County Will Continue Tax On Vehicles

Lynn County Commissioners Monday voted to postpone taxing farm land on productivity until next year and also voted to continue taxing automobiles in the county this year.

Judge Melvin Burks presided over the mostly routine regular semi-monthly session of the commissioners court. Judge Burks reported to the group that the county's finances are not in the best shape, a factor he attributed to failure to budget enough money in the first place to cover expenses in some areas.

Commissioners took the action on taxing farm land and autos as a routine requirement prior to implementation of new rules on taxation which go into effect next year.

An agenda item Monday related to charging cities in the county for keeping prisoners in the county jail was discussed, but action was deferred until next month.

Red Raider Event Today

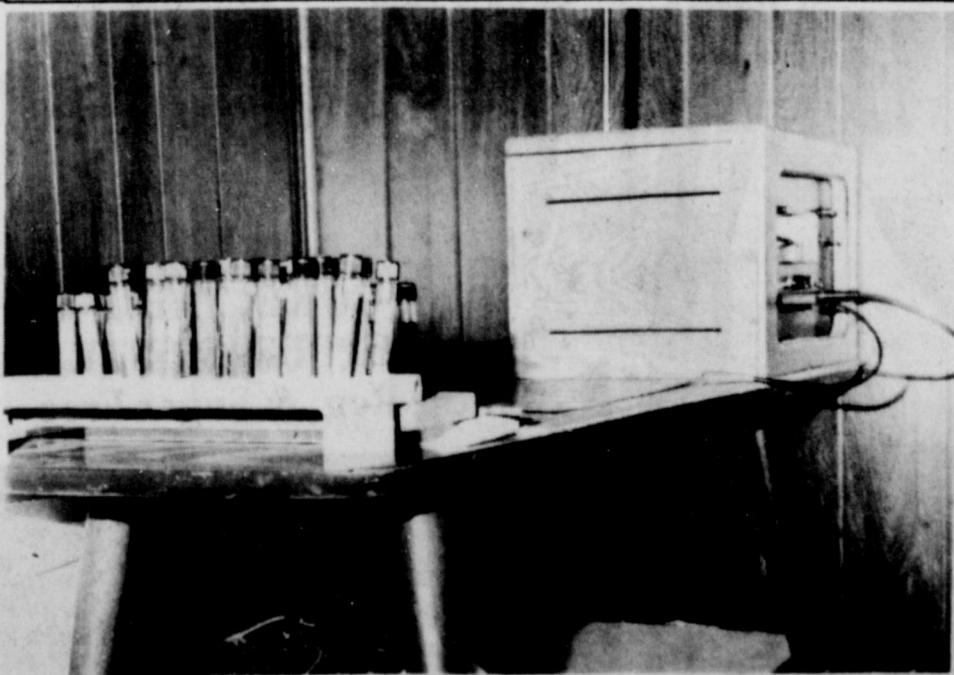

Tahoka's Red Raider Club is hosting Texas Tech supporters from other cities and guests today in the annual golf tournament and barbecue to raise funds to help Texas Tech athletics.

Mel Leslie, president of the Tahoka group, is hosting the barbecue at his Tahoka Lake Ranch north of the city. The barbecue starts late today (Thursday) after the golf tournament, which gets underway at 1 p.m., with Jimmy Bragg chairman of that event.

The Tahoka group seeks to raise enough funds each year to pay for one athletic scholarship.

Leslie said anyone wishing to join the club may do so by paying a donation of at least $20, and that this might be done at the barbecue. Any member, or anyone who joins at that time, will not be charged for the barbecue.

COTTON HOE-This is the latest invention that is claimed to take the place of a cotton hoe. Elimination of weeds is supposedly accomplished from an office in some building by remote control. Farmers and others in agriculture related fields are watching skeptically as the new procedure is put into practice. Such a machine has been set up in Tahoka to be used throughout the county. Tommy McClintock, operator of the business, claims the process will work. (See story, page 10)

Rain Friday and Saturday 2.83 inches; this month 6.13 inches; this year 10.81 inches.

Lots Of Rain, But Crop Outlook Good

The old saying that "it never rains but it pours" is true for early June of 1979 in the Tahoka area.

Last Friday evening there came another "gully washer", and by Saturday morning 2.83 inches had been measured in the National Weather Bureau gauge in West Tahoka, bringing the total to 6.13 inches received during the first 10 days of June, and to a total of nearly 11 inches since January 1.

