Plains Cotton Harvest Nears Completion

The South Plains cotton harvest is nearing completion as farmers have over 95 per cent of the crop out of the fields, according to W.K. Palmer, in charge of the Lubbock Cotton Classing Office of the U.S.D.A.

Cotton sample receipts began a gradual decline as the harvest neared completion. Because of this decline the seasonal office at Brownfield closed on Friday, January 28th. The remaining cotton from the Brownfield area will be classed in Lubbock.

Samples from 72,000 bales were classed at the U.S.D.A. classing offices at Lubbock, Brownfield and Lamesa during the week ending Friday, January 28th. This brought the total classed this season to 1,060,000, compared to 1,620,000 at this time last year. Quality of the cotton was lower as the harvest neared completion.

Low Middling Light Spotted was the predominant grade at Lubbock last week with 31 per cent of all cotton classed. Strict Low Middling Light Spotted made up 12 per cent, Strict Low Middling Spotted 10 per cent and Low Middling Spotted 24 per cent. Seventy-nine per cent of the samples was reduced in grade because of bark.

Staples were predominantly 28 to 30. Ten per cent had a staple length of 28, 32 per cent stapled 29 and 45 per cent was 30.

Only three per cent of the cotton "miked" in the Lubbock office was in the premium range of 3.5 to 4.9, 4 per cent "miked" 3.3 and 3.4, 21 per cent 3.0 through 3.2, 39 per cent was 2.7 through 2.9 and 33 per cent was 2.6 and below.

The Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S.D.A. reported a decline in trading on the Lubbock market as the harvest neared completion. Cotton prices were steady. Prices ranged from 28 to 32 cents with most cotton selling between 29 and 31 cents.

Mahon Ask For Re-Election

George Mahon called the News Office, Wednesday, from Washington, to announce his candidacy for re-election for Congressman of the 19th District which includes 17 counties.

Congressman Mahon has represented this district since 1935. He said he would like to continue to serve the people.

Average prices for the most predominant qualities in the 3.0 to 3.2 micronaire range were: Strict Low Middling Light Spotted, Staple 29 - 30.25, Strict Low Middling Light Spotted, Staple 30 - 30.55, Low Middling Light Spotted, Staple 29 - 29.80, Low Middling Light Spotted, Staple 30 - 30.15, Low Middling Spotted, Staple 29 - 29.50 and Low Middling Spotted, Staple 30 - 29.85.

Prices paid farmers for cottonseed ranged from $40 to $70 per ton with most prices in the $48 to $54 range.

Girls Present Rotary Program

A trio from Girls Town, near Whiteface, presented a musical program at Rotary last Thursday. Songs included a wide range from modern popular to "How Great Thou Art."

The three teen-age girls were Sunday Ford from Beaumont, Norma Josey from San Antonio, and Debbie Stone from Austin. They were accompanied by Marshall Cooper, one of the youth workers from Girls Town.

Following the program, Rotarians contributed a voluntary cash fund to the group.

Dr. David Midkiff arranged the program.

Dwain Lusk, club president, exhibited a miniature replica of the two huge road signs soon to be erected on U. S. Highway 87 north and south of town informing travelers, Tahoka is the home of Debbie Wright, National Maid of Cotton. The roadside signs will bear a huge painting of Debbie.

Tahoka Schools Hit By Flu

Student absences are up sharply this week in Tahoka Schools. As of Monday, January 31st, Junior High School had 15.7 per cent absent, High School had 16 per cent absent, South Elementary had 16.7 per cent absent, and North Elementary had 17 per cent absent with a total of 189 students absent in all Tahoka Schools.

On Tuesday morning, February 1st, absence was even higher, North Elementary had 26.7 per cent absent and South Elementary had 27.5 per cent absent with 267 students absent in all grades.

The above figures compare with a system wide total of from 30 to 40 students absent on an average day with an absence percentage of about 3.5 per cent.

In addition to student absences there have been as many as six teachers out at one time.

Though the absence rates are high, there are no plans to dismiss school at this time. When an epidemic such as this occurs there is a provision provided by the Texas Education Agency Epidemic Formula to persevere average daily attendance, therefore, it seems in the best interest of all concerned to follow the school calendar at present.

