

CHABLEYS AUNT

WHAT HAS HAPPENED... Jack Chesney and George Babbs...

Chapter Two

But—lucky day—there was no wine. And how could one entertain the girl friends without wine?

The boys did some heavy thinking. At last they were two minds with but a single thought.

"Babbs," they shouted. So poor Babbs was selected to furnish the wine and entertain the widowed aunt.

By some strange coincidence Babbs decided that the boys would have to furnish him with wine to entertain the cast when they came to his rooms to rehearse the class play.

In the opinion of Charley and Jack, a woman would have been the proper dress for Mr. Speltz.

Jack Chesney in hand, he went into it while the boys were out and was busily packing the wine Brasset had furnished for the dinner, into his satchel, when Jack and Charley returned and caught him.

Admitting the friendly theft, Babbs decided to ask for sympathy by tackling the boys on a subject which would lead them away from the wine. When they told him of their quandry with the girls they loved, he told them of his own problem.

"It was at Monte Carlo," he said sincerely, "I came across an English officer named Dellihay. His only child was the sweetest little girl you ever saw. He died, poor fellow, then I lost sight of the girl. A lady travelling home from South America took charge of her and brought her to England. I never saw her again," he ended with a sigh.

"Where's your aunt, Charley?" they asked looking around for the genteel old lady they had expected to be present as chaperone for the party.

"She hasn't arrived yet," Charley said, then almost bit his tongue because the girls put their wraps on again and prepared to leave.

"We'll do some shopping and return later. She'll be here then, won't she?"

"Oh, yes," Charley answered hopefully, wondering why his aunt couldn't have been considerate enough to arrive earlier. He decided to advance her arrival by going to meet her at the station.

While he was gone Jack waited in the parlor while Babbs remained in the bedroom, struggling with his costume and makeup. He was fussy part in the play and anxious to make a success of his role which was that of an aristocratic old lady.

There was a knock at the outer door and Jack answered it.

"Dad," he shouted happily, for there stood his father, Sir Francis Chesney. But his father had serious things to discuss so Jack listened quietly. It seemed that his father was broke, although he had come into the family title, and had numerous debts to pay.

Picking up his hat and cane, Sir Francis left. As he went out of the room Charley entered it, flustered and so excited he could scarcely stammer. All Jack could see was a telegram held in his shaking hand.

"Read that. She's not coming."

NOTICE Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the stockholders of Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway Company has been called by the Directors of said corporation, to be held at the principal office of the corporation in the City of Galveston, Texas, on the 23rd day of February, 1931, at eleven o'clock a. m., for the purpose of submitting to the stockholders the question of increasing the authorized capital stock of the corporation from Ten Million Dollars ($10,000,000), consisting of One Hundred Thousand (100,000) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each, to Twenty Million Dollars ($20,000,000), consisting of Two Hundred Thousand (200,000) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each, and to do all things and give all proper authorizations to carry out and effectuate such increase.

Jack and Charley cast one look at him and immediately turned to each other. "By George, Charley, there's your aunt!"

"My what?" gasped Charley. Babbs became irritated at what he thought to be their lack of concentrated attention. He pounded on the table to make them notice him.

"Wonderful!" replied Jack. A knock at the door startled Babbs. He prepared to run. "I'll take these things off and get back to my rooms," he whispered.

"That's the girls," Charley warned. Jack held Babbs' arm in an iron grip. "You must be Charley's aunt!" he said in a low voice.

"Not me," protested Babbs, struggling to free himself. "Hold on to him," whispered Charley, going to admit the girls. "Remember Babbs," Jack warned the silvering Babbs, "keep your voice up and your dress down."

"Amy was the first to enter. 'Has your aunt come?' she asked immediately. 'Oh, yes,' Charley replied nervously. His glance was directed at Babbs and the eyes of the girls followed. Jack introduced them. 'I hope your journey hasn't tired you,' said Kitty gently. 'Oh, no,' said Babbs in a high falsetto, 'it was quite jolly.' A punch in the ribs from Jack caused Babbs to add, 'pleasant, I mean.'" filed in said Court on the 26th day of December, A. D. 1930, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 3719, wherein Jess Neal and A. D. Neal are Plaintiffs, and Mrs. Lena King, W. Pink King, deceased, and unknown heirs of W. Pink King, W. L. Porch, Audrey Porch, P. F. White, Lillie White, Roy Mathis, Lucy Mathis, C. S. Price, Thelma Price, Clifford Woods, Gladys Woods, Joe Irvin, Pinkie Ozelle Irvin, W. W. King, Elbert King, Mancel King, a minor, and the unknown heirs of Mrs. Ida King, deceased, are defendants and said petition alleging that on December 1st, 1930, plaintiffs were and still are the owners in fee simple of the following described land and premises, situated in the County of Glasscock, State of Texas, to-wit:

Being the Northwest quarter (NW 1/4) of section 24, block 37, township 5 south, T. & P. Railway Company lands in said county, and said land containing 160 acres.

