How Much Filth Is Tolerated in Food?

"The FDA is breaking a 61-year precedent and making available to the public its guidelines on how much filth it considers unavoidable and tolerable in food. Among the things the government can overlook is one rat or mouse pellet in each pint of wheat, up to 100 million bacteria in a gram of dried eggs and 2500 aphids per 10 grams of hops. The government might not care, but you should have heard the family scream the time someone dropped a band-aid in the tossed salad, or when the screw worked loose in the mixer and was baked in the layer cake—picky, picky, picky!" —Fredonia, Kans., Wilson County Citizen.

PURCELL AND PRICE SEND NEWS RELEASES TO THE NEWSPAPERS "BACK HOME"

(Editor's Note: The News constantly receives news releases from congressmen and senators. Since Bob Price (R.) and Graham Purcell (D.) will be battling it out this fall to see who represents this district, the News prints the following portions of news releases received from these two men during the past week).

WEEK OF JULY 25-31 IS FARM SAFETY WEEK

J. A. Marr, chairman of the Foard County Soil and Water Conservation District, and John McAlister, district conservator of the Soil Conservation Service, join the farm community in observing and promoting safety among rural people. President Nixon has proclaimed the week of July 25-31 as Farm Safety Week. Bill Mauldin, famous cartoonist and battlefield reporter of World War II, often depicted the battlefield scene with a bayonet driven into the ground and a steel helmet draped over the stock of the gun.

To depict the grim scene of automobile accidents, Mauldin showed a steering column driven into the ground with the driver's hat draped over the steering wheel. The grim facts are that traffic accidents cause more deaths than battlefield deaths. Too often these accidents hit the farm community. Modern highways built to handle faster and heavier traffic through farm areas present increasing hazards to rural drivers. More farm vehicles and equipment are being moved over Foard County highways than ever before, according to McAlister. Much of the traffic is city drivers and vacationers, he said, who are not accustomed to slow moving vehicles. As a means of protection, the driver of farm equipment uses the slow moving vehicle emblem. To all traffic, slow moving vehicles call for extreme caution. There are a number of new hazards on the farm, McAlister added.

How Can We Build a Better Country?

... how can we build a better country? As things stand now, many of the products people want and need can be made satisfactorily and cheaper abroad. It is not a question of shutting off exports, but of making our own products better and less costly, and our taxes lower. Higher wages and higher taxes, which put men out of jobs and industries out of business, must be curtailed so we can get back to work. Then things will begin to improve all around." —Franklin, La., Banner-Tribune.

What About It?

"Scientists are concerned about the origin of the moon, and are wont to study a variety of rocks returned this trip by American astronauts and on previous trips. There are many disturbed taxpayers wondering about the expenditure of billions on these trips, but there are others who desire to know what the scientists plan to do about it when they discover what has happened on the moon these billions of years." —Fairfax, Okla., Chief.

The many pieces of farm equipment on the farm today present big dangers. Any piece of equipment, especially powered equipment, is dangerous if not operated properly. Demand safety features on equipment. Operate all equipment with caution. Insecticides, herbicides and other toxic materials are useful and necessary in modern agriculture. They can be dangerous to the careless user. It is a must to follow safety rules. (1) Always read the label first. (2) Follow directions exactly. (3) Use protective mask or clothing, if called for. (4) Destroy or dispose of used material or containers properly. (5) Keep all poisonous or toxic material out of the reach of children. Farm ponds are an increasing hazard simply because of the increased number of them, and the increased use for fishing and other recreation. McAlister urges all landowners and operators to construct a rescue station on all farm ponds. A simple economical rescue station can be built by using an inert tube or one-gallon plastic jug as the basic life saving device. The American National Red Cross has developed guides for construction of this economical rescue station and first aid emergency instructions. These are available at the local soil conservation service.

The horse has made a comeback—not as a work animal but because we like horses. The city youngster, unfamiliar with horses, is most likely to get hurt. Teach him to ride properly. First, and above all, teach him to respect the horse. "These point out only a few of the safety hazards in rural areas. All of us, doing our part, can make rural America the safest and most pleasant place to be," McAlister concluded.

Self-Reliance

What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think. This rule, equally arduous in actual and in intellectual life, may serve for the whole distinction between greatness and meanness. It is the harder because you will always find those who think they know what is your duty better than you know it. It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude. —Ralph Waldo Emerson.