"I have become increasingly concerned with the worsening drug problem in our district and I believe that it is something that must be of concern to all our citizens. I believe that the office of the District Attorney must take a more active role in the fight against the drug problem, stressing preventative measures as well as punitive ones. Our young people are our most important natural resource, and we must devote more attention to working with them toward understanding and combating the effects of this problem. Our District Attorney's office must be not only a source of vigorous prosecution but the base of a dedicated effort aimed at crime prevention as well.

"I have been greatly encouraged by wide support from throughout the District, and I plan to reach into the far cor-

The New America ---

Time and events have shaped a new America. The economic system, the structure of government, the technology of living, the temperament of the people and even religious and moral precepts bear little resemblance to those prevailing in the America of yesterday. If an epitaph is needed for yesterday's America, it can be found in a column by Leonard Wiener of the Chicago Daily News Service sporting the virtual demise of the telegram as a means of communication.

The America of Samuel F. B. Morse, the telegraph key and the eastern Union boy on a bicycle no longer exists. The new America -- the America of moon flights, computerization, automation, satellites, the disappearing workweek, soaring public debt and a quasi-socialist state -- is still hazy in its newness. Even the experts who have presided over the birth of the new baby are not certain that they have wrought.

As the nation moves through the uncharted phases of wage-price and other economic controls, forecasting the future is a chancy undertaking at best. Business cycles reflecting the waxing and waning of supply and demand in a free market, for the moment at least, have gone the way of the telegram. Hopefully, the outline of our new America will become clearer in 1972 as the travail of Vietnam recedes and environmentalism assumes less hysteric proportions.

The biggest problem could turn out to be how to preserve a semblance of individual freedom in the U. S. in the 1970's.

More and more, preservation of freedom will come down to understanding the essential role of the private enterprise business organization as a producer, job provider and taxpayer. The new America has seen an unprecedented wave of attack on the business system -- a system that has given more people more of the good things of life than any other system in the history of mankind. If this system is to survive in the new America, people must recognize its virtues as well as its faults. They must recognize that big business is as essential as little business. As Time magazine has commented, "Size can bring social benefits, too -- and smallness is no guarantee of either efficiency or virtue." Those who would like to turn age and price controls, for example, into weapons against big business might note the words of the arch-critic of big business, John Kenneth Galbraith, who has observed that, "The notion that you can get along without modern organization is strictly romantic. If you think otherwise, try taking a trip to the moon."

As has been said before, there is no way to feed, clothe and otherwise provide for a nation of over 200 million people except through the marshalling of resources and technology on a vast scale -- meaning big business whether it be government or investor-owned. The only difference is that government marshalling of the resources and technology of the nation would mean an end to the private business system -- a system deeply rooted in the principle that economic and political liberty are inseparable.

It is entirely likely, as an executive of one of the country's largest public relations firms has pointed out, that a fault of business has been its failure to show how antibusiness policies and measures are, in reality, frequently adverse to the public interest.

If businessmen are to help shape the future of the new America, they must strive to remedy a tendency, as the public relations executive puts it, to "... regularly come before government bodies and talk only about what particular issues mean to their firm, their industry or the private enterprise system."

They seldom go the obvious next step of citing what these key issues mean to either the general public or to the specific publics the business represents and serves -- including employees, stockholders, suppliers, customers of all sorts.

Millions of people are confused by the image they see of the new America. The experts complain of lack of consumer confidence -- a general hesitancy to move ahead. This lack of confidence -- this hesitancy -- can only be removed as people are reassured that the future still holds promise and opportunity for the individual under a system that guarantees by law the right to profit from one's own endeavors.

It is up to business, as well as governmental leaders, to instill this confidence and to remove the uncertainty in many minds about the shape of the America of the future. Nothing could remove that uncertainty more quickly than a return to the "first principles" that will govern the lives of everyone in the new America just as they did in the old.

