Fire Destroys Old Theatre Building

Fire and Change Saves Other Buildings

Undetermined origin Tuesday morning destroyed the old building and part of the Gagnat building. The dollar value of the damage available to the alarm was turned on, but the building was too far gone for pumps of the Fire Department, from Post, O'Donnell to contain the fire. It was on standby to be used to confine this building and part of the Gagnat building. Wind was blowing when it shifted. Otherwise, the entire block would have gone up.

owned by the Blakenship theatre chain of Lubbock, was still smouldering late Tuesday morning. Mrs. Leona Waldrip who with her sons and late husband ran the local theatres for a number of years, told the News that the building was filled with seats, popcorn machines, projectors, etc. from this theatre and other theatres.

Roof of the south side of the Gagnat building was consumed by the fire. fell in. and much of this building may be beyond repair. Mrs. Veta Small and others figure that the building must have been erected prior to 1917, some thing about 1916.

E. L. Howard was the first theatre operator, said out to D. E. English in the 1920's who operated this and two other movie theatres here a number of years before selling out to Wallace Blakenship and associates. The Blakenships closed their Tahoka theatres nearly 15 years ago.

CLEAN UP after the fire finds caterpillar dropped in possibly the orchestra pit or the basement under the stage. Two trench trucks were called in to rescue the front end loader.

Future Of Cotton Appears Better

The prospects for better demand and better price for cotton appears to have improved recently, stated Jim Porter, textile engineer at Texas Tech Textile Research Center, told Rotarians in talk before the club last Thursday.

Mr. Porter was a textile engineer in Marion, North Carolina, before moving to the Texas Tech Center. Among the many factors involving cotton price and demand, he cited growing interest in the establishment of mills on the South Plains.

Giving a bit of textile history, he said the industry shifted from the New England states, where it was centered before the Civil War to the Southern States of North and South Carolina, Georgia, and East Tennessee, early in the present century. Until recently about 95 percent of the textile plants were in the Old South.

In recent years, cotton production has declined in those states. Lubbock County in recent years, he said, has produced more cotton than the entire state of North Carolina.

Many cotton mills had shut down, or had big lay-offs, but are starting up again and are using their surplus supplies of cotton and will soon need to replenish these supplies. Also, he said the energy crisis is hurting the production of man-made fibers. Anyway, the trend is back toward natural fibers.

Textile men are now looking to the Plains, near the point of high cotton production and a better, more stable labor market. Just a few years ago, Japan was turning out cotton products with cheap labor, about 60 cents an hour, compared to $2.50 to $2.75 an hour paid by American mills for labor. But, today, inflation in Japan has caused the price of labor there to rise to a level near that in the U.S.

Development of the open-end spinning method, he said may revolutionize the textile industry. He revealed another new method, twistless yarn spinning, hold great promise to compete with the old regular spinning method.

He called attention to the new mill at Littlefield, the small mills at Lubbock, Abernathy, and Lorenzo, the proposed Japanese mill at Levelland, and stated that just last week some textile mill men from the Old South were on the Plains "looking around".

He predicted further moves of textile mills to this area.

Ronnie Nettles arranged the program and introduced the speaker.

Hobby Making Shirts

"A Stitch in Time" might well describe Gena Faye Adams as she spends many hours with needle and thread. She has acquired a hobby of personlising shirts by embroidery and has now completed some 37.

These colorful shirts which she has embroidered range from Raggedy Ann to cotton bolls and grain. The most recent creation features an outline map of Texas centered by a large Angus Bull head. Other Texas symbols of boots, windmills, cotton and bluebonnets complete this item which will be auctioned at the state Field Day of Texas Angus Association at Longview.

Her daughters, Mrs. Vernon Jack Carolyn Redwine of Brownfield and Mrs. Sam (Betsy) Pridmore are proud owners of some of her handiwork. Betsy assists by locating and drawing some designs to be used. Granddaughters Cristy Redwine and Paige Pridmore enjoy modeling their grandmother's work. Gena has done shirts for several of other relatives including Granny Adams.

Beef For Fathers Day

There's no doubting it. Beef on Father's Day is sure to bring a big smile to Dad's face. And with Father's Day June 15, 1975, just around the corner, alert shoppers should be taking advantage now of the many beef specials at the meat counter.

This advice is passed along by Mrs. Robert Scheidecker, Chairman, Beef Promotion. "Beef has always been on top of the list when it comes to man - pleasing meals throughout the year. So can there be a better way to satisfy dad on his special Day?" I urge all American families to honor Dad on this day with beef.

And there just couldn't be a better time to buy beef. Large supplies of beef are now available and prices are attractive. As in 1974 beef is turning out to be the inflation fighter at the checkout counter.

