WITH MOTHER'S DAY coming up Sunday would be appropriate to say something nice about mothers, and really I've only had one mother, so that limits my field of knowledge a little. To make things worse, my own mother is hardly typical, since she's a minister, and there aren't just a lot of preacher-mothers around.

However, she wasn't a minister when I was growing up (instead of out); she was a beauty operator. Again, I don't know how many people have made the transition from beauty operator to working on a newspaper (which she did for several years after hairdressing) and then suddenly into preaching. I've heard that you have to hit bottom before you can rebound to the top.

Anyway, she's a nice mother, but most of you have mothers just as nice, so I'm sure you'll remember them in some way.

I may go over to Andrews Sunday, since it's Mother's Day, and tell my mother that so she can relive the joys of doing the things she used to do for me, I'm going to let her cook a big dinner and maybe wash some of my dirty clothes. I'll bet she'd like that.

THERE IS A VEGETABLE grown primarily in Mexico, I think (and maybe in some other places), and although discussing it here presents a couple of small problems, I'm going to do it anyway.

The small problems are (1) other than eating one in a salad in Paso Robles, Calif., last summer and buying one a few weeks ago in Harlingen, I don't know anything about the plant; and (2) I don't know how to spell it.

I'll have to try, though, so I'm going to settle for jicama. I do know that it is pronounced something like "hick-i-la-ma".

In California we found it in a salad and bit down on it thinking it was some kind of cheese. It's a plant that looks kind of like a turnip and tastes kind of like styrofoam. In other words, it really isn't all that great, but it was so interesting that when I saw one in Harlingen, I bought it to bring home to a friend, who got even by slicing it up and serving it to us at his home several days later.

Actually I bought it sort of as a prestige thing, but later I was told you can buy them in the supermarkets in Lubbock and, for all I know, right here in Tahoka.

We couldn't find jicama in the dictionary. So my friend went to his volume of books full of information which people might want to know, plus lots of stuff nobody could possibly be interested in. But either the encyclopedia people never heard of it or the spelling is a lot different from what we have guessed it here.

Our introduction to jicama was near an area which also is famous for its giant artichokes, and that's another plant I could do without. Of these lots of folks eat them, but I don't know they do it.

In fact, anybody who would bite into one of these things artichoke.

POWER OF THE PRESS DEPT.: A remark trading a red windbreaker for a blue one yielded quick results. High School Principal Jim Wilson brought me a nice blue one with a tag on it early last Thursday, the day the package came out. I appreciate it.

EVERYBODY'S 'MAW' — Mrs. John Hill is called "Maw" by just about everybody in the Tahoka area, so, although she actually has only one daughter, she serves well around here as a symbol of Mother's Day coming up Sunday. The well-known and popular Mrs. Hill worked at Mrs. Hall Robinson's dress shop in Tahoka for 26 years, and now works at Dayton Parker Pharmacy. She said she got the nickname almost 30 years ago from a child who lived near the Hills at that time. Incidentally her own mother even calls her Maw.

Joe Unfred Elected PCG President

Joe D. Unfred of New Home, well known area cotton farmer with a long record of community and industry service, was elected President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. at the organization's board meeting in Lubbock May 2. He has been a PCG director since 1965 and served as the 1978-79 Vice President.

The Lynn County cotton producer succeeds Lloyd Cline of Lamesa, who as immediate past president becomes chairman of the PCG Board.

Following the election Unfred voiced his appreciation to the board for their help in continuing and improving PCG's record of valuable services to High Plains cotton producers.

The PCG board also voted

Charles Axtell of Route 1, Springlake, producer director from Castro County since 1975, was elected Secretary-Treasurer. Axtell is also secretary of the board of Dimmitt Agri Industries Inc. He attended West Texas State University for two years and holds a B.S. Degree from Texas Tech. Unfred also is a graduate of Texas Tech.

The board meeting followed the organization's 22nd annual membership meeting, attended by approximately 400 people.

In addition to annual reports from then President Cline and Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, speakers included John Garner of Liverpool, England, Editor of Cotton Outlook magazine, and David Hull, Executive Director of Cotton Council International (CCI).

