New Exhibits At Museum

Several new exhibits of interest have been added at Tahoka Pioneer Museum the past two weeks.

E.T. Cloe, local Texaco agent, has donated a case display of 17 types of barbed wire patented in the 1870's and 1880's.

Cloe is recognized as having one of the most complete collections of barbed wire in the nation. He has more than 800 strands of wire on display at his place of business.

He says 602 patents for barbed wire were issued by the U.S. Patent Office between 1853 and 1898, and he has samples of most of them and a warehouse full of other wires.

His most cherished strand of wire is from the very first wire ever patented, "Snake Ribbon Wire", patented on Nov. 8, 1853, by a Texas, W.H. Meriwether of New Braunfels. He also has a strand of the second wire patent issued on Feb. 11, 1868, following the Civil War, which is called Kelly's Diamond Crimped.

Another new exhibit is that just completed by Dr. K.R. Durham, a pioneer dental office, which has the first X-ray used here.

The Lynn County office exhibit, sponsored by Mrs. Audie Norman and others, is also about complete. Latest addition includes a display of most of the Lynn County sheriffs and a couple of other peace officers, a steer horn hat rack, and other items. Also there is a collection of weapons donated by Leighton Knox Jr. which were taken from attendants at Saturday night dances here in one fall, 1957, by Police Chief Jack Miller. These include "Saturday Night Specials", knives, knucks, chains, etc.

Bill Craig has restored and placed on display an International P&O breaking plow, commonly known as a "Georgia Stock", used by most early day settlers in breaking sod for farming. Also, a number of other smaller items and pictures have been donated recently to the Pioneer Museum.

Phebe K. Warner Study Club Meets

Phebe K. Warner Study Club met in the home of Mrs. Jim Wells Thursday, Feb. 28 with Mrs. Pat Barrow as co-hostess. The meeting was called to order by the president, Beth Huffaker and the following business disposed of. It was voted to send ten dollars to pay on a gift for the outgoing president of Caprock District. The slate of officers for the coming year was approved and it was decided to furnish the arrangement for the Chamber of Commerce banquet.

The club accepted Myrner Weaver's resignation with regret.

The club was divided into two groups for a tour of White Funeral Home. One group went at 3:30 and the other at 4:30. Mrs. Billie White graciously gave us an interesting and informative tour, explaining the cost and many other things. She and Mr. Rufus Gerner answered questions for us. We also enjoyed seeing Mrs. White's living quarters.

Crimes increasing at parks, camp sites

COLLEGE STATION — The ballooning crime rate among campers is so striking that a Texas A&M University park expert warns campers from the city not to leave their street sense at home when venturing into the wilds.

"For some reason, people in a big park seem to think they are completely safe and secure," said Dr. Jim Fletcher, a professor in Texas A&M's Department of Recreation and Parks. "They don't put gear away. They don't lock their cars. It's just as essential to take the same precautions in the woods as they would when they're home in the city," he warned.

Thefts in the state and national park systems have ranged from expensive down sleeping bags to four-wheel drive pickup trucks.

Fletcher suggests campers always lock their cars and secure personal possessions like stoves, clothing and sleeping bags when away from the camping site.

WAYNE BARTON and his champion Angus, shown with buyer Ray Adams of Tahoka, who purchased the animal for $650.

Rodeo Association

The Tahoka Rodeo Association will meet Friday night, March 7 at 7 p.m. in the Tahoka Cafeteria. Everyone is urged to attend this meeting.

Tarleton offers fun courses for the non-music major

STEPHENVILLE — By signing up for certain courses, Tarleton State University students may be fulfilling a lifelong dream of learning a musical instrument or improving their vocal ability.

Three classes, piano, guitar and voice, are offered to students this spring, regardless of their major.

The piano major is offered for students with little or no musical background. "By mastering a few chords," says music professor Gregory Pike, "virtually every pop tune becomes accessible to the beginning piano student."

The same philosophy underlies the course design in guitar and voice. All three courses are taught for the students' enjoyment and relaxation.