Similar heavy rains were received over much of the county, but some areas reported "just right".

Playa lakes over much of the area are full, and there are lakes in fields where there seldom have been lakes before.

Young cotton was washed out on many farms, and some other cotton has been dying because of the extended wet, cold ground.

Farmers have been very busy running sandfighters and other rigs trying to save what cotton they can, while others are replanting or preparing to do so as soon as the soil is dry enough.

Some farmers are replanting cotton, while some say they may go back in maize or sunflowers because time is running out for planting cotton unless the area has a late fall freeze.

For the most part, however, prospects are still excellent for a big crop. Return of warmer weather this week is a big boost to crops, and no further rain is in the forecast for the next few days. Although late, Lynn County could still produce a big crop this year.

Rescue Tool To Be Shown

Tahoka Volunteer Fire Department will have a demonstration of the Hurst Power Rescue Tool July 2 at the Tahoka fire station at 7:30 p.m.

"This could prove to be a valuable piece of equipment in case of a major accident. We would like for the people in Lynn County and surrounding area to see this tool in action," said VFD representative Jimmy McMillian.

Police Check Disturbances

A fairly light week of activity was reported by Tahoka Police Dept. as three disturbance calls were answered and no tickets were given for traffic violations.

Officers did arrest a Tahoka man for public intoxication early last Wednesday. He paid a fine of $15 plus court costs in city court.

A resident on N. 1st St. Friday night called police and reported a car circling her home with a loud muffler, and said she "would like for the car to be sent somewhere else."

Museum Workers Make Plans For Reunion Date

Tahoka Pioneer Museum workers are busy this week trying to get as many exhibits possible in place in time for the annual Lynn County Pioneer Reunion set for Saturday, June 23.

The Museum will hold an open house that Saturday afternoon following the Pioneer Reunion program in the school cafeteria.

In the meantime, all citizens of the county and area are invited to visit the

Old Settlers Reunion To Be Held June 23

Plans are being finalized for the 45th Annual Old Settlers Reunion which is to be held Saturday, June 23 in the Tahoka school cafeteria.

Morning visiting and registration will begin at 10 a.m. with a barbecue meal being served at 12 noon.

There will be a window display contest again this year and plaques will be awarded for "Best Dressed Window". There is no entry fee and all merchants are eligible to enter.

The Tahoka Pioneer Museum will be open after the ceremony at the school, enabling visitors to view the progress that has been made on the museum.

County residents are asked to help notify out-of-county "old settlers" about the upcoming celebration.

City Hires Firm To Manage Grant

Tahoka City Council Monday night voted to retain the firm of Barber-Traylor and Associates to administer the Community Development Block Grant program, including the final application for $500,000 in federal funds for paving in the city.

The firm already is working on the application, which must be completed by July 2, and if this deadline and other routine stipulations are met, the funds will be granted to the city under auspices of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Citizens are invited to attend one of two meetings next week, 2 p.m. Tuesday or 8 p.m. Thursday, to comment on the proposed use of the HUD grant, which calls for paving of about 25 blocks in the south and east portions of the city, plus curbs on a number of other streets.

Councilmen Monday night also adopted a resolution to sell $250,000 in bonds to Farmers Home Administration, a routine legal step preparatory to beginning work on water and sewer improvements voted by citizens in April. Work is expected to begin this fall on the projects, one objective of which is to bring the facilities to a point of maintaining good and consistent water pressure all over the city.

At the called meeting Monday, the council also voted to buy a weed machine for use at the cemetery.

Alex and Trudie Sanders. Mrs. Mary Margaret Stewart and Mrs. Savannah Walker gave $50.

BRITT DOCKERY (seated), son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dockery, signed a letter of agreement to attend Lubbock Christian College and play football and baseball. Jerry Sanders, football coach at LCC, watches as Dockery commits himself to play football in the first year of their program. Workouts will start August 6 with athletes arriving at LCC August 4.

Harold Green, legal advisor, reports incorporation papers have been received from the Secretary of State, and all donations will be exempt from Federal Income Taxes.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith made a $500 memorial gift in memory of their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Smith moved to the New Home community in 1907.

DRIVELINE

Believe It Or Not! In Tennessee it is illegal to drive a car while asleep . . . In Lille, France, it is against the law to carry a certain kind of cheese into a taxicab. The English translation of the cheese's name, "The Old Stinker," explains why!