One of the human rights with which every person is endowed is the right to be different—even from members of his own family. To deny this right is selfishness, not love. We could show our love—and understanding—to greater profit if we looked for, and encouraged, the special talents and tastes in our children instead of consciously, or unconsciously, pressuring them to be "like us." We might well borrow from the wisdom of Goethe's mother. Early in life she decided to concentrate her interest on the good qualities of her friends and relatives, and skip over the qualities that distressed her.

"I always seek the good in people," she said, "and leave the bad to Him who made mankind and knows how to round off the corners." —The Little Gazette.

WASHINGTON — This week Congressman Bob Price voted with a narrow majority in the Committee on Agriculture to accept a favorable report on meat and poultry inspection.

"This law provides for an 80-20 cost sharing program, with the Federal Government assuming 80 per cent of the cost and the states, 20 per cent," Price said. "Without this financial support, many state programs will fold by the end of 1972."

"We cannot allow vital programs like this to fall by the wayside or allow improperly inspected meats to reach the marketplace."

Price charged, "Stronger opposition to the measure is coming from the Meat Cutter's Union lobby which is working to unionize small packing operations... a move which would virtually put the small operator out of business. The unions do not want strict Federal and State inspection of the product they are processing."

"The whole scheme of preventing the passage of this legislation is aimed at ultimately causing the failure of the small meat plants, the folding up of state inspection programs and the federalization of the entire program. This would make it possible for the Meat Cutter's Union to vastly increase its membership, to fatten its treasury with dues and to greatly enlarge its power," Price said.

During the past week, Price has also charged that the decision by the U. S. Department of Commerce to restrict the export of beef hides is "totally unjustified." "The cattleman has never been subsidized and he should not be penalized by the arbitrary actions of a bunch of government bureaucrats," Price said.

"This action by the Department of Commerce is a repeat performance of earlier moves to curtail high exports," he said. "The effect of this will force American beef producers to further subsidize the special interests of the shoe industry."

Price described the action on hide exports as being not only detrimental to the cattle industry, but that it would also have the further effect of worsening this nation's balance of payments deficit which is already a serious problem.

"All should recall a few short years ago when the same cries were heard from the shoe manufacturers, who threatened at that time to raise the price of shoes," Price said. "This embargo was granted and shoe prices went up just the same..."

Should Have Been a Powerful Lesson

"If the President's visit to China didn't accomplish anything else it should have been a powerful lesson to young and old alike of the extent of control of people in an undemocratic form of government. If any of those protesters who think things are so terrible in this country didn't thank the Lord that they live here instead of in China, there's something wrong with their thinking." —Lancaster, N. H., Coos County Democrat.

Two Golden Days

There are two days of the week upon which and about which I never worry. Two care-free days kept sacredly free from fear and apprehension. One of these days is yesterday; with all its pains and aches, all its faults and blunders, it has passed forever beyond the reach of my recall. Save for the beautiful memories, sweet and tender, that linger like the perfume of roses in the heart of the day that has gone, I have nothing to do with yesterday. It was mine; it is God's.

And the other day I do not worry about is tomorrow, with all its possibilities, adversities, its burdens, its perils, its large promise. Its sun will rise in rosetate splendor, or behind a mask of clouds. But it will rise. Tomorrow—it will be mine.

There is left for myself, then, but one day of the week—today. Any man can fight the battles of today. Any woman can carry the burdens of just one day.

Therefore, I think, and I do, and I journey for but one day at a time. And while faithfully and dutifully I run my course, and work my appointed task on this one day, God the Almighty takes care of yesterday and tomorrow. —Robert J. Burdette.

Are Not Free

"Remember that happy little song of some years back about the big things in life being free?" asks Francis X. Welch in "Public Utilities Fortnightly." "It went on to tell about the moon and the stars belonging to everyone, the birds and the bees and the flowers and trees, and so on. Well, it is not really so anymore, and probably never was, as the economist views cost allocation. We become increasingly aware, as we add up our tax and other bills, that space travel, pollution controls, and all the other environmental costs, each has a very expensive price tag which has to be paid somehow, in some form or another, by all of us, directly or indirectly."

Laid at Doorsteps of Labor Unions

"Our country's huge trade deficit of 1971 (the first since 1888) can be laid strictly at the doorsteps of American labor unions who for years have been demanding more and more of everything—except productivity. Our goods are now priced out of the world markets, and whether we like to admit it or not, other countries have just as much know-how as we have in producing products—and cheaper, too. Let's hope that sometime soon our Labor bosses will wake up and see what they're doing to America."—Pond Creek, Okla., Herald.

