False Report Tells of Plane Crash

Don Brown of Truscott, and student of the University of Columbia in New York City, was reported by South American papers to have been killed, along with two ompanions, in a light plane crash in Peru, according to a letter received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brown of Truscott.

The day after William Holden's brother was reported to have crashed, Brown and his friends, Kenneth Laws and Larry Holland, flew along the same route from Lima to Pisco.

Weather conditions were not too good so they flew on to Nasa, inland a bit. They arrived at 4:08 p. m., and estimated time of arrival was 4:05 so they encountered little trouble on the trip. However, en route, they had talked with another plane and asked the pilot to close their flight plan to Pisco for them. He failed to do

Monday night they were walkng around Nasca and struck up conversation with a policeman He told them about the most recent plane crash. The more they talked, the more the victims sounded like themselves. They telephoned Lima authorities of their safe arrival and forgot the matter. But next morning they were greeted by newspaper headlines declaring them crashed and dead and describing the three bachelors on holiday as "Anglican ministers."

Brown said it felt very strange to read the report of your death, especially when you have been in no danger and are in perfect