PERPLEXED ABOUT BRIDGES. "What is the law in Texas about passing on a bridge that has two way traffic?"
—S.C., Vernon

It is illegal to pass when you are approaching a bridge and are within 100 feet of it. However, once you are on the bridge you can pass, provided there is no double stripe down the middle of the road.

Maybe we could replace gasoline with jackrabbits on treadmills. Our old West Texas buddy (Actually dubbed the Lepus californicus by scientists) can accelerate from zero to 40 mph in three seconds. Economical to operate, too . . .

On any average day there are over 613,000 out-of-state and foreign visitors in Texas — a number nearly twice the population of Austin. For those of you who think all the tourist dollars flow south of the border, here's another interesting fact: visitors and tourists from the Republic of Mexico spent $238 million in Texas last year.

Consumer Tip! The Texas heat puts a lot of strain on any mechanical system. Here's a quick, easy maintenance check to help you protect your car this summer. Just clean the radiator. Radiators have a knack for collecting mashed bugs, twigs, leaves and other road junk in between their metal fins. This reduces cooling efficiency and can cause your car to run hot, maybe even overheat. It just takes a minute to wash the gunk out with a water hose. The best way is to shoot the water from the inside of the engine compartment toward the front. If you try to wash it from the outside in, you may just wedge the debris further into the radiator fins.
Oh yes, if you're the messy type who sprays water everywhere, you should take the precaution of wrapping the distributor in plastic first.

ANCIENT HISTORY DEPARTMENT: Approximately twenty thousand steam powered automobiles were actually sold between 1880 and 1970. The Stanley brothers, makers of the famed Stanley Steamer, accounted for about half of those sales.

You are twice as likely to develop high blood pressure if there is a history of hypertension in your family. If you are overweight and there is a history of hypertension in your background, you are FOUR times as likely to have high blood pressure. These facts were discovered when more than a half-million people were screened in a nationwide program, sponsored by a pharmaceutical company and local heart and medical societies. The study also showed that when one member of a family is diagnosed as having high blood pressure, all other family members should also be screened for the problem. Weight control and early detection are important in bringing hypertension under control. If the problem exists in your family background, tell your doctor and eat wisely, so that you can avoid the serious problems that untreated hypertension can cause.

EYE ON SAFETY

Safe Sports
In sports, keeping your eye on the ball — which could be traveling at speeds of over 100 mph — should include keeping the ball off your eye. Eye injuries among tennis, squash and paddle ball players are increasing, but most of the 36,000 sports-related injuries last year could have been prevented.

Ducking faster isn't the answer. Special protective eyewear could be. Eyeguards or safety 'specs' are inexpensive and available at many sporting goods or hardware stores. They may not only save your sight, but can also improve your game, since properly protected players may overcome the subconscious fear of catching a ball or racquet in the eye.

For a free booklet on eye safety, write your state Prevent Blindness Society, or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

versions of the drug have suspended marketing. Although many pills have been seized by the government, unknown quantities remain on the market.

The FDA advises: Be sure you're taking the right prescription diuretic.

Diuretics help the body eliminate fluids. The FDA believes the likely cause of the problem with the illegal versions of the furosemide tablets is that they may not be absorbed by the body and, therefore, may not provide the intended therapeutic effect.

The FDA announcement was issued after the agency had received five reports from physicians whose patients' conditions had worsened following substitution of a generic furosemide tablet. The FDA has confirmed four of these reports. Three of the four patients recovered after switching back to Lasix. FDA does not have updated information on the fourth.

"Whoever makes the fewest persons uneasy is the best bred in the company."
Jonathan Swift

With today's interest in generic drugs, consumers should be aware that there are some illegally marketed drugs available for sale. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently issued a warning to people who take the prescription diuretic pill furosemide—primarily older people suffering from heart, kidney or high blood pressure problems. The FDA advised these people may be taking "illegally marketed tablets that could be ineffective and, therefore, harmful to patients who need the drug."

Media Wrong On 'Killer Bees' Story, Short Reports

Texas newspapers, TV and radio misinformed the people of the state by saying that the so-called "killer bees" hid out to prevent passage of a presidential primary" bill, State Sen. E. L. Short of Tahoka told members of the Tahoka Rotary Club at noon last Thursday.