An Imaginary Interview

Mr. Gerry Pratt, a West Coast newspaper columnist, reports an imaginary interview with an imaginary old man of the kind who ran businesses in the days when there was far less government interference with the individual and far more respect for government leaders. The old man reminded columnist Gerry Pratt that, "There was time before you were old enough to lick a stamp when you could mail a letter to New York for cents and it cost me $10 to telephone here. Today, he says, the postage is eight cents and the telephone call is down to $1 after six p.m. They are both utilities, the post office and the telephone company. One is run by the government and the rate has gone up 400 per cent. The other is private and the cost has gone down about 900 per cent."

inflationary cost in this country today is the cost of government."

Mr. Pratt's mythical old man also held strong views on the inconsistency of government: "... government sells the oil industry a billion dollars worth of oil leases in Alaska... then comes along and stalls for two years before it decides you can build a pipeline to get out the oil they sold you. They put $800 million into an SST then because it was going to make as much noise as a 747 they paid another $300 million not to finish the job." There is no end to examples such as these, and Mr. Pratt touches on only a few. But they explain why respect for government and confidence in government is disappearing as rapidly as the gold at Fort Knox.

Cotton Root Rot Can Be Controlled

Cotton farmers throughout much of the state must contend with cotton root rot each year. But through certain management practices, the disease can be controlled or at least reduced.

Deep plowing, early planting and crop rotation all help reduce cotton root rot," says Dr. Walter Walla, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Deep plowing is one of the oldest practices for reducing the disease and is most effective following harvest. Using a mold board plow at a rapid pace will invert the plow layer and expose the disease-causing fungus to the air.

Early planting is especially effective in certain areas of the state, points out Walla. If a crop can be matured in the Blacklands by the middle of July, it will escape most of the damage from cotton root rot.

Rotating cotton with grain sorghum and oats will also help reduce the disease, adds the plant pathologist. Crop rotation is especially effective when combined with deep plowing of crop residues.

The culprit causing the cotton disease is a fungus that lives in the soil. It can survive for long periods and grows on cotton or other susceptible crops when they are planted in an infested area. According to Walla, once the fungus begins to grow, it sends strands toward the soil surface which attack plants at the ground line. The plants are girdled and die rapidly.

Proper management practices will help fight cotton root rot so that the crop can be economically grown," stressed Walla.

Small Grains Being Tested

Expanding cattle feeding operations on the High Plains has renewed interest in production of small grains in this area and has led to expansion of small grain variety tests at the High Plains Research Foundation.

Fifteen wheat varieties, including standard types, experimental selections, and hybrids, were planted November 3 on the Foundation Farm at Halfway.

Winter and spring types of triticale will be tested in small grains production this year. Two winter types were planted October 10 and at least 10 winter and spring varieties will be planted later this season to provide data on planting dates.

In order to observe small grains on larger acreage, eight types, including two varieties of wheat, two of rye, two triticale varieties, one barley, and one winter-grazer, were planted at the Foundation Steinle Research and Demonstration Farm east of Plainview in five-acre blocks.

Joe Wright, Foundation agronomist in charge of small grain studies, indicated that future plans at the Foundation called for additional expansion of these variety tests and possible cultural studies with triticale.

Diethylstilbestol Use Curtailed By USDA

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has placed additional restrictions on the use of diethylstilbestol (DES), a synthetic growth promoting hormone used in livestock feed.

The new ruling became mandatory January 8, according to Dr. Frank Orts, meat specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Under the new program, federal meat inspectors will hold all cattle and sheep from slaughter at least seven days unless the animals are certified as not having been fed DES or as having been withdrawn from at least seven days before slaughter.

According to Orts, there are three alternatives for handling cattle and sheep at slaughter:

1. The animals may be slaughtered if certification requirements have been met.
2. The animals will be held alive for the required seven days.
3. The animals could be slaughtered, with samples sent to a U. S. Dept. of Agriculture-approved laboratory for testing. Meat from the animals could not be marketed until tests prove they are free from DES residues.

The new program will help provide further assurance that DES residues will not be found in the nation's meat supply, says Orts. Violators will be subject to criminal prosecution by the Food and Drug Administration.