"Beef for Father's Day has become an American Food Tradition," says Mrs. Scheidecker. "And no wonder. Beef is America's favorite food. Always available. Always cut for every budget. Always different. Always sure to satisfy Dad and the whole family!"

Having recently had more surgery on his eyes, Warren Embree of First National Bank was able to be back at his desk on Thursday and Friday of last week. He expects to be fitted with new glasses in a few days.

Tahoka Rebekah Lodge wishes to take this opportunity to thank each one who bought the cookbooks. As the old saying goes, "they went like hot cakes" and we are sorry if you were too late to get one. They sold far beyond our expectations. Sorry there are no more.

Sunday night of Memorial Day week end found me in Amarillo with relatives and accompanied by my sister, Leta Brown of Lubbock, we headed for Emporia, Kansas on Monday morning.

Traffic was heavy but we arrived there about 4 p.m. After an enjoyable three day visit with our sister, Freda Messersmith (Lemon) we drove to Pittsburg Co. Oklahoma for a visit with childhood friends. This is where we moved from when we came to West Texas in the fall of 1923.

We saw lots of pretty country and nowhere except California have we ever seen so many beautiful flowers blooming as there was in Emporia. They had had lots of rain everywhere and was still raining a lot of the time we were riding. Wednesday we had lunch in the capital city in Roff, Arkansas with our aunt on Friday and Saturday and returned to Lubbock on Sunday.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burnie Haley passed away in Methodist hospital on Sunday after a lengthy illness. The girl had been an invalid all her life. The Haleys were theatre managers here during the 50's and the child will be remembered as one who was always in a wheelchair. She attended school here, but her parents moved to Levelland where the school was better equipped to handle handicapped children. Funeral services were held on Monday at Brady, Texas where her parents now reside.

Speaking of theatres, and although the old Wallace had long been an eyesore to Main Street, there are those who will miss it. The fire early Tuesday really did a good job of getting rid of the old landmark.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Akin have gone to Garland to help celebrate the birthday of a grandboy.

Visiting in Comanche Mrs. Thelma Dewbre is spending a few days with her daughter's family there.

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS . . .

Certain environmental conditions will cause the tomato blooms to shed, resulting in a poor fruit set. Partial failure of flowers to develop into fruit will result in abnormal fruits which may be misshapen or catfaced. Blossom drop is most common in tomatoes which bloom late. The usual cause for poor fruit set is high temperatures - either at night or day. Nighttime temperatures above 72 degrees F. along with daytime temperatures above 90 degrees F. often result in heavy blossom drop. On the other hand unseasonably cool weather may also cause blossoms to drop in addition to causing abnormalities in fruits.

Other factors causing lack of fruit set or abnormal fruit include unbalanced nutrition, extended periods of showery, cool, overcast weather in the early spring, and insects and diseases.

Therefore, providing a balanced fertilizer and controlling insects and diseases will help in controlling blossom drop. Of course, little can be done about weather conditions.

Poor fruit set is most common in the large slicing types of tomatoes. However, such varieties as Early Giant, Spring Giant, Spring Set and Improved Summertime have the ability to set fruit during somewhat higher temperatures.

Smaller sized tomatoes that normally do not have the fruit set problem include such varieties as Small Fry, Red Cherry, Roma and the new Texas Agricultural Experiment Station variety, Saladette.

In areas where blossom drop seems to be a common problem year after year, plant some of the smaller type tomatoes or those varieties that tend to be more tolerant to higher temperatures.

from Texas Farm Bureau

TAXES
Government expenses at local, state and national levels are the seeds that produce taxes. Government administrators at the local, state and national levels are required by law to pay the taxes and the only source of funds is taxes; either in the form of direct taxes or indirect taxes. The tax problem never is solved by changing the law. Change in law is an attempt to treat a symptom rather than the basic cause. The basic issue is expenditures, and it taxes are more than expenses must be paid. Changing tax laws does not do with the division of the debt among the citizens.

The bail that has sold modern-day government is something - for - nothing programs is the idea that improvements in the community can be implemented without raising taxes. The reasoning is for each to get his share.

Government at all levels must be considered as a protector of the individual's right to try, buy, sell, and fall. If a government, at any level, seeks to provide, it neither protects nor provides. In other words, it cannot provide because it has nothing except what it takes from the people. The taking and distribution is extremely wasteful, thereby providing much less than would ordinarily be provided.

FARM LIVING EXPENSES
USDA's news release of May 13, 1975, reported that the expenditures for a farm family in 1973 was $10,786, compared to $3,308 in 1955. The break down of the 1973 family living expenditures, as reported by USDA, showed transportation purchases and operations took the largest share, $3,109, followed by $2,671 for housing and $2,013 for food, excluding the value of products consumed on the farm where grown. Clothing expenses were $647.00 on the average. Medical care $624 and other expenditures totaled $1,722.