City Council Moves To Aid Sale Of Bonds

By DALTON WOOD

Some changes in record-keeping designed to aid the city in selling $250,000 worth of recently-voted water and sewer improvement bonds were authorized by Tahoka City Council Monday night as the group sought to clear out an unexpected obstacle to getting the planned improvements underway.

The problem was simply a matter of bookkeeping. Mayor Meldon Leslie told the council. Representatives of the city planning to seek buyers for the bonds had recommended that the city separate its sanitation department's finances from the water and sewer funds, since the latter two are involved in the improvements, and any obligations of the sanitation department would be considered by prospective buyers as encumbrances on the water and sewer department's projected income.

Since the sanitation department does, in fact, have some debts on equipment, the council voted to separate its finances.

Pay Off Debt

In a related matter, the council also voted to use $4,700 of previously-allocated revenue sharing funds to pay most of the debt on a sewer machine. This action, plus expenditure of about $5,000 more of city funds to pay off the machine, will put the city in even better shape for presentation of the bonds to prospective buyers. Councilmen also voted to change the audit of the city for the fiscal year ended March 31 to reflect the change in bookkeeping procedure.

Although easily solved, the problem has caused a delay in starting the water-sewer improvements, and consulting engineer A. C. Bowden of Lubbock told the council it now is hoped that construction on the projects can begin in September.

Appearing before the council to inquire about the possibility of sewer service at a new implement company facility now under construction was Hershel Wade. After some discussion of what would be involved in extending sewer lines to Wade's property next to U.S. 380 on the east edge of the city, it was voted to make the extension.

Estimates Cost

Bowden estimated cost of the extension, including boring under the highway, at about $6,000, of which Wade agreed to pay the usual $3 per foot, or about $900. Councilmen expressed hope that extending sewer service across the highway will encourage other industrial development in the area.

City Manager Carl Reynolds was granted permission to have improvements made in the city hall telephone system, including multiple lines on all phones. Reynolds also told the council about repairs needed on city equipment, including a backhoe and pickup, presented the month's bills, which were approved to be paid, and noted some changes in the wording of the city's franchise agreement with Beta Communications, a firm planning to bring cable television to Tahoka.

All members of the council were present, including Richard White, David Midkiff, Jim Solomon, H. B. McCord Jr. and James F. Roberts.

Touch Calling Ready For Tahoka People

General Telephone equipment personnel are completing installation and tests this week on new equipment in the Tahoka telephone equipment center that will make Touch Calling available to interested Tahoka customers beginning May 15.

O. D. Hearn, Brownfield Division Manager, explained Touch Calling is an optional service that lets customers push buttons instead of twirl a dial. In addition, he said the simplicity of the phone means fewer dialing errors are made and calling is faster and easier.

"Touch Calling telephones are the phones of the future," the manager said. "They transmit dialing signals in electronic pulses which are the language of the new generation of electronic telephone offices. They even play their own electronic musical notes when you punch numbers."

The service will be available to only one-party business and residential customers beginning May 15, 1979. He said there is a one-time charge to establish the service in addition to a small monthly charge which varies depending upon the number and styles of telephones.

Collision Involves Four Cars

Tahoka Police Dept. investigated one wreck during the week and issued five traffic tickets. Officers also answered three disturbance calls in addition to other routine activities.

About 3:30 p.m. Friday a 1975 Pontiac driven by Diana Rodriguez of Tahoka struck two parked cars on N. 2nd and also was involved in a collision with a 1975 Chevrolet driven by Teresa Ceniseros of Tahoka.

Tickets were issued during the week for running red light, illegal parking, speeding, no drivers license and leaving the scene of an accident.

Tahoka May Seek Grant For Paving

Tahoka may be eligible to receive a $500,000 grant for paving under the small cities program of the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm announced this week.

Stenholm said the city has been invited to submit a full application for the funds, and that the $500,000 has been earmarked for use by Tahoka pending the submission of a full application meeting all the requirements of the program.

Primary objective of the small cities program "is the development of viable urban communities through the provision of decent housing, a suitable living environment and expansion of economic opportunities," according to HUD.

Stenholm explained that eligible communities are therefore funded to undertake activities leading to the stated objectives, when the applications are approved.

