Youth Center To Be Dedicated Tonight

The Shadow, the new youth center of Tahoka, will have its formal opening tonight, Thursday July 16, at 8 p.m. Everyone is invited to come and view our new project. The young people are selling tickets to an ice cream supper which will immediately follow the dedication ceremony and then it will be officially turned over to the new youth director: Rett Patterson and his wife, Gay, who will be supervising the center. We would like to urge everyone to come by and see what we are so proud of and so grateful for. If you have anything to donate or some books of stamps for us, please bring them to the youth center. We have had carpet donated, also we have some cards and a dart game. Our thanks to everyone for everything that has been done. See you Thursday night!

Grassland Will Get Historical Marker

Grassland, first permanent postoffice and first community on the Plains south of Lubbock, has been approved for a Texas Historical Marker by the Texas Historical Survey Committee, according to Frank Hill, chairman of the local marker committee. Date of installation and dedication will be announced later. The marker, similar to the Lynn County marker recently placed on the court house lawn in Tahoka, although a little smaller, will be placed at Central Church, the intersection of US Highway 380 and Farm Road 212. The marker will be 18 x 29 inches in size, and is being paid for by the State of Texas from a small balance left in the year's appropriation, and will be installed by the Texas Highway Department, according to Truett Latimer, executive director of Texas State Historical Survey Committee, Austin. Originally the community was known as Grasslands, but the "s" has been dropped in later years. Back in 1888, Enos L. Seeds, later a Philadelphia bridge building contractor, came to the Plains and settled on land patented by his father, T.M. Seeds Sr., in 1878, probably the first tract of land on the South Plains patented after the survey and a new law went into effect. Seeds built a fine frame house, drilled a water well, ran some cattle, and established the post office on January 12, 1889. This post office, although re-activated years later, Mr. Seeds ran until May 7, 1900, when he and his wife returned to Philadelphia. The Seeds place was on the trail from Colorado City to Lubbock and many ranches to the north. Following is the working which will appear on the marker as a result of research done by Hill on the early history of the community:

The suspect, Luther White, was picked up Saturday night in the vicinity of Guyman, Oklahoma and was brought back to Tahoka around mid-afternoon Tuesday by the local Sheriff's Department. The new 1970 Pontiac was reported to be a total loss as it was apparently set fire.

Lynn County Farm And Ranch Safety Week Proclaimed

County Judge V.F. Jones proclaimed July 19-25, 1970 as FARM AND-RANCH SAFETY WEEK in Lynn County, as the request of R.L. Dulin County Farm Bureau president. The local farm organization is coordinating activities within the county for the special farm safety campaign. The county farm leader said the accidental death rate for farm and ranch residents in Texas averaged over 250 per year during the decade of the sixties. "If this 'UNWELCOME HARVEST' is to be reversed and the needless suffering and losses substantially reduced, each of us must have a renewed effort," Dulin continued. He emphasized that farming remains one of the most hazardous occupations in this country today; but added, many of the present losses could be prevented with the use of safety "PROTECTION" tools such as seat belts, fire extinguishers, SMV emblems, and tractor roll guards and crush resistant cabs. In his proclamation, Judge Jones said "the citizens of Lynn County are proud of our farm families from whom comes our abundance of food and fiber; therefore, our citizens are deeply concerned about the safety and well-being of this segment of our population as they go about the sometimes hazardous task of producing the commodities needed by the entire population." The proclamation said the week-long special Farm and Ranch safety campaign is a coordinated effort by Farm Bureau and various local and state agricultural and safety groups. The Judge urged farm families "to become more safety conscious, not only during FARM SAFETY WEEK, but every day of the year." President Nixon and Governor Smith have previously designated the same period as FARM AND RANCH SAFETY WEEK nationally and in Texas.

