Lynn County's Oil and Gas Production

Production of crude oil and natural gas in 1974 had a significant impact on the economy of Lynn County, with the estimate of the county's royalty payments to state severance reaching new highs. The increase of our production, which produced $100,000 in a year, is the total value of production jump from $6.7 billion to $10.4 billion.

energy state," said Sherman Hunt, a Dallas independent oil man who is president of Texas Mid-Continent. "In the face of declining production in Texas, it is significant that this increased return to royalty owners and producers some from crude oil and natural gas which is free from restrictive federal price controls. But there are at this time proposals in Congress which would place all of Texas' petroleum production under federal price controls, with predictable disastrous consequences for the industry as well as the whole economy of the state. Hunt said.

The survey also shows that the State of Texas received $72,000 in production taxes from county wells, with $70,000 coming from crude oil output and $2,000 from natural gas production. Oil and gas developers and producers spent an estimated $666,000 drilling nine wells in the county last year, with 87.8 percent of that figure lost in eight dry holes. The total drilling yielded one oil well. The exploratory effort in the county included the drilling of eight wildcat wells seeking new oil and gas fields.

Sherry Etheredge Says . . .

While the making of fragrant, delicious, yeast-raised bread is an art, it one that can be acquired readily. And the rewards in terms of good eating and good nutrition are well worth the effort. Yeast-raised breads made with enriched flour, supply carbohydrates, protein, iron, niacin, riboflavin and thiamine, and are included in the basic groups of food that should be eaten every day for continued good health.

Making breads with yeast is not hard. Nor does it take your time. The measuring, mixing, kneading, teasing, shaping often require less than half an hour. While the bread is rising and baking, you can be busy at other things about the house.

Ingredients:
Yeast: Yeast is the leavening agent for the breads in this chapter. A living plant, it feeds on the sugar in the dough and produces the gas that makes the dough expand and rise. It also gives a unique aroma and flavor.

Active dry yeast dissolves and acts quickly in these recipes. It is packed in individual airtight packages and will stay fresh and give excellent results for several months until the expiration date marked on the package.

Compressed or fresh yeast comes in 0.6-1 and 2-ounce cakes. It is perishable and must be kept in the refrigerator. It may be kept in the freezer for several months, but must be thawed at room temperature and then used immediately.

Active dry and compressed yeast can be used interchangeably in these recipes. One package active dry yeast equals one 0.6-ounce cake compressed yeast. Compressed yeast must be dissolved before using.

Flour: Wheat flour is best for making breads since it contains gluten which stretches during beating and kneading and traps the gas formed by the yeast, producing a light, airy product. All purpose flour is wheat flour. Whole-wheat flour has less gluten and makes heavier smaller breads. For greater volume, whole-wheat and other special flours such as rye and oatmeal usually are mixed with wheat flour.

Liquid: Milk and water are the liquids most often used for making bread. The milk may be whole or skim-milk or evaporated milk used as is or diluted. Milk gives breads a soft crust and creamy white crumb; water produces a crisp crust.

Be sure the liquid is at the temperature given in the recipe. If too hot, it may kill the yeast and so keep the dough from rising. If too cold, it will slow the yeast and lengthen rising time.

Sugar: Sugar is the food on which the yeast grows to produce the gas that makes bread rise. White sugar is most often used; brown sugar, molasses and honey also give good results when called for in recipes.

Fat: Fats add flavor, make bread tender, help bread stay soft. Butter, margarine, shortening, salad oil or lard all may be used.

Other ingredients: Salt adds flavor, helps control yeast growth. Eggs add color, flavor and richness. Herbs, spices, fruits, nuts provide extra flavor and food value but slow the rising time.

OATMEAL - RAISIN CASSEROLE LOAF:
5 cups all purpose flour

1 cup quick-cooking or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
1 tablespoon salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1/2 cup molasses
1/3 cup shortening
2 eggs
2 cups dark seedless raisins
3/4 cups confectioners sugar

EARLY IN THE DAY:

1. In large bowl, combine 3 cups flour, oats, salt and yeast. In medium sauce pan over low heat, heat 2 cups water, molasses and shortening until very warm (120 degrees to 130 degrees F.) (Shortening does not need to be melted.) With mixer at low speed, gradually pour liquid into dry ingredients. Increase speed to medium; beat 2 minutes, occasionally scraping bowl with rubber spatula. With spoon, stir in eggs, raisins and 2 cups flour. Cover with waxed paper; refrigerate 3 hours.

2. Grease 3 quart round casserole. With well greased hands, shape dough (do not knead) into large ball. Place ball in casserole and cover with towel. Let rise in warm place (80 degrees to 85 degrees F.) away from draft, until doubled, about 1 hour.

3. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Bake bread 1 hour and 10 minutes or until golden and loaf sounds hollow. when lightly tapped with fingers. Cool in casserole 10 minutes remove from casserole to cool completely on wire rack.

4. When loaf is cool, in small cup, stir confectioners sugar with about 4 teaspoons water until blended, used to frost top of bread. Makes 1 loaf.

TEXAS TALK
By Fred Myers

Protein potency is one of the terms being used to describe the positive aspects of beef promoters arguments supporting the favorable factors of beef protein versus plant protein. The beef backer with one of the most impressive data accumulations to support the meat producers position is Dr. Bruce Taylor, an animal nutritionist at Arizona University. Dr. Taylor says one of the most important aspects of judging protein is an evaluation of the amount of protein actually utilized by the body compared to the amount of intake. Using a scale with egg protein rated at 100, Dr. Taylor says beef would rate at 80 and corn and milo at 56. Citing statistics based on feeding out a 650 pound steer with a ton of grain, Dr. Taylor says the human body would actually utilize exactly the same weight of protein whether consuming the 160 pounds of protein in the feed or the 112 pounds in the finished steer. His final conclusion . . . a choice between corn and milo or beef.

Outdoors in Texas
By: J. C. Roberts

It's been four weeks since I returned from my bear hunt in Colorado, and I know this column is about Texas, but "bear" with me this week as we brag a little. Our hunt was in Colorado, near Chromo, along the Navajo River. Snow was still melting in the high country along Vigil Mesa where we hunted, but out of the shade the weather was hot. The bears were just out of their winter dens and prowling day and night for that summer meal. The black bear that fell to my old .300 H&H Magnum had a good coat, and the meat was good. It took 4 days in the blind, 12 hours a day, before he showed up at the waterhole to taste the bait. The Elk hunting should be good this fall, but the coyotes have taken their toll of deer.

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS

Farmers and ranchers put a considerable amount of time into planning their production operation. Yet, one of the most important plans a farm safety plan -- is often neglected.

Farm safety plans are being given special emphasis this year during National Farm Safety Week, July 25-31.

A good farm safety program will help avoid accidents, protect you and your workers, save lives and money, show that you are concerned and boost morale.

The first step in planning a farm safety program is to make a checklist of the potential accident hazards on your farm or ranch. Such a checklist might include the following:

1. Clear out rubbish and litter around buildings, yards, and roadways.
2. Check stairwells and ladder openings for secure handrails and check ladders for soundness.
3. Check roads, especially intersections for good visibility.
4. See that guards and shields are secure on machinery and equipment.

5. Shut off power before servicing any power equipment.

6. Keep dry chemical fire extinguishers and first aid kits in place.

7. Give careful attention to electrical equipment. Check wiring for proper insulation and possible breaks be sure electrical circuits are protected by circuit breakers or fuses of the proper rating, use only tools with double insulated construction or three wired grounded cords, and watch for overhead wires when handling elevators, augers, irrigation pipe or ladders.

8. Store agricultural chemicals in original containers with legible labels and keep them under lock and key.

9. Wear protective equipment when using chemicals.

10. Keep elevated fuel tanks at least 40 feet from buildings.

11. Use special care if you smoke.

12. Keep small children away from barns, pens, and feedlots containing animals.

13. Keep livestock handling equipment -- chutes, corals, stalls -- in good repair. Planning does prevent accidents. A little time spent in planning a safe farm operation can spare the pain, grief time and money losses accidents can inflict on you and your farming and ranching success.

Texas Wild Flowers

by Carroll Abbott

The Texas Bluebell (Eustoma species) is rarely blue, being mostly violet and purple, and is so breath-stealingly beautiful in bouquets that it has been picked into extinction in some places.

The broad-petaled, three-inch flowers appear atop silvery blue foliage on long stems in late Summer and early Fall. The blossoms are extremely long-lasting and buds continue to open long after the stems are cut.

Bluebells are members of the Gentian Family. They are winter annuals and have tiny black seeds. They once ranged all across the state except for the Piney

Texas Taxes

By BOB BULLOCK
State Comptroller

Austin. — While I was in Dallas, recently conducting our operations shutting down several businesses for not paying their sales tax. I talked by phone with my sister in Hillsboro.

That conversation brought up some points which I think should be remembered by every taxpayer and every business operator in Texas. My sister asked what I thought would be the effect of putting so many people out of work by closing down their employers.

In the first place, we didn't put anyone out of work—their employers did that by failing or refusing to pay their taxes. I don't believe the State Comptroller has to take one iota of blame for carrying out his legal responsibilities against any business which has failed to carry out its legal responsibilities—namely to pay its taxes.

Let's look at whose money we are really talking about when we talk about a business failing to pay "its" taxes.

Sales tax money is money which you, the buying public, has had added on the bottom of your cash check or added to the sales ticket when you bought a shirt. It's a nickle on every dollar—and you pay from the business' profits. It's your money and it comes from your pockets.

