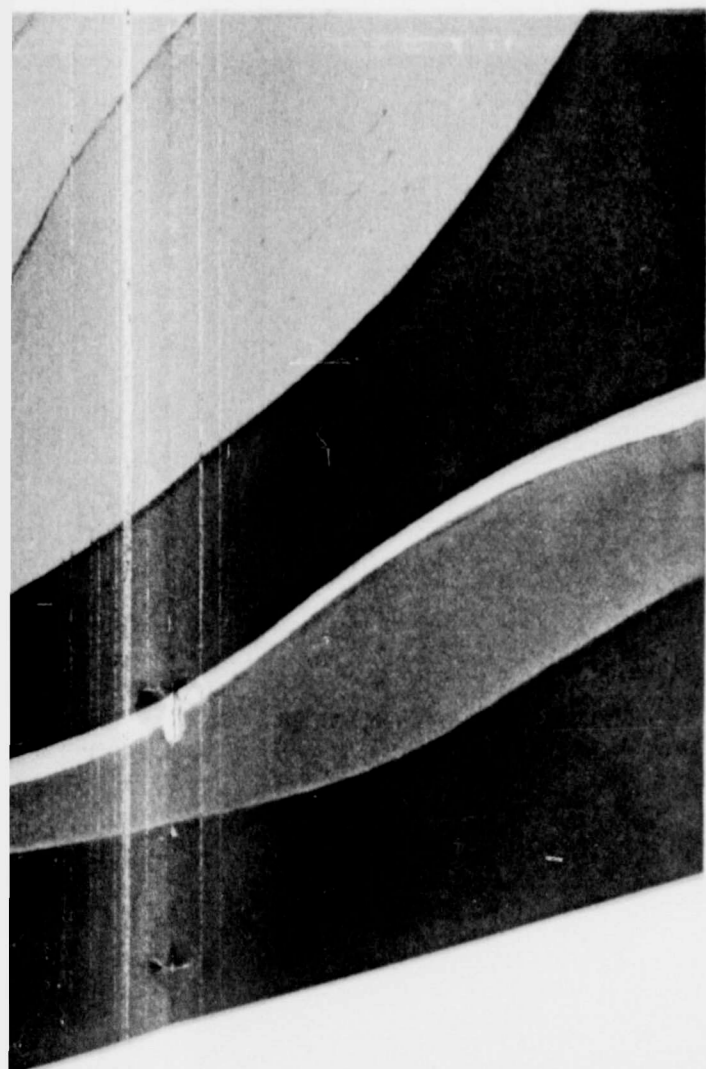

Phone or call on your Majestic dealer today—there is one near you. Buy any one of these ten great models. You are absolutely sure of the greatest radio value money can buy. You are sure of Colorful Tone you never dreamed of having a radio set bring into your living room. Grigsby-Grunow Company, Chicago, Ill. World's Largest Manufacturers of Complete Radio Receivers.
