In the absence of both the Noble Grand and the Vice Grand, Willie Mae Childress presided when Rebekah Lodge met in a called session on December 31. A salad supper at 6:30 preceded the meeting five visitors from Lamesa were present, including District Deputy President Kathrine Everhart and her husband of No. 90 Lodge. Her commission was read by the secretary and she presented the President's program and gave a school of instruction. A special invitation was read inviting the lodge to attend the 60th Wedding Anniversary Celebration of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Riley in Brownfield on Sunday the 12th.

This couple helped institute Tahoka Lodge here in 1958. Next regular meeting of the Order will be January 14 at 7:30 when a new member will be initiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reece recently spent a couple of days in Lynn County Hospital where both underwent extensive tests.

A note from Joyce Dewbre indicates she came thru surgery fine on December 26, is now out of the hospital and is recuperating at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. L. Green in Comanche. She expects to spend the latter part of January in Tahoka with her mother Thelma Dewbre.

Dennis Waldrip, a grandson, got a big sendoff at Lubbock airport on Friday. There were eight relatives there, including three grandparents and a great aunt, as he departed for San Diego to finish "boot training" He says it will probably be a year before he can build up enough leave to come home again.

Beula Atkins is back in the Lynn County Hospital with the flu and other complications. There are many in the hospital, whose names we failed to get and we understand that most of them have the flu.

Odes Hillhouse spent five days last week in the hospital at Brownfield after an apparent heart attack. He was transferred to Veterans Hospital at Big Springs, well wishers may send him a card there. His wife, Fern, works in Dr. Durham's dental office.

Ground work has begun on the new Post Office building on the lot just South of the bank building. At least there is being a lot of dirt moved. Should be interesting to watch the developments from my office window in the weeks to come as winter gives way to spring.

A sister, Mrs. Freida, Measersmith of Emporia, Kansas, is visiting this week with us and another sister in Lubbock. The former Freida Lemon she grew up in the New Home Community and later graduated from Wilson High School and for several years worked in the bank at Wilson.

Mrs. Zella Taylor accompanied her brother, who lives in Lamesa, on a visit to see her mother in San Antonio during the past week. Mrs. Irene Garrison has returned to her home at Golden Manor after spending the holidays with relatives at Merkel and San Angelo.

Mrs. Minnie Gandy fell at her home during the recent ice storm and broke 3 ribs. She did not have to stay in the hospital after her X-rays but is having a very painful recuperation at her home.

Husband-Wife Medical Team Runs March of Dimes Program

You've heard of the man who takes his work home from the office. But how about the doctor who takes his wife home from work? And vice-versa?

It happens every working day for the husband and wife doctor team of James and Patricia Montealeone, who run a March of Dimes-sponsored birth defects program at the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children in St. Louis, Mo.

The program is aimed at diagnosing and treating genetic and metabolic birth defects in children. Pat Montealeone is in charge of the hospital's genetics laboratory and clinic; Jim Montealeone's specialty is the detection and diagnosis of inborn errors of metabolism.

"It's a unique relationship," says Pat Montealeone, a dark-haired, firm-featured woman of Irish ancestry, whose maiden name was Brennan. "At work, he goes his way and I go mine. We've worked together for 10 years now, and we never have a problem."

Seldom Argue

Her husband Jim Montealeone, a big, genial, olive-skinned fellow, agrees. "Our work doesn't overlap that much. We've never had an argument at the hospital. We very seldom argue at home, for that matter."

The Montealeones also teach medical students at St. Louis University, with which Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children is affiliated; give several dozen talks a year on birth defects to local medical and lay groups; and pursue independent research in their specialties.

Pat Montealeone's genetics laboratory—complete with equipment for such sophisticated lab techniques as gas chromatography, enzyme assays, and chromosomal analysis—is one of only two of its kind between Kansas City and Chicago, she says. With it, a great number of genetic and metabolic defects can be detected, as well as the carrier state for many defects. Carriers are people who have the gene for a defect but are not themselves affected.

Intensive Care

Resources are also available at the hospital for the detection and diagnosis of hemophilia, as well as an intensive care nursery for sick newborns.

The Montealeones met in the early '60s as medical students at St. Louis University, and were married soon afterwards. They have worked together ever since—first as research fellows at Northwestern University in Chicago, and now as associate professors in pediatrics at St. Louis University.

They share a basement office at Cardinal Glennon. But the close association has proved a boon rather than a bane.

"We never planned to work together," says Jim Montealeone, "it just kind of evolved. There is no sense of competition. We decided everything we do, we do together."

