SYNOPSIS: John Wayne St. Clair recovers his young daughter from the kidnappers by sending them his famous diamond. The Diamond Sun and other precious stones. But the outraged father sends his child home and she dies shortly after. Turning his whole life to vengeance St. Clair becomes John Wayne deceiver of the world of crooks after having left evidence convincing the world of his suicide. Thus disguised he trails every clue that might lead to his child's abductors. Arrested at the scene of a murder he is unjustly convicted through circumstantial evidence and sentenced for life in San Paolo Jail. There a guard Murphy, corrupted by St. Clair, a successful underworld leader whose aid Wayne has asked, helps Wayne plan his escape.

CHAPTER 23
CAUTION GUARDS
At ten o'clock at night Murphy passed my cell door and heard heart-rending groans that he expected to hear. Suspecting, as he stated in evidence later, that the occupant of the cell had attempted suicide or was dying, he unlocked the door and stepped inside. Instantly an automatic pistol appeared in front of his face and a grim smile said "Put 'em up."
As he did so, the voice continued:
"Here's where I die after I've killed you—of course I make my getaway. Strip!" And Guard Murphy pretended that he was trapped, and that unless he instantly obeyed every order of this desperate criminal, he would be a dead man.
"Quick," I growled. "Cap, trousers, everything. If I get clear you'll never need to work again."
"I'm trusting ye," whispered Guard Murphy.
"I'm trusting you too, Murphy," I said, "but turn to me and cross your wrists behind you. I shall only want one hand and my teeth for the job, and my other hand will be holding the gun against your liver."
In about three minutes, Murphy's uniform, boots, cap and belt were on the floor of the cell, and his hands were bound together behind him, and I could now lay the pistol aside. In another minute his feet were tied together.
Having gagged him I dressed myself as a guard and, taking his keys, opened the door, stepped out into the corridor, and locked the door behind me.
I was free—inside the prison, and if every man reacted correctly to my suddenly presented pistol, there was a chance that I should be free outside it too.
Assuming the attitude of a guard on duty, I tramped down the corridor toward the watchman who, as I knew, would be outside the big common-cell known for some reason as The Fort.
If the watchman took no notice of me, as was quite likely in that dim light, I would pass on.
As I passed him the watchman looked up.
"Say, patsy," he said, and then his eyes and mouth opened wider. "What the...?"
"Stick 'em up!" I growled. "Quick!" and his hands shot up as high as he could put them.
I took his pistol.
"Unlock the door and get inside, quick," I said.
The watchman opened that four inch iron door more quickly than usual, and went into The Fort as though it was his home. It was for quite a little while.
Like Guard Murphy, he was safely out of action until some one other than myself was in possession of the big key which I turned and withdrew from the lock. The watchman had done me splendid service by recognizing me and causing me to drive him into the cell, for he had provided a perfect solution of the greater part of my problem.
Whether the watchman had gone his comrades should go—every guard, watchman, trusty, or other official who recognized me or showed suspicion.
That big cell, I realized, had no windows in the ordinary sense of the word. There would be no audible cry for help from The Fort.
Proceeding on my way toward the Warden's Office, I emerged into the blessed fresh air of the dark night, and marched boldly across the bare, inner quadrangle which was the convicts' exercise-ground, to where a guard stood sentinel beneath a lamp.
As I approached him at an angle, whistling an Irish air which was a favorite with Murphy, I got within arm's length of the sentry without

Young Bobby Accepts Cup for Golfing Daddy

(By Associated Press)
ATLANTA, Apr. 8.—Little Robert Tyre Jones, III, four years old, did the honors for news photographers in the absence of his famous father when a new cup arrived in Atlanta for Bobby Jones, the golfer.

The trophy is a miniature replica of the British amateur cup, which was sent Jones by members of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club at St. Andrews, Scotland.

It is engraved with the names of all previous winners, and will be Bobby's permanent possession. He must return the large cup which he won as part of his "grand slam" last year, before this year's British amateur tournament is played.

The cup arrived at Jones' Atlanta home during his absence in Hollywood, where he is making a series of golf movies. His young son, a great believer in his daddy, consented to pose with the cup for the photographers.

It was during Bobby's absence in England last year that young Bobby, III, learned the art of whistling.

When a special train, carrying several hundred Atlanta admirers of the famous golfer was about to leave for New York to welcome him back home, the lad came running down to the station, and cried out above the babel of voices:
"Please, somebody tell my daddy I can whistle now."

Skeleton of Huge Elephant Found

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, April 8.—The skeleton of an elephant which Southern Methodist University geologists said was alive 500,000 years ago, has been unearthed in a gravel pit near Dallas, and will be preserved by the university.

Dr. Ellis W. Shuler, head of the geological department of S. M. U., who examined the bones of the gigantic animal said the find confirmed former geological estimates of the Mid-Pleistocene period in what is now Texas. They said the carcass indicated the animal approached the mastodon in size.

