SPECIAL AGENT EVANS, sent by the Treasury Department to inquire into the smuggling of Chines into Washington Ter-ritory from British Columbia, stated that in his opinion the reports were exaggerated, but he admitted that a number of men in that section employed large numbers of Chinese, and were willing to take all they could get of them without wanting to know where the Chinamen came from.

Heber Newton, of New York, testified that the difficulties met with by labor reformers were the intemperate habits of the laboring classes in cities, and the improper methods to which labor resorted in endeavoring to accomplish its desires. The great want of the people, he considered, was industrial education. Instruction in public schools was woefully deficient, and its tendency was entirely one-sided. State Temperance Convention.

The following platform and resolutions were adopted by the State Temperance Union at its late session in Topeka:

Union at its late session in Topeka:

We, the temperance people of the State of Kansas, in Convention assembled, trusting in God for the rectitude of our intentions, declare as the sense of this meeting:

1. That the effect of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is drunkenness, and is a public and private wrong, injurious alike to the citizen and the State; the great cause of pauperism and crime, and to aid to rid the people of this curse is the duty of every philanthropist and patriotic citizen in the land.

2. That the State has no moral or legal right to license any wrong, but should enact only such laws as will promote what is right, and prohibit what is wrong.

such laws as will promote what is right, and prohibit what is wrong.

3. That the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is a moral question, and is right in principal and in practice, and it is the duty of all good citizens to foster and aid and encourage the vigorous enforcement of all laws of the State enacted for this numerical.

ment of all laws of the State Chacter of the purpose.

4. That the will of the people, expressed in the Constitution and laws, is the sovereign and supreme power of the State, to which all citizens owe unconditional obedience. To refuse such obedience in the citizen, or a failure of and law officer to execute the law in good faith, is treason to the State, and should receive the condemnation of all good citizens.

and should receive the condemnation of all good citizens.

5. That we are not only in favor of the enforcement of the Prohibition law as against the liquor seller, but we favor an active, vigorous campaign for the purpose of inducing men, by appeals to their higher nature, to cease the habit of drinking. In other words, we are in favor of prohibition for the liquor drinker.

6. That we are opposed to and protest.

we are in favor of prohibition for the liquor seller and moral suasion for the liquor drinker.

6. That we are opposed to, and protest against, any attempt by the Legislature to strike prohibition from the Constitution, by submitting an amendment for the purpose of the repeal or the émasculation of the law already enacted for the enforcement of the same.

Resolved, That the issue before us in this State is, "Shall the will of a majority of the people as embodied in our Constitution in the Prohibition amendment and in the law to enforce the same be carried into effect, or shall the will of the minority prevail in repudiating both Constitution and law?" That we promptly accept the issue forced upon us, declaring our belief that under a constitutional government nothing can be more hurtful than the tyranny of a law-defying minority, and our immovable purpose to resist to the uttermost and the last a doctrine which strikes down at one blow the supremacy of law and the sovereignty of the people.

That we will not aid the election of any person to any office who by word or deed opposes the execution of the laws on our statute book, including the Prohibitory law.

That we are in tavor of such amendments to the Prohibitory law as shall remove from it any features that to its friends may seem unjust in their operations, and we call the attention of the people to the fact that the efforts made in the last Legislature to secure such amendments were opposed and defeated by the saloon power.

That we express our severe condemnation of officers, jurors and witnesses who violate their oaths in order to shelter and protect criminals, and our hearty approval of the curse of those who preserve their personal and official integrity by the discharge of their sworn duty under the law.

That the theory of high license, though sincerely held by some, is unsound and impracticable; that it is mainly used as a subterfuge on the part of the minority to defeat the will of the majority, and in the interest of the saloons, and that it is sp loons, and that it is specially odious because it discriminates in favor of the rich against the poor.

That the efficient labors of the President of the Union, the Rev. A. B. Campbell, to enforce the prohibition laws of the State, and especially in the city of Topeka, have our hearty approval and thanks, and we pledge him our individual support and co-operation in the future, in all legitimate means necessary to the closing of all the liquor saloons in the State.

That as the saloons of the State are protected by some corrupt City Governments, it will be the duty of the next Legislature to change the laws relating to the form of City Governments, so as to provide by specific statute for a summary removal of all officials who defy the Constitution and laws, without waiting for the slow process of the common law.

That the thanks of this Convention are due and are hereby extended to M. V. B. Bennett, for his efficient and gratuitous labors in the interest of the cause advocated by the State Temperance Union.