The "killer bees" label was applied to a group of 12 state senators who refused to show up for senate proceedings for five days and prevented the senate from taking care of any bills during that period. Statewide media attributed the action to the group's opposition to a senate bill on elections which would change the timing of presidential primaries in the state. Short said last Thursday, however, that the bill in question was in no way a "presidential primary" measure, did not mention such primaries at all, and contained many other provisions related to elections.

"People were misinformed all over the state that this was a presidential primary bill, and that this was why they (the killer bees) left, because it certainly was not."

Short touched briefly on some other actions of the legislature, including the measure requiring uniform and single appraisals for taxes by all the taxing jurisdictions in a county.

Short was critical of the tactics of the "bees," commenting that in his opinion everyone elected to the office of senator should stay on the job and do the best he can within the framework of the rules.

A House bill sponsored by Short in the Senate increased the weight limitation on cotton trailers from 15,000 to 20,000 pounds, and this bill became law. Short noted last Thursday that "this makes eight-bale trailer loads legal, they have been illegal all these years."

The senator reported that he introduced 22 senate bills, and 20 of these became law, counting two which were incorporated into other measures. He co-sponsored three other bills in the senate, the farm/ranch loan security act with Bob Price, a teacher pay raise with Pete Snelson, and state payments to medical school graduates with Chet Brooks (which failed).

Sen. Short offered amendments to two bills to benefit farm users of diesel, and was senate sponsor of nine house bills, seven of which passed both houses. He also sponsored three memorial resolutions and four congratulatory resolutions, including one commending retired U.S. Rep. George Mahon.

Senate measures introduced by Short by number and title were as follows (all passed into law unless otherwise indicated):

213. Tech Board of Regents to convey certain property.

214. Medical malpractice coverage for medical staff and students for Tech School of Medicine.

272. Payment of court-appointed counsel by state in capital cases. Died in House because time ran out.

271. Disclosure of foreign investments in real property. Tabled.

284. Expulsion of certain foreign students from public institutions of high education.

367. State ethics and financial disclosure law to judges of certain courts. Passed senate, failed to get hearing in house.

371. Changing name of Texas Tech School of Medicine to Texas Tech Health Sciences Center.

413. Number of trustees to be elected at the first regular election of a school district.

420. Compensation of the judges of the 70th, 161st, and 244th Judicial Districts.

421. Duration and conditions of probation.

436. Requirements governing competitive bidding in certain political subdivisions.

543. Conditions for sale of small tracts of land.

568. Per diem and mileage expenses of soil and water conservation district directors.

585. Allocation to and use by school districts of certain sales and use tax revenue. Left pending in sub-committee but partially reflected in Tax Relief Amendment.

632. Authority to create municipal courts of record for Lubbock.

685. Student recreation fee at Tech.

881. Exemption of certain intangible property and automobiles from ad valorem taxes. (Left pending in sub-committee but reflected in Tax Relief Amendment.)

1020 & 1021. Interstate compact on grain marketing-study committee on grain marketing. Passed house, failed to suspend rules in senate.

1222. Creation of a dental advisory commission.

1080. Regulation of fitting and dispensing of hearing aids. This concept passed in another bill.

1242. Compensation of the judge of the 106th judicial district.

HOUSE BILLS CARRIED BY SHORT IN SENATE:

41. Relating to interest on open accounts.

1355. Minimum standards for protective clothing and equipment for fire protection personnel.

1413. Duties of the county attorney of Terry County and the district attorney of the 121st Judicial District.

1418. Transportation of certain agricultural commodities in their natural state.

1832. Relating to the width and weight requirements and registration of certain vehicles. (increase weight limitation on cotton trailers from 15,000-20,000 lbs.)

Sherry Etheredge Says . . .

Get Equipment, Supplies Ready For Canning

Get canning equipment and supplies ready-harvest and preservation season for garden fresh fruits and vegetables is just around the corner.

WHY CAN?

Canning is one of the oldest methods of preserving food. Proper canning insures safe food by processing food with high heat and protecting it with an airtight seal.

Heat destroys harmful bacteria and other microorganisms that cause food spoilage. Also, heat inactivates enzymes that could cause undesirable changes in flavor, color and texture.

CANNING METHODS

Two processing methods to use in home canning are water bath and steam pressure.

The acidity of the food is the chief factor in determining which method to use.

