New Post Office Opened Wednesday

Traffic Heavy At New Location

The postoffice moved to a new $130,000 home building, and patrons getting their mail in the new quarters this morning.

The Postal Department has also installed much new equipment in the building, according to Postmaster, Charles Townes, including 1,550 new lock boxes. Although the lobby is a bit small, there is ample working space for postal employees, an office for the postmaster, a customer service area which is separate from the lobby, large storage rooms, rest rooms, and a newly arranged area for rural carrier. Loading docks are on the west, adjacent to parking area for employees.

Contract for the building was let last October 21 by Charles B. Bomar, manager of the Oklahoma City Postal District.

Until Wednesday, Tahoka postoffice had occupied quarters on South First St. a short block west from the northwest corner of the square, since the mid-1920's built for lease to the postoffice by the late C. A. Thomas.

Parker Tells Of Rotary Meeting

Dayton Parker, recently installed as the new president of the Tahoka Rotary Club, last Thursday reported to local members on his trip accompanied by his wife Jewel, to the Rotary International convention in Montreal, Canada, on June 8-12.

They flew to and from Montreal by private plane.

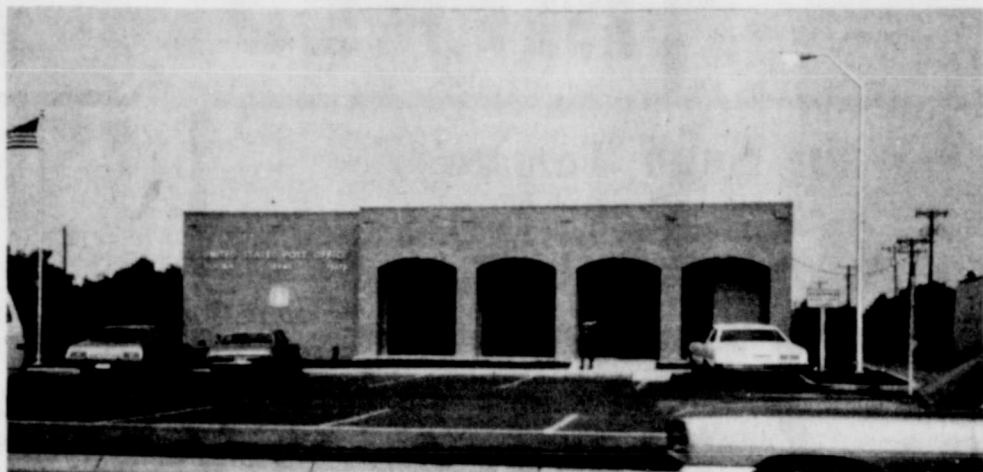

He told a number of humorous experiences they had en route and in the Canadian city and some of the highlights of the convention which was attended by 22,000 Rotarians and family members from most free countries in the world.

They were especially impressed by the efficient subway trains in the Canadian city, some of the outstanding speaker at the convention and the number of native Canadians who spoke French only.

Pioneer Writes Of Early Days

Some reminiscing on the early days in Lynn County are contained in a letter from Mrs. Odessa Henderson Powell, 801 S. Beverly Glen Blvd., Los Angeles, California, 90024.

Following are excerpts from her letter, altered a bit for continuity:

J. S. Wells and son in law, J. S. Welcher, bought out Sweet & King the first store (Dec 1903), a little later J. S. Wells & Sons Mercantile. My sister Johnnye and I passed by the store each morning on the way to school. Mr. Wells' daughter, Mrs. Welcher and son Coleman Wells were clerks in the store.

The Wells family was certainly a great help to building up Tahoka. The boys made up a baseball team, also the orchestra -- all musicians. Mr. Wells helped us to play our first basketball at school. Mr. Wells was the first family doctor - dentist.

My mother, Fannie N. Henderson, as you stated was postmistress. I appreciated you saying, "She was a gentle and clever lady." My father, W. E. Henderson, had the barber shop next door to the postoffice. Judge Haney, an attorney, was a frequent visitor in our home. He was constantly complimenting my mother as postmistress and also keeping house and sewing for our family and Mrs. Charley Doak, wife of our sheriff.

The Crie family were editors of the Lynn County News, and English family, seven children. We played games in streets at late P.M. -- Oh what fun!