That this Convention does hereby heartily thank James A. Troutman for his efficient and arduous labors as Secretary of this Union.

The Bossing of State Elections.

It seems next to impossible for any robustly Stalwart politician to understand that the bossing of State elections is not the chief duty of a Federal Administration, but that, on the contrary, such an Administration has no more right to meddle with the local elections of the people than it would have to un-dertake the management of churches, benevolent societies, base-ball clubs or insurance companies.

The Constitution and the acts of Congress prescribe the duties of the Executive Department, including the 105,000 officers pertaining thereto; and it is quite as exasperatingly insolent and far more dangerous to the public welfare for this great Department to push an obtrusive hand into the local concerns of any State than it would be for the Executive authority of a State to force itself within the well-defined limits of Federal jurisdiction.

Twenty years ago two great dangers threatened the destruction of this Government. One was the secession of States, the other the absorption of the rights of the States and the people thereof by the central authority. The former was crushed out, at fearful cost, but the latter still exists. It is as great a menace to the future of the Republic, and as bold an invasion of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution, as was ts twin evil-the one that gave up the ghost at Appomattox.

standing of Folger and Cleveland. The been any no tolerance for its twin evil.

While this was transpiring in New York, "the whole weight of the Administration," not its finger, not its hand, but all of its vast power and influence that could be thus disposed of, were brought to bear on certain local elections in States where there were large masses of ignorant and credulous col ored men. These persons were told by Federal officials, detailed for such service and paid out of the public Treasury, that the President had sent his request for them to vote for this, that and the other candidate.

These blacks are not to be blamed for being ignorant, not censurable for being credulous, but their peculiar condition made them as pliant in the hands of the Administration as dough in the grasp of a baker. Therefore, it happened that the policy which was so in-dignantly rebuked and stamped on in New York came near being a great success in two Southern States. And thus it happens that the Administration, acig to its central organ, is detercordi mined to repeat this year and next the policy of 1882, so far as relates to the

The resources of the Federal Treasury are to be drawn upon to override the will of the people. Thousands of Federal officers—the hired men of the people, each of whom is paid to do cer-tain specific work for all the people un-der the Federal mechanism—are to be sent all over those States to bring the black voters into harmony with the new allies of the Administration-"the desperadoes of the South," as the New York Tribune appropriately styles

It is a beautiful programme, but it is bound to miscarry this time. The current of public opinion is against it. The intelligence of the country is against it with a force that will make itself felt. The coarseness, the grossness of Stalwartism will be compelled to halt. The right of the people to choose their own local law-makers and other officers will be maintained. A decent regard for the opinions of mankind will be enforced on the Administration so effectually that it will not attempt to repeat the abuses that its organs threaten.

The attempt to destroy the Government of the fathers by Federal invasion of the most cherished rights of the people must go into its grave beside its twin brother, secession. — American Enough to Make a Horse Laugh.

When a leading Republican paper soberly declares that "one of the most prominent and commendable features of the Republican party is its readiness and its determination to abolish abuses within the party," we are necessarily reminded of the joke that made a horse laugh. This declaration is of that measure, for there assuredly was never people have assigned to do work under the Federal system, is as clear a right as was ever defended by ballot or bullet. In the great State of New York the people resented intermeddling in a way that will not soon beforgotten. Believing that Mr. Folger was the Administration candidate, and that the Administration was trying to manage the campaign, they rose up in their might and buried Mr. Folger under a majority of about 200,000 votes.

No Negotiations with the Enemy.

Before this time next year we shall be in the heat of a Presidential contest. The Republicans will use their best endeavors in the interim to distract and divide the Democratic party and to strengthen themselves in this State by retaining or capturing patronage. Their object is to carry New York in 1884, without which the election of their President is hopeless.

Every Republican paper rejoices over the factional action of the Democratic State Committee. The Roosevelt resolution was in the direct interest of the Republican party.

Following this act of folly come rumors of negotiations between the County Democracy and the Republicans to run a combination local ticket this year, under the fraudulent name of a zens' ticket, in order to "beat Tammany."

Any Democratic organization which trades and bargains with the Republicans in the coming election will be strik-ing a direct blow at the success of the Democratic party, and will be working for the continuation of the Republicans in power.

With a united Democratic party in the State representing all Democratic organizations victory is assured. With a Democratic party in this city united on candidates, or even with three tickets in the field, all the local offices will be filled by Democrats.

