THIRTY YEARS AGO

News items below were taken from the Thursday, May 21, 1942, issue of The Foard County News:

The Red Cross Disaster Relief Office in Crowell has received 322 applications for assistance up to May 19. Already 136 cases have been closed with Red Cross awards having been made on an individual family basis, for assistance in building or repairing homes, for necessary furniture replacement or for hospitalization of tornado victims. Awards included in this amount is the expenditure for meals served on the court house lawn.

Members of the East Side Church of Christ are holding services each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of the grammar school building.

A new building, 30x40 feet in size, is being constructed to house the J. T. Brooks Food Market. The building will have a white oriental stucco finish and plate glass windows. It will be built 15 feet farther back from the street than the former store in order to give more parking space. (1972 note: This is the present location of D&T Foodway).

The Baptist Church is holding services in the High School auditorium until plans can be formulated for the erection of a new building, for the church was completely demolished in the tornado.

On last Thursday, a business deal was consummated in Crowell in which Irving Fish and Payton Powers purchased the stock and fixtures of Reeder's Drug Store, from the owner, T. P. Reeder, at the new location on the north side of the square next door to the Crowell State Bank building where it had been moved after the tornado badly damaged the building which had housed it for many years. Then, on Saturday, the same men bought the stock and fixtures of the Corner Drug from Henry Black and are now operating both stores, but will consolidate the two businesses at the new location on or about June 1.

Grandson of Former Thalia Man to Make Operatic Debut

Mike Matthews, a grandson of T. H. Matthews of Vernon and a long-time resident of the Thalia community, will be a part of the apprentice program for singers of the Santa Fe Opera in the company's summer presentations.

Young Matthews is a junior applied vocal major at Eastern New Mexico University.

Mr. Matthews, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Matthews, reside in Del Rio, hopes to use the opportunity to launch his own operatic career.

Each year, several hundred talented young singers audition on an international basis for positions at the opera, but less than 50 are chosen each summer for the apprentice program. Young Matthews is only the second ENMU student to be selected.

His duties will consist of singing chorus parts, understudying major roles and singing minor roles in the company's six performances.

In addition to the chorus work, he will be understudying the tenor leads in two of the operas slated for presentation, the role of Herod in "Salome," and of Fritz in Offenbach's "La Grande Duchesse de Gerolstein."

Mr. Matthews became interested in music as a child and studied piano 14 years prior to enrolling in college. He continued his training in piano for two years, but later changed to an applied vocal major.

In high school, he represented New Mexico two years in contests sponsored by the National Music Teachers Association. Both times he finished third in regional contests.

Matthews is a cousin of J. F. Matthews, Jr. of Thalia.

Now's the Time to Spray Pecan Trees

Judging from pecan nut casebearer moth emergence and grove observation, indications are that the best time to spray for control of the pecan nut casebearer in Foard County will be during the period of May 17-20, Joe Burkett, who is the Foard County Agricultural Agent, said last Thursday.

The insecticides that can be used for control of pecan nut casebearer are Guthion, Thiodan, malathion and toxaphene.

Additional details can be obtained from Burkett.

Weldon "Slick" Herman to Retire from ASCS Service

Herman Is Former ASCS Employee in Foard County

Weldon "Slick" Herman, longtime Hardeman County executive director of the ASCS and former resident of Crowell, has announced his retirement effective May 26. Mr. Herman worked in the local office before moving to Quanah.

Herman, who has been executive director in Quanah since Sept. 1, 1939, worked in the agency in King and Hopkins counties in addition to Foard, before going to Quanah.

Herman was born Sept. 2, 1910, in Hopkins County near Commerce.

He began his adult life as a farmer in East Texas and went on to teach school after graduation from East Texas State University. He decided that there must be a better way to make a living than teaching so he got a job with the old AAA in 1934 in Hopkins County.

He was later transferred to King County and the organization changed its name to the PMA, and then was transferred to Foard County. The agency was later changed to the ASCS.