ACCORDING TO THE BIBLE

BIBLE Answers for BIBLE Questions
By DOUG CARTER

Question: How valid were the miracles of Jesus?

Answer: Though some avoid their use, miracles performed are still a very valuable evidence of deity. Now Jesus did many other signs in the presence of the disciples, which are not written that you believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God (20, 30, 31). The miracles were given for the purpose of confirming the message (Heb. 2:4). They served purpose and still do so today through the written word of the Bible of those marvelous signs and wonders.

Many of Jesus' miracles were performed before public eye where they were open for investigation and inspection. Others were performed in the company of unbelievers who could not deny the actual miracle. Jesus performed a great variety of miracles, an extended period of time. He healed the sick, the dead, had supernatural knowledge, had power over the forces of nature, and showed the powers of creation multiplying food. He did not have a limited repertoire of miracles like so-called faith healers today.

Though what He did was open for inspection, never discredited His miracles during the first century. Christians under persecution never claimed miracles were a hoax. Judas in betraying Jesus did not prove such, and His opponents even recognized that Jesus performed great signs. Yes, Jesus' miracles were valid and are still an evidence for us today. ### Sherry Etheredge Says....

Apples, celery and walnuts are plentiful. Together they make Waldorf Salad. Your dressing for them is delightful if you fold in one tablespoon each of sugar and lemon juice, one-half teaspoon vanilla and one-fourth teaspoon of salt into one cup of dairy sour cream. Cover and chill for an hour to let flavors blend before using. If desired, add some grated orange peel (up to one teaspoon).

You may have sung about Chantilly Lace but have you ever eaten Chantilly Cream? Whip one-half cup of whipping cream, fold in one-half cup of sour cream, sweeten with three tablespoons of confectioners' sugar and one-half teaspoon of vanilla. It's great to serve on cut-up, leftover holiday fruits or fruited gelatin.

Melted butter mixed with a few dry bread crumbs, a dash of lemon juice and parsley add life to a combination of leftover cooked vegetables. If you don't have enough cauliflower, extend it with carrots; add a small can of mushroom stems and pieces to broccoli; some lettuce to peas while reheating; a bit of corn combines with green beans. Butter sauce holds each duo together. Save calories by using yogurt as a salad dressing. Plain yogurt may be mixed with fresh or dried herbs or salad dressing mix to serve on green salads. Use an appropriate flavored yogurt on fruit salads, mixing before spooning.

Ancient grain could decrease modern food shortages

COLLEGE STATION — A 2,000 year-old staple of the Inca empire described by Texas A&M University scientists as an "almost ideal food protein" could provide an ancient answer to modern food shortages.

The grain, quinoa (key-no-ah), is a cereal with a protein rating of about 16 percent, compared to a skimpy 6 percent in most American wheat products. This makes quinoa far superior to most cereal grains.

Quinoa is only under experimental testing in the United States at Texas A&M test plots, but researchers agree quinoa could be adapted to American high technology agricultural production methods, particularly in the dry Texas High Plains.

Housing costs continue to rise

COLLEGE STATION — Prices statewide for new and previously owned homes continue to rise, according to data compiled by Dr. Arthur Wright, research economist with the Texas Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M University.

According to Wright, the average price of a previously owned home was $56,485 for the third quarter of 1979, a 17 percent increase over the average price a year ago.

Hospital Group Seeks Members

More members are being sought by the Lynn County Hospital Auxiliary, a volunteer group organized last year to provide extra services to make patients and family more comfortable.

President Joy Bragg said the organization also would accept and welcome associate members, persons who are willing to pay dues but who are unable to devote time to the work involved.

"This is a good way for such persons to participate in our activities," she said.

Betty Owens is vice president and Pam Womack secretary of the auxiliary.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve Duckett recently returned from a 2 weeks fishing trip in the Corpus Christi area. After visiting with the daughter's family, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Davis in San Antonio for a weekend, they proceeded to the bay where they say fishing was plentiful and they had good luck.