No bargain can be made by any Democratic faction with the Republicans without giving the latter the lion's share of the spoils and thus strengthening them for the Presidential fight of next year .- N. Y. World.

They Paid No Duty.

There is a celebrated restaurant down town, the proprietor of which sits, like Zaccheus, at the receipt of custom. He 's a persuasive foreigner, with a most engaging air and that effusion of man-ner which convinces every patron that he is the latter's closest and dearest personal friend.

It has been for years a habit of this ingenious gentleman to say to each cus-tomer as he paid his bill and scrutinized the eigar stand?

"What for you bodder about does sigars? Here (in a deep whisper, and with an overwhelming wink) ist some sigars worth smoking. Dey are chenawine—but they have pait no duddy (another profound wink). Only ten ents!

Equally flattered by being taken into his confidence and by the receipt of a good imported eigar in exchange for such a nominal amount as ten cents, the customer felt himself bound over and over again by a strong personal tie to the shrewd and insinuating gentleman of the counter.

But alas! one bright Monday the custom-house authorities, always on the qui vive, heard of these generous transactions of "imported cigars that had paid no duty," and an official raid was the natural result. A chief detective grabbed the celebrated inexhaustible cigar-box under the counter, and his subordinate took possession of some twenty or thirty others of the same

"What's the matter?" inquired the astonished restaurateur.

"I seize these eigars as smuggled goods," replied the custom-house detective. The honest restaurateur burst out into loud laughter.

"Donnerwetter! Dose is domestic eigars I bought in Chatham street, six dollars a hundred," he exclaimed, the tears running from his eyes.

"What are they doing in these Havana boxes?" inquired the man of the custom-house.

"I put dem in dose boxes to suit my wn convenience," said the restauraown convenience," said the restaurateur growing a bit thoughtful.

"All right," replied the detective, carelessly; for he knew by hearsay the clever little dodge of the restaurateur; "I'll take them and if you can prove what you say you can release them."

The Belgian's brow darkened. To prove his story, of course, would be to destroy his reputation with those of his customers on whom he had bestowed a real genuine cigar for ten cents. If the custom-house officials kept the boxes it would not be long before the murder from the Italian ombrella." This is would out. There was clearly only one proof positive that there has been from thing to do, and that was to pay the duty

"How much is the lot?" he inquired, ruefully. "Seven hundred and fifty dollars," replied the detective.

It was a bitter struggle, but in the long run the little Belgian's apprehensions for the future got the upper hand, and slowly and sadly he gave his check for seven hundred and fifty dollars for the discovery that his customers have heard nothing about the matter, but, on the contrary, keep on joyfully pay-ing each his ten cents for the "real"

GOOD FISHING. "I believe you advertise good fish-'Yes, sir."

"Where is it?" "Over in the lake. We never fish on dry land here."
"But I have been over there all day and never had a bite.

"Of course not. If you want to fish come here in June. This is July, and the fish won't bite. Sorry, but you are a month too late."

AT THE NEAREST RAILROAD STATION. "How far is it over to Rosebush Lake?

"Sixteen miles, sir."

"Why, I was told that it was only half a mile from this station! This is a pretty state of affairs, I declare! How do you get over there? "I have never been there, sir. I presume you can hire a farmer's team or walk it.

"It's a dead swindle!"
"Well?"

"And I'm a fool for leaving home!"

"And I'll take the down train." "Certainly. Only sixteen hours to wait for it. Sit down in the freight-house and make yourself comfortable."

"See here, landlord, didn't you advertise an entire absence of flies and mosquitoes at this place?"

"Certainly, sir; but those advertisements were prepared in March, and I assure you in the most solemn manner that we weren't troubled in the least until the last of May. If you had only come up here in April you would have had a glorious time.

"Hot! Why, it's five degrees hotter here than at home! I thought this was one of the coolest places in the country

"My dear sir, this is an off year, you know! Every year but this we have had to keep up fires in July, and we shall probably have to next year again.

It is a sort of an extra season, you see."
"But where are those cool breezes you advertised?"

"Oh, they are over on the other side of the lake to-day. You see, this is only one side of the lake, and we can't expect to monopolize all the breeze there is. We must divide up and give the other resorts some of it. CAME IN HANDY.

"See here, landlord, you advertised a big, four-story hotel, with a grove, fountains, bathing, boating, etc., and 1 arrive here to find a shanty stuck in the pine woods and the nearest lake a mile away. Explain yourself, sir!"