STATE Capital NEWS

By BILL BOYKIN

One adverse federal court decision after another fuels the feud between Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

Smith was quick to blame on Barnes the failure of a 1971 filing fee statute which threatened to force a special legislative session.

While that issue was still raging another Dallas three-judge court struck down the legislature's congressional redistricting plan. Once more, Smith accused the lieutenant governor of "reluctance" and "inaction" on redistricting.

When a third court frowned on House of Representatives redistricting in major counties as done by a board Barnes served on, Smith once more leveled at the lieutenant governor charges of "immature action" and lack of leadership. Single districts were ordered for Bexar and Dallas counties.

Sen. J. P. Word of Meridian, speaking in Barnes' defense, said Smith offered the legislature no leadership himself and reminded that the governor could have vetoed the congressional redistricting measure if he didn't like it. Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin succeeded in getting a temporary postponement of the congressional redistricting order. The U. S. Supreme Court agreed to delay the new plan pending appeal.

U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who intervened as a friend of the court in support of the stay, said congressional candidates for this year, at least can run in the districts given them by the legislature.

That would be a relief for Congressmen Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls and Omar Burleson of Anson; Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Ray Roberts of McKinney and O. C. Fisher of San Angelo and Abraham Kazen of Laredo who had been pitted against each other in the federal district court plan.

If he has to call a special session of primary election financing, said Smith, he will expect "those responsible" to come up with "workable alternatives."

GOVERNOR'S POLL TAKEN
Dolph Briscoe won another editor's poll last week at the Mid-winter meeting of the Texas Press Association. Editors were asked first who they thought would carry their county -- if the vote were taken on that date (January 24). Forty-eight editors responded to the poll with this vote: Briscoe, 18; Preston Smith, 13; Ben Barnes, 12; Barnes-Briscoe tie, 2 and three undecided.

They were asked: "How will you vote in the 1972 Governor's race?" This was the result: Briscoe, 28; Smith 6; Barnes, 5; Grover, 1 and undecided, 8.

CRIME FIGHT PROPOSED
The governor's Criminal Justice Council promises a legislative drive for laws to help stamp out organized crime in the state.

Mafia-type operations have been noted in Texas by the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice and other investigators, the Council's new 1972 plan points out.

Further states the council, many bets on sports events are being taken by bookie shops with national "confederation" affiliation.

This legislation was recommended:

+ Power for the attorney general to bring suit in criminal cases.

+ Subpoena power in a state wide grand jury or crime prevention council.

+ Permission for electronic surveillance (including wire tapping).

The Council proposes to spend about $1 million of its projected $25 million 1972 allocations for action against organized crime.

INSURANCE HEARING SET
The State Board of Insurance set a February 15 hearing on insurance premium rates, broader damage coverage, and higher liability limits for coastal and beach areas, under the new Catastrophe Pool Act.

Due for consideration is a deductible on beach dwellings of two per cent of the amount insured, with a minimum deductible of $250 and elimination of percentage deductible on beach commercial risks substituting a $500 flat figure. The Board also proposes to consider adoption of building specifications for high risk coastal areas.

The Board will also consider hiking coverage limits to $1 million on beach dwellings and $5 million on commercial risks. Under the present pool, windstorm damage is limited to $100,000 on a beach home and $500,000 on a commercial venture such as a marina or hotel.

AG OPINIONS—A county has authority to construct and operate an area or regional waste water collection and treatment system and perform water quality management functions, Attorney General Martin held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded:

+ A 25-year mineral lease had been duly extended and was in good standing last October 4 when an application for renewal was made to the School Land Board.

+ An independent school district lacks authority to give an outright 20-year lease of property to a neighborhood center.

+ Fees paid erroneously to the Industrial Accident Board and placed in the state treasury may not be refunded in absence of a legislative appropriation.

+ The State Building Commission has authority to contract with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for construction of state park projects and may contract with the State Highway Department for roads, trailer loops and parking areas with Board of Control approval.

+ Parks and Wildlife Commission has authority to control taking of fish from public waters, but it's doubtful any rule imposing restrictions on bass tournament participants that would not apply to other fishermen would be valid.