Dr. Windham was family doctor, lived next door with Bob.

James Chambers was our grandfather. Brother, Uncle Bob Chambers was a jolly one! The Chambers, J. R. and Robert, Jane Chambers were my grandparents on mother's side of the house. Aunt Minnie Chambers, whom you mentioned was our teacher.

My father, Ed Henderson, filed on three sections of land one mile east of Tahoka, my grandfather two sections adjoining town section.

My father freighted all our supplies from Big Spring 80 miles away. He built a house, dug a well -- plenty of water -- irrigated an apple and peach orchard and garden.

He brought a piano from Big Spring. We held church on Sundays -- Dr. Pharr. Pres Phenix was the blacksmith, and Mr. Gilmore was the surveyor.

My Aunt Minnie saw to it that my sister and I graduated from Canyon, then West Texas State Normal.

I am so thankful to have been brought up in the good ole pioneer days, and feel sorry for kids reared in the city. They miss a great deal. Although I live in California I am a true Texan -- and proud of it.

We came to California in 1921. He and mother went into the building business with my husband and Johnnye's -- made a successful business. I now take care of our income property.

My son, J. C. Powell comes to Tahoka each year -- loves the sand! The Wright boys (George and Bryan) tend our farms, now through the second and third generations.

My son just brought me the latest Lynn County News, and what a thrill to see the picture of the first grand jury with my father in front with his white barber jacket and my little brother, Robert Elton standing by the Judge.

Corsetina cupped an ear toward the radio, a sodden dishmop, clutched her rubber gloved hand. "Shut up! Shut - up!" she screamed. "I can't hear the radio." The twins were wrestling on the floor. The elder was trying to place a large baggie over the head of the younger, who was busily fending him off with the point of an old WIN button. Corsetina struck at them with her dishmop. "Leave each other alone! Remember, if it wasn't for you I could be out in the business world as a Captain of Industry!" She posed dramatically. "I left a life of high paid glamorous work to raise you kids."

She thought to herself for a moment as a company president brain surgeon, television newscaster, professional football coach. Why did she have to be the mother of the only two children in the community who were rejected by the Federal Day Care Center?

"And now, the voice of Bella Abzug ..." Corsetina turned up the volume on the radio.

"Women of the world, arise! You have nothing to lose but your dishmops."

Corsetina pictured the face of a determined Bella underneath a monstrous hat, gibraltar jaw thrust forward eyeballs hard as marbles on either side of the magnificent nose.

"Yes," continued the voice of Bella Abzug, "the Equal Rights Amendment is now law. A great victory has been won. From this moment on there can be no distinction in the legal rights of men and women. We are all the same. Rejoice! Throw down that dishmop!" Corsetina threw down the dishmop. "Peel off the rubber gloves." Corsetina quickly peeled off the rubber gloves. "Take off that apron, and go and throw it at that miserable man who has kept you miserable at home as his slave!"

The voice on the radio was still screaming as Corsetina stumbled across the toy strewn floor to the living room where Slacky was dozing on front of the TV set. She gave him a shove.

"Eh? What's up, Wassa matter?"

"We've won," Cackled Corsetina. "The Equal Rights Amendment is the law of the land." She dropped the dishmop and rubber gloves in Slacky's lap. "Try doing your own dishes! Gloria and Helen Gurley and Bella have won. How I've waited for this moment!"

"Me too," snarled Slacky hauling himself out of the easy chair. "I don't have to put up with you and your mother another moment. See you later, I am putting in for divorce!"

"Is that so?" screamed Corsetina. "You walk out on me and I'll sue you for the most alimony any woman ever received. You won't have two cents to rub together."

"That's what you think," mimicked Slacky. "Your E. R. A. business says it's unconstitutional to expect a husband to support his family. It discriminates against him."

Corsetina rushed to telephone and dialed her chapter of the Womens Rights Organization. "Can my husband just walk out on me?" she howled into the telephone. "Who's going to support me and the kids?"

"You are, Comrade person," replied the NOW lady. "I suggest you get out and get yourself a job. It's time you started contributing to society."

Corsetina thought a moment. "I think I'd like a job as a acting person on a television soap opera, or maybe as a top executive of a stock brokerage house. Or maybe I could start medical school and become a psychiatrist."