STEAM PRESSURE CANNER

For low acid foods such as meat, poultry, fish and vegetables, use a steam pressure canner--a heavy pan with a rack and cover which can be clamped down to make it tight.

The cover is fitted with a safety valve which will blow out if the pressure gets too great, a petcock to drive air out and a pressure gauge.

Keep all these parts of the pressure canner clean and in working order. Use directions for testing gauges once a year. Food needs 10 pounds of pressure for processing to insure that food reaches the recommended temperature.

If the rubber gasket becomes hard, soak it in boiling water and stretch it to keep steam from escaping.

WATER BATH CANNER

For high acid foods such as tomatoes, fruits and pickled vegetables, the appropriate equipment is a water bath canner.

This could be any large pan with straight sides, a cover and a rack to keep jars from resting on the bottom of the pan, thus allowing water to move freely around the jars.

Use a pan that is deep enough to allow the jar tops to be covered one to two inches and have space to gently boil.

Large soup kettles could serve as water bath canners.

USE MASON JARS

No matter what method of canning, use only standard, mason jars made especially for canning.

These usually have the name of the manufacturer on the side and are heat tempered to withstand steam pressure during processing and vacuum after cooling.

Also, they are mechanically shock resistant.

Never use jars with nicks or cracks.

LIDS

There are a number of lids on the market. The most common type is the two piece flat metal lid edged with sealing compound and held in place by a metal screw band.

OTHER EQUIPMENT

Other equipment to have on hand ready for the canning season is:

--A jar lifter that can grip the container will help when handling the hot jars. --Tongs for removing lid and screw bands from the hot water are helpful.

--A saucepan is needed for heating the lids. The size will depend on the number of jars.

--A wide mouthed funnel and a cup-like ladle for pouring liquids and filling jars will help keep the jars clean and facilitate the filling process.

If the top of the jar is unclean, then the jars will not seal properly.

This equipment is essential to proper food canning.

For further home canning information, contact your local county Extension agent (home economics) for the Home Canning Bulletin B-194.

CAROLYN'S CLATTER

by Carolyn Klaus

Medical expenses are rising to an all time high and the average American citizen feels the crunch even more now that everything else has risen sharply as well. There are several reasons for the rising cost but only one that I would like to discuss here.

All hospitals in our area seem to be plagued with the same problem and that is the collection percentage. The Tech Med School teaching hospital as well as all other big hospitals in Lubbock and almost every small hospital in our area, our own county hospital included, are having to deal with collection problems.

It seems people give no thought to the cost of medical attention when they are sick, they would be willing to pay any amount to have their ailment relieved. This service is rendered by the hospital but then it seems the patient forgets his dependence on the medical facility and forgets the bills as well. This is fine for him because he reasons the hospital can afford to absorb his bill.

Supposedly the hospital does absorb his bill, but not quite that easily. The money charged to the patient must come from some source, therefore the hospital is forced to raise the price of care to other paying patients. It seems to be a vicious circle—patients do not pay their bills because they are so high, the hospital needs the money to continue so they raise the prices, causing more patients to feel the bill is "over their heads" so they ignore the bill, and the cycle continues.

With this and other things in their minds there are a number of high government officials pushing desperately for a national health care plan. The idea sounds good because no one will be overcharged and the bills would be taken care of automatically, like monthly payments, installment plans or income tax. The cost of such a plan would be $18 billion annually.

Other than smelling disgustingly like Communism there are other problems I can see. First of all, there has been an influx of foreign doctors in our country in recent years. One of the biggest reasons for this is the escape from "socialized medicine", which is what national health care amounts to. One of the biggest disadvantages of the idea is that it kills incentive and with that gone all health care could become mediocre. Another thing is that advancement is obsolete so research is greatly hampered. With these things gone, why would anyone want to invest ten years of their life studying a profession that will be a dead-end street?

When we are backed into a corner maybe we still have more choices than we think—possibly even small monthly payments on existing hospital bills instead of the same payment to the government to cover the same expenses. Could there be a better way around the high cost of medical care other than "socialized medicine" like some officials are recommending? Maybe it's time we put our thinking caps on—after all, politicians are not the only ones that can "dream up" solutions. Remember, America was built on free enterprise, are we ready to give it up?

An estimated 80 percent of all American families own at least one automobile.

A study by the Federal Highway Administration shows it costs 17.9 cents a mile to own a car, on the average.