TBW The Texas Industrial Commission has released some interesting statistics which show that the vital industry is to a large extent, manufacturing. A manufacturing facility employs 100 new employees into the state. Data compiled by the U.S. Department of Commerce shows that the addition of 100 more people to the state's population will result in an increase in personal income of $100,000,000 more in bank deposits, $100,000,000 more in retail sales, and a pretty impressive evaluation about how important an industry is to the growth of a community.

Highlights AND Sidelights
by Vern Sanford
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Cold figures submitted in major agency budget proposals left top state officials and legislators little room for optimism about the amount of next year's tax bill.

Texas Education Agency calculated public school operations during the next biennium will cost about $2.3 billion -- $2 billion in state money alone. This is an increase of about $377.1 million over the present level.

Nobody was too surprised about that, but the Texas Public Welfare Department came up with a shocker.

Welfare staffers figure that the rising assistance rolls will require a budget of nearly $2 billion overall for the 1972-73 fiscal period. That represents an increase in state welfare funds of $300.4 million over the current biennium.

So, two vital functions of state government alone--public education and welfare--are seeking some $977.5 million in additional revenues. It is expected that most of the other agencies will request more than their present appropriations instead of less.

Welfare requests, as large as they are, do not take into consideration larger grants for the needy and ill.

However, a Senate committee has recommended the $80 million a year ceiling for state spending on categorical assistance be abolished and aid payments be matched to actual need. If enacted by the Legislature, this would mean millions more in welfare spending.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes expressed grave doubts that legislators would accept tremendous increases in welfare spending without "substantial reform" of the entire welfare system.

Welfare officials note that assistance rolls continue to expand uncontrollably (due largely to federal court rulings and rising population).

COURTS SPEAK -- Supreme Court upheld tough rules defining guests and required food service at private drinking clubs. In another decision involving the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, the Court refused to outlaw the purchase of liquor by "Agents" for the private lockers of member of dry area clubs.

In a Texarkana-area case, the Court held that victims of uninsured drivers must prove there was no insurance coverage on the other motorist before he can collect on his own uninsured motorist policy.

A Houston nurse, who claimed purchases were charged against her on a bogus credit card, lost her appeal to the top court in her effort to collect damages from a discount house and bill collection service which persistently tried to make her pay. EAGLE RULING NEAR--Railroad Commission soon will rule as to whether the famed Texas Eagle passenger train can be discontinued by the Missouri-Pacific Railroad.

Eagle is one of three passenger haulers now operating across the state.

M-P claims that the train is losing money and wants to cut it off. Railroad attorneys argued that the Commission has no right to force it to continue to lose money.

Contending that the train should be kept in service, the National Association of Railroad Passengers said if M-P tried harder it could sell more passenger service and make a profit.

Train runs from St. Louis to Laredo, through Texarkana, Palestine, Austin and San Antonio.

DRIVING SCHOOL--Drivers who collect too many moving traffic violations may be going to night school to learn better behavior.

Thirty new sets of driver-training equipment will be provided to 20 regional education service centers over the state to teach students by day and adult traffic violators by night. This is in line with a new plan approved by the State Board of Education. National Highway Safety Bureau will pay $998,100 for simulator equipment and supplementary educational programs.

APPOINTMENTS -- Gov. Preston Smith has reappointed Francis A. Flynn of Austin to the Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators and named Edward G. Kisch of Austin to the Texas State Board of Podiatry Examiners.

Manuel DeBusk of Dallas, Tom Sealy of Midland, Hunter McLean of Fort Worth and Harry Provence of Waco are members of a sub-committee to study problems of private colleges and universities.

Dr. Charles M. LeMaistre was designated as new chancellor of the University of Texas system.

Santos L. Garza, native of Mission and now of Austin, will be public health advisor at the regional Office of the Economic Opportunity headquarters here.

Mike V. Arredondo of Bryan will be youth manpower specialist in the Youth Opportunity Development Program.

State Rep. John E. (Ned) Blaine of El Paso will become an assistant to House Speaker Gus Mutscher when he retires from the Legislature next January at 82.

Speaker Mutscher is naming a 100-member committee to evaluate jobs of lawmakers.