The San Antonio relatives joined them there for a weekend. Carolyn is school nurse at Fox-Tex High School and Leon is representative for Southwest Motor Transport Co. of San Antonio. They both attended Tahoka schools before their marriage.

A joint School of Instruction was held in Lamesa on Tuesday night, Feb. 26 at the Farmers Union Bld. for all Rebekah Lodges in District #18. Berta H. Porter Lodge was host Lodge and others attending included Lamesa #90, Brownfield #56 and Tahoka #209. District Deputy Pres. Retha Ford conducted the school for about 50 people. A sandwich supper with chips, dips, dessert and drinks was served at the close of the meeting.

Attending from Tahoka were Zella Taylor, Leona Waldrip, Evelyn Burr, Louise Wyatt, Willie Childress and Audrey Akin.

Members of Lynn County Pioneer Club enjoyed a "Leap Year Party" on Friday night. Eleven men and 23 women were on hand for the salad supper at 6:30 p.m. Forty games were enjoyed during the hour that followed and several played "42" before the evening was over. Everyone expressed a very enjoyable time.

The club has had 6 new members in the last month and much interest is being shown. Everyone 60 years old or older is invited to come to the center any day Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Also to special party nights announced.

Mrs. Thelma Dewbre, accompanied by her daughter Joyce, returned home on Monday after spending the winter in Commerce, Texas. Joyce will spend a few days here before flying back home in time for "spring break". Her husband, Dr. Kenneth McCord, is a professor in the college there.

Visiting in the homes of Albert and Charlene Williams and Keith, Connie and Drew Williams last week were Charlene's sister and brother-in-law, Bob and Faye Dunlap from Chandler, Texas. Also visiting was a niece Diane Hill and Brandi, from Henrietta, Texas. They also visited in Lubbock with Bob's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Jack Dunlap and family.

Of The Economy

DRIVING UP PRICES?
By taking advantage of seasonal sales, some families manage to make ends meet, and many manage to cope better with inflation.

Federal regulation of trucking has helped hold prices down.

Ironically, legislation before Congress may not only make it difficult for stores to offer these sales, but it may also contribute to a general rise in prices.

Legislation to deregulate the trucking industry might increase the retailer's transportation costs by 20 percent initially, according to executives of many of the nation's largest department stores, and those costs would have to be passed on to the consumer.

If trucking is deregulated, many stores might also have to hire extra personnel to hunt through the myriad combination of rates, routes and carriers to find the best way to obtain their merchandise, resulting in more increased costs.

On the consumer cash register, deregulation might ring up "No Sale!"

CASONDRA BREWER and her grand champion bought for $1,025 by Brownfield State Bank, represented by Buddy Hawkins of West Point.

THIS ARTICLE IS ANOTHER WARNING!

Please Consider

It's really a series of warnings! Get your eyes off the newspaper headlines and the television news reports and get them on the Word of God. There are many who claim they are able to discern the signs of the times.

If we believed all they write we'd blow a mental fuse.

WARNING NUMBER ONE: With a little effort every man and his mother can "fit" today's headlines into Bible texts.

The following quote came from a newspaper editorial. And I don't have to tell you how well it describes our present troubles. Listen:

Not in the lifetime of most men has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this present time. The domestic economic situation is in chaos. Our dollar is weak throughout the world. Prices are so high as to be utterly impossible. The political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent, upon the horizon. It is a solemn moment. Of our troubles, no man can see the end.

When was that written? Last week? Two months ago? It must have been written recently because it describes our present situation well — doesn't it? It was written in October, 1857! It was an editorial in the Harper's Weekly. What does that tell you? It tells you if you had lived in October 1857 you could have used the same scriptures as were used in a recent "warning" article in this newspaper. And who could have doubted you? You would have had the verses and you would have had the headlines. You would have "proven" we were in the last hours of this age BACK IN OCTOBER 1857!