"My dear," answered the NOW lady, "you've been watching too much television. Those glamour mobs exist for only the very few. If you want to work, you had better report to the Zorch factory at 6:30 in the morning. Our foreperson there will give you a job carrying zorches."

"You are getting a job only selfish males were allowed to do before the ERA was passed. You are going to say good bye to the kitchen and dirty housework. You are going to expand yourself as a woman."

"Oh, good," exclaimed Corsetina. "Where's my office, Where's my desk?; she began to giggle. "Do you think I'll be able to have a male secretary?"

"You're not getting a desk job, sweetie," the foreperson smiled through yellow teeth. "Your job is carrying those 65 pound zorches up three flights to the store-room."

Corsetina was indignant. "Now see here," she began. "I know something about labor laws. You are forbidden to require women to carry anything weighing more than ..."

Her voice trailed off. "That's right," said the foreperson. "Those laws don't count anymore. Imagine legislators thinking women needed protection in industry! Utter discrimination!"

Corsetina was exhausted by the end of the day, but when she got home the housework was sitting there waiting for her. So was the man from the Selective Service System.

"Why haven't you registered for the draft?" he demanded. "Did you think you were exempt because you are a woman?"

"I know I used to be," quavered Corsetina, accepting the papers.

"But not any more," growled the visitor. "Fill out that form immediately and we won't prosecute."

After the government man had left, Corsetina stumbled into Slacky's old chair and began to cry. INFANTRY! She had said she knew about infants so the draft people were going to put her in the infantry. She didn't want to live in a barracks and carry a rifle and heavy pack. Darn that Equal Rights Amendment anyway.

"Makes you wish we had the proabortion laws two years ago," she heard someone mutter. Corsetina glanced up to see two women picking their way across the clutter of toys, empty bottles, dinnerware, and potato - chip bags. She recognized them as two local leaders in the E. R. A. movement.

"We just let ourselves in sniffed the older woman. "Why are you relaxing? The ERA may be the law but now we women must see that it is enforced. It is our duty to break up the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. Just as a start. of course. Any organization that discriminates between men and women is going to change its ways or lose its tax exemption."

"We're already closing the Catholic churches," muttered the second woman. "They won't reopen until they allow women to become priests and men to become nuns."

"Why that's crazy!" gasped Corsetina. She rose to her feet. "Listen, I've had it with E.R.A. I only supported it because I thought it meant something like equal pay for equal work. I didn't think it would ruin my life. I never wanted to work in a factory. I don't want to be a soldier. I hate the E.R.A. I hate it!"

"Just as we thought," growled the NOW woman. "You are an unfit mother. Mildred and I were married Saturday and we have every right to petition the state to adopt your children. You are just letting them run wild. Your daughters are in dresses playing with dolls and your sons are in overalls playing with trucks."

"We'll give them a home where they won't know what they are!" chimed the companion.

"You can't get married. You are both women. You can't marry each other. You can't adopt my children!"

"Allow me to introduce myself," Apale and sad looking gentleman appeared at Corsetina's elbow. "I am Paul Freund of the Harvard Law School. I warned America months ago that if the Equal Rights Amendment were approved, the rights of homosexuals to marry and adopt children in every state of the union would be as much a part of the Constitution as the Bill of Rights. Remember what they did to the 14th Amendment and business -- affirmative action -- racial quotas." The voice began to trail off.

"Eeeeeooooowww!" Corsetina sat up poker straight. "The E.R.A.! The E.R.A.! Have they passed it? Have they passed it?"

"I don't think so," yawned her husband. "It still has to be approved by a few more states. Hey! Where are you going? Come back to bed."

"Not now dear. Not now!" There was a great determination in Corsetina's tone of voice. "I must go write letters to the governor, to the legislature, to the press.. anyone I can reach. The E. R. A. must be stopped."

Sherry Etheredge Says . . .

Coffee can be mild or robust, full-bodied or mellow or highly aromatic, depending on the beans used and the length of the roasting time. Most of the coffee sold in this country is American roast, which is the lightest and mildest in flavor. French roast coffee, is a little darker and stronger is popular for use in cafe au lait and breakfast coffee. Both American and French roast are used to make decaffeinated coffee. Italian roast coffee is darkest and strongest and is used for making espresso.