Almost the entire skeleton was unearthened, enabling reconstruction of the frame of the massive body as it was when animated, possibly 500,000 years ago.

The skull was practically intact, including the upper and lower jaws. The tusks, five feet or more in length, were definitely shown, as were the bones of the legs, most of the bones being too large to be handled by one man.

The whole skeleton lay some 10 feet under what would be the normal level of the land, in a sand and gravel formation, indicating the elephant had died, or been killed, perhaps by some other animal, near a watering place, the body later having been covered over with silt from floods in the adjacent river, said by geologists to have been the Trinity of that day and age.

The bones were about fifty feet above the existing level of the Trinity, but geologists explained that fact by claiming the river had shifted its course, wearing down a new channel as the centuries passed.

Bones of the skeleton were being treated with alcohol and shellac and professors and students of S. M. U. will make an effort to recreate the animal's structure.

Dr. Shuler said this was perhaps the twentieth elephant skeleton to be found in this vicinity, the latest adding to a mass of testimony tending to support a theory that this species of mammoth once inhabited this part of the earth's surface.

Rush to Improve Big Port
MUKDEN, April 8.—(AP)—Manchurian newspapers report that Soviet Russia's five-year program includes the expenditure of $5,500,000 for the improvement of the port of Vladivostok.

Dale county, Ala., farmers received $95,990 for hogs and poultry sold cooperatively during January and February.

Here is Robert Tyre Jones, III, four-year-old son of the famous golfer, discussing the matter of Daddy's new cup with his dog. The cup is a replica of the British amateur sent Jones for permanent possession by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, St. Andrews, Scotland.

NORTON HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Ever-Ready Club met with Mrs. L. B. Hambright Wednesday, April 1, with 15 members and 4 visitors present. We were very glad to have these visitors. Because Mrs. Hollingsworth was unable to meet with us on this date, our program on "Living in the Living Room" was postponed until April 15 and our program for that date was substituted for this meeting. Roll call was answered with "My favorite spring flower." The lesson on table service was demonstrated by Mrs. H. G. Ashby and Mrs. W. W. Mitchell, our president.

After a brief meeting the club adjourned to enjoy a social hour. Much merriment was caused by the various "April Fool" stunts, among which was a mock luncheon, an interview with "Hamlet's Ghost," and a miscellaneous "April Fool" shower for our hostess.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Joe Hambright, at which time we expect Mrs. Hollingsworth to be with us.

In League With the Babies

WHEN LITTLE girls wore copper-toed boots and tight-waisted dresses, and little boys wore kilts—what of the babies? Swathed in yards of clothes. Scrubbed with unknown soaps. Few of them expected to live during the dreaded second summer. Many of them suffering countless ailments because nobody knew what to do.

A glance back only a generation or so is enough to reveal how fortunate babies are today. Now there are soft, cool soaps . . . every aid in food that care and knowledge can prepare . . . sensible, light little clothes . . . and such knowledge of sanitation and control of disease that every little baby should live and grow.

Mothers are indebted to advertisements for their news of these nursery aids . . . just as they are indebted for news of fascinating menus, fadeless curtains, sprightly dinnerware. Constantly, ways are being devised to make life happier, more comfortable for baby, the whole family. Laboratories clean and bright are scenes of goods being tested—being made safe and pure. When the testing is over, the perfecting done—advertisements hasten the goods to you.

No longer marvel (the next time you buy something widely known) at how fresh, immaculate, fine it is. These are qualities you can be sure of in buying advertised merchandise. . . qualities you must be sure of in buying for the health of babies, children, any one.

It is surprising how timely and vital the news in advertisements can be! Read them regularly.

Four Here Enter Oratorical Contest

Four high students from the public speaking class have entered in the oratorical contest sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which will take place at Lubbock some time in May. They are Margaret Guion, Catherine Wooten, Helen Compton and Madeline Nunn.
The subject is to be "My Home Town." All high school students from any school in West Texas are eligible. In past years twenty-five to thirty schools have usually been represented. The winner of the contest receives a scholarship to any college in West Texas, $100 in gold, and a silver loving cup which is to be kept by the school represented by the speaker for one year. If the same school wins three consecutive times possession of the cup becomes permanent.
Local school executives hope that more candidates will join the present group. The rewards offered should probably tempt more than four out of the two hundred and eighty-six enrolled.

Summer Round-up Held at Bethel

A summer "round-up" was held Tuesday at Bethel with 33 children participating. These children, who expect to enter school next year, were examined Tuesday and complete records made of defects by those in charge of the campaign. The examination paid particular attention to eyes, ears, throat, teeth and weight. Where defects are found, parents are notified and asked to try to correct them prior to the child's entry at school. Defects that are not corrected quickly are known by the teachers and the defective child is closely observed in school.
Miss Addie Alexander, county health nurse, checked the results of the Shick test at Bethel and found results generally very satisfactory. Ninety-four children of that community were recently given this test, and out of that group only five showed positive results. These must take the serum again.
Summer round-ups will continue in rural school districts until all have been visited before the term ends. One school has already closed and a number will wind up the year's work this month. Plans have been proposed for a county-wide meeting and pageant, at which time those deserving health buttons from the state department would be awarded them. Announcement of the celebration probably will be made within a few days.