The 1955 farm family living expenditure surveyed by USDA determined that housing cost headed the list, then came food outlay, clothing, transportation, medical care. The share of the total expenditures for housing declined from 28 percent in 1955 to 25 percent in 1973. Food went down from 25 percent to 18.7 percent; clothing decreased from 13 percent to 6 percent while transportation advanced 11 percent to nearly 29 percent.

FORWARD CONTRACTING
Growers had contracted about two percent of their 1975 cotton acreage by April 1, 1975, compared with 19 percent a year earlier, according to the Cotton Division, Agricultural Marketing Service. These estimates are based on March 1 planting intentions. Forward contracting of 1975 - crop cotton was most active in far western states and least active in Southeastern, Southwestern States, Far West, forwers forward contracted 13 percent of the 1975 intended plantings by the first of April, compared with 55 percent a year ago. Growers in the south central states had booked only one percent of their 1975 expected acreage by April 1, down sharply from a year earlier when 29 percent had been booked. Little or no forward contracting of 1975-crop cotton was reported in the southeastern and southwestern states prior to April 1. A year earlier, nine percent of the 1974 intended acreage in the Southeast had been contracted by the first of April and five percent of the Southwest's expected plantings had been contracted.

U. S. LOAN FOR A & P BUYERS
Private financing will be provided for small businessmen to acquire and operate many of the 99 supermarkets being closed in Texas by Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., the Small Business Administration said in Washington.

The government agency said Capital Marketing Corp., a privately held small business investment company based in Dallas plans to provide loans for the acquisition of an estimated 40 A & P STORES. The Small Business Administration regulates such investment companies and gives them long-term guarantees.

In Montvale, N. J., a spokesman for A & P said there was "considerable" buying interest in A & P's Texas stores. The spokesman said the company expects 70 of the stores to be leased soon to new owners, many of whom are past A & P store managers. He said negotiations on leases, equipment, and merchandise are being done on an individual basis.

The 99 Texas stores are part of more than 1,200 marginal stores the chain is eliminating throughout the U.S. (THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, May 19, 1975)

PERMIT TO PLOW
The following article is taken from the TEXAS POLLUTION REPORT of May 14, 1975:

The House passed HCR 113, Rep. Bill Sullivan, directing the State to join with anyone who files suit against attempts to require Environmental Protection Agency permits for irrigation to flow.

The case in which the Federal Courts held that the EPA couldn't simply exempt irrigation return flow on 3,000 - acre tracts or smaller from permit requirements is on appeal. The court said that the EPA had to deal with the question on a case by case basis.

The Corps of Engineers is proposing four alternative regulations to implement a U.S. Dist. Court order that current rules governing disposal of dredged or fill material into "navigable waters" be expanded to include the water of the United States "the water of the United States". Under the District of Columbia court order, nearly every lake, stream, river and wetland in the country would be included. Federal permits would be required of a farmer who wanted to deepen an irrigation ditch or plow a field, or a rancher who wanted to enlarge his stock pond. The court directed that a revised version of the current regulations by published within 40 days of its March 27 decision. The Corps has distributed the proposed alternatives and invited comment in writing on or before June 6.

In the absence of a legal definition of the term "waters of the United States," the Corps said it is offering alternative regulations with varying scopes of application. They are:

No. 1 -- The plan favored by the EPA and using the EPA definition of "waters". It would extend Federal jurisdiction over disposal of dredged or fill material to virtually every coastal and inland artificial or natural body of water. The authority would extend to the monthly mean high tide mark or to the "aquatic vegetation line" whichever extends farther shoreline. The Corps said the measure would extend the authority to operations in areas protected by levees. It added, that under that definition, farmers might need a Federal permit before plowing or leveling land.

No. 2 -- Only coastal waters subject to tidal action to the mean highwater mark and vegetation line would be included. Inland water jurisdiction would be only to navigable waters and their primary tributaries up to the headwaters. In most cases a permit wouldn't be required for disposal of less than 100 yards of material.

No. 3 -- The broad definition as in No. 1. However, current permit procedures would be followed only for disposal of material into navigable waters. Applications for disposal into non-navigable waters would not be processed unless there was an objection to the proposal from a state agency.

No. 4 -- The plan favored by the Corps would use the definition in No. 2 and the initial State certification requirements of No. 3 before processing a permit for disposal into non-navigable waters.