Pat Montealeone agreed with Jim. "There's not a project I start I don't check with him first—and vice versa."

"It's an advantage," her husband continued. "We can work together closer. You can tell each other exactly what you think. We know each other's strengths and weaknesses."

"I don't mean to brag," he went on, "but we have a better professional association than many other doctors. I can work better with her than with some men I have worked with."

"If he gets a piece of research published, I feel thrilled, like a part of me is involved," said Pat Montealeone. "And that's natural, in that my life is part of his."

"That's what you say when you get married," began Jim Montealeone, smiling and looking over to his wife. "When you get married, you're one."

On the brighter side in Texas crop production for 1974: Pecans are almost double from the 1973 level. The 1974 projection is 38,000,000 pounds compared to only 20,000,000 pounds in 1973.

Corn production will be up 15 per cent over 1973 in Texas. Yield is expected to average 90 bushels per acre with total production for this year now set at 69,750,000 bushels.

Rice production in 1974 is expected to be about 5,000,000 hundredweight above 1973 levels. Yield is expected to average 4,494 pounds per acre.

Cattle On Feed at 1970 Low... Sheep and Lamb Feeding Also Declines... Wheat Pasture Prospects Good... Dairy Incomes Down.

TEXAS CONTINUES as the number one cattle feeding state in the nation, but feeders have the lowest number in feedlots in the state in the past four years. Cattle and calves on feed in Texas as of Dec. 1 totaled 1,428,000. This is 37 per cent below a year ago and eight per cent under last month. It is also the lowest since October, 1970.

During November, cattle feeders placed 51 per cent fewer cattle in their lots than a year ago. This is also 47 per cent below the previous month.

Nationwide, the same trend continues. In these seven states preparing monthly estimates of cattle on feed, the Dec. 1 inventory was three per cent below a year ago.

Cattle placed in the feedlots were down 33 per cent from a month earlier and are down almost 30 per cent from a year ago.

Reason for the continued decline in cattle feeding is due to continued high costs of production. Cattle marketings are also down considerably from month ago and year ago levels.

WHILE cattle feeding declines, there is also a downturn in the number of sheep and lambs on feed in Texas.

Drylot sheep feeders with a lot capacity of 2,000 head or more had 72,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of Dec. 1. This is 16 per cent below the number on feed a month ago and 21 per cent below a year ago.

Current intentions to market include 31,000 in December, 32,000 in January and 9,000 in February.

Continued downturns in number of cattle and sheep on feed will in the long run be reflected to the consumer in fewer supplies of beef and lamb.

MEANWHILE, WHEAT PASTURE prospects in Texas continued to be bright. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes that winter wheat pastures in the Panhandle and Low Plains of the state are providing excellent grazing for livestock. Early stands continue to make good growth generally, and stocking rates have surpassed last year's level as farmers continue to move livestock onto fields.

In the three-state region--Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma--only about half of the fall seeded wheat had sufficient forage to support grazing. Forage supply is still rated as fair.

MILK PRODUCTION in Texas is up but it's also down. While milk production in the state during November was up two per cent from a year ago, it is down four per cent from the previous month.

Nationwide, the same trend is occurring. Milk production is down three percent from two years ago and is up only slightly from a year ago. Economists now are projecting that milk production in 1975 may be the lowest since 1947 or 1948.

The reasons for continued declines are due to increasing costs of production. A report recently noted that in Texas, dairymen are losing an average of 18 cents per hundredweight during the last quarter of this year. Dairy incomes fell seven per cent from the second quarter earnings. Production costs on the other hand are up 16 per cent.

Farmers Need To Be Insured Of Fair Returns

Some of the risks must be reduced if farmers are expected to do their best in supplying overseas markets.

That's the view of Director J. C. Williamson, Jr., of North Carolina's Agricultural Experiment Station.

The director says the government needs a better mechanism for insuring fair returns to farmers than the current target price concept.

"It's a fallacy to assume that American agriculture operates in a free market—at least at the international level," Mr. Williamson declared. "In the short run, our level of farm exports is determined mostly by the policies of foreign governments and not necessarily by the law of supply and demand."

Noting that America's farm population has become smaller and more mobile, Williamson said farmers will either get a rate of return comparable to non-farmers or they'll quit farming.

The director expressed general optimism about agriculture's future, however. He said the next 10 or 15 years could be the first time in U.S. history that farmers obtain an income on a par with other segments of society.

Food Buying Habits Altered

Indications are that consumers are changing shopping habits and food use to meet the times.