Quick Energy Drinks

Vigorous exercise uses up a lot of energy and active people are turning to fruit juice to restore that energy. According to a recent survey, 46 percent of the people who are highly active have increased their consumption of fruits and fruit juice. Among long-distance runners that increase is even more striking. Sixty-two percent of the runners in the survey consume more fruit juice than they did before they started running.

While you and your children may not be as active as these individuals, fruit juice is a delicious way to boost your energy. Welch's White Grape Juice, for example, is a light, refreshing beverage that contains natural fruit sugars for a quick energy lift. It is good by itself or when mixed with other ingredients.

Suggested here are two drinks that will quickly give you an energy boost. Fruit Juice Fizz is a tasty chilled drink that can be kept on hand in the refrigerator. Thermal Grape Juice can be mixed and heated on the cool, rainy days when a child's energy is worn off indoors.

FRUIT JUICE FIZZ Serves 4

- 2 cups Welch's White Grape Juice
- 1 cup apple cider
- 1 cup orange-grapefruit juice
- 2 cloves
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 1/4 teaspoon chopped candied ginger
- 1 bottle (12-ounces) gingerale, chilled
- Orange slices

In saucepan, combine all ingredients except soda pop. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Strain and chill thoroughly.

Just before serving, combine grape mixture and gingerale. Garnish with orange slices. Serve over ice.

A Visit With Your County Agent

Insects Abundant Due To Wet Weather
Thrips "like" young, pressed cotton. And if current cool, wet weather continues long into June, a lot of cotton from the backlands to the South Plains will be under stress from one source or another. Excessively wet fields, possible herbicide damage, feeding diseases and cool nights will all take their toll. Watch for movement of thrips into late-planted cotton, especially from near-maturing grain and hay fields that have just been cut. The 30-day weather outlook indicates that better growing weather for cotton is coming up, so perhaps the thrips problem will end. Thrips need not be controlled on vigorously growing cotton. June weather, on the average, will be on the dry side for all of Texas, according to the National Weather Service. Temperatures will be on the cool side in South Texas but are expected to be near seasonal levels elsewhere. Cotton in South Texas, including the Lower Valley, is past the danger stage for thrips and fleahoppers but is heading into mid-season insect problems. Dry weather would help farmers, since cotton that is on the dry side is not as attractive to bollworms and tobacco budworms as lush cotton. Also, survival rates of eggs and young worms are lower in dry weather.

Boll weevils have a tougher time in dry weather, too. Squares that are shed tend to dry out before the boll weevil can complete his life cycle. Since most cotton growing areas have good moisture, the potential is set for mid-season insect problems.

Sorghum will have midge problems as a result of weather delays in planting. Some sorghum planting dates in the same area varied by more than one month. Regardless of June weather, past weather has set the stage for extensive midge control.

Greenbug and cornleaf aphids have not been major problems so far in sorghum. Frequent, heavy rains in most central areas have effectively controlled these aphids. Watch out for population increases if the weather turns dry.

Screwworm potential will remain high as long as mild, wet weather persists. Survival rates of pupae and adults are enhanced by moist soils and mild temperatures. Stockmen are advised to take good care of herds, be careful to dress wounds from surgery, check stock frequently, and send suspect larvae samples to the Mission laboratory. Tick populations tend to be up in wet weather, so wounds from ticks will have to be treated.

Grasshoppers shouldn't be as big a problem this year although there has been some scattered buildups of lubbers in the Permian Basin and other West Texas areas. If the weather does turn dry in June, grasshoppers could become more of a problem; otherwise, wet weather should keep them largely in check.

Insects will continue to thrive on abundant grasses, wildflowers and other native plants as a result of a wet spring through most of Texas. Some may migrate into crops if a dry spell develops; otherwise, only one potential problem comes to mind. Peach growers need to control grasses and weeds in orchards to cut down on population potentials for leaf-footed plant bugs and stink bugs. These have moved into peach trees in the past and damaged fruit when their preferred food plants dried up.

Homeowners will continue to have insect problems until wet weather ends. Cockroaches, ants, termites, fleas and ticks all are favored by mild, wet spring and early summer weather. And, of course, mosquitoes are widespread.

Billy Whitaker Assistant County Extension Agent Says...