Past Days In Lynn County

Copied from July 15, 1935
(By Ben Moore Jr.)
Author of "Buttafield - 7 years with the Wild Indians"

Ben Walters told me this: First I will say that mistakes are likely to crop out concerning exact dates on which certain facts may be mentioned. If you ever reach the age of 95, you may be able to understand what I mean.

Born in Alabama, in 1860, of course I do have a slight recollection of Civil War days. Having passed through the rough and tumble period following the war, how am I to say whether those days added to or took from my years? After so many years spent in the saddle, naturally I like to talk of cattle. During the past few years I have been situated where I might well hear the lowing of cattle throughout every day and night—very near to the great cattle pens, of Lubbock.

There can be repetition of the riproaring times through which we passed in the Oklahoma country, especially during the early Nineties. I had gone into it, leaving the Denison, Texas, home - back where Sam Bass is even yet so much mentioned. I once owned a race mare, trained by the desperado, but at the time I hardly thought of his fame reaching over such a long period of time.

During the exciting days, a new town was born about twenty miles north of Red River, due north of the little Texas town of Wichita Falls. The town, Walters, was named for myself. I shall not again see it except, perhaps, in my infrequent dreams of those old days when the Redmen were just beginning to try to follow the White man's road.

The only hotel in Anadarko was owned by the U.S. Government, rather, the building. I took charge of the hotel with the stipulation that should enter a contract with the Government, in which I was to buy cattle for feeding the Indians then located at the Post. In the large dining room were three tables, each thirty feet in length. One was for serving whites, one for Indians, and another for Mexicans. Several waiters were employed.

I believe that it was the year 1893 when the Geronimo band of Apache prisoners were brought up from Alabama, en route to their final location, at Ft. Sill. My recollection is that the main band reached Ft. Sill sometime before Geronimo was brought through Anadarko.

One day, in great excitement, I was called by my waiters, who were really almost scared to death. They learned that the big Indian, with eyes set far apart, head low, almost between his shoulders was none other than the famed Chief Geronimo, who for some reason had gotten out of sight of guards. The grotesque Indian had seated himself at the White man's table and actually had one foot up on it.

The great Comanche Chief, Quannah Parker, was by this time quite friendly with white men and as it so happened was standing across the street. I beckoned to him, and he came over. I am not positive that the latter had ever seen Geronimo, since he in early life had absconded with an Apache girl, and had spent quite a while down in Mexico, before becoming a noted Chief of his own tribe.

Anyway, he stepped gingerly up to the Chief of the Apaches, who was so much in the limelight, then and is to this good day. Placing a hand upon Geronimo's shoulder, he said, "This White man's table." Geronimo, able to speak English slightly, expalined that he had eaten at White man's table before coming to Oklahoma—which may, or may not have been true. Quannah glared in such a way that I suppose he must have convinced Geronimo that he should move over to the Indian table. You may well imagine that this drama has passed through my mind a thousand times.

Odd, indeed, it is that the last Chief of the Comanches and the last of the Apache Ghiefs should have happened to meet at my Hotel, and so unexpectedly.

The main band of Apache prisoners were brought by rail to what was known as Siding No. 2 near Anadarko, before Marching to Ft. Sill. After unloading there the band had gone but a short distance when one of the women walked away from the others, lay down and gave birth to a baby. Some were making the journey in carts, some on foot. Several assisted the new mother in getting into a cart with the new born babe. That baby could well be alive this day, but I dare say no white person is likely to ever be told of its identity, considering it to be none of their business.

The first night after their reaching Anadarko, birth was given to twin babies— which was just to bad for the babies. Indians, I suppose, universally feared having twin babies, believing that they might bring great trouble to the tribe, should they be allowed to live. Those little twins were found next morning with feet tied together and across the limb of a tree. Their father, a minor chief, was supposed to have bludgeoned them to death. Very few sets of twins were born to Indians. Although their religion may have required the killing, it is not likely that the job was enjoyed.