Highway Department Puts Out Slide Presentation on New Road Signs

AUSTIN—The new sign language on Texas streets and highways is the subject of a Texas Highway Department "course" in interpretation. Entitled "New Life Signs," the program is a 16-minute slide presentation designed for use by service organizations, schools and other groups. It interprets the new symbol signs going up along Texas highways. The presentation is available with audio tape of narration and music from any of the Highway Department's 25 district offices. These offices also will supply additional information that might be used for a special program on highway development.

Foard County is located in District 25 and the presentation is available from the Childress district office, Box 909, Childress, 79201, phone WE7-2571.

The Highway Department has initiated the new series of symbol signs to replace many of the present word message signs used on streets and highways throughout the state. In addition to providing uniform highway signing throughout the United States, the new signs also conform to those used in most other countries to simplify travel despite language

856 HOMES IN FOARD COUNTY HAVE TV, 1970 CENSUS SHOWS

The 1970 Census of Housing counted 1,075 housing units in Foard County, and 856 households had at least one television set (139 UHF-equipped), the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce, announced Monday. The figures are from the first report for Texas which presents detailed statistics on housing for each county.

The report shows that in the county: There were 595 housing units with air conditioning (523 with room units and 72 with a central system), 507 units with a clothes washing machine, 295 with a clothes dryer, and 108 with a dishwasher.

The 1970 population was 2,257, with an average of 2.6 persons per housing unit. A total of 864 housing units were built before 1949, 89 during the 1950's, 69 during 1960-64, and 40 within the five years preceding the April 1970 census.

Utility gas was used to cook the meals in 572 households, electricity in another 159, and bottled, tank, or LP gas in yet another 124.

There were 946 housing units with complete kitchen facilities and 879 with complete bathrooms, both for the exclusive use of the households. The number of bedrooms in all housing units ranged from none (in 17 units) and one (in 210 units) to four or more (in 60 units).

Owners occupied 675 units, renters 180 units, and a total of 207 units were vacant year round with 34 for sale and 34 for rent.

Copies of the report, Detailed Characteristics, 1970 Census of Housing, Texas HC(1)-B-45, are available for $5.25 each from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, or from U. S. Department of Commerce field offices located in major cities.

Nothing can work me damage, except myself. The harm that I sustain I carry about me, and never am a real sufferer but by my own fault.—St. Bernard.

COTTON CHARMER—Polka dots are played against flowers in this bare-shouldered dress with lace-trimmed stole. Green and white cotton chintz shapes the bodice and stole, while quilting adds dimension to the ankle-length skirt. Worn by Maid of Cotton Debbie Wright, it's an Eloise Curtis design for Happenstance.

When Do We Get Old?

Physiologists tell us that in all mammals, except man, the period of life is five times the period of growth. A dog gets its full growth in two years, and lives ten; a horse in five years, and lives twenty-five. On this basis a man should live from one hundred to one hundred and fifty years.

But William James, an eminent psychologist, said that most men are "old fogies" at twenty-five. It is true that most men at twenty-five are satisfied with their jobs. They have accumulated the little stock of prejudices that they call "principles" and close their mind to new ideas. They have ceased to grow.

When a man ceases to grow, no matter what the years, then and there he begins to be old. But the really great men never cease to grow. Bismark, who died at eighty-three, did his greatest work after he was seventy. Titian, the celebrated painter, lived to be ninety-nine, painting right up to the end. Goethe passed on at eighty-three and finished his "Faust" only a few years earlier. Gladstone took up a new language when he was seventy. Laplace, the astronomer, was still at work when death caught up with him at seventy-eight. He passed on crying, "What we know is nothing; what we do not know is immense."

These men, and thousands like them, died young. They were still unsatisfied, still growing.—Suggested by an editorial by Bruce Barton.

Nothing Stands Still
"The cry of the ultra liberal is: We must change to meet the changing needs of our people. The cry of the ultra conservative is: Is there nothing sacred, what is good enough for grandpa is good enough for me. Both are wrong. This country must progress, but progress cannot be made without a solid background, a keystone in law, tradition or past practice. Nothing stands still, but nothing successful progresses unless it has a solid foundation."—Springhill, La., Press & News Journal.

When are you going to start salting away some of your good intentions?

Everybody wants to save money. Unfortunately, most of us seem to have a rough time actually doing it. We start, then we stop. The money never piles up. The Payroll Savings Plan is the easy way to start saving; the painless way to keep saving. Your money gets a chance to pile up because the amount you specify is automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U. S. Savings Bonds. You actually salt away savings, paycheck after paycheck. And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year).

That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds. Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's a great way to make today's good intentions pay off tomorrow.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity
