Shedding of Pecans

Premature shedding of pecans is a major concern of commercial and home pecan producers in every area of Texas. The problem usually involves several factors working together to stimulate pecan shedding. Shedding can occur early in the season and up to August.

The following factors can contribute to or be entirely responsible for premature shedding of pecans:

Variety

The 'Desirable' varieties has long been known to set a heavy crop and later have as much as 50 percent of the nuts shed in early May. Clusters of 4 to 6 small pecan nutlets can shed down to only 1 to 3 nutlets per cluster. This shedding of 'Desirable' is one of the main reasons for its regular production of high quality pecans.

Cross Pollination

Small female pecan nutlets require pollen from male catkin flowers in May in order to develop into mature pecans. This is because pecans do not have male catkins and female nutlets on the same tree at one time. If cross pollination does not occur, the small female nutlets will shed in mid to late May. If natives are in the area, cross-pollination shedding problems seldom exist. If several varieties are present in one orchard, cross-pollination shedding is rarely a problem. Good cross-pollination occurs between the following varieties Desirable Choctaw

Addresses Rotarians

Too much government dictated from the Potomac, if continued, can destroy the free enterprise system that has made America great.

This was the theme of a talk at the Rotary Club last Thursday noon by Joe Kelley, a representative of the National Federation of Independent Business and formerly sports editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

The number of federal regulatory agencies are hampering business, federal hand-outs are keeping people from working, and organized labor and its demand for higher and higher wages is increasing the cost of goods and services, the speaker declared.

For example, OSHA is headed by men who know nothing about farming and who have dictatorial power over agriculture. Federal inspectors are harassing small businesses that are financially unable to fight back. Workmen's Compensation, due to laxity of our courts, has doubled and almost tripled in the last vear.

This all boils down to the fact that most Washington Bureaucrats are lacking in common sense.

The Federation of Independent Business now has half a million members and must be taken into consideration by Washington, he stated, in its fight or organized labor, big business, and the Federal government will destroy us--the small business community duced the speaker.

Medical research is an ongoing process which never stops. In fact, research projects even for proven medicines often continue for many years after the drug is widely accepted. Case in point is a special study just now underway which will involve more than 32,000 women and take five years to complete. This, project is different than many because, although directed by the Food and Drug Administration, it is taking place in four cities of Yugoslavia.

Representing the largest long-term study ever undertaken on the effects of oral contraceptives, the research should show some preliminary results within the next year. Officials estimate that more than a quarter of a million reports will be filled out before the study is completed.