The blend of coffee you like depends on your own taste. If you are not satisfied with your coffee, try different blends until you find one you prefer, then stay with it.

Coffee for brewing may be bought already ground and canned or packaged, or as roasted beans to be ground to order in the store or in a home coffee grinder.

There's no special secret for brewing good coffee. Observance of the few simple rules below will assure delicious coffee every time.

1. Choose the grind that's right for your type coffee maker. A percolator uses regular (coarse) grind, a drip pot, drip (medium) grind a vacuum pot, fine grind.
2. Use fresh coffee. Although unopened cans will keep at least a year at room temperature, it's best to buy only as much as you will use in a week. After opening a can of coffee cover it tightly and store it in the refrigerator. It will retain optimum freshness for about a week. Keep coffee beans in an airtight container in the refrigerator use within three weeks.
3. Start with a thoroughly clean coffee maker. Wash it and all of its washable parts in hot sudsy water. Occasionally scrub hard-to-reach places with a small brush. Whenever you notice darkening by coffee

4. Use cold, fresh water. Mineral deposits in some hot tap water can give an off-flavor to brewed coffee.
5. Your coffee maker brews the best coffee when filled at least three quarters full.
6. Use the correct measurements. For each serving, use one level measuring teaspoon of coffee. (1 Approved coffee measure) and 3/4 cup cold, fresh water.
7. Time the brewing properly. Brewing extracts less desirable elements may make coffee bitter.
8. Never boil coffee, boiling causes undesirable flavor changes.
9. Always remove basket with used grounds before serving coffee.
10. Serve coffee as soon as possible after brewing, flavor and aroma are at their best. Coffee tastes better if kept warm rather than reheated; if necessary, hold it at serving temperature but no longer than an hour. For non-automatic coffee makers, place over low heat on an asbestos pad or put into a server and place over a candle warmer or on an electric trivet.

FACTS FOR YOU

from Texas Farm Bureau

HEALTH DEPARTMENT RE-ORGANIZED:

The National Health Planning and Resource Development Act of 1974 was added to a long list of U. S. laws seeking to provide centralized planning at the Federal level. The law is designated as Public Law 93-641 and amends the Public Health Service Act. The total program seeks to develop a National Health Policy.

The Texas Legislature, seeking to cooperate with federal programs, amended state laws providing authority for the State Health Department to cooperate with the federal National Health Planning programs. The Texas law has been approved and added to the law books in the form of the Texas Health Planning and Development Act (H. B. 2164).

The state law renames the State Health Department as the Department of Health Resources and increases the size of the State Health Board from 9 to 18 members. In summary, state law in cooperation with the federal law now provides that the state of Texas has the authority to "cooperate" with the National Health Planning and Development Program. The state will be permitted input into the planning process, but the final decision will be directed by the federal regulations. To accomplish this goal there is to be a health systems agency which is a public regional planning body. It will be a unit of general local government, in addition to other governing bodies. The governing board of the regional planning body is to be composed of 60 percent citizens and 40 percent professional people. The responsibility of the governing body will be to direct a regional program including budget, staff, formation and implementations of plans, approval of grants and the issuance of annual reports.

As far as the dairy and dairy products inspection program is concerned, it will operate in compliance with the federal guidelines as directed by the system.

THE REGULATORS:

THE U. S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT, on June 30, 1975, contains an article entitled "The 'Regulators' They Cost You $130 Billion A Year." The article revealed that there is a small army of federal regulators amounting to 63,444. The estimated yearly costs of consumers of government regulators are as follows: Economic regulations $45 - $60 billion, including regulation of transportation, labor, energy, agriculture, financial institutions, foreign domestic trade practices, among other things.

Environmental regulations cost $50-$60 billion, and health safety products regulations cost more than $10 billion. When this is broken down, it amounts to $2,000 for each American family. It can be concluded with safety that the life in America would be improved if government regulators were eliminated. The American dream is designed to hold each individual citizen responsible for his actions -- self regulation.

STATE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS - ARTICLE III:

The amendments to be voted on in November under the heading of Proposition I (see FACTS FOR YOU, June 6, 1975, page 133), if approved will add a new Article III to the State Constitution.

