Mustang Establishing Record as Most Successful New Car

On its way to establishing a record as the most successful new car ever introduced in the United States, the Ford Mustang outdid all but three other car lines in the first year following its public introduction on April 17, 1964.

Overcoming such obstacles as lack of availability and a half-month strike which halted Mustang production, the sporty new car chalked up more first-year sales than any other car in automotive history.

"The only problem we've had with the Mustang all year is making them fast enough," Donald N. Frey, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager, reported.

More than 22,000 Mustangs were ordered by Ford dealer showrooms on April 17-18—the first week end the new car was publicly introduced—and a record four million persons visited the showrooms during introduction week end.

Original production schedules called for approximately 1,300 Mustangs to be built daily at the company's Dearborn, Mich., assembly plant. But even before the car was introduced to the public, reaction from selected groups which previewed the Mustang induced the company to plan the conversion of its San Jose, Calif., assembly plant to Mustang production.

Even with San Jose's added capacity boosting total Mustang output to 10,000 a week, production of the new car still proved inadequate. As Mustang climbed to the 100,000 mark early August—only 82 days after the car's appearance on the market—Ford clamored for "more Mustangs."

As an ever growing backlog orders strained Mustang's plant production capacity to point that, on December 15, company announced plans to divert still another plant—in Tuchen, N. J.—to Mustang assembly. With addition of the Tuchen plant hiking Mustang production capacity to more than 50,000 a month.

Kenneth Halbert Reports on Trip to Washington,

Kenneth Halbert, local Farmers Union representative, along with six other Texas representatives and state Farmers Union presidents from South Dakota and Montana, testified before the Congressional Sub-Committee of Wheat and Feed Grains and Livestock in Washington, D. C. Monday, April 12. Graham Purcell is chairman of the wheat committee, and W. R. Poage is chairman of livestock and feed grains.

The administration is asking for a two-year extension of the basic present programs with some minor changes: 1. 100 per cent
parity for wheat domestically consumed. 2. The going support rate for export wheat. Farmers Union is seeking 100 per cent parity for both with a five-year extension of the program.

"These sub-committees accepted the Farmers Union's testimonies with very much enthusiasm and listened to us very intently," Mr.
Halbert said.

Congressman Purcell stated privately that he felt good about passage of the bill. The Texas members had lunch with Ken Kendrick, Washington representative for the National Wheat Growers Association. They later visited Senator Ralph Yarborough, Congressmen George Mahon, Walter Rodgers and W. R. Poage.

Mr. Halbert urges all Farmers Union members to contact their representatives in Washington to tell them what they like and dislike about the proposed programs.

Two Covered Wagons to Be in Ride to Paducah

Two gaily painted covered wagons have been prepared to join the trail ride that is slated to start on the trip to Paducah's Horse Show and Rodeo at 8 a. m. Thursday, April 22.

During the past few weeks, much work has gone into restoring the original beauty to the two wagons now owned by Willie Vessel and Floyd Ferguson. New spring seats had to be made and wagon bows were obtained to support their new canvas tops. The wagons were bought from the Cates family of Thalia where they had been stored in a barn for many years. In the old days they both had seen many years of service in hauling grain to market centers; however, they had been kept in a good state of preservation. A well-preserved old chuck box belonging to the Ferguson family has been placed at the back of one of the wagons.

Many horse sales and many contacts were made before two matching teams of mules could be secured, together with their harness, to pull the wagons.

Foard County's Riding Club has been invited to join in Paducah's gala western parade at 5 on the afternoon of Friday, April 23. Immediately following the parade, Paducah is being host to a free barbecue supper for all those who have taken part in the parade. There will be many floats and bands including the famed West Texas State University 100-piece marching band from Canyon.

It is hoped that many Foard County riders will join its riding club in the parade, and all are urgently reminded to come prepared to be dressed in the traditional garb of blue Levi trousers, white long sleeved shirts, black string ties and light colored hats. The parade marshals warn that all those who fail to dress correctly will be excluded from the parading group.

The club reminds everybody of the great heritage which Foard County has to be proud of and to keep. Not only is this county now a fine ranching and agricultural segment of the nation but it also once was the original civic center of this immediate area. Both Hardeman and Wilbarger counties can lay claim to it as their birthplace.

The local riding club is to be commended for its untiring efforts in past years, and at the present, to create and perform as a representation of this county at the annual festivities which are held in neighboring counties.

The riding club states that it takes hardy souls, much planning, initiative and effort to create a representative group at these affairs each year and it urges all of Foard County's citizens to be interested and to take part in the club's efforts to bring Foard County to the public's eye at the rodeo in its sister cities each year.

Over 3,000 Persons Die on Texas Highways in 1964

The final entry in the 1964 Texas Traffic book has been entered and closed with an astounding record, Sgt. D. R. Dowy, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area, has reported. Yes, an all-time record of 3,096 persons were killed, 182,081 persons were injured, and there was $486,846,000 property loss. This compares to the 1963 record high of 2,729 persons killed, 161,543 persons injured, and an estimated property loss of $432,715,000.

Since the death count of 2,254 in 1960, Texas has gained each year steadily. The sergeant stated, "If the death count increases during the last six years of this decade as it has during the first four years the death count will stand at 4134 in 1970." What is the remedy? Only you, Mr. Motorist, holds the answer.