There was a letter to the editor in the Dallas News recently which made the point real clear. The writer simply observed that he couldn't walk out of a restaurant and pay for only the price of the meal. He can't get out of the place without paying his sales tax.

There are tens of thousands of good honest businesses in Texas paying "their" taxes. If their competitors down the street are putting the five per cent sales tax in their pockets—or in their business operations—it is an unfair, five per cent advantage at the expense of the honest business operator, the taxpayer and the State.

I don't intend to tolerate it.

We don't "raid" businesses and "seize" their property just because we have the authority to do it or just because we want to be tough. We take these drastic steps only after all other efforts have failed. We will walk the last mile with any business to try to work out an agreement and keep them in business and their employees working—but when good faith breaks down we have no alternative.

One of the most rewarding compliments I've ever heard came from a man whose television business we shut down.

"I just kept putting it off. I'm not mad. I know you're right."

FACTS FOR YOU

from Texas Farm Bureau

FREEDOM'S SEED:

Philo Gossard, an author is credited with organizing the Virginia organization of London, company of London, referred to as The London Company in about 1607. Three ships sponsored by the London Company sailed for the new land in December of 1606 with 22 colonists on board.

Records that a new settlement in the London area when Sir Edwin was elected treasurer. Shortly thereafter, the treasurer, in April of 1609, appointed Sir George as governor. These records led to a new charter for the Jamestown settlement which had failed. The fact was that the common house was closed and all law used to enforce communal plan was abolished. Under the revised charter each man worked for himself and was entitled to the profits that he gained. Sir Robert Sandys and the London Company agreed that interest in the settlement had a share in the land. There was an agreement to each plantation asking that a deed be sent to a general assembly and the company in form of laws of the colony. This meeting was the first representative assembly in America and it laid the foundation for government by the people of the continent. From this "something new" to grow in the new world was a constitutional republic based on the idea that rights of the people are above the rights of government. If this seed is destroyed, the United States will be no different from any other country.

label it what you will. (These remarks were taken from QUEST OF A HEMISPHERE by Donzella Cross Boyle, p 54-57.)

BRUCELLOSIS INDEMNITY PROGRAM:

USDA has announced that separate indemnity regulations relating to cattle destroyed because of brucellosis from those which relate to cattle destroyed because of tuberculosis. The announced purpose of this new regulation is to clarify the existing authority for the payment of brucellosis indemnity for cattle destroyed when certain herds are depopulated. The Department regulations define "herd" and "herd depopulation" as follows: (M) Herd: Any group of animals (of like kind) maintained on common ground for any purpose, or two or more groups of animals (of like kind) under common ownership or supervision, geographically separated but which have an interchange of movement of animals without regard to health status.

(1) Breeding cattle are to be tested for brucellosis when they are moved interstate from areas of herds that lack "certified brucellosis free" designation.

(2) Cattle found exposed to brucellosis are to be heat branded on the left jaw with the letter "S" before they are shipped to slaughter or to quarantine feedlots.

(3) Cattle exposed to brucellosis may be returned to farms of origin for testing under quarantine without the "S" branding.

(4) Calves less than six months old may be moved from infected herds.

(5) Cattle from "qualified" herds in non-certified areas may be moved to certified areas.

It is futile to attempt a discussion of the brucellosis program without the understanding the definitions, as recorded in the regulations. Definitions used in the regulations do not necessarily fit dictionary definitions. Anyone wishing for more detailed definitions of these regulations, contact the County Farm Bureau Office.

This discussion has concerned itself with federal regulations only. If cattle are to be moved across state lines, they must at least meet these federal standards. There are also state rules and regulations which often are more restrictive than the federal standards. The purpose of this discussion is to inform County Farm Bureau leaders as to the federal standards, which are minimum.

The Texas Farm Bureau Research Department does maintain a copy of the federal regulations as well as the various state requirements.

It is impossible to protect life and maintain public order when individuals have unregulated access to firearms.

Therefore, the Church records its support for the licensing provisions of all gun owners and the registration of all firearms. Licensing provisions should require adequate identification of gun owners and provide basic standards with respect to age, absence or mental illness, and lack of serious criminal record. These and other objective standards, should be applied in determining the denial of any license. Reasonable and effective state licensing and registration provisions should be required by federal law. If states fail to act within two years to provide adequate measures in accordance with federal standards then federal licensing and registration provisions should apply.

Therefore, the Church records its support for the licensing provisions of all gun owners and the registration of all firearms. Licensing provisions should require adequate identification of gun owners and provide basic standards with respect to age, absence or mental illness, and lack of serious criminal record. Eldon Akin Receives Honor

Eldon Akin, vice president of business services for Methodist Hospital has been accepted as a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators. Membership will be conferred during the 41st convocation ceremony of the College in Chicago, August 17, announced George M. Brewer, president of the hospital.