The new Article III entitled, "The Legislature" is composed of 15 sections compared to 65 sections in the present Constitution. Some of these provisions and activities are shifted to other articles, but some are simply left out. A review of the article, as it applies strictly to the organization of the Legislative Department indicate the following changes:

(1) Adds a provision for preliminary organizational sessions.

(2) Provides for regular annual sessions, not to exceed 140 days in odd numbered years and 90 days in even numbered years and a veto session of not more than 15 days when requested' by three-fourths of the membership.

(3) Does not actually name subjects on which local and special laws are prohibited.

(4) Provides a salary commission to recommend maximum compensation and allowances for members. There are a large number of requirements and limitations in the present constitution that are not carried forward in the new constitution. For example, sections 51(A) places a limit on the amount of money to be spent in assisting the needy the new proposal simply leaves this to the judgement of the State Legislature.

In summary, Article III, as composed will establish and provide the operation of a state legislature, composed of a Senate and House of Representatives, with annual sessions and compensation determined by a committee with very few restrictions on what can be legislated.

STATE TAX LEGISLATION 1975:

The Texas Research League has released a brief analysis of the State tax legislation approved by the State Legislature in 1975. The report released the following figures with regard to anticipated revenue loss as a result of the provisions of H.B. 546 for the two years beginning on September 1, 1975;

ANTICIPATED REVENUE LOSS FROM H.B. 546, 1976 1977 BIENNIIUM: Changes in Tax Laws: Sales Tax Exemptions; Franchise Tax Changes; Admissions Tax Changes; Property Tax Exemptions; Cigar Tax Reduction; Taxes Repealed; Biennial Revenue Loss: $1,670,980; 1,122,900; 496,000; 8,600; 100,000; 92,870; Total: $3,491,350. (Bulletin on Texas State Finance, Texas Research League, June 23, 1975)

There is another new law amending the limited sales excise and use tax laws (H. B. 2195). This law provides some additional tax exemptions for farmers and ranchers. The wording added by the new law to sub-paragraph (6) of section (N) of Article 20.04, Title 122A, Taxation, is as follows: "machinery, equipment and goose-hack trailers exclusively used in the processing and packing or marketing of agricultural products by the original producer at a location operated by the original producer, exclusively for processing

Lynn County News

PREDATOR CONTROL: Doug Gipson, President of the Wyoming Farm Bureau Federation, has announced that the producers and their friends have won a U. S. District Court decision on June 12, 1975, clearing the way for the interstate shipment of three predator control chemicals. U. S. District Court Judge, Ewin T. Kerr, said that his court could not sit idly by and see one of their principal industries possibly extinguished through action or failure of action by a Federal agency, when it is within the power of the court to grant relief. The court also noticed that both the U. S. and Wyoming have laws regulating predator control and he could see no reason why the statute should become inactive solely through the conduct of the federal agency.

GAS USE CURTAILED: The Federal Energy Office has notified nine Midwest utilities of its intention to prohibit the burning of oil and natural gas as primary energy sources. Other power plants will receive the similar notices between now and June 30. The high priority Federal Energy Administration program is aimed at cutting U. S. reliance on imported oil. (Energy Reporter, June, 1975)

THE FEDERAL RAT HOLE HUMAN EVENTS OF June 21, 1975 contained a special supplement entitled "The Federal Rat Hole" by Donald Lambro. Lambro pointed out 20 places where the Federal government could start slashing billions from the Federal budget. Reprints of the article are available from HUMAN EVENTS, 422-1st Street, SE, Washington, D. C. 20003 at a cost of 30 cents per copy; 10 for $2.50, 50 for $10.00; 100 for $15.00.

Donald Lambro is the editor of a book entitled "The Federal Rat Hole" published by Arlington House at $7.95.

West Texas Boys Ranch Rodeo July 12: The 14th Annual All Boy Rodeo at West Texas Boys Ranch will be held in the West Texas Boys Ranch arena, Texas Boys Ranch arena, Sa; turday, July 12 at 7:00 p.m. according to Buck Owens of Barnhart, rodeo chairman. featured attraction at this year's rodeo will be the San Angelo Saddle Club in a polo exhibition.