"With the greatest of pleasure. The was a cut of a hotel at Long Branch, but I neglected to. Come right inbeautiful scenery, woods full of snakes, rates down to four dollars per day and children charged full prices."

DOG CHEAP. "Landlord, this bill is downright extortion.'

"How is that?" "Why, I can stop at the Grand Pa-cific for less than you have charged pice, another for the hills and the After I could breath no longer I at-spring, and if twelve shillings a day for tempted to come to the surface, but the hotel rates are not dog cheap then I don't know how to please you. Why, back again, and made a desperate effort sir, if the Fifth Avenue Hotel was on to dig my way out with the knife. I the brink of a precipice two hundred managed to dig a hole large enough to feet high, you couldn't stop there for eight dollars a day!"—Detroit Free mighty effort escaped into the sea. It Press.

White Lace Dresses, Etc.

For dress occasions, for fetes and dinners at the watering-places, white lace dresses are the first choice, and these are made short, and are considered appropriate both for day entertainments, when a hat of the lace may be worn with it, or for the most elaborate dinner party, where a trained skirt was formerly de rigueur. White French laces, woven precisely like the well-known black French laces that imitate Chantilly, are the novelties for these dresses, three or four pages a day; yet he has and are used in piece lace for the basque published over thirty novels.

and over-skirt, and with scalloped edges as trimming lace. These are made up over inexpensive and soft white satin Surah as a foundation skirt and basque lining, and are simply fashioned as a postilion, or else a very short basque that is even around the hips, and trimmed all around the edge with full frills of the lace, or a lace ruche with rosettes, or else with soft puffs, or it may be a panier drapery that forms the old-fashioned panier basque. The Surah lining is high in the neck, and follows the outlines of the basque, but all lining may be omitted in the lace sleeves. The Surah skirt has box-plaitings of Surah at the foot, on which the garniture lace is arranged in thick plaits at intervals, forming a ruche, and the spaces between the plait-ings are filled in with oblong rosettest of very narrow white satin rib-bon so thickly clustered in loops that five or six yards are required for each rosette; sometimes several hundred yards of ribbon are on a single dress, as there are similar rosettes on the sides of the skirt, down the front of the waist to the point, and on the postilion and the sleeves. White Oriental net in the piece, with lace to match, is also used for these dresses, and is trimmed with wide strips of crystal-beaded net cut from the piece and laid along the apron drapery, either lengthwise or horizontally, as the height of the wearer may determine. The sleeves are made entirely of the crystal beading, and the neck, whether square, a pointed surplice or with a vest, has this beaded net gathered inside of it, to partly fill up the open space or form a vest or plastron. Black French lace dresses made in the same way, and trimmed with jet-beaded net and satin ribbons, are laid as transparents over black satin Surah, and are considered the choicest black dresses of the summer. Antique silk guipure lace in the piece and in trimming widths is again in fashion for black dresses, and is very handsome when made up over black gros grain. The designs of flowers, leaves and stripes worn ten years ago are again seen, and there are also quaint figures of birds, dragons and animals woven in these rich guipure laces. Harper's Bazar.

A Story for the Marines.

"A warm day like this," said the nautical "cop" yesterday afternoon at Eighth and Chestnuts streets, as he shook the beads of perspiration from his walking cane "reminds me of a pretty warm place I once got into, and on a freezing cold day. FINDING THE TRAIL.

Here in the shadow of this grim mountain is a camp of cavalry—two forms, every face sunburned and zed, every saber and carbine showlong use, every horse lifting its head from the grass at short intervals for a swift glance up and down the val-

Here, at the foot of the mountain, he Apache trail, which has been folowed for three days, has grown cold. Aye, it has been lost. It is as if the white men had followed a path which suddenly ended at a precipice. From this point the red demons took wings, and the oldest trailer is at fault.

The men on picket looked up and down the narrow valley with anxious faces. Down the valley, a mile away, a solitory wild horse news and a practice.

a solitary wild horse paws and prances and utters shrill neighs of wonderment and alarm. Up the valley is a long stretch of green grass, the earth as level as a floor and no visible sign of life. The pines and shrubs and rocks on the mountain side might hide ten thousand Indians but they is not the bousand Indians, but there is not the slightest movement to arouse suspicion. It is a still, hot day. Not a bird chirps, not a branch waves. The eye of a lynx could detect nothing beyond the creatic movements of the lone wild rese adown the valley and the circular right of an eagle so high in the air that the proud bird seemed no larger than a sparrow.

For an hour every man and horse has looked for "signs," but nothing has been discovered beyond what has been cribed. It is a lost trail. There is mething in it to arouse suspicion as ll as annoyance. Ten miles away he trail was as plain as a country highy, and the Indians had no suspicion pursuit. Five miles back there were s of commotion. Here, in the center the valley, every foot-print suddenly isappears. Look, now! A sergeant with grizzly locks and fighting jaw, rides down the valley, followed by five troopers. They are to scout for the lost trail. Every man has unslung his carbine, every saddle-girth has been tightened, and every man of the six looks over the camp as he rides out as if he had been camp as he rides out as if he had been told that he was bidding a last farewell to comrades. They ride at a slow gallop. Each man casts swift glances along the mountain side to his left—at the green grass under his horse's feet.

What's that! Afar up the slope to the valley, a full two miles beyond where the wild horse now stands like a figure of stone, and where the valley sweeps to the right like the sudden turn of a river, the signal is caught up and two hundred Apaches, eager, excited and mounted, draw back into the fringe at the base of the mountain and wait.

The little band gallop straight down upon the lone horse. Now they are only half a mile away, and his breath comes quick and his nostrils quiver as he stands and stares at the strange spectacle. A little nearer and his muscles twitch and quiver and his sharp-pointed ears work faster. Only eighty rods now, and with a fierce snort of alarm and defiance he rears up, whirls about like a top, and is off down the valley like an arrow sent by a strong hand. The sight may thrill, but it does not increase the pace of those who fol-The men see the wild horse fleeing before them, but the sight does not hold their eyes more than a second. To the right—to the left—above them—down they valley—they are looking for a hoof-print, for a trampled spot, for a proken twice for a sign however, insign broken twig—for a sign however insig-nificant to prove that men have passed that way. They find nothing The signals up the mountain side were visible only for seconds.

After the first wild burst of speed the lone horse looks back. He sees that he is not being pursued, and he recovers courage. He no longer runs in a straight line, but he sweeps away to the left—swerves away to the right and changes his gait to a trot. When he hears the shouts of pursuit and the louder thumps of hoof-beats, he will if he would gallop back to those who have seemingly pursued. Five, eight, ten seconds, and with a snort of alarm he breaks into a terrific run, takes the extreme left of the valley, and goes tearing out of sight as if followed by lions.

"Halt?"

The grim sergeant sees "signs" in the actions of the horse. Every trooper is looking ahead and to the right. The green valley runs into the fringe, the fringe into dense thicket, the thicket into rock and pine and mountain slope. No eye can penetrate that fringe. The Indians may be in ambush there, or the horse may have scented wolf or grizzly.

"Forward!" No man knows what danger lurks in the fringe, but the order was to scout beyond the bend. To disobey is ignominy and disgrace; to ride forward is wait! There is no air stirring in the valley. Every limb and bough is as still as if made of iron. There is a silence which weighs like a heavy burden, and the harsh note of hawk or buzzard would be a relief.

"Turn the bend and ride down the valley for a mile or so and keep your eyes open to discover any pass leading

"It is more than a mile beyond the bend. No pass has been discovered. No signs of a trail have been picked up. The sergeant has raised himself and in all probability we have never had up for a long and careful scrutiny, when an exclamation causes him to turn his face up the valley. Out from the fringe ride the demons who have been lurking there to drink blood. Five—ten twenty-fifty-the line has no end. It stretches clear across the valley before a word has been spoken. Then it faces to the right and two hundred Indians in war paint face the grim old sergeant and his five troopers.

"Into line-right dress!" It is the sergeant who whisters the order. Six to two hundred, but he will face the danger. To retreat down the valley is to be overtaken one by one and shot from the saddle or reserved for torture. Down the valley there is no hope; up the valley is the camp and rescue. The two lines face each other for a mo-

Every trooper is down and scalped, half a dozen redskins are dead or dying, dozen horses are struggling or staggering, and turning the bend at a mad gallop is the sergeant's riderless horse. He carries an arrow in his shoulder, and there is blood on the saddle. In five minutes he will be in camp, and the notes of the bugle will prove that the lost trail has been found.—Detroit Free

Curiosities of the Cholera.