While food prices rose 21 percent in 1973, consumers increased the amount of money they spent on food by only 11 to 12 percent.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Ciyatt, Texas Extension consumer marketing specialist, says a recent survey shows shoppers are now preparing better for food buying with lists, planned menus, and consultation with other family members.

The single most important trend in guarding the family food budget has been increased attention to "specials." Housewives are checking newspaper grocery ads more closely to learn about store specials, and are making more use of cents-off coupons.

The survey also revealed that people are eating less. Average reduction in food intake was 1.5 percent in 1973.

Trips to the supermarket were cut by 25 percent in the average household, a practice that reduces impulse buying.

Preserving Farm Lands

Tax incentives to encourage farmers to stay on the land have been adopted in California, Minnesota, and Illinois.

Cornstarch May Stamp Out Some Litterbugs

Corn starch may be the undoing of litterbugs.

And while it may not rid the country of all types of litter, it does promise to cut down on the army of plastic polluters.

Agricultural research scientists have found that adding corn starch to standard formulas for polyvinyl chloride and polyvinyl alcohol makes new plastics that are degradable.

Most plastics now on the market don't decompose easily, but accumulate in disposal dumps and litter other areas. Some release toxic compounds when burned.

The new plastics have been produced in USDA laboratories, but have not yet been made commercially. Scientists think it's possible to form them into trays, eating utensils, packaging materials, and other disposable items. Another possibility is their use in thin films for mulching vegetable crops.

Besides reducing litter pollution, scientists say the corn starch additive can stretch the supplies of petroleum-based raw materials now being used for standard plastics.

Lynn County News Common Weed Proves To Have Uncommon Trait

A common weed whose usefulness was known to American Indians is now drawing recognition from scientists.

It's the coneflower, a perennial of the thistle family that grows in the central United States.

Indians used some of its parts for germ-killers and pain-relievers. Later, early American pharmacists dispensed the plant's dried roots and their alcoholic extracts as analgesics and also as medicines for treating bronchial disorders.

Now USDA's agricultural research scientists have identified three useful compounds found in the coneflower's roots. Two of these have potential for insect control and the third for anti-cancer treatment.

Dr. Martin Jacobson of the Agricultural Research Service says the weed appears to be a "cornucopia of pesticides."

He heads a team of chemists who began studying the coneflower root several years ago. They were looking for an alternate insecticide for pyrethrin, which is made from imported flowers.

A compound made from dried coneflower roots killed yellow mealworms — pests of stored flour, grain, and other food products — and also was deadly to house flies, mosquito larvae, and German cockroaches.

Another compound from the roots mimics an insect hormone. It has already proved effective in preventing the molting of mealworm pupae to the adult stage, and is believed to have considerable promise in insect control.

The third compound obtained from the roots has caused regression in certain tumor systems, although it is inactive in others. Scientists think it might lead to synthesis of other, more potent chemicals.

U.S. Shares Technology

Each year the U.S. government sends more than 400 agricultural scientists overseas to work at major research centers and in specific projects aimed at reducing crop and livestock diseases, and increasing productivity through soil conservation and irrigation.

Carolyn Haley Says...

We hear alot these days about underprivileged children -- children whose families lack sufficient resources to keep up with the mainstream of American life.

But another group needs consideration. Have you ever thought of the children who are growing up in the midst of plenty -- the overprivileged children? Children who are:

Overindulged -- with money and

Lynn County News

the things money can buy (but not necessarily with love and human values.)

Overprotected -- insulated from responsibility (but not taught self-discipline or the ability to make their own decisions.)

Overpressured to grow up too fast, to get good grades, to become sophisticated and socially adept (but not necessarily to think for themselves, be creative, or become mature persons.)

No doubt there are as many overprivileged children as there are underprivileged. But have you thought of what happens to these overprivileged children as they grow up?

Surely some of them are turning out well in spite of being overindulged. But a few changes are noticeable in some members of the "new" generation.

--Youth who believe the world owes them a living.

-- Teens who try to escape the pressures of life through narcotics, alcohol, or even suicide.

--Youth who view marriage only as a temporary arrangement, easily dissolved if unsatisfactory.

It could be that none of the "overprivileged" factors in a child's upbringing cause these behavior patterns. But studies do show that an individual's personality is largely the result of what effect his early environment within his family had on his basic inherited tendencies.

Each individual parent has a strong influence over the way his children (the future generation) develop.