He added that the City of Tahoka would use the money for paving operations.

WILSON BANK - Building materials are stacked and ready for the construction of the new Wilson State Bank which will be a part of a 42 home subdivision. Bank president Dan Cook hopes to be in the new facility for the 60th anniversary of the bank in October, 1980.

THE CROWD — There was quite a mob of Tahoka seventh graders visiting County News office Friday morning as part of field trip which took them from the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. At the News office the group of almost 70 saw a demonstration of typesetting equipment and were given a brief of the offset printing process. Accompanying the group were teachers Mrs. Pat Rambo, Mrs. Donna Green and Joe Downey, who can be seen in background of this photo of part of the group.

The cure for acne may be just around the corner. Researchers have been testing a synthetic derivative of vitamins which can be taken by mouth. Of the 14 patients who participated in the experiment, 13 cleared completely, and the 14th had a 75 percent response. After two years, 11 of the patients in the experiment remain free of lesions. The researchers believe the product, known as 13-cis-RA inhibits the gland that produces a fatty substance which, in turn, causes acne cysts and eruptions. Before the medication can be marketed, a great deal of testing must take place to be sure that the 13-cis-RA causes no harmful side effects. It's encouraging to note successful treatment takes only about four months and the researchers believe that the short term of treatment will not cause severe side effects. If all goes well, the product may be available in about two years.

CAROLYN'S CLATTER

by Carolyn Klaus

There is a growing concern over the American family. Many people are once again beginning to realize the responsibility that is attached to the family unit. Recently there was a forum at Reese Air Force Base at Lubbock in which the family was studied and discussed.

The outstanding message from the week long study was that the American family is here to stay and is an integral part of the solution to the many problems facing children and youth today.

Several recognized authorities on the subject all continuously stressed the importance of the family. Dr. Jeanette Coufal, of the Tech College of Home Economics and a parent education specialist, described the job of parenting as "helping a child to feel good about himself and to feel capable and loveable."

One other important relation was made by MH/MR counselor Mike Kelly who said, "family example is an important model for young persons faced with decisions."

It was gratifying to know that approximately 200 people attended the forum and heard the American family being praised and uplifted instead of torn down and degraded.

Any mother that cares about her family will be quick to note that in her opinion the family unit is the most important thing in her life. Mothers, myself included, sing the praises of their families and are continuously ready to tell anyone willing to listen about their "special group". They are not ashamed to promote what they think is important.

It would do people a lot of good if they would take the example of mothers and expand on the idea of "speaking well" of something so important.

There is only one way to strengthen a certain viewpoint and that is to extol constantly the merits of the idea. Have you ever seen one organization take off like a "house afire" and another come to a standstill and disband? I would venture a guess that the one that continued to thrive had members that were genuinely interested in the program and spoke well of it to others. They were excited and enthusiastic about it and it was contagious and others began to feel the same way.

By the same token, if the American people want the family unit to survive and truly thrive then they will have to be willing to sing its praises instead of running it down. A negative thought can eat away at the foundation of the best but a positive thought knows no limits.

Take a lesson from mothers and be happy about the family. My hat goes off to this group on Mother's Day because they have continued on their battle for recognition, not for themselves but for others, for an untold number of years.

SOME MORE FACTS ABOUT HYPERTENSION

High blood pressure is more common in women than in men. The average age of onset is about 35, although it is not unusual to find it in younger people. Onset after 55 years of age, however, is uncommon. Diabetics are at least twice as liable to develop high blood pressure as non-diabetics.

Also, it is generally accepted that heredity is of great importance in the developing of hypertension. A child whose parents both have high blood pressure has a greater chance of becoming hypertensive.

Wilson Bank Plans New Building

Wilson State Bank will hopefully be housed in a new and larger building in January, 1980. The facilities are being built on FM 211 on the edge of Wilson.

The bank will contain 6300 square feet, which is more than double the footage in their present building. It is being built by Mike Kline Construction in Lubbock with Whitaker & Hall being the architect.

Added services at the location will be a drive-in window; a new type of night depository; and a larger, more convenient parking area. The Wilson Insurance Agency will continue to be a part of the bank.

"We've been planning this bank for about ten years," stated Dan Cook, president of the bank, "and it finally became a necessity."

Wilson State Bank managed to keep their doors opened during the depression when many were closing their doors. Due to this determination and prudent financial management the bank will celebrate their

Bridge Winners

Last week's Tuesday duplicate winners were: Mrs. George B. Steele and Mrs. R. N. Lowe, Brownfield, first; Mrs. Roy LeMond and Mrs. Meldon Leslie, second; Mrs. Jess Gurley and Mrs. Clint Walker, third; and James McAllister and Mrs. Margie Maddox, Lamesa, fourth.

Winners of Wednesday Duplicate Bride were: Coye Collier and Mabel Gurley, first; Jeanel Franklin and Polly Cords, second; and Jean Dorman and Billie Barnes, third.

60th anniversary next year.

"We hope to be in our new building by October 19 so we can celebrate our 60th anniversary," Cook commented.

This bank is considered large, across the nation, for being housed in such a small town. Their most popular service radius is 25 miles but they do have depositors from nearly every state in the union.

The board of directors are: Mrs. Kelley Lumsden, Johnnie Mae Cook, Victor Steinhauser, Nancy Ross, Jackie Bishop and Dan

Cook.

Along with the bank, in the 25-acre plot, will be a building to house a grocery store and two other businesses, a 6-unit apartment complex, and 40 to 42 residences. All of this is still in the planning stages but Cook said the area will be developed with paved streets, water, sewer, curbing and all utilities underground. The housing addition will have a financial minimum and zoning restrictions.

The entire development will be inside the city limits and presently the city is in the process of obtaining a grant to offset the cost of installing utilities.

NEW WILSON BANK--An architect's drawing of the new Wilson State Bank being built on FM 211 shows the exterior construction of rock and brick. The bank will be completed in January, 1980.

Wilson Pianist Plans Recital

CINDY FREITAG

Cindy Freitag, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Freitag, of Wilson will present an individual recital in St. John Lutheran Church Wednesday night. Refreshments will be served in the educational building after the recital. Cindy's recital will include two twelve selections on the piano and five on the organ. All the piano selections will be memorized and every arrangement has been chosen from this year's repertoire.

Cindy says her favorite piece will be "Theme From Hungarian Rhapsody". But, classical, popular, modern, and romantic types of music will be included in the recital. The reason for her rapid progress in piano and organ is, "I enjoy it! The decision to play was my own so I've gone at my own pace."

She started taking lessons when she was in the eighth grade and has studied under only two teachers, Greg Cekada in Chargin Falls, Ohio for two years and Onita Steinhauer in Wilson for 3 years.

Miss Freitag has composed one song and is working on another. She says she really enjoys ad libbing on popular music. She is capable of adding a lot of pizzazz to a song by this method.

She is a senior at Wilson High School and plans to study law in college.

"I hope to continue to play for pleasure," Cindy said, "but I also want to take more lessons because I feel like I still have a lot to learn."

TOMATOES LIKE TO BE CAGED

West Texas in spring can be a hostile place for young tomato plants. Newly set plants suffer a severe setback, sometimes death, when exposed to wind and cold. However, there is a way to set out tomato plants in May and protect them until the wind calms down and the nights warm.

Enclosing tomatoes in plastic-wrapped cages gives them much needed protection during May. Caged plants will grow much faster and produce many more early fruit and greater total yield than those grown with staking and pruning or ground culture systems.

Construct cages from concrete reinforcing wire, hog wire or any sturdy wire mesh fencing that is two-and-a-half to five feet tall with openings of four to six inches. Cut and bend the mesh material into cylinders about 18 inches in diameter.

Fasten the ends together by bending the wire inward so that it will not scratch you as you work around the plants. Wrap the full height of the cage in a sheet of clear plastic. Allow enough extra plastic to make a neat baker's fold which you will staple every four to six inches to tightly secure it around the cage wire.

Allow four to five feet between plants to give you plenty of room to work around your caged plants. Select tomato varieties well adapted to caging such as Spring Giant Hybrid, Big Set Hybrid, Small Fry Hybrid, Jack Pot Hybrid, or Sun Rippe Hybrid.

After transplanting the tomatoes and watering them in with a starter solution, place a cage over each plant with the plant centered inside the cage. Anchor the cage to a stout stake driven into the ground and tied to the cage with wire or string. This is about all there is to it.

As the days grow warmer and daytime temperatures rise into the 80's, slip the plastic wrap inward to allow cool air to enter the cage, thereby preventing excessively high temperatures around the plant. When the night temperatures stop going below 55 to 60 degrees, you can remove the plastic wrap entirely.

Cages will cost about 50 cents apiece and will last at least four to five years. The cage supports all fruits up off the ground and encourages the plant to grow upright so that the leaves shade the fruit and prevent sunburn. The plants are easier to spray and you will have less problems with insect and disease control.

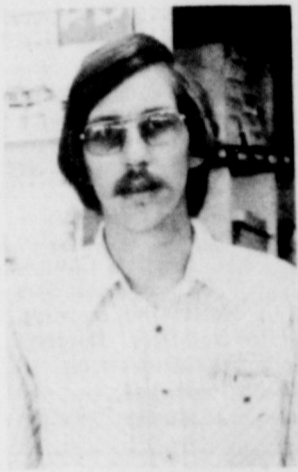

Caged plants are not pruned, but simply trained so that several stems grow to the top of the cage while others grow out through the openings at different heights.

Other vegetables adapted to caging include peppers, egg plant, cucumbers and pole beans.

Letter To Editor

Letters to the editor do not necessarily express the views of this newspaper. All correspondence must be signed and in good taste before it will be published, and the name of the writer must be published also. Letters to the editor may not be more than two double-spaced typewritten pages.

Sirs:

During the course of average working day, I may frequently be seen struggling with a ladder five times my length, or climbing a pole.

Recently there was a letter in the Lynn County News, making comment on the "young" people making the "drag" and about their "unsafe" driving habits, which is why I wrote this letter of comment.

One day during the week of May 1-5, I was working in the northwest residential area of Tahoka. In the interest of safety, I had the caution lights, flashing on my truck and had my safety cone in the direct middle of the street. I then proceeded to the top of the pole and began my work. To keep the number even, I'll say a total of 20 vehicles went by this location. Five of these vehicles "slowed" down some, two of these five actually slowed down enough to look to see where I was. These two spoke to me and proceeded cautiously. This leaves a total of 15 vehicles that paid no attention whatever to my "safety markers". To me, this also makes for "unsafe" safe driving habits, of which none belonged to the young people "on the drag", as they were all in school.

For those who heed my safety markers, I thank you. For those who don't, I would appreciate a little more courtesy, because safety concerns us all.

Finally, before "commenting" on the "drivers of the drag", we should compare ourselves and the way we drive.

Sincerely,
Kirby Shearer

Slone Wins Second At State Track Meet

Cindy Slone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Slone, represented Wilson High School at the Class B State Track Meet last weekend in Austin and placed second in the 880 yard dash.

She took second place with a time of 2:22.3 minutes, losing to a girl from Newcastle whose time was 2:21.1.

Cindy improved her time from 2:26.2 in the regional meet two weeks ago to her time in state competition. During that two weeks Cindy and Coach Danny Chisum worked daily to improve her speed. They set 2:22 as their goal for the state meet so she was able to attain the goal she and her coach had set for her.

Miss Slone, a junior, is the first girl from Wilson to ever place in a state track meet.

"I could hardly believe it was happening," was Cindy's response to placing second. "I know I couldn't have done it if it hadn't been for the time and effort Coach Chisum invested in me."

Brownfield Speaks At Rotary Club

Ray Brownfield, a retired Adjutant General in the U.S. Army, and grandson of the Terry County pioneer, M. V. Brownfield, for whom that county's major town is named, was the speaker at Rotary last Thursday.

Joe Hays, local accountant, who introduced the speaker, said Brownfield attended New Mexico Military Academy, graduated from U.S. Military Academy, served in three wars, and reached the rank of Adjutant General before retiring in 1975 and moving to Lubbock. His grandfather settled in Terry County in 1898, and he and other family members still own considerable land in Terry County.

Dalton Wood, new owner-publisher of The Lynn County News, was inducted as a new Rotary member by President Monte Dodson.