R. G. Jennings, F. R. A. S., writes to the Pall Mall Gazette, "to call attention to the attack of cholera on Southern and Western Europe now due. Such visitations come with more regularity than most people imagine. It is remarkable that every attack on Egypt is followed by an extension to England. Such cholera is not of the true Asiatic type; it makes its appearance first in the Hadjiz, on the tropic of Cancer, in the neighborhood of Mecca, Cancer, in the neighborhood of Mecca, some times the year before, some times the same year, in which it ap-pears in Egypt. In 1831 it broke out straight line, but he sweeps away to the left—swerves away to the right and changes his gait to a trot. When he hears the shouts of pursuit and the louder thumps of hoof-beats, he will straig ten away and show the pursuers a gait which nothing but a whirlwind can equal.

Look! It is only a quarter of a mile now to the turn in the valley. The lone horse has suddenly stopped to sniff the air. His ears are pointed straight ahead, his eyes grow larger and take on a frightened look and he half wheels as if the would gallop back to those who Egypt. In 1865, eleven years after, it broke out at Mecca, spread to Egypt, and reached England the same year. In 1871, six years after, it broke out near Mecca, but extended as far as the north of France only. In 1882, eleven years after, another attack on Europe fell due. It will be observed that these outbreaks occur every six and eleven years alternately; a great out break happening every seventeen years, as 1831, 1848, 1865 and 1883. In every instance in which Egypt has been attacked, Southern and Western Europe have suffered. There has been some delay in regard to the commencement of the present attack; but that is a reason for believing but that is a reason for believing that the advance will be rapid. In the other great attacks, the cholera has advanced from Egypt to England in a few months On the 25th of March, 1865, the disease broke out at Mecca; on the 2d of June it appeared at Alexandria, killing 60,000 people in Egypt in three months; on the 11th of June, only nine days after, it reached France, and on the 11th of September it was in England. It would appear, then, that the cholera which visits our shores is not Indian. timues as before—no wider—no narrow-er—level and unbroken. The wild horse was out of sight long ago, and the six troopers see nothing but the green grass as their eyes sweep the valley from side to side.

which visits our shores is not Indian but Arabian—diseases generically the same, specifically different. There are, as I endeavored to show eleven years ago, when I stated that the next great attack would be in 1883, as a matter of fact, seven different species, which descend from the atmosphere at seven different points, situated equally distant from each other along the tropic of Cancer, and move in a northwest direction. The Indian and Arabian streams interseet in England. As a matter of fact, the Indian, from its much longer course, an attack of it, unless, perhaps, it be when the North of England suffered in 1831. As regards the assertion one scoften hears, that all cholera can be traced to the Ganges, what is to be said about the chelera which commenced last July in Mexico, and last January was carrying off by fearful ravages an immense number of victims? Before the present year closes I expect to hear that cholera has broken out in every quarter of the globe."

Sad Results of Being Honest.

The other morning a citizen who had been cautioned to send up some butter as he went down town or eat dry bread for dinner stepped into a grocery and bought and paid for three pounds. The cash tendered was in the shape of a bill, and the citizen did not count his change until he had traveled several squares. Then he made a discovery.

"Why, I gave him a dollar bill and he has given me back over nine dollars," he soliloquized. "I could keep this money and he would be none the wiser, but I'm not that sort of a clothes-pin. I will at once return it."

He was as good as his promise. Returning to the store with the money in his hand he said:

"Lucky for you that I am an honest man. You gave me nine dollars toc much in making change."

"Honess not."

"I guess not."
"Well, I guess you did, and here it is.
I want only what belongs to me."
The grocer sulkily thanked him and the citizen went his way, but in an hour or so he made another discovery. He found the one-dollar bill and missed the

"It was a ten I gave him and the change was right," he gasped. "I must go to him and explain."

He started for the grocery, hung around for awhile and then stated his promptly replied the grocer.

"Oh, no; I'm not! I'm simply a victim of a too honest conscience."

"You get out! I didn't like the cut of your phiz in the first place, and when you brought back the nine dollars I knew you had some sort of a game. Now, sir, you travel, or I'll call the po-liceman!" "But I'm an honest man! I tell you there's a mistake here, protested the

"You promenade! I'm on all the little games, and you can't make a cent.

Boy, call in a policeman!" The citizen walked out and kicked lamp-posts and rubbed against baby carriages, and refused to recognize his best friends. He had not only paid over best friends. He had not only paid over three dollars per pound for butter, but he had beaten himself all around. He rushed to a lawyer to see what he could do, and the lawyer replied:

"Bide your time and pass a counterfeit twenty off on him—fee, five dollars."

Even With the Dentist.