It's no secret that history has the habit of "repeating" itself. Everything changes but nothing changes. Read 2 Timothy 3:1-5, then read something of the history of the first several centuries of this era and see if you don't agree that the "last hours" were way back then. Listen, you could write a paper on modern events using only the graffiti (scribbles) on the walls on ancient Greek and Roman ruins. So it isn't surprising that someone is able to go to the Bible, grab a text at random, match it with a newspaper headline and "hey presto," we have a "prophecy of today!"

WARNING NUMBER TWO: Remember that we have had these time-setters with us for centuries.

We have the record of people in 1,000 A.D. who insisted that the last hour had arrived because of the signs of the times and because of the thousand years of Revelation 20. We've had more people tell us they had the prophecies worked out than we have the space to list. Mister Miller (died 1849) after fourteen years of serious study in prophecy assured the world Christ was coming in 1843. He didn't! Miller tried again and again Christ refused to make his appearance. Joseph Smith (died 1844) has his shot at it and also failed. More recently the Jehovah's Witnesses assured us it was all over. This is the third time (at least) that they have tried and missed.

Hal Lindsey assured us that "within forty years or so of 1948" the Lord would probably appear. And in this view, he told us, he had the backing of "many scholars who have studied Bible prophecy all their lives." Lindsey has since recanted on the "forty years" or so. He now has also said he doesn't know if May 1948 began the generation that would see the end. Lindsey quoted again and again from Cumming whose books sold like hot cakes in the 19th century. They fell into disrepute because his predictions kept failing.

But many of these time-setters tell us they aren't setting the time. But when they use words like "excitingly near," "the last hour," "just around the corner" and such, I'd say they were doing just that. But it helps if you retain just enough vagueness. For if things don't develop as you predict they will, it's easier to wangle out from under it. Lindsey, for example, had mentioned forty years or so and later (in an interview with Eternity magazine) went to one hundred. Ah well.

WARNING NUMBER THREE: Always be suspicious of someone who conspires you to perdition or the ranks of the not-born-again if you disagree with his interpretation.

Now to deny the plain word of God is one thing; but to reject someone's uninspired interpretation is quite another. The recent "warning" assured us that "any Bible studying, born again Christian, knows that we are in the closing hours of this age." The article went on to say that anyone who thought the views in the article were foolish had proved that he was one of the "perishing."

The truth is that there are millions of Bible studying and born again Christians who do not believe we are in the closing hours of this age. They are modest enough to admit that they are ignorant as to when this age is going to close. They admit ignorance because they believe the Lord will give us no warning of his coming (1 Thessalonians 5:1ff). There's something wrong with the spirit which says: "If you don't accept my uninspired interpretation of prophecy you are one on his way to perdition!" This is doubly true when the writer has to be able to understand the movements of present day nations as well as the Bible. So if I don't accept the writer's view of scriptures and his linking them up with today's newspaper I'm heading for perdition. And if you don't agree that the world is about to end obviously are not a Bible studying and born again Christian. Was this gentleman serious?

WARNING NUMBER FOUR: Be suspicious of those who ASSERT without attempting to prove major points.

The article assured us that the expression "the latter days" (or "last" days — the expression is the same in Greek) speaks of "the days just preceding Christ's return to earth." With premillennialists this is a very important phrase. Here's how it works. If the phrase means what the writer said it meant then everytime you read it in the Bible you have a prophecy of today. You only need a concordance and your eyes to know this isn't true.

Hebrews 1:1 tells us that Christ's personal ministry took place in the "last days." Read it for yourself.

Acts 2:16-17 tells us that Peter believed he was in the "last days." Read it for yourself.

2 Timothy 3:1 tells us that Timothy was living among the kind of people who would arise in the "last days." He was told "from such turn away." How could he turn away from them if the latter days wouldn't come until 1900 years after he died?

Genesis 49:1 tells us that the "latter days" dealt with things (many of) which were fulfilled back in the days of Joshua.