As Herman puts it and was quoted in last week's Quanah Tribune-Chief, "I asked to be transferred to a place where it never rained and Quanah is where they sent me."

After moving to Quanah, he met and married Beula D. Cole and they have two children.

While in Quanah, Herman has seen the times change from the horse and buggy farm to the modern tractor farm where modern technology through the ASCS has increased productivity on every farm.

Herman has seen drought conditions so bad that dust storms were so bad that "you couldn't see across the street and a county agent we had who came from Alabama and had never seen a dust storm thought the world was coming to an end," he relates.

The drought of 1971 here in Texas is only the second worst drought he has seen while in the agency. "This spell cannot even begin to compare with the drought we had in 1933," he says.

The Hermans plan to continue to reside in Quanah where Mrs. Herman is a fourth grade teacher.

Area Delegation Return from Washington, D. C.

Group Encouraged by Reception of Capitol Politicos

A regional delegation has returned from hearings in Washington before House and Senate appropriations subcommittees on public works encouraged by the support being received for a Phase II program to eliminate natural salt water pollution from the Red River Basin.

Returning Wednesday of last week from Washington were Ed Lehman Jr., chairman of the Pease River Reservoir Steering Committee; J. A. Marr of Crowell; Ed Coltharp of Vernon, Fred Parkey, John Ruhman and Ralph Harvey of Wichita County.

Top elected officials including Texas Senators John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen, and Congressmen Bob Price and Graham Purcell testified in subcommittee hearings, according to Mr. Coltharp.

"We are most elated about the fact that we were granted all the time we needed," Mr. Coltharp said. "They were very generous with their time, meeting with our groups in their offices. We were able to give them a thorough briefing on details of our project."

"We were also able to meet with George Mahon of Lubbock, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, in his office in the capitol," Coltharp said. "We were assured of his support."

The Phase II project on elimination of salt water pollution of the upper Red River Basin, a $230 million project, has been tied up in the Office of Budget and Management since 1970. A Phase I project, a $74.3 million project to clean up pollution of the Wichita River, cannot be started until Phase II is released.

Coltharp said, according to reports in the Vernon Daily Record, that in hearings before Senate and House subcommittees, chairmen asked "in depth" questions which indicated they are well versed on the situation.

The subcommittees were asked for appropriations of $1.4 million to initiate construction in the Wichita River area and for planning and construction in the Pease River area including the construction of low flow brine dams planned for the north and south forks of the Pease River.

A request for $90,000 to continue present Pease River preliminary feasibility studies was presented. Phase II release is a prerequisite project for the Pease River dam, but once Phase II is authorized, the Pease project will stand on its own as a separate project.

Members of the group were also guests of Congressman Purcell at the monthly luncheon of the Texas Democratic delegation in the Capitol. On hand were Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, and Reps. Kika de la Garza, Omar Burleson, Bob Poage, Bob Caskey, Jake Pickle, Earl Cabbell, Wright Patman, John Young and Jim Wright, in addition to Mr. Purcell.

The delegation left for the Capitol on Sunday, May 7, and returned home Wednesday, May 10.

Copper Breaks State Park Plan Gets "Setback"

Bill Carpenter to Head Delegation to Meeting in Austin

A proposed "master plan" for Copper Breaks State Park suffered a setback recently as the planning division of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department raised a question on both the lake portion of the plan and the roads planned for the park.

The plan includes an 80-acre lake, 4½ miles of roads, camping shelters, shower facilities, and picnic tables.

The commission questioned the need for the roads to be paid for by the commission because the Texas Highway Department had constructed the roads in the parks in the past.

Another objection was raised about the lake. The commission questioned the feasibility of the lake and asked if the dam, if constructed, would hold water and if the lake would become useless during dry spells.

Bill Carpenter of Quanah and a delegation will attend the next meeting of the commission May 26 in Austin.

The group, which will include State Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon and four or five ranchers who know the park area, will present information on the lake and roads that will hopefully help clarify the commission's questions.