I only saw a very few wild buffalo, after going into the West, so had no opportunity to see Indians engaged in slaughtering them. But I do have good reason to believe that they were not methodical as were White men in carrying out the exciting sport, or business.

In feeding the Indians beef on the hoof, we simply turned loose, out on a large flat from 150 to as many as 500 head of cattle, as occasion required. Many were former Buffalo hunters, now furnished with Winchester and ammunition. Those who never witnessed such can hardly imagine such pandemonium as suddenly broke loose. The Indians were usually quite hungry, and each shooter was anxious to get his beef.

Those running, milling animals were soon shot to pieces, without the slightest judgment as to where they should be struck. I actually saw many which were shot just beneath their tail, as well as elsewhere about the body.

I had no Indians fatally shot, but spent some time in keeping behind trees or rocks.

I was in charge of buying all hides, most of which were badly riddled by bullets. The women fell upon the fallen cattle with butcherknives. A great gash was first cut across the flank, the entrails jerked out and eaten ravenously by men, women and children. No salt was used by Indians, originally. Since some animals were larger than others, we soon began allotting beef by weight to the poor Indians. My sympathy for them has grown through the years.

SEVEN GOOD REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD TAKE A VACATION

1. To live longer: and in better health. "He was working too hard" becomes the final tribute to many a man cutoff before his time. How much better the man who "Knows how to pace himself," who knows when to retreat from work and give tense muscles and irritated nerves a chance to settle down.
2. To take time to enjoy. The smell of pine and cedar, the beauty of a sunset, the feel of sand on the beach, the pleasure of a leisurely chat with friends and no pressure to be clever, some time for contemplation and spiritual renewal. These are the good years, not next year when the house if paid for, or later, when the kids are through college. The tragedy is that some people reach the end of life never having lived at all.
3. To provide a change of pace.

For the person whose job requires mental activity, perhaps something physical; if he ordinarily works with people, some solitude is called for; if he works usually in isolation, the stimulation of other people. For the country dweller, some big city living; for the city dweller, the delights of the country or the mountains. Those who usually live by the clock and calendar, live without them for a while.

Plan rest, of course, but plan some activity, too.

4. To do a better job upon return. The vacation-skinner is more likely to make errors, to feel put on, and self-righteous. He may become irritable with co-workers and resentful of those who do take a vacation. He isn't likely to let other forget that while they were off enjoying themselves, he was hard at work. Sometimes he forgets that productivity isn't measured by hours on the job.
5. To give other a chance. The good organizer gives priority to vacation plans, then enlists others to help carry them out.

6. To maintain closeness among family members, particularly husband and wife. Some vacation time with the whole family strengthens family unity, but equally important is the opportunity for husband and wife to have some time alone together. The typical husband and wife can expect to spend 20 years together after the last child leaves home. A "just the two of us" vacation is an ideal time for them to get to know each other again as individuals in anticipation of that 20-year-long "second honeymoon."

7. To prepare for leisure time to come. Nowadays a man who reaches 65 can expect to live an additional 13 years, his wife even longer. For the "work addict," the idea of retirement brings panic and the question, "What will I do with my time?" Yet, for those whose vacations have been rich in experiences, who know how to live a full life outside the world of work, these will be good years, perhaps the best.

NEW HOME NEWS

BY MRS. W.W. DAVIES

A large crowd of the New Home ball team boys with their friends and parents, celebrated the end of the season with a picnic and swimming party at the Brownfield Park Saturday night. Several of the children became ill from chlorine gas while in the pool. Camille Rice was kept overnight in the Brownfield Hospital. Brad Smith was treated and released and Jamie Sharp and some others were slightly affected.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Followell and family were in Borger last week for the funeral of his brother, Belver Followell, age 57. Mr. Followell died July 3rd, after suffering a heart attack. Funeral services were held July 7th at 2:30 p.m. in the Brown's Chapel of the Fountains with burial in the Borger cemetery.