There is no admission charge to the rodeo. Barbeque will be served for $2.00 per plate, serving 5:30 p.m. until 7:11 p.m.

Boys Ranchers will be competing for All Around Cowboy trophy buckle and ribbons for events such as calf riding, steer riding, goat sacking, goat tying, and other events, Owens said.

Judging will be by Benny Friend and Bill Shaw of San Angelo with stock to be furnished by West Texas Boys Ranch.

The rodeo was started in 1961 as an All Boy event for the boys at the ranch to compete and since has become a traditional July favorite with the public.

Question: "Is it true that Betty Grable died of lung cancer? I thought that it only hit men."

ANSWERline: Lung cancer did take her life as it does the lives of thousands of women. It is a myth that women don't get lung cancer. The female lung cancer death rate has doubled in the past ten years. The American Cancer Society has a special leaflet on women and smoking that the Society hopes will put the facts before the female population. It is free for the asking at your local ACS office.

A science student asks: "How long has cancer research been going on?"

ANSWERline: Cancer research as we know it got its greatest push after the Second World War when the American Cancer Society and the Federal Government began massive programs of support. Of course, people have been looking for the answer to cancer since earliest times as ancient records indicate.

CROP DISASTER PROGRAM

Crop Disaster Program has been modified this year. However, your best bet if you have wheat, corn, milo or cotton damages by natural disasters is to check immediately with your ASC committee. To trigger the program, your total production must be less than two-thirds of your farm yield for the crop adjusted by a factor reflecting the 10 year county yield times your allotment. Once you achieve this, the county committee will work out the specific loss using another crop following a disaster, USDA won't deduct proceeds of that crop from your payments under the disaster program.

Last year 318,000 grain and cotton farmers received $52.5 million under the program. Several received more than the legal limit of $20,000 per farm. USDA is now in the process of getting back the overpayments (DOANE'S AGRICULTURAL REPORT, June 20, 1975).

FARM MANAGEMENT BY EPA:

The Executive Branch should create a new office to provide comprehensive analyses of major national concerns such as energy, environment, food, and population including a long range approach to such issues. (Excerpted from "Environmental Information", Office of Public Affairs, U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, May 1975)

SHEEPS CRAPIE:

The United States Department of Agriculture has proposed to stop salvaging sheep and goats exposed to the disease Scrapie -- a disease of nervous system. The Department also in time, proposes to raise the indemnity rate and broaden conditions under which federal indemnities could be paid for losses from the disease.

MONEY SUPPLY:

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL of June 20, 1975, reported that the nation's money supply continued to surge in the week ending June 11, 1975, according to figures released by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The Federal estimated the money supply averaged a seasonally adjusted $294.1 billion in the week, up from $292.3 billion the previous week.

In the latest four weeks the figures indicated, the money supply grew at an annual rate of more than 20 percent, sharply faster than the announced 5 percent to 7 1/2 percent long-term targets of the Fed. The money supply is the total of private demands deposits, plus cash in the public hands. It is considered a key economic determinant.

COTTON PRICES:

It is difficult, if not possible to report the true market price received by producers for any agriculture commodity. However, there are some figures that do show trends in market price that might be helpful. The following cotton prices are reported by the Natural Fiber Economic Research Letter of June 10, 1975:

For the period of February 14, 1975 through June 13, 1975, the ten market average for strict low middling 1-

1 16 inch cotton reached its highest point on May 16 at 42.25 cents per pound. From that point on the trend was downward to 41.9 cents per pound on June 13. The Dallas market followed much the same trend, reaching a high point on the same day, then trending downward to 45.5 cents. The New York futures market quoted its high of 47.25 cents per pound on May 2, 1975 and trended downward to 45.8 cents per pound on June 13, 1975.

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS

Dr. J. D. Bilbro, USDA Agricultural Research Service Agronomist at Lubbock cites a recently completed three-year study measuring the relationship of maximum and minimum air temperatures and first bloom dates for High Plains cotton for his conclusions.

"Even if there were no other complicating factors the sub normal temperatures we have had this spring have delayed the blooming of May planted cotton by at least six days," says Bilbro.

"Add to that the delaying effects of hail, blowing sand, diseases and insect attacks, and we have a total delay of about 10 days to two weeks."