Carpenter said that the Texas Highway Department, which has built roads for other state parks does not have the funds available to build the 4½ miles of roads in this park.

He also added that core samples taken by the Soil Conservation Service show that the dam would hold water in the lake.

Engineers have made computer studies of rainfall and runoff data recorded over the past 25 years and projected that the lake will be two-thirds full or fuller for 87 per cent of the time during

New Potatoes

The News is indebted to Tom Russell for a sack of new potatoes he gave us Monday. Mr. Russell grew the potatoes at his farm a few miles west of Crowell.

We have two ears and only one tongue in order that we may hear more and speak less.—Diogenes.

The "master plan" will have to be approved by the Parks and Wildlife Commission before a contract or contracts can be let in the construction of the park facilities.

Carpenter feels that the complications will delay the park improvements, but that for the most part, the master plan will not have to be scrapped.

Income depends on you at work, but injury or illness can stop this source of income. How long could you live without income? A week, sure . . . A month, maybe . . . months, probably not! Man's Inclination

Man is inclined, when in the wrong, to lay the blame on someone else. He is like the small boy who was standing on the cat's tail. The mother, hearing the terrible outburst, called from an adjoining room, "Tommy, stop pulling that cat's tail!" Tommy yelled back, "I'm not pulling the cat's tail; I'm only standing on it. He's the one that's doing the pulling."

Letter to Editor

Crowell, Texas, May 13, 1972.

Mr. Bill Klepper, Editor, Foard County News, Crowell, Texas.

Dear Bill, It is in time of trouble or sorrow that one knows that Foard County is the best place in the world to live. Words cannot express the comfort of knowing the people around you have compassion and suffer along with you. You just know by the way they wave or say howdy that they are remembering you in your trouble.

As an example of what I am trying to say I want to tell you this little story: I had mentioned to Robert Foster that daddy had a heifer that was going to have a calf and that I was worried about her. He said forget about her because he would take care of her. So I forgot about her. Robert enlisted Bill Gafford to help him watch the heifer. As it turned out, Robert was out of town when the time came for the heifer to deliver, but Bill who had broken ribs and was not able to do much found that the heifer was not able to deliver. He then enlisted John Cogdell and through the efforts of all these men, a cow and calf was saved for someone in need. This all happened the day after daddy died.

I say again that things like these make Foard County, Texas, the best place in the world to live. Sincerely grateful, Martin F. Jones.

Letter to Editor

Foard County News: In the May 4th edition of your paper appeared a commentary entitled, "Brings Blood to Boil." It seems the writer of the letter became very upset with the "tone" of public service announcements that "urged people to remember and take their keys from their cars . . . in the hopes that it might keep a good boy from going bad."

May I suggest if this individual is upset by the "tone" . . . as he seemed to be . . . he take time to do some criminology studies. I'm familiar with these announcements . . . they are directed toward protecting not only the boy, but the owner's car, also. The writer spoke of individual discipline at home . . . many of these boys don't even have homes. One wouldn't leave his money or wallet on the sidewalk, or his home unlocked when he goes on vacation, or his lunch of tuna fish to be guarded by his house cat. Thus, why leave keys in the car?

Likewise, in these times of turmoil and questions, many of the youth are hungry and alienated . . . and at the peak of this discontent a shiny new car with the keys in it and unguarded, is often too much for these troubled youth. Whether they just want to take it around the block or make completely off with it . . . they are still in trouble. Many of these boys are as young as 11, 12, early teens, etc. These youth need someone to care. The first way to care, if one can't do anything else, is to at least take the keys from the car . . . it really isn't that much of an effort now is it?

Educator Reared in Foard County

Dr. J. C. Matthews to Loose Ties with NTSU for First Time Since 1920

Denton—A response to a plea for help on Dec. 7, 1941, was the decisive step for James Carl Matthews toward a career of leadership in Texas higher education which included 17 years as president of North Texas State University.