+ An applicant for certification as a psychologist must have received the doctoral degree.

+ Texas Education Agency cannot participate separately in payment of premiums of insurance for its retired employees.

+ The 1971 rules adopted by the Texas State Board of Dental Examiners are valid.

+ Dallas Independent School District trustees cannot alter the method of electing members to provide that six be elected by votes of their single district.

+ Good Neighbor Commission members are not authorized reimbursement for use of private airplanes on official business out of state.

+ The Industrial Accident Board has jurisdiction over industrial injuries to employees of the City of Bryan.

+ A $5,000 legislative appropriation to Elm Creek Water Control District is valid, and the governor has no authority to veto a portion of an appropriation.

COURTS SPEAK—A candidate for state senator must live in his district only one year before the date of the general election, the State Supreme Court held.

Overruling the Austin Court of Civil Appeals, the High Court found legal the University of Texas' acquiring 280 acres of its UT-Permian Basin campus site at Odessa through donation of park land acquired with county bond funds.

The Court of Criminal Appeals relaxed rules on admissibility of gory pictures in murder trials, holding, in effect, that use of the photographs is largely up to the trial judge's discretion where it is "competent, material and relevant to the issue on trial."

APPOINTMENTS—James F. Ray of Arlington was selected executive director of the Commission of Intergovernmental Relations.

Governor Smith named 10 more members of the Texas Criminal Justice Council. They are Mrs. Gladys

M. Mangum of Clyde, Sidney L. Sadler of Pecos, D. V. Flores of Houston, Jim Lindsey of Del Rio, M. M. Vicars of Brownsville, Joe T. Morrow of Honey Grove, Vernon D. Rucker of Killeen, George M. Newman of Waco, Dr. John T. Holbrook of Bryan and Michael G. Reilly of Corrigan. Dr. Wallace Larson of San Antonio is the new president of Texas Veterinary Medical Association.

Ralph Yarborough designated Clifton L. Holmes of Kilgore as his assistant statewide campaign manager and director of organization.

POLLUTION HEARINGS SET
Texas Water Quality Board will hold hearings February 7-11 in Baytown on reduction of municipal and industrial wastes into Houston Ship Channel.

Discharges must be reduced to the level permitted by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency following a Galveston Bay shellfish conference. The federal rule requires reduction of oxygen-depleting substances dumped into the channel to 35,000 pounds a day by 1975. About 100,000 pounds daily is the present level.

SHORT SHORTS
Texas building—24 per cent over 1970 -- set an all-time record last year.

The Moody Foundation of Galveston approved grants totalling more than $5 million to 120 programs and projects in 1971.

Governor Smith told the Senate finance committee the federal government must assume 100 per cent of welfare and medical aid costs.

Nolan Robnett of Austin Democratic candidate state treasurer.

Tom McElroy of Dallas, defeated the Republican governor's primary. GOP leaders say they want a wide open gubernatorial race.

Texas Industrial Commission plans foreign trade missions to Bucharest and Moscow.

Federal disaster aid approved for flood damage in Bowie, Delta, Fannin, Lamar and Red River counties.

Planning offices for the national governors' conference in Houston opened headquarters at Shamrock Hotel in Houston last week.

Range Condition

Texas range and stock conditions decreased slightly during December. RANGE condition, as of January 1, at 83 percent decreased 2 points during December. However, it is still 13 points above year ago, 8 points above the 10-year average, and the highest January 1 condition since 1950.

Small grain pastures are furnishing excellent grazing in the Panhandle South Plains area, which is seasonably warm with adequate supplies of moisture has helped wheat and oat crops maintain an excellent growth rate and hold up well under heavy stocking.

Stock water overstate is reported as adequate.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

BY A. V. SHEPPARD

... Sheppard; Tordon 225, a herbicide for brush control, has been approved and registered for use on a non-experimental basis by the Environmental Protection Agency, A. V. Sheppard, local conservationist, announced.