City Wagons are Hauling Trash Free

The city has announced that trash wagons started to work on Tuesday giving free service to all citizens of Ballinger who comply with the rules to get their trash removed. The wagons started on North Third street and will work west until every alley in town is covered and all trash removed.
This service will last only during clean-up week which closes here on Saturday, April 11. The only requirement to secure free hauling by the city is that trash be placed in containers in the alley small enough that they can be loaded. Sacks, small boxes and such containers will be all right for the men on the wagons and as long as they are not too heavy to load, will be handled. No piles of trash will be taken by the city wagons as it requires too much time to load the heaps. Property owners must attend to that part of the work and either sack their trash or else hire it hauled away.
Inspections Tuesday showed that many local people are at work cutting weeds, cleaning out garages and getting their yards, front streets and alleys in good condition. The work, however, is not what was hoped for during the campaign and a number of places are still more than knee high in weeds and grass.
The city is lending every assistance possible to the people to encourage a good clean-up campaign here but those wishing free hauling service must comply with the rules and get trash ready at once as wagons can make only one trip over the city.

ROTARIANS HEAR STORY ON EGYPT
Ballinger Rotarians Wednesday enjoyed one of the most interesting and instructive programs of the year when Mrs. L. Schermerhorn gave a talk on Egypt. Mrs. Schermerhorn, teacher of music here, spent two years in colleges of that country as an instructor, and during that time saw much of the country and being a student of customs and historical points, was able to present a good description of the nation. Her residence was largely in Cairo and Alexandria, but she was able to make a number of trips to other parts of the country, visit in schools, churches, the pyramids, the Sphinx, and other places known all over the world.
The speaker told of the music, scenery, farming regions, gardens, poverty and wealth, dress, etc., of Egypt. Using only thirty minutes time only high points could be touched and these briefly. In conclusion Mrs. Schermerhorn used a photograph record to give the Mohammedan "Call to Prayer," and the song for all occasions of any kind in parting.
During the address the members gave perfect attention and showed with hearty applause at the conclusion their genuine appreciation of Mrs. Schermerhorn's talk.

A number of visitors were present, including Bert E. Lowe, of Abilene, Dr. B. E. Chandler, president of Daniel Baker College, Brownwood, H. B. Lyon, of Dallas.
The only item of business attended to was a vote authorizing

Students Have Ideas of their Own, Tell Chancellor How to Run College

(By Associated Press)
SAN JUAN, P. I., April 8.—Students of the University of Porto Rico know how they want their institution managed.
In an effort to put their ideas into effect, they have presented their new chancellor, Carlos E. Chardon—the first Porto Rican to become head of the school—a memorial telling him just what he should do.
Signed by the presidents of the classes of the student body, the memorial first points out that the university must have a policy. It urges that the institution abandon any attempt to develop a duplex culture by a mixture of Anglo-Saxon and historic Spanish ideas.
Other student recommendations for immediate changes include a reorganization of the board of trustees.

CARLOS E. CHARDON

The student objection to the present board is that the trustees are chosen by the governor and that the commissioner of education, appointed by the president of the United States, is ex-officio president of the board.
Students claim that the governor and commissioner have too much authority with the board and that both, "being agents of the war department of the United States," it follows that the University of Porto Rico is converted into an additional instrument of political and economic intervention.
The aim of Washington is to supplant our culture with an Anglo-Saxon culture to facilitate American business expansion and destroy the continuity of our historic traditions."

Students also want the faculty to be self-governing with life appointments so that "the present coercion of the minds of the professors by the authorities may be ended."
As a public institution the university is supported largely by taxes and the student memorial asks the abolition of fees and tuition so there may be a real democratization of education.
Chancellor Chardon, a Cornell graduate and an authority on tropical agriculture, became commissioner of agriculture of Porto Rico at the age of 26.
Now at 33, he has taken up the direction of the university, although his formal inauguration will not come until May.

Announcement is made by the Harwell Motor Co., local Ford dealer, of the coming of the Ford "Spring Truck Caravan" to Ballinger on Friday, April 10, between 2 and 3 p. m.
The caravan will consist of a large number of different body types recently added to the Ford line, ranging from the beautiful ambulance and funeral service coach to the immense 157-inch wheel base panel delivery body that has a loading space of eleven feet.
The progress that the Ford Motor Company has made in the commercial line is impressive when it is recalled that only a short time ago the company did not build a single commercial body and painted all jobs black. Now a Ford commercial unit may be had with fifty standard Ford bodies of various dimensions and proportions and with thirty-eight standard colors to suit the taste of the user.
The public is cordially invited to attend this showing.