Mrs. Billy Hancock returned to her home last week after about two weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Lila Dickerson at Wolf-orth, where she was recuperating from surgery performed in Methodist Hospital

Cecil Lanning.
 Miss Susan Hancock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N.B. Hancock received her wings and Diploma from the TWA Hostess School in Kansas City the first of July after 6 weeks training. There were 19 girls in the graduating class from all over the United States. Susan's first assignment was with TWA at John F. Kennedy airport in New York. She lives in Kew Gardens. Since beginning air hostess duties she has been to Madrid, Spain and this week was stationed at Shannon Air Port in Ireland.

Susan graduated from New Home High School in 1967, and from Texas Tech in May 1970, with a major in Spanish, minor in English. She was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society which consists of students with grade point 3.5 or better.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Chism moved this week to Rt. 1, Ackery, Tex. where he will be vocational agriculture teacher in the Flower Grove School. Melvin has been with the New Home School 2 years where he taught history and was asst. coach. Mrs. Chism taught 2nd grade.

Mrs. Elton Haward of Lubbock visited with us here last Tuesday. She is vice chairman of the Lubbock County Historical Survey Committee and in browsing through our collection of old history books found one that was of great interest to her, "The Texas Methodist Centennial Yearbook." The book contains pictures of several of her fore fathers, all pioneer Methodist ministers. Incidentally the Howard family ranches and farms in the Childress and Hardeman Counties planted the first cotton in Childress county.

Farm Bureau To Evaluate Programs

Lynn County Farm Bureau is currently involved in a state wide effort to evaluate current or organization programs on the state and county level and establish goals and priorities, according to R.L. Dulin of New Home, president.

In a special board meeting held July 9th, the local Farm Bureau directors adopted a resolution committing themselves to the leadership of other county Farm Bureaus in a joint effort to upgrade and strengthen the organization's program to better serve the needs of farm and ranch families.

The board also voted to send President Dulin as a representative to a special statewide meeting of county presidents August 27-28 in Brownwood. The purpose of this conference is to chart a recommended course of action for the Farm Bureau.

All of the 203 organized county Farm Bureaus in Texas are holding special board meetings this summer to evaluate current programs and set goals, President Dulin said. A summary report of these meetings will be presented to all of the county presidents at Brownwood. In addition, they will consider a special report that is to be prepared by agricultural specialists in the land grant system on trends in farm production, marketing, etc.

Recommendations on what the Farm Bureau organization should do on both state and county levels are expected to come from the Brownwood meeting.

According to a procedural plan adopted by the FFB board of directors in June, a statewide committee will be appointed and charged with the responsibility of implementing the state-level recommendations. County Farm Bureaus will be urged to appoint similar county committees to carry out local programs and activities.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

By Richard L. Christie

What would happen to your business if your crop or source of income was destroyed for the next 3 years? For example, if for the next 3 years farmers in Lynn County paid the expenses of making a crop and just prior to harvest some disaster prevented the harvest and therefore, no income came in as a result. Well if that happened there would not be much left of these fine towns, good people, or anything else here.

By now you are saying "What in the world is he talking about?" Grass is the only crop that a rancher has. If someone by accident throws a lit cigarette out the window of a car or pick-up going down the road that is the situation the rancher finds himself in. I feel sure that Cass Edwards or George Claude Wells of the T-Bar or Mel Leslie would tell you that this time of the year grass fires are the most dreaded thing they have to protect against.

It takes several years for a ranch to recover from a grass fire. There is little or no grazing done on many ranches for 3 or 4 years following a grass fire. It then is not as good as it was prior to the fire unless the ranches can afford to spend a great deal of money to help the land in its revegetation. When one realizes the great financial loss and trouble of a grass fire it is then easy to see why a burned out rancher would say, "I almost hate people!"

Many ranchers will fight hard to keep people, roads, highways and railroads off their land for this very reason. All grass fires can be traced back to people. Generally, they are thoughtless and careless people.