A meek little man in deep black, with a tasty straw hat and dark, orange-col-ored tie, crept up a pair of stairs on State street one evening last week until the second floor was reached, when a doctor's sign was seen at one side of a door. Suspended from a string against the door was a slate bearing in large white letters the words "Walk He did so, but the room was barren of any human form. On the table was a square card bearing the words: "Sit down and wait."

A gleam of intelligence succeeded the A gleam of intelligence succeeded the look of disappointment on the little man's face as his glance rested for a second on a fine upholstered dentist's chair, with a rack of instruments at its side. He placed his hand up to the side of his face, and then somberly sank down on one knee. His right hand was uplifted a moment; then he arose. For a short time he stood irresolutely about a short time he stood irresolutely about the room. Then he spied the card. It was but the work of a moment for him to carry this and the huge dentist's chair out into the hall. The slate was turned, and when the silent man had unished his work on it, the words "Dead drunk; be sober to-morrow" appeared. The card with "sit down and wait" was next placed under the slate, and the man chuckled noiselessly as he went joyfully down the stairs. His oath of vengeance had been satisfied.—Chicago News. finished his work on it, the words

"REX MAGNUS." (THE MIGHTY KING). What it is, and what it does.

IT IS THE Humiston Food Preservative. and, as its name signifies, is a Mighty King, an invincible conqueror. It is safe, tasteless, pure and harmless. Its special field of usefulness is in the preservation of food, such as fish, meats, oysters, cream, etc., either in large or small quantities—and it does it. WORDS ARE CHEAP, words are cheap, and so is Rex Magnus, in all its several brands. Every word used by the proprietors of this preparation, in stating its nature, characteristics and effects upon food, is strictly true. Corroborative testimony can and will be cheerfully tendered. The bast proof, however, is to buy a box, test its effects yourself, and you too will agree with us. You do not have to buy a 'right' or costly "receipt" but get your moneys's worth.

We herewith append a scientific statement in attestation of the merits of this A 30 DAYS TEST IN A TEMPERA-TURE AVERVGING 70°. Prof. Samuel W. Johnson, the well known chemist, and for more then 25 years identified with the Scientific Department of Yale College, furnishes the following report concerning Magnus:

"My tests of 35 days on meats, etc., bought in open market have certainly been severe in daily mean temperature of 70 degrees, and I am satisfied that the different brands of Rex Magnus. The Humiston Food Preservative, with which I have experimented, have accomplished all claimed for them. So far as I have yet learned, they are the only preparations that are effective, and at the same time practicable, for domestic use. At the banquet on treated meats at the New Haven House I could not distinguish between those which had been sixteen days in my laboratory and those newly taken from the refrigerator of the hotel. The oysters were perfectly palatable and fresh to my taste, and better, as it happened, than those served at the same time, which were recently taken from the shell. The roast beef, stoak, chicken, turkey and quali, were all as good as I have ever eaten."

Rex Magnus is safe, tasteless, pure, and Prof. Johnson adds in his report: "I should anticipate no ill results from its use and consider it no more harmful than common salt."

common salt."

The room in which these trials were carried on (January 31 to March 7) has been warmed by a coal stove. Observations taken twice or thrice daily, with a tions taken twice or infloe daily, with a self-registering thermometer have shown an average daily minimum temperature of 55 degrees and maximum of 84 degrees, the daily mean temperature having been 70 degrees. THOUSAND OF TRIALS. Such a test, and it is but one of many which have been made, ought to satisfy the most exacting skeptic. Ample corroborative testimony can be furnished. Rex Magnus is a perfect and reliable substitute for ice, heat, sugar, salt or al-cobol, in preserving food, which retains its natural flavor and sweetness, in all seasons and climates, after having been trested with this "Rex."

IT IS SAFE, TASTLESS, PURE, HARMLESS. The different brands of Rex Magnus are, "Viandine," for preserving meats, poultry and game, 50 cents per bound; "Ocean Wave." for preserving oysters, lobsters, etc., 50 cents per pound; "Pearl," for preserving cream, $1.00 per pound; "Snow Flake," for preserving milk, cheese, butter, etc., 50 cents per pound; "Queer," for preserving eggs, green corn on the ear, 6 c., $1 00 per pound; "Aqua Vitae," for 16 ping fluid extracts, etc., $1 00 per pound; "Anti-Fiy," and "Anti-Mold," are special preparations, whose names explain their uses, 50 cents per pound Thoroughness and Neatness Pay.