A medium maturing variety of cotton planted on May 1 can be expected to bloom by July 7 in an average year, according to Bilbro's research data. But this year, it will probably not bloom before July 17 to July 21

Question: "Is it true that Betty Grable died of lung cancer? I thought that it only hit men."

ANSWERline: Lung cancer did take her life as it does the lives of thousands of women. It is a myth that women don't get lung cancer. The female lung cancer death rate has doubled in the past ten years. The American Cancer Society has a special leaflet on women and smoking that the Society hopes will put the facts before the female population. It is free for the asking at your local ACS office.

A science student asks: "How long has cancer research been going on?"

ANSWERline: Cancer research as we know it got its greatest push after the Second World War when the American Cancer Society and the Federal Government began massive programs of support. Of course, people have been looking for the answer to cancer since earliest times as ancient records indicate.

Screwworm Infestations On Increase

AUSTIN--Current moisture and temperature conditions throughout most of Texas are ideal for the spread of screwworms, a parasite which infests the wounds of livestock.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said that 1975 infestation reports to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Screwworm Eradication Program in Mission had risen to 85 by April 21. Fifty-four of these came from 15 Texas counties during early April.

April cases have been recorded as far north as Val Verde, Kinney, Uvalde, Frio, Atascosa and DeWitt counties. According to a USDA representative in Mission, these infestations pose a direct threat to the Big Bend, Trans-Pecos, Hill Country and Coastal Bend regions.

The Four H's: Head, Heart, Hands and Health!

CHICAGO—Finding a doctor and getting to the hospital can be very real problems for persons living in rural areas. In fact, the scarcity of medical services in small town and farming communities has prompted the USDA to label rural health care "one of the major concerns in the nation today."

Careers as rural health professionals may eventually attract some of the 333,969 boys and girls from 9 to 19 currently enrolled in national 4-H health projects and activities. In its 20th year of sponsorship by Eli Lilly and Company, the program covers all aspects of the fourth H—the one that stands for Health—in the 4-H cloverleaf emblem.

4-H'ers learn by doing. Learn-by-doing projects are the core of the program. Under the supervision of the Cooperative Extension Service, 4-H members participate in a variety of personal, family and community health activities geared to their special interests and abilities.

4-H'ers learn the importance of preventive health care, including adequate sleep and exercise, good personal hygiene, regular medical checkups, immunizations, and a balanced diet.

In family-centered projects, 4-H'ers record health histories of brothers and sisters, update emergency phone lists, and study first aid techniques.

Projects benefit community. Last year's national winners of the seven college scholarships donated by Eli Lilly pinpointed community health problems and worked at solving them.

One 1975 winner launched a preventive dentistry program for migrant workers and their children, started a blood bank donor list in her county, and initiated a cancer education drive.

Other national winners organized 4-H clubs for retarded children, campaigned for better garbage disposal, joined volunteer ambulance units, and helped institute local mosquito control measures.

In addition to seven national scholarships of $800, Eli Lilly provides an expense-paid trip to the 54th National 4-H Congress, Nov. 30-Dec. 4 in Chicago, to one top 4-H'er from each state. The company also offers up to 10 certificates per state to 4-H clubs conducting outstanding health programs.

Medals of honor are awarded to a maximum of four members per county, and up to four clubs in each county are eligible for certificates of merit for worthy health programs.

All winners are selected by the Extension Service on the basis of their records of accomplishment. Awards are arranged and announced by the National 4-H Service Committee.

County extension agents can furnish more information on this and other 4-H programs.

Health careers may attract some of the young people 9-19 now participating in 4-H health projects and activities supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service. For the 20th year Eli Lilly and Company is providing awards to 4-H'ers for outstanding achievement in the program.

Misinformation Slows Brucellosis Program

AUSTIN—"Just plain misinformation" is slowing full implementation of the brucellosis eradication program in Texas, according to Dr. H. Q. Sibley, executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission.

The State-Federal program was begun in 1934 on a voluntary basis to eliminate this disease, mainly in cattle. Since 1954, regulations have been evolving into a workable system which includes testing cattle to find infected animals to slaughter.

Identification of market animals for tracing, investigation of infected herds, and vaccination of replacement calves in high-risk areas are features of the current program.