It was also a decisive step away from the first and greatest love, teaching, for the man many call the "dean" of higher education in Texas because of his half a century of service.

When Dr. Matthews, Carl to those who know him well, retires May 31 at age 70, he will be loosening ties with NTSU for the first time since he arrived in Denton as a freshman in 1920. He was named president emeritus of the university by the board of regents in April, which includes having an office on campus as long as he desires.

Reared in the Thalia community and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Matthews, he began his career as a 19-year-old principal and teacher in Rayland Texas, and taught for most of the years until World War II at NTSU. He has a brother, J. F. Matthews, Jr., still living in the Thalia community.

But now, Dr. Matthews is permanently retiring from teaching after spending four years in the NTSU College of Education since he left the presidency of the university in 1968.

He now stands at the crossroad between the past years of astounding accomplishment in education and the future years in which he intends to record for coming generations what he considers most vital from his years as an educator.

His subjects will be the history of his administration and the birth and development—in which he played a leading role—of what is now the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

The tall, slender man, with dark, slightly thinning hair greets visitors with a warm smile and a handshake to the tiny office he now occupies in the College of Education.

Reminiscing, he recalls the decision he made Dec. 7, 1941, which he now says was the turning point for him from teaching to administrative work.

Dr. W. Joseph McConnell, president of what was then North Texas State Teachers College, and Dr. Matthews, were returning to Denton from a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools that Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Matthews was director of student teaching and of the NTSU lab school at that time.

"I got off the train at Marshall and got a paper—the special that told about Pearl Harbor," Matthews recalled.

"After Dr. McConnell read it and walked around the train for awhile, he came back to me. 'I'm going to ask you to stay with me,' he said to me, 'and ask you to work with me on two problems,'" Dr. Matthews quoted his president.

"I'm going to ask you to work with me on taking care of the students and faculty when they are leaving and taking care of them when they are returning (from the war)," Dr. McConnell told his colleague.

"I worked about five years on that assignment," Dr. Matthews said. "It was a deeply involved problem. We went from an enrollment of 3,800 to 1,600 in very short order, and then we went from 1,600 to 5,000 in shorter order than that."

The decision to help Dr. McConnell during the war years locked Dr. Matthews permanently into administrative work, where he had reluctantly been heading for years.

"It's like wading out in the water and it gets deeper and deeper. You see things need to be done, and then you see you are helping to get things done, then before you know it, you have an assignment to keep doing it," he explained.

Dr. Matthews became slightly teary-eyed when asked if he would miss teaching.

Removing his glasses and laying them on his desk near neat piles of paper, Dr. Matthews nodded, "I really will."

"I have missed only four or five classes in the last four years. That means something, don't you think?"

Asked what people will remember as outstanding in his career, Dr. Matthews answered: "I think what people will take the most note of will be the growth of the institution in my administration. I think that will stand out for some time to come."

"What it was that gave me the most satisfaction was teaching—my teaching."

"Look at my administration. The thing I was most concerned about was, 'Are we getting the most done with teaching?' Are we improving the teaching?"

He said one of the things he intends to do in retirement is to gather and organize the memorabilia of publications, speeches, correspondence, records of his biography and for history.

His pride in his career is more evident in the fact that he intends to chronicle his accomplishments than in his manner of describing it, which is unobtrusive and understated.

Actually his presidency was a time of unparalleled growth in the history of NTSU, which now boasts an enrollment of 16,000.

During that 17 years, NTSU grew from a value of $13 million to $50 million in its physical plant from a budget of $4 million to one of $18 million, from a typical salary of $4,000 to $13,500. The library went from 187,000 volumes to almost 700,000.

North Texas State Teachers College also became North Texas State University during his administration on May 8, 1961.

He considers one area of his work to be so important to the future of Texas higher education that he intends to record it himself.

"The story has to be documented on how the Coordinating Board (Texas College and University System) was formed," the educator said, leaning forward to emphasize the urgency of his belief.