Effective 4-H Leadership
An effective 4-H leader is an adult or teen leader who makes it possible for 4-H'ers to get together as a group to learn and do things that would not be possible for them to do alone.

The good 4-H leader offers security, suggestions and support. He or she doesn't dictate, determine and direct all activities of the group. Individual members must be the doers and learners.

4-H teachers "learning by doing," so leaders should remember that mistakes are learning experiences for 4-H'ers.

The 4-H "leader" is really a "helper," and "leadership" is "helpership." As 4-H'ers grow and develop, they too can become helpers as outward expressions of their caring and sharing for others. The time that a leader gives to 4-H members can make the world a better place to live and will be multiplied many times over through each 4-H'er who helps others.

As a 4-H volunteer leader you will help coordinate 4-H project activities for a small group of 4-H'ers.

The first and most important step is to get your group together so that members can plan what they would like to do in the project. You can help them to do this by calling the meeting and providing a place to meet. Younger 4-H'ers will need more guidance for their planning, but regardless of the age group, it's important for 4-H'ers to make their plans themselves.

After a general plan for the project is developed, you and the group should decide what will be needed and what other leaders will be needed to help you and your group. 4-H parents and other adults will be willing to help if you can request specific help. Some kinds of assistance you may need are refreshments, meeting places, transportation, speakers and tour leaders.

Although planning takes a little time, it will make the rest of the project much easier and more productive.

Involvement is the key to happy 4-H'ers. Let 4-H'ers themselves do everything they possibly can to develop their plans and carry out their projects. Remember, they'll learn much more if they do it themselves.

Every meeting should be fun as well as educational. Parties, picnics, refreshments and other activities keep 4-H'ers enthusiastic and active. Often these can be combined with educational activities with just a little creative planning.

The 4-H program offers limitless possibilities because it involves so many different projects. It's exciting to think of the important effect you as a 4-H leader can have on 4-H boys and girls to helping them to develop into good citizens.

COTTON TODAY

A NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL SERVICE

Man-made fibers being studied: Studies concerning the possible health effects of employee exposure to man-made fibers are being made by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. Reports on the study were made recently to a House labor subcommittee by Peter Henle of the Labor Department and Dr. James Merchannt of NIOSH. Merchannt played a key role in OSHA's issuance of the cotton dust standards.

Aviation gas supply stressed: The National Cotton Council has urged the Energy Department to provide an adequate and dependable supply of aviation gasoline for agricultural use. In a letter to the agency, NCC President Hoke Leggett stated that in many areas of the Cotton Belt aerial application of pesticides and other agricultural chemicals has been seriously disrupted by a shortage of aviation gasoline. Unless immediate action is taken, Leggett stated, there could be significant yield losses due to insects, weeds, and other pests.

Team reports export opportunities: Initial reports from a Cotton Council International trade team to Europe indicate expanded opportunities for U.S. cotton exports to Rumania and Hungary. Rumanian textile officials estimate U.S. imports in 1978-79 at 50,000 bales, compared with 33,000 in 1977-78. Officials further indicate if U.S. cotton is price competitive during the first half of the 1979-80 season, imports could reach 50-60,000 bales.

Exports Reported: Exports of 114,600 running bales—20 percent to Europe and 73 percent to Asia—during the week ended May 27 brought the season's total to 4,898,600, compared with 4,195,600 a year ago. The week's new sales of 11,800 running bales pushed the total commitments for the current marketing year to 6,765,500, compared with 6,432,800 a year ago. New sales of 132,200 running bales for 1979-80 delivery brought the total to 1,603,500 thus far.

Diesel Set-Aside Extended: The Energy Department has announced that authority would be extended beyond June 30 for states to set aside up to 4 percent of available diesel supplies to meet emergency needs. Earlier, National Cotton Council President Hoke Leggett in a letter to the Energy Secretary had urged an extension to "provide maximum flexibility" in addressing the problem of diesel fuel.

And Cotton Yesterday: Edison used cotton thread in inventing the electric light in 1879.

Weed Elimination By Remote Control Claimed Here

by Carolyn Klaus

Science fiction has finally hit the farming industry in the form of a harmonic oscillator described as a method of weed control executed by a remote facility in a city office. The process appears simple but the idea is mind-boggling. The method is so new it is only one and one-half weeks old in this area and has yet to be disproved. According to sources in Tahoka, who are experimenting with the process, the only outside labor is the gathering of the undesirable weed to be taken to the office.