"Misconceptions and rumors about the program have seriously affected complete cooperation in some counties," Dr. Sibley stated.

For example, reports were recently circulated to cattlemen that the commission would quarantine all of a man's herd, rather than just the pasture where the reactor was found and would extend the quarantine to all adjacent pastures.

"The commission has always had the authority to take these steps, but has not used it except in unusual cases. We have no intention of making it a general policy to quarantine all adjacent or all of a farm or ranch unless the disease distribution warrants such action," Dr. Sibley explained.

"Most cattlemen cooperate with the program. It is those who do not realize the seriousness of the disease who may not be truthful about the location of herds where reactors have been found.

"We sometimes have to place a quarantine on all the animals until we find the infected ones," Dr. Sibley said.

A cooperative education program has been undertaken by the commission, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Texas Farm Bureau, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The purpose is to explain the serious effects of the disease on the marketing of cattle and the regulations under the program works.

High Plains Eliminates Castor Beans

AUSTIN—Farmers on the High Plains are getting out of the castor bean business. According to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, farmers have not indicated intentions to plant any acreage in the castor plant in 1975.

The High Plains is the only area in Texas where castor beans have been raised. The oil of the castor bean is used in the production of castor oil, paints, varnishes, hair oils and hydraulic fluids.

Production of the plant, which has never been a popular crop among High Plains farmers, decreased significantly last year. Only 800 acres were harvested in 1974 compared to 11,000 a year earlier.

White explained that the high prices commanded by cotton, grain sorghum and soybeans in 1973 and 1974 helped to draw farmers away from the relatively poorly-priced castor bean.

Higher, Higher, How Much Higher? ... Changes in Brucellosis Indemnity ... Summertime Harvests.

Last March, during the annual National Pork Congress held in the Midwest, a few brave optimists were talking about hogs "hitting $50 a few markets by late summer." It sounded good, but not too much was made of it.

Now hog prices during the first few weeks of summer have hit the $60 area in many markets across the nation.

Why? Take a look at the hog numbers. Here in Texas we are not the nation's leading hog state, but what happened here is similar to the situations in the major hog states.

As of June 1, hogs and pigs on Texas farms totaled 800,000 head. That doesn't mean much by itself, but put it in perspective and you find that hog numbers in the state are at their lowest level since 1966. It also is a decrease of 14 per cent from a year ago. Breeding hog numbers are 20 per cent under a year ago.

Nationwide, the same story is true. Hog numbers are at their lowest level since 1964. The number kept for breeding, at 7.4 million, is down 17 per cent, and market hogs and pigs are down 19 per cent.

For the future, it appears, say economists, that hog prices should hold up through the year. Hog producers intend to farrow 4.7 million sows now through November, which is 13 per cent below a year ago and down 19 per cent from two years ago.

REVISION IN THE REGULATIONS for paying indemnity to owners of cattle destroyed because of brucellosis as well as tuberculosis have been announced. They are:

1. Allowing indemnity payments for nonregistered (grade) bulls affected with brucellosis. Formerly, no indemnity was paid for these bulls.

2. Limiting to 15 days the extension periods which may be allowed for each of the following: identifying infected cattle, destroying infected and exposed cattle, and cleaning and disinfecting contaminated premises.

Changes in the tuberculosis indemnity payments are: A. Allowing indemnity payments for unregistered (grade) bulls and steers affected with tuberculosis and for certain cattle which have been exposed to the disease.

B. Allowing payments for half the cost of destroying cattle disposed of because of tuberculosis-including half the cost of transporting such animals to the point of disposal-with prior approval by the federal veterinarian in charge.

C. Limiting to 15 days the extension periods allowed for destroying affected cattle, and cleaning and disinfecting contaminated premises.

SUMMERTIME HARVEST of wheat, sorghum, and other crops in Texas continues in spite of the usual slowdowns for showers and equipment repairs.

Wheat harvest for the state is now more than three-fourths completed; this is behind schedule of the past few years. Harvesting on the dryland crop is virtually complete, and is now underway in the irrigated sections.

Cotton harvesting on a major basis is still in the offing, although the first bale of cotton for the 1975 crop has been ginned.

Sorghum harvest is moving northward from South Texas; yields in that area are down from earlier estimates due to dry weather.