Intelligent observers have generally noted the fact that in every rural neighborhood the prosperous farmers are almost invariably those who keep their him and he wanted to confess. He said he was, about eight or ten years ago, a buildings painted, fences in good repair and their fields free from stone, weeds and rubbish. Of course it may be said small sums aggregating between $200 that men who have plenty of money can afford to spend it for keeping up appearance. But this is evidently not the full explanation of this coincidence of facts. Reference to the books of the company showed that he had been "spotted" and farming, are least inclined to lay it out merely for show. It may be safely put -A dusty man riding a wiry mustang down as a general rule that the work oulled up in front of an office in Newark, performed by most thrifty farmers is in the direction of profit, hence, as meatn the course of conversation that he had ridden from Arizona in the saddle quite as likely to be one of its causes as one of its effects. There are exceptions to this rule, as to all others. farmers accumulate money still more rapidly, not by increasing their income, but by a system of grinding parsimony, by robbing themselves and cheating their families to put dollars in their purses. These are not examples to be imitated. The aim of most reasonable men is not only to make money, but in the meantime to live in a reasonable and comfortable manner. To acomplish these objects it is not difficult to prove that neatness is essential.

There are many reasons why habits of neatness in farming lead to success. Such habits are none too common, and in every business the men who do their work in the most thorough manner get the best pay. The world is full of poor work that of necessity can be poorly paid. The farmer who grows his crops among weeds can never sell his grain at the highest market price, while the extra care needed to secure absolute purity is sure to be proportionately well paid. Farmers understand paid. Farmers understand this well enough, as is shown by their periodic endeavors to secure pure seed for sow-ing and planting. If we go to almost any market we will find that the bulk of crops is more or less mixed, and therefore, unsalable for seed and undesirable for any purpose. Almost every spring there is an active demand for seed barley, free from oats or other va-rieties of barley, and not infrequently farmers buy from seed stores, paying from two to four times the price at which they sold their grain the fall pre-vious. In almost any neighborhood a farmer who will grow pure seed of the various grains will find a demand for his entire stock at prices enough better than market rates to assure him a profit. When we are told that farming is not profitable, the implication is that reference is made to the common slovenly method. The fancy kinds of farming, such as growing seeds and garden vege-tables, nearly always pay those who in-telligently conduct them. Yet seed growing and gardening are really as true farming as growing hay or making butter and cheese. They are only better paid because they cannot be conducted without close attention to details, and i is in this that neatness consists.—American Cultivator.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and ACUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a sizely december. out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

On The Chickahominy.

Under date of May 8, 1883, Col. S. F. TIBBITTS, O Dover, N. H., sends us the following: "While on duty in the army of the Potomac in the swamps of the Chickahominy I contracted a complication of diseases that culminated in spinal trouble, paralysis on one side, and severe disease of the kidneys and biadder, and and severe disease of the kidneys and bladder, and great urinal weakness. For a long time I was under the treatment of the best physicians, and tried many of the so-called remedies, but received no permanent benefit. When I was in the drug business in Boston I heard favorable accounts of the efficacy of Hunt's Remedy for diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs, and having decided to give it a trial, I purchased some at Wingards drug store, Dover, N. H. organs, and naving decided to give it a trial, purchased some at Wingate's drug store, Dover, N. H., and have received great relief from using it. The severe pains in my back are removed, and I am able to sleep soundly and obtain rest at night—which for so long a time I could not do, and the weakness in the urinary organs has been relieved, and I greatly regret that I did not test the great merits of Hunt's Remedy when I was first taken sick, as I am confident it would have saved me from several years of suffering; and I am more strongly convinced of this after hearing of he most remarkable cures effected by Hunt's Remed a case of Bright's Disease here in our midst in Dove ofter the patient had been pronounced incurable by belebrated physicians." Mr. Tibbits is a retired druggist, formerly located in Boston, and is a thoroughly reliable citizen. - Cor. ED

U. S. POSTAL SERVICE. H. S. Whitney, assistant postmaster, Putnam, Conn., writes May 3, 1883: "I have used Hunt's Remedy with the best results. I have suffered untold agony for the best results. I have sancted through agony lot-eighteen months with kidney and liver complaint; my water was very bad, at times I actually passed blood. This was followed by general prostration. My busi-ness requiring me to be on my feet most of the time made my case worse. I was advised to use Hunt's Remedy by a friend who had been cured by it, and can truly say that it has benefited me more than all the oth-er medicines I have used. I consider it the best medi-cine for kidney and liver troubles, and cheerfully rec-