Farmers and others in agricultural circles are watching closely to see if the new computerized, electrical system that is franchised one to a county will actually work.

The first step in the process is to gather the weed without touching it with human hands. This is accomplished by the use of a plastic bag and simple directions, according to those in charge of the process here.

Dehydrate The Weed
When the weed arrives at the office it is placed in a dehydrator until the whole plant, part of the root and foliage, is dried completely. The plant then is placed in a blender container, using tweezers that have been cleaned with alcohol to eliminate human contact, and blended until it becomes a granule or powder. The mixture is placed in a vial and labeled.

Process Being Checked
Farm officials in the county are in the process of checking out the system and watching it closely to decide whether it has merit.

"We control the plants by hampering the reproduction system and eliminate the plant by prohibiting reproduction," McClintock says. Even though the idea is very new the company furnishes a guarantee that 80 percent of the weeds will be controlled or the farmer will not pay for the treatment. Each case, according to McClintock, will be reviewed individually to check the effectiveness of the treatment.

Won't Hamper Farming
It is said not to hamper any farm operation that is in progress and will not be affected by such operations. The treatment reportedly

Electrical Current Applied
When electrical current is released into the machine, harmonic waves are sent through the ground to the farm in question and attacks only the weed contained in the vial in the office, say the proponents of the system.

There is some question in the layman's mind as to how the negative helps find the farm or exactly how the process works, but there is no definite answer, only several theories, according to Tommy McClintock who mans the station in Tahoka. One of the theories, is that the negative contains markings for land much the same as human fingerprints and the two are matched. But, the men who first invented the machine have died and left no records as to how or why the process works, McClintock says.

It was believed that if a man carried a cornflower in his pocket and it didn't wilt, he would marry his current sweetheart.

does not even have to be limited to the growing season because it deals with the root system.

Only one variety of weed may be treated at a time or it will not harmonize with the crop and could be harmful to the desirable crop. McClintock claims it will take a minimum of three weeks to show a definite result in the root system and less than two months to show the effects on the above ground plant.

Sono Inc. in Plainview is marketing the system and claims it has definitely been proven not be harmful to humans or animals. McClintock claims the Texas State Attorney General's office and several federal bureaus have given their approval for the oscillator to be used.

McClintock & Son Weed Control in Tahoka says the method has been used in other states for about a year, has just entered Texas and will soon be released in New Mexico.

A HOEING BOX?--This box and an electrical current with some kind of wires inside is said to be able to control weeds on a field any number of miles away with the aid of an aerial negative and a sample of the weed to be eliminated. The wires leading from the box are connected to a copper sheet and somehow the set-up sends harmonic waves through the ground until it reaches the desired area and attacks the undesirable weed.

Farmers Lose Money In Irrigation Ditches

A report just published by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 reveals that High Plains ditch irrigation farmers may be losing from $2,747 up to $13,255 each year to the high cost of deep water infiltration and evaporation loss inefficiencies. The Water District has just released its study tabulating statistical data in a report titled "Cost Analysis of Irrigation Ditch Losses."

Field tests for irrigation ditch losses over the years have verified these financial and water drains. This report documents the substantial volume of water which may be lost each year in open ditch irrigation through both decreased efficiency and higher irrigation costs; and it is one of the first studies to statistically analyze these findings.

The report examines three approaches in order to determine the dollar value of the quantities of ditch irrigation water lost in different soil types, the lost water's potential for yield increases, and the economic feasibility of replacing irrigation ditches with alternative irrigation distribution systems.

Findings indicated these losses are indeed expensive, not only in decreased irrigation efficiency which then requires added pumping, but in added fuel costs for the additional pumpage. The water lost due to infiltration and evaporation from irrigation ditches becomes more costly yet if its potential for converting additional crops to irrigation is figured.

Also examined is the economic feasibility of replacing open irrigation ditches with underground pipeline systems, plastic or aluminum pipe. Tables evaluate the breakeven point (years required to recover cost of investment) for installing such systems. Replacement systems are financially justified as the cost of water conveyed in furrow without losses converted into potential savings.

The study concludes it is hard to justify the revenue losses of open ditch irrigation considering the high cost production to the irrigator farmer, especially when the cost might be directly translated into a "net column."

Copies of the report may be obtained free of charge by contacting the Water District office at 2930 Ave. J, Lubbock.