This is a major breakthrough at an infested rangeland, weaver, Sheppard stated. Tordon 225 has been widely tested in Texas since 1963. The test were carried out by the Texas Experiment Stations working with the Soil Conservation Service, local ranchers and the chemical companies. The Experiment Stations supervised application of herbicide on brush infested rangeland. The other agreed to and treated the pasture for at least two years. Effective control of mesquite, all and other undesirable brush was evaluated.

We are especially pleased to see this product registered this time of the year we can incorporate it into our 1972 spring spray program," said John A. Matthews, Abilene, Chairman of Texas Brush Control and Range Improvement Association.

The association is a rancher organization that has funded certain research projects to test Tordon 225 and has actively supported the effort to have the material registered for use.

Recommendations specify use of one quart of Tordon 225 per acre in West Texas. Cost is expected to range from $5 to $10 per acre. Only bonded applicators who have attended special schools will be authorized to apply the chemical, officials said.

In West Texas, figures from the work show that Tordon 225 at the rate of one quart per acre killed 42 per cent of the mesquite compared to a 22 per cent kill with 2,4,5,T. Tordon 225 also materially increased the percentage kill of lotebush, prickly pear and other forms of cacti.

press many good wishes to both host and hostess. Little Miss Virginia Ray Jones was celebrating her sixth birthday on Sunday. "But I am having my birthday on Saturday this year" she said, "so I can have a party." And a jolly party it was, such as only a mother could plan for a little daughter. First there were games, active, mirth-provoking games, then there were refreshments. Lets see. Who doesn't like Dixie Cups and Cookies?

The birthday cake with 6 lighted candles was an attractive centerpiece on the table. Virginia Ray was the recipient of many gifts from her little friends and the afternoon hours were all too short for: Claude Jr., and Jane Donaldson, Jeanine Smith, Ruth Evelyn Story, Colene and Dorothy Lee Carmack, Eva Jo Reid, Nancy Nell Wyatt, Mable and Clyde Jr., Smith, Jim Ed Poer, Wanda and Waunelle Taylor, Gerald and Weldon Canady, Jeaneat Edwards, and Frances Marion Hanev visited Virginia Ray in the evening. Mrs. Jones was assisted by Mrs. Claude Donaldson.

Cotton production on the High Plains, thanks to weather conditions and changing government programs, has long been subjected to its ups and downs. And in 1972 the area could be well on the way to recording one of the stider year-to-year variations in recent history, according to Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The final tally on the 1971 crop, the "most disappointing in years," now looks like it will fall in the range of 1,325,000 to 1,350,000 bales of 480 pounds net weight from the 25 Plains counties in P.C.G. territory. The four USDA classing offices in the area at Brownfield, Lamesa, Leveland and Lubbock were approaching 1.1 million classings on Friday, January 28, and W. K. (Bill) Palmer, Officer in Charge, expects to receive samples just above that figure. In addition there are another estimated 25,000 "running bales" that were sold direct to mills and will not go through a classing office, plus about 150,000 bales from Martin, Howard, Midland, Motley and Briscoe counties that will be classed at Abilene and Memphis classing offices.

This will bring the total running bales from P.C.G.'s 25 counties to around 1,275,000, and these have been averaging about 500 pounds net weight. This "overweight" factor means that each running bale classed represents approximately 1.04 480-pound net weight bales. And when that conversion factor is applied, assuming the other figures are correct, the 480-pound net weight bale total will come to 1,326,000.

Meanwhile prospects for 1972 production on the Plains "could hardly look better," Johnson says, citing excellent underground moisture over the area, a cotton program which will encourage many farmers to shoot for maximum production with increased acres and more intensive farming practices.

"There are still a number of factors which influence farmers' planting intentions," he states, "but there is every reason to believe at this point that there will be at least 2.7 million acres planted to cotton on the Plains in 1972."

At this acreage level, assuming normal "abandonment" (7 per cent) and the average yield on the Plains from 1960 through 1970 (458 pounds per acre), production from the 25 counties would reach almost 2.4 million bales -- a jump of just over a million bales from the current crop, with almost identical government programs for both years.