Seminars and educational programs of the college are designed to increase knowledge of their special fields in hospital administration. Requirements for Akin's membership included three years as a nominee to the college. He passed oral examinations, given during the May convention of the Texas Hospital Association in Houston and extensive written tests.

Akin became chief accountant for Methodist Hospital in August, 1967. Prior positions include secretary treasurer for J. B. Knight Co. in Brownfield and Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. Certified Public Accountants in Midland. He is a graduate of Texas Tech University.

Akin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Akin of Tahoka.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has the authority to extend outstanding producer loans on 1974-crop cotton. But USDA announced on May 23 this year that loans would not be extended.

Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., a long time advocate of an 18-month cotton loan, has been urging USDA to reconsider that decision. But to date the PCG requests have fallen on deaf ears. A letter from USDA, written July 9 in response to a request from Congressman George Mahon, purports to justify the Department's refusal to authorize an extension. And, strangely enough, some of the reasons given for the refusal are the same reasons used by PCG in asking for the extension.

The loan program was designed as a mechanism to facilitate the producer's need to hold agricultural commodities off the market during times of burdensome supplies and unacceptable prices—the exact condition in which cotton finds itself in 1975. Heavy cotton stocks in the U.S. and abroad, coupled with slack demand for textile products around the globe, have driven prices to a point well below the cost of production.

But the situation appears to be improving. The worldwide recession appears to be bottoming, textile demand is showing a little life, and 1975 cotton production is almost certain to be below that of 1974.

USDA's letter to Congressman Mahon points out that U.S. supplies of cotton should be "more than adequate" to meet projected domestic and export requirements for 1975-76. It also agrees that "the economy and textile consumption are beginning to recover."

But the USDA letter concluded by saying "Extending the loan could flash the wrong signal by creating an impression of shortage not actually existent, withholding supplies at a time when sales could be made, encouraging a larger production than otherwise, building up hopes for much stronger prices ahead, and eventually piling crop-on-crop as each new season gets underway."

Had USDA announced a loan extension back in May, there is a possibility that larger production might have been encouraged. Even that is doubtful, and certainly such an argument is no longer valid in July.

As for producers "withholding supplies" when "supplies are more than adequate" and therefore "building up hopes for stronger prices," that's explicitly what the loan is supposed to do.

So behind all the verbiage USDA appears to be saying it doesn't want producers to have hopes for stronger prices and will not authorize a loan extension for fear the loan would then serve the purpose for which it was intended.

More Questions... Keep Those Samples Coming... Deadline Nearing... Good Eating.

It's crop questionnaire time again from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

A total of 24,700 farmers in Texas have received a questionnaire relating primarily to small grain acres. If you are one of those who have received it, you are requested to fill it out as accurately as possible and return it promptly.

Interest continues to increase in all areas of agricultural production in the state and throughout the nation. During the era of the so-called "burdensome surpluses" there was very little interest evoked when a crop survey was made. But now the questionnaire becomes important.

Another form Texas agricultural producers need to note is the census. Although the majority of the census forms have been returned, the Census Bureau says it still needs those not yet returned.

You need to fill out only those questions applicable to your operation. And the Census Bureau says you can be assured no one will see your answers except the census enumerator.

Figures will be compiled into county, state and national totals.

SCREWWORM CASES continue to be reported in parts of Texas, and screwworm eradication officials urge livestock producers to adhere to its four-point program for eradication:

Check your livestock regularly, treat wounds on livestock with approved screwworm-control remedies, delay surgery on livestock as long as possible and submit suspected screwworm samples to the fly lab at Mission. Your county agent has vials which you can use to send the samples.

AUG. 15 may seem to be a long way off since this is still mid-July. But it will be here shortly, and the main thing to remember about Aug. 15 is that it is the deadline date for submitting your entry to the Family Land Heritage Program.

That Program honors those farm families and their descendants in Texas who have owned and continuously farmed the same piece of land for 100 years or more. If you believe you can qualify for this award, you can get an application from your county judge or by writing to the Texas Department of Agriculture, Austin, Texas 78711.

Last year, more than 560 farm families in the state were so honored. The Program, recognized to be of great historical significance, is sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture to honor agriculture and agricultural producers.

IF YOU LIKE ICE CREAM (and who doesn't) you'll be happy to know that ice cream production increased in 1974. Perhaps the same trend is continuing this year.

In Texas during 1974, there was enough ice cream produced to provide every person in the state just under three gallons each. If you like mellorine, and apparently most Texans do, Texas is the number one state in production of that dessert.

All this related to the fact that manufactured dairy products utilized 22 per cent of the 1974 Texas milk production.