Welcome Applause

"Administration ears-to-the-ground are hearing welcome applause from across the nation in anticipation of the cuts in wartime taxes on 'luxuries' that the President has promised. It's been a long time since V-J Day and citizens have long taken a dim view of taxes designed to put a damper on sales and production and release workers for the war effort."—Corydon, Ind., Republican.

Pease City First Post Office in Hardeman County

ZIP code and modern facilities for handling mail rise in sharp contrast to the mail service in the day that Pease City was the only post office in Hardeman County, but it was the best that the pioneers of the early 1880's were afforded.

A post office had been established at Fort Elliott (Mobeetie) in 1875, and to the east was one at Cambridge, a government fort (Henrietta), but the first post office in the Pease River area was twenty miles northeast of the present town of Matador at Tee Pee City. Organized in 1879, it was a roistering frontier village, the first one south of Fort Elliott. It is said that it once served cowboys from more than 5,000 square miles of West Texas range.

In 1878, C. F. Doans hauled supplies in a wagon from Gainesville to Red River north of the present city of Vernon. It was the first settlement in Wilbarger County and the trading post at Doans served trail drivers taking herds to markets by way of the famous old Western Trail. In 1879, a mail line was established between Wichita Falls and Fort Elliott, a three hundred mile stage line by way of Doans. In 1880, a mail route was established from Seymour to Doans by way of Worsham dugout at the present location of Hillcrest Country Club in Vernon. This post office was called Worsham with R. D. Ector as the postmaster. In 1879 there were about five families in the present Vernon area; its original name was Eagle Flat. Mail was brought to Worsham at that time from Cambridge (Henrietta) by cowboys.

In 1879, three men, originally from New York, had visited various spots on Pease River in what was then a wild and unsettled section of West Texas. These men were John Wesley, a veteran of the Union Army; Fred Ditman and Benjamin E. Lower. The following year, the three men and their families started their trip from Weatherford and pushing westward, found the last trace of civilization at Seymour. Traveling by compass from Seymour to Pease River, they discovered Worsham cow camp.

"Shall we stop here?" asked Mr. Lower.
"Nope, it is too crowded," replied Mr. Wesley.
(This quote is from "History of Wilbarger County," by Bertha Doans Ross.)

Their westward journey continued until they reached a spot on the present Crowell - Quanah highway some six miles north of Crowell on land now owned by Milburn Carroll. They erected a stone building and on May 12, 1880, the post office was established. Mr. Lower was the first postmaster. The following year, he resigned and the position was given to Mrs. John Wesley. When Hardeman County became organized in 1884, and Margaret became the county seat, a post office was established there. Mrs. Wesley became the postmaster. When her son, H. A., became 21, he was appointed postmaster, a position he held until the appointment of S. J. Boman in 1935. For fifty-four years, the Wesley family served in this capacity.

An interesting story is associated with Pease City. Mr. Lower, engineer, surveyor and architect, was a highly educated and intelligent man. They erected the native stone building, about 20x70 feet. For years it was an important trading post in West Texas and this early day post office served a radius which covered the area that now includes Hardeman, Cottle and Foard Counties and parts of Motley, Childress and Knox Counties.

Giving free reign to his imagination, Mr. Lower could visualize Pease City as a great "metropolis of the west," so he drew plans for a city and printed a wagon load of circulars. Circulars pictured wharves poled with merchandise, steamboats plying down a mighty river lined with citrus trees, a city swarming with busy humanity. To their native state, New York, Lower and Ditman returned and told of he wonders of the growing metropolis of the southwest. They proved to be marvelous salesmen, for they sold hundreds of lots that existed on paper only and both men amassed small fortunes. For many years that followed, the sheriff of this county received inquiries about certain lot numbers in Pease City. As the story goes, Lower and Ditman proved conclusively that crime does not pay, for both men committed suicide, but Pease City really did exist as a post office.

Mail carriers were on the job in those days. The W. T. Dunn family lived in a dugout at the springs on the McAdams ranch. Mr. Dunn carried the mail horseback from Pease City to Tee Pee City. Likewise, Mr. Wesley made two trips weekly exchanging mail at Worsham.

ALAMO LIGHTING PLANS. San Antonio Mayor Walter W. Zing into spring! Chevrolet Impala

People who buy other big expensive-looking cars get one thing you won't (big expensive-looking payments)

It looks like a big car. And is—by almost any standard you want to apply.
Width? Nobody builds a car as much as one inch wider. Length? It grew three inches this year. Roominess? Every closed model's got three inches more shoulder room, front and rear, and more leg and foot room up front too. Luxury? Nice little touches like the look of mellow walnut across the Impala's instrument panel. And big touches. Like the fineness of the same Body by Fisher workmanship that makes some of America's most expensive cars look so expensive. How about the ride? Chevrolet engineers took the Jet-smooth one and smoothed it out even more this year. Also made it more stable by widening the wheel stance. Price? That's where Chevrolets fall way short of the other big expensive-looking cars. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Would you?
One last question: How soon can you make a good spring buy on a Chevrolet? One last answer: Just as soon as you can get down to your Chevrolet dealer's.