The previous high year-to-year variation, unlike the one pending from 1971 to 1972, was the joint result of a program change and different weather conditions. In 1965, just before the first active year of the Agriculture Act of 1965, the High Plains turned out 2.3 million bales. The following year, 1966, production dropped to 1.3 million bales. The 1965 crop came off 2,273,300 planted acres as compared to 1,564,400 planted acres in 1966.

Looking farther into the future, Johnson sees several factors that bode well for cotton, both in the U. S. and on the High Plains in particular.

He points out that world fiber consumption is increasing, although slowly, and that competition from synthetic fibers "seems to be leveling off," as evidenced by the fact that U. S. cotton consumption has remained at a fairly constant volume for the past three years. He also notes that competition for land use in foreign countries appears to be getting greater as standards of living rise, diets improve, and the profitability of cotton when compared to food crops goes down. Textile import controls are also a plus factor for the domestic textile industry, he believes, and "through the dollar-a-bale program producers are now doing a better job of product development, research and promotion than ever before."

On the High Plains, Johnson sees a number of reasons for optimism. "Varietal improvements may improve disease resistance and cold tolerance to increase yields and overall quality of our crop, advances in production techniques, including the advent of narrow row culture, may be highly beneficial to us in overcoming the natural hazards of a short growing season; and there are developments on the textile machinery horizons which, if we properly exploit them, could make High Plains cotton much more competitive with competing fibers of all kinds."

Summing up, Johnson looks for "a good and profitable cotton year on the Plains in 1972 -- and many more to come."

Growing up

Look at your lanky, teen-age son! It's hard to believe that he once wore these shoes. It seems only yesterday that he was a baby, yet he himself is the best testimonial that the years have passed. Now he stands almost as tall as you. He is a fascinating maze of contradictions—an eager, lovable youngster one minute, a scowling, angry adolescent the next.

It takes patience to understand a teen-ager—patience, and a lot of love. Though he strives to be adult, he is still a boy. Though he clings to childhood, he is almost "grown-up." You may not always be aware of it, but he still looks to you for many things. And he sees in you an example that he will, almost unconsciously, follow in many ways.

Are you setting a good example? How about church, for instance? If you haven't been going lately, start again next Sunday for your son's sake, as well as your own. And don't forget to take him with you!

Linda Huffaker, CHD Agent, Says.....

If pennies count, balance your food budget and your family's diet by cutting costs within each of the four food groups.

Here are a few money-saving ideas for those who value nutrition and bargains:

MEAT GOOD GROUP..Buy weekend meat specials and save by buying dressed chickens whole, rather than cut-up.

MILK FOOD GROUP..Use non-fat dry milk and save over one-half on your milk bill. Serve milkshakes and fewer soft drinks. Grate hardened ends of cheese and use to top casseroles.

BREAD - CEREAL FOOD GROUP .. Breads baked at home are less expensive than ready-baked ones. Cereals cooked at home are less expensive than ready-to-eat ones.

VEGETABLE-FRUIT FOOD GROUP .. Take advantage of fresh seasonal vegetables. Buy frozen vegetables and fruits if they cost less per serving than fresh or canned ones. Make price comparisons regularly.

Consumers should be concerned about their family's diet. To be sure your family eats well-balanced meals, see that you serve them foods from the four basic food groups daily. Serve two to four glasses of milk per day and two or more meat servings. Also serve four or more helpings of breads and cereals and fruits or vegetables.

"Cycle" to most people has something to do with a motor or a bike.

To us, "cycle" has to do with the efficient production of electric power, with efficiency and with conservation of resources.

It's about a unit we'll install in 1973. It's called a Combined Cycle Unit. It utilizes a gas turbine to help create electricity and in so doing, it produces heat. We then use this heat to make steam to run a steam turbine which, in turn, produces electricity. Using these units in combination, we generate more power but with less fuel and water than if each were to be run separately.

So, we do the "cycling" and you'll have the power you'll need at the lowest possible cost. Sounds simple, doesn't it? But, it took lots of planning and lots of engineering know-how to come up with this means of conserving resources and yet producing adequate electricity.

should purchase on the "available P205" guarantee with final decision depending on price, convenience and accuracy of application.