That on such day they were in possession of said premises and land, and that afterwards on December 15th, 1930, the defendants unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed plaintiffs of said lands and premises, withholding the possession of same from them to their damage in the sum of $2,000.00.

Wherefore plaintiffs pray the court that defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition; that citation by publication in terms of law be issued, summoning the minor defendant, Mancel King, and the unknown heirs of W. Pink King, and Mrs. Ida King, deceased, and that the court appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the interests of said minor, Mancel King, and that on final hearing, plaintiffs have judgment for title in possession of the above described premises, for their damages, for costs of suit and for other and further relief in law and in equity as they may be entitled.

LITTLE STORIES Little Stars

Marion Lessing

PROM Urbana, Ill., by way of Vienna, came Marion Lessing to be one of the more promising of Hollywood's younger actresses. She is the daughter of Prof. Otto E. Lessing of the University of Illinois. In 1925 she went to Vienna to play three years there on the legitimate stage.

Then she came to New York and appeared in two stage plays, "These Days" and "Flight." The movies called her and she has played in several pictures. Although she always is cast to play a lovely, young ingenue, her ambition is to enact character parts.

Aircraft Exports Show Slight Dip From 1929 Mark

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—American exports of aircraft products suffered but little from depression in 1930, the aeronautics division of the commerce department has found.

During the first 10 months of the year, exports were valued at $7,288,014, as compared to what was termed the "abnormal" trade in the same period of 1929 when the value was $7,761,977.

Decreased sales of complete aircraft to Latin-American countries alone were said to have prevented surpassing the record level reached in 1929.

Countries in the Far East expanded their trade 123 per cent in value, while gains of 27 per cent in value of aircraft engines and nearly 16 per cent in exports of various parts and accessories to the area were recorded.

China and Peru were the best markets in value of sales and Germany continued to buy the largest quantity of American engines, though followed closely by Peru, Soviet Russia, and the Netherlands.

Three Aerials Stop Fading NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Fading no longer is a serious menace to radio communication. To overcome this evil, three aerials are used, leading to a central receiver.

MOVIES

Technicolor is Feature of "Follow Thru" Opening at Palace Tomorrow Afternoon

Straight down the fairways, "Follow Thru" went onto Broadway's stage and made a sensational hit, lasting more than a year, before Paramount decided to give it to the world in an all-Technicolor moving picture production with Charles Rogers and Nancy Carroll in the romantic leading roles.

With these two stars and Laurence Schwab, of the stage-famous partnership of Schwab and Mandel, directing, Paramount has made an exuberant romantic comedy filled with love, excitement, fun and foolishness, and a group of song hits that are said to be as popular as were those of the original production.

Pretty Glenna Collett, champion woman golfer, christened the "fairest of the fairways" by an adoring sport-loving public, was the inspiration for "Follow Thru" according to Laurence Schwab, the co-writer, co-director, coproducer of the stage sensation, who directed the all-Technicolor movie joy-hit. The idea for the story struck Schwab when a picture of Miss Collett in the rotogravure section of a newspaper caught his eye. The picture showed the graceful champion demonstrating the follow through of her terrific drive. Thus "Follow Thru" was born, and thousands of people flocked to New York to pay five and six dollars a seat to see it during its two-year run.

In the Paramount production, which will open Sunday afternoon for three days at the Palace Theatre, Nancy Carroll in the leading feminine role, has ambitions to become a champion woman golfer and also to make Charles Rogers, the club professional, her husband. Her rival on the fairways, is her rival in the love ways, and an entrancing, exhilarating golf-love match ensues to prove who's who. Zelma O'Neal and Jack Haley have the comedy love roles, with Eugene Pallette as the new-rich club member in a characterization