Let's remember, society is the sum total of all the individuals who grew up in families.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK:

COWBOY COFFEE CAKE:

2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup shortening
2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup sour milk
2 beaten eggs

Mix flour, sugar, salt, and shortening till crumbly; reserve 1/2 cup milk. To remaining crumbs, add baking powder, soda, and spices, mix well. Add milk, and eggs; mix well. Pour into 2 greased and floured 8x1 1/2 inch round pans; top with reserved crumbs. Bake at 375 degrees F for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 2 cakes.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Telephone Blitz

Irma was only mildly distressed when the first telephone call came from a collection agency, asking her to pay a disputed bill. But her dismay mounted as the calls kept coming in, day and night, at home and at work.

Finally, after receiving more than 100 calls in three weeks, she filed suit against the collection agency for invasion of her privacy. In court, the agency argued:

"She could have turned us off very easily. All she had to do was pay up."

But the court said that even in the collection of a lawful debt, some methods are unlawful—including the use of the telephone as a psychological battering ram.

Other collection methods that courts have held to be an invasion of privacy include humiliating the debtor in the presence of his fellow employees and bringing the debt embarrassingly to the attention of his neighbors.

But privacy, like most rights, has limits. The law recognizes that a creditor, after all, is entitled to have his money—and to apply a reasonable amount of pressure to that end.

In another case, a debtor waxed wroth when he received the following telegram from a bill collector:

"Must have payment immediately or legal action."

Again, the debtor sued for damages on grounds of an invasion of his privacy. But this time, the court ruled that the collector had not overstepped the line.

"The protection afforded by the right of privacy," said the court, "must be restricted to 'ordinary sensibilities' and not to supersensitiveness."

"There are some shocks, inconveniences, and annoyances which members of society in the nature of things must absorb."

ANTHRAX CONTAMINATED SADDLE PADS

In September 1974, and outbreak of anthrax in carnivores at a Washington State Game Farm was traced to infected horse meat. Subsequent investigation revealed that the horse had probable acquired its infection from a contaminated saddle pad which had recently been purchased at a local retail outlet.

The implicated saddle pad, which contains imported goat hair, is manufactured by the Perforated Pad Co. in Woonsocket, Rhode Island. Pads which contain goat hair are called "Alaskan Hair" Pads and have one of the following style numbers on the label: 238, 238R, 500, 832, or 832R. Cultures of these pads have been found positive for B. Anthracis (10 of 10). Also, samples of raw goat hair which is incorporated into the pads were obtained from the Manufacturer and were positive for B. Anthracis.

Alaskan Hair Pads that are suspected of being contaminated with bacteria that can produce Anthrax in animals and humans need to be taken to the Sheriff's office in Tahoka.

If anyone has one or more of the "Alaskan Hair" Pads, they should place them in a double plastic bag and take to the Tahoka Sheriff's Office, located by the Courthouse. The pads are safe to handle and store once they are placed in double plastic bags. Twenty gallon size garbage can liners make ideal containers.

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Farm-facts

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

Year-End Crop Report Shows Cotton Down, Citrus Down, Sorghum Down, Soybeans Down; Corn, Pecans, Rice Increase.

AGRICULTURE 1974 will be remembered in a variety of ways, and for production of major crops the year will show declines, some significant ones in cotton, sorghum, soybeans, and citrus.

Texas, the number one cotton producing state in the nation, will show a decline in 1974 production of 1,873,000 bales compared to 1973. Yield is expected to show only a 280-pound average compared with a record 431 pound per average in 1973.

Abandonment from all causes is expected to reach 800,000 acres, which is the largest abandonment since 1956. It is four times more acres lost than occurred in 1973.

Along with a cut in production came a cut in demand for the crop as well. Due to economic conditions generally, there was for most of the year little or no demand for cotton in spite of the decline in production. Reduced production usually means higher prices. Economists generally are hoping a turn-around for cotton may be in the second or third quarter of 1975.

SORGHUM PRODUCTION in Texas during 1974 is expected to be about 130,000,000 bushels less than 1973. Texas is the nation's leading state in sorghum production. Yield for 1974 is expected to average about five bushels per acre less than in 1973.

Although prices did show significant increases in 1974 for sorghum, producers were also hard hit by sharply rising costs of production. An increase in sorghum acreage is now expected in Texas in 1975 by most economists.

CITRUS PRODUCERS are also facing a downturn in production for 1974. The 1974-75 citrus crop is forecast at 13.3 million boxes by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is 23 per cent below the production of the previous season.

Grapefruit production is expected to total 7,800,000 boxes, down 23 per cent from a year ago.

Early and mid-season oranges are forecast at 3,600,000 boxes, down 14 per cent from a year ago.

Changes Called For In Agricultural Research

Agronomists have been challenged to take a more active role in dealing with the world's food problems.