None of the available phosphorus moves more than perhaps one and a half inches from the point of application. This applies to normal superphosphate right on up through the more recently developed polyphosphates. The fact that the phosphorus takes after application is determined by the soil - not the material applied. Good carry-over can be depended on in West Texas soils. We have summarized comparative yield values from different sources from West Texas research.

Never before has it been more important that producers increase cotton production in 1972. Last year's low yields, coupled with increasing demands for U.S. cotton at home and abroad, makes it imperative that we increase production to prevent further market loss to synthetics. Without an adequate supply it is difficult to convince our consumers, the textile mills, that we can deliver cotton in adequate quantities and qualities when they need them.

Along with favorable prices and good underground moisture, the prospects for profitable cotton production look bright in our area. Producers should make every effort to put in motion their best management skills in planning this year's cotton crop. The latest information on all aspects of cotton production can be obtained in fact sheets, bulletins and leaflets at your county agent's office.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Bully In The Family
Sixteen-year-old Teddy had a nasty habit. He would coax younger children into secluded places, then beat them up. Finally, the father of one of the victims filed a damage suit against Teddy's parents.

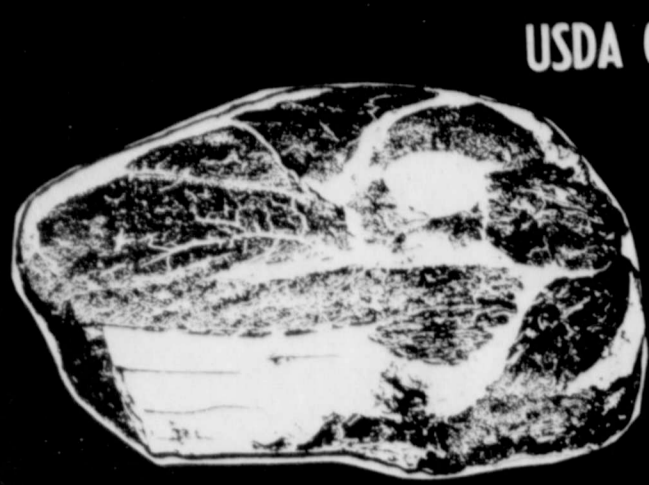

But in court, they denied liability. "The mere fact that he is our son," they argued, "does not make us automatically responsible for everything he does. We never encouraged him to beat anyone up."

But if they had never encouraged Teddy, they had never discouraged him either. The court decided they had shirked their duty as parents, and would therefore have to pay the claim. Parents who are overly permissive may find themselves in trouble in the courtroom. If they tolerate a dangerous habit in their child, they can usually be held legally liable for the consequences.

But it is a matter of degree. While the law says parents must try to curb the child, it does not insist on success. Take this case: Chuckie, age five, liked to toss rocks at his playmates. To deter him, his parents tried everything from scoldings to spankings—all to no avail.

But this time, when a damage suit was brought against the parents, the court held them blameless. Saying they had done their best, the court observed that they could scarcely be expected to keep Chuckie under lock and key.

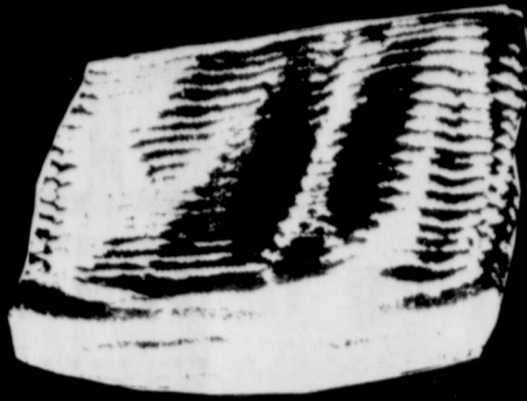

Furthermore, standards of discipline may change with the times. In another case, a boy playing football in the street overran the curb and knocked down a passing pedestrian. In short order, the pedestrian sued the boy's parents, claiming they should not have allowed him to play in the street. But the court said such tight discipline by parents is just not customary in this day and age. "Strict control of children is today so rare," said the court, "that its absence is no indication of a lack of reasonable care."