"This is a very important phase of higher education in Texas and North Texas has played a vital role."

Dr. Matthews was chairman of the committee assigned by Texas Gov. Allan Shivers in 1953 "to study" higher education.

He then was chairman of the temporary commission formed by that committee and of the permanent commission that followed.

The permanent commission became what is now the Coordinating Board.

He said the history he will write will trace the development of the important formulas the commission and the board devised for keeping the distribution of funds between the institutions in Texas equitable and for securing funds from the Texas Legislature.

He said he will also chronicle the standards the board developed for regulating requirements for attaining bachelor, master and doctoral levels in various fields of study; the development of master plans for institutions of higher learning; the standards for recommending that new institutions be formed; and the standard tuition per semester hour in each particular area of study in all colleges and universities in the state.

"This writing I'm doing at my own request. I know this needs to be done," he said.

"People get to the point of asking 'Why do we do this; doesn't this take an awful lot of time; we don't want to do it this way; we want to take our plea to the legislature,'" he explained.

But Dr. Matthews said he feels the Coordinating Board has found better ways and if people know how the group arrived at the decisions they will understand the board's recommendations.

A story the retired college president says he wants to tell just for the pleasure of it is the story of his involvement with college presidents, beginning with President W. H. Bruce.

Bruce, president of the infant North Texas Normal College, greeted Matthews and other freshmen at the train station in Denton in 1920, took the newcomers in his car to a cafe on the square for lunch and then took their suitcases to a rooming house.

Before he became president himself, Matthews said he was taught by future presidents, worked with presidents on committees and commissions and even traveled through the South on an

Deadline Set for Materials for Foard History

Another reminder this week from the Foard County Historical Survey Committee that a July 1 deadline has been set for acceptance of historical information which is presently being assembled for a second edition of a Foard County history.

Family histories must be typed in the exact form in which they are expected to appear in the new edition. Old pictures are requested and will be returned to the owners, the committee says.

Completion Data Given on Two Lucy Gamble Wells

The Wichita Falls office of the Texas Railroad Commission has announced the following Foard County oil well completions:

Tipco, Inc., 2 Lucy Gamble, Thalia W. Field, 2 1/2 miles north and 4 miles west of Thalia, 2308 feet from south line, 1979 feet from east line, section 314, block A, H&TC survey, 90 acre lease, total depth 2356 feet, sd., perforations 2316-24 feet, 22 barrels oil per day, 117 barrels water per day, gravity 39.

Tipco, Inc., 4 Lucy Gamble, Thalia W. Field, 2 1/2 miles north and 4 miles west of Thalia, 330 feet from south line, 330 feet from east line, 90 acre lease or 1648 feet from south line, 1979 feet from east line, section 314, block A, H&TC survey, total depth 2404 feet, sd., perforations 2288-28 feet, 104 barrels oil per day, 15 barrels water per day, one-fourth inch, choke, gravity 39.

According to The Elks Magazine, "It's not funny but . . . inflation has inspired a raft of jokes here. One of the more popular is about the man who went to a supermarket to do the family marketing for the week and was asked by the bag boy whether he wanted a shopping cart. 'No thanks,' he answered, 'I won't need one. I've only got a twenty on me.'"

Eight-week tour with another.

"I got to be a sort of student of presidents early. I call it a 'president-watcher,'" he said smiling. "I guess I had fewer surprises as president than most people because I had more contacts with presidents than most people."

Two students in the first class Dr. Matthews taught were the twin sons of the then North Texas president Robert L. Marquis.

"Dr. Marquis would call me to talk about his sons. 'Sonny Boy' he'd call me," Dr. Matthews laughed, and continued to quote Dr. Marquis:

"'Sonny Boy, when you sit in this chair (president's chair), things will look different.'"

Was Dr. Marquis right in his prediction?

"Yes. He was right," the president emeritus of North Texas State University smiled and nodded.