Dr. William F. Hueg, Jr., director of the University of Minnesota agricultural experiment station, says agronomists have been slow in changing their research direction.

He said new technologies must be developed before present fuel resources are used up.

"This means the development of atomic power, solar energy, geo-thermal energy, and combinations of energy sources," Dr. Hueg explained.

The director also charged that scientists have been guilty of allowing gaps in research to develop and, at times, ignoring data being developed.

He pointed out that corn yields in excess of 300 bushels have been obtained, along with higher yields for other crops as well.

"These are test and research yields, however," he said, "and many of them will be difficult to reproduce even under the most ideal field conditions."

Hueg also noted that educators must learn to translate agricultural data into terms laymen can understand.

"It's one thing to say development of a new wheat variety increases average yield by six bushels an acre," he stated. "But it's another thing to say that such research alone meant that in 1973 the extra production yielded 270 million more loaves of bread."

Hueg also pointed out that agriculture is working under constraints over which it has little or no control. He said that under regulations now being promulgated by the Environmental Protection Agency and state pollution control agencies, the technology for effecting major increases in crop production cannot be developed.

"I want as clean an environment for my children as possible," he commented, "but I don't want the epitaph on my tombstone to read 'he lived in the cleanest environment in the world but died of starvation.'"

The director said professional agronomists must take an active role in bringing order out of the current chaos by showing that appropriate use of world resources can contribute to a clean and safe environment while serving mankind.

"I contend that in a nation where we put a man on the moon in a period of ten years, where we spend $800 billion in four wars in one century, and where now we are prepared to spend $18 billion on the purchase of the B-1 bomber—a system we are not sure yet can fly—we can make the necessary commitments to remove the scourge of starvation from the world," Dr. Hueg declared.

The Minnesotan's remarks were made at a recent meeting of the American Society of Agronomy in Chicago.

FARM FACTS

Off To An Early Start

Most of the food and feed crops now grown in the United States were established in colonial America by the end of the 17th century.

Fertilizers In Demand

It's estimated that four times the amount of fertilizer now being used would be required to double food production in the world's developed countries.

Thanks To Henry Clay

Hereford cattle were introduced in this country by U.S. Statesman Henry Clay in 1817.

That's Progress

In 1953, some 8.9 million farm workers fed a total U.S. population of 159 million. As of 1974, only 4.4 million farm workers were feeding the nation's 210 million residents.

Milestone In Agriculture

The mechanical reaper has been called the most significant single invention introduced into American farming in the first half of the 19th century. It marked agriculture's transition from hand labor to machines.

Solar Heat Promising

By making use of a solar-heated barn similar to a greenhouse, North Carolina State University researchers cut fuel requirements for curing tobacco by 15 percent.

Assuring Wholesome Food

In a single year, federal and state inspectors certified as wholesome about 120 billion pounds of meat and poultry products from some 5,800 plants.

How Research Helps

Revolutionary changes resulting from agricultural research in livestock feeding, breeding, and marketing have made it possible to put two-fifths more beef on American dinner tables than was available 20 years ago.

Dirt-less Farming

About 100 acres of crops in the West and Southwest are now being grown with hydroponic or soilless culture techniques.

Pests Well-Fed

Pests destroy about one-third of the world's food production each year. That's enough food to feed one billion people.

The Wonder Bean

Soybeans supply about 75 percent of all the feed protein and about 60 percent of all the vegetable oil produced in the United States.

Tex Watson talks about

Natural Gas for the Future

I'm pleased to report to our customers that Pioneer purchased more gas during 1974 than we used. This new gas will be available for future use, of course.

As you know, Pioneer is having to pay more for new gas than we've ever paid before. The competition for the gas produced in our area has never been so fierce. But the higher prices are resulting in lots of new exploration and production. I know of numerous wells which could not have been drilled at prices prevailing three years ago.

The increase in field prices means that our customers will have to pay more for the energy they use in their homes — gas and electricity — but, more important, it means he'll have the gas he needs.

All energy will cost more in the future but gas will remain your best energy buy.

Letter to the Editor

This is to remind you that we are overlooking someone that is really vital to our livelihood.

Our farmers can not continue their operation at this rate. We are facing a cost of fifty dollars per acre operating cost, without any guarantee.

Our millionaire's are piling millions of greenback dollars. Soon these people will be eating them in greenback stew.

Will you trade your pink complexion for one of a greenish hue?

Of all the people we send to congress there are some that create chills. The one that seems to be at the top of my list, is our own Wilbur Mills.

When we send you people to congress, you are not sent there for practice. Please forget your next term vote, and devote your time to justice.