Under any of the alternatives, the EPA could have veto power on proposed permits, if it finds the disposal unacceptably adverse to municipal water supplies, shell fish beds, fishery areas of wildlife and recreation areas. The Corps said that discharge of fill material on wetlands will not be permitted unless the applicant is able to demonstrate that the operation is significantly dependent on the water resources and is in the public interest. The regulations are on materials put into intermittent streams, or those areas that are dry part of the year, and on lands subject to "periodic inundation" only. It added the regulations are on disposal of dredged or fill material and not on permits for construction of piers, wharfs, pilings, dikes, or dams. (TEXAS POLLUTION REPORT, May 14, 1975)

LAND USE PLANNING
Congressman Steiger from Arizona in the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs moved to table H.R. 3510 "Land Use and Resource Conservation Act of 1975". The motion to table failed by a vote of 20 to 22. The following Texas Congressman voted "no" with regard to the motion to table: Steelman and Eckhardt.

The following Texas Congressman voted for tabling: Kazen and Parman.

TRADE WITH COMMUNISTS
The President of the United States, under the terms of the "Trade Act of 1974", has determined that an agreement on trade relations between the United States of America and the Socialist Republic of Romania will promote the purpose of the act and is in the national interest.

Outdoors in Texas
By: J. C. Roberts

Texas has long been known as king of the deer hunting states. Annually thousands of deer are harvested by expert and novice hunters alike. However, Texas offers a four footed animal for hunting where the ratio of success is well below that mark set by deer hunters. The aoudad sheep, transplanted in the rugged Palo Duro Canyon in 1957, are tough, smart, and mobile natives of North Africa. Many frustrated hunters call them "elevators" because of their ability to go up and down the sheer cliffs and bluffs of the Texas Panhandle. During the past 10 years, only some 400 sheep have been killed. This adds up to about 15 man hours per successful hunt. This year the season is from Nov. 15 - 21st and permits are issued by the landowners in the area. Tip of the Week: plastic worm fishing? Break off the leading 12 or 18 inches of line every hour or so and re-tie the hook. That portion gets worn, nicked, and weakened quicker, and can be the weak link in the chain.

Farm-facts

A Weekly Report Of Agri Business News

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

From Planting to Harvesting... Cattle on Feed Slips Again... Milk Production Declines... Cotton Production for 1974.

Texas agriculture during the last week in May is a many-contrasted thing. While farmers on the High Plains are in the midst of planting cotton, farmers in the Rio Grande Valley are making plans to harvest their crop in a short while. And as wheat harvest is ending in the south, harvest of the crop will soon begin in the northern areas.

The 1975 Texas wheat production is now estimated at 137,500,000 bushels, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Although this is down slightly from the earlier estimate, it still will be the largest crop on record. Yield is expected to average 25 bushels per acre, which is about a third more than last year.

Meanwhile, cotton planting over the state is about at the same level as a year ago. In the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Coastal Bend, early stands are squaring and setting fruit. Cotton harvest for 1975 should begin in June.

Sorghum planting is more than two-thirds complete. Stands are heading out from Central Texas to the Valley area. Prospects are good in those sections for at least a normal crop.

ALTHOUGH CATTLE FEEDING did show a slight increase a couple of months ago, that situation has reversed during April. As of May 1, there were 1,056,000 head of cattle and calves on feed in Texas. This is virtually 50 per cent below a year ago and five per cent under a month ago.

In the seven major feeding states-Texas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas-there were 5,589,000 cattle and calves on feed. This about the same as a month ago, but is 33 per cent less than a year ago.

APRIL MILK PRODUCTION throughout the state has declined three per cent from a year ago, but is slightly above the production of the previous month.

Milk production per cow averaged 835 pounds during April. Nationwide, milk production averaged 906 pounds per cow. Milk cows on farms are estimated to be down one half of one per cent from a year ago. The April milk-feed price ratio was one per cent below March, while the ratio was 10 per cent below a year ago.

JUST TO MAKE IT OFFICIAL, here is the latest count on the 1974 cotton crop. It is the smallest upland cotton crop produced in Texas since 1946. The 1974 crop totaled only 2,462,000 bales. This is only 53 per cent of the 1973 total.

Harvested acres are set at 4,400,000, down 15 per cent from the 1973 acreage. Yield per acre fell to only 269 pounds per acre; this compares with 431 pounds average production in 1973.

Indications for 1975 are that acreages will be down a million from 1974. The value of the 1974 crop is down 60 per cent from 1973. Cotton prices in 1974 averaged 35 cents per pound, compared with 46 cents per pound in 1973.

Cottonseed was an exception. That part of the cotton crop in 1974 averaged $120 per ton, which compares with the $93.50 per ton average in 1973.

Nationwide, the 1974 cotton crop is estimated at 11,540,100 bales; this is 11 per cent below the 1973 crop.