Get your concordance and check others for yourself. Is all this not just "nit pickin'"? Not at all. If the "latter days" means what these people say it means then they have the proof they need that there are prophecies dealing with a period "just preceding" the coming of Christ. I'm simply saying that what they assert doesn't come from the Bible. If a thing is proved by simply assertion then it only takes an assertion to disprove it. The expression is used variously but never (check your concordance) as the article claimed. It sometimes simply means "later" (Genesis 49:1). Some say it is used of the Christian era and use Acts 2 and 2 Timothy 3 (the "last dispensation"). It sometimes speaks of the last phase of Jewish commonwealth history. Hebrews 1:1 would be an illustration of this.

Another crucial assertion concerns Daniel 2 and 7. We are told that the image had ten toes. That's important to these people. But where does Daniel ever say that? To modern "prophets" the most important phase of this image is its

"ten" toes. Isn't it strange that this isn't even mentioned in the chapter? The writer of the article assumed this and then consigns me to perdition for not agreeing with him.

But the writer believes that the ten toes equal the ten horns of chapter 7:7, 20 and 24. This is another assumption without proof. Where does Daniel say anything like this?

BESIDES — IF TOES EQUAL HORNS THEN THERE OUGHT TO HAVE BEEN ELEVEN TOES FOR THERE ARE ELEVEN HORNS IN DANIEL 7. Read it for yourself. But suppose we allow the assumption of ten toes; and suppose we allow the assumption that toes equal horns, what then? The writer further assumes that the ten horns equal ten kingdoms. Daniel doesn't say this. He says the horns represent rulers belonging to the Roman beast (7:24) BUT SUPPOSE WE ALLOW ALL THAT, WHAT THEN? The writer then asserts that the ten kingdoms are the ten nations of the European Common Market. What ten nations make up the Common Market? I'm from Europe and I'm asserting that these nations are not moving toward "political unification" slowly or rapidly. Are you not amazed that with all these assumptions and assertions we are assigned to perdition for thinking the article foolish?

But someone says — surely it isn't a bad assumption that the image had ten toes. True! But it is an assumption. One can't build prophecies of worldwide dimension on an assumption. Do you think it's a fair assumption that it had ten fingers? Daniel makes no more out of arms or fingers or legs than he does out of toes. But here's something else. Follow this carefully.

The writer holds the toes are ten and they equal horns. The stone (2:34-35) hits the image on the feet and utterly destroys it. Here's the question: Did the stone destroy the image while it had TEN toes? The answer has to be that the stone destroyed the image however many toes it had. But, if you'll notice in 7:7, 8, 20 and 24 that there arises after the ten horns another (11th) horn which plucks up three which leaves eight. The problem should be clear:

1. If toes equal horns why weren't there 11 toes and then only eight?
2. If the stone destroyed the image during a 10 toed phase then there could not have been an eleventh horn.
3. Nor could the 11th horn have uprooted three horns and left eight since (on this view) the image was destroyed during a ten toed phase.

So not only is this whole picture of the future based on assumption after assumption, assertion after assertion, it won't bear looking at in light of the text. Now I don't have the space to develop all this but there is a much simpler view of Daniel 2 and one which accords with the statement of the Master in Mark 1:15.

Daniel 2 speaks of four kingdoms (2:40, "the fourth"). They are Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome. All evangelical people known to me hold this to be correct. (The writer of the article accepts this.) Now, 2:44 assures us that in the days of these kings (the Roman kings) God would establish the Messianic kingdom. Jesus knew about this prophecy. In Mark 1:15 he said:

"The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand."

Jesus was born in the days of the Roman emperor Augustus and he grew to manhood under Tiberius. Knowing the prophetic program he appears preaching not only that the kingdom of God was "at hand" (near) but that "the time is fulfilled." What made him think the time was fulfilled in the first century when the writer of our article knows that the time is just shaping up to be fulfilled? The writer of the warning article assured us that God would set up his kingdom in the days of the ten European kingdoms (the Common Market) of the 20th century. Jesus thought the "time was fulfilled" in the first century — 1900 years ago.

Yes, says someone, but Christ postponed the establishment of the kingdom. But how could he postpone something that wasn't due for another 1900 years? If he postponed it that concedes that it was due in the first century. BUT IF IT REALLY WAS DUE IN THE FIRST CENTURY THEN THIS COMMON MARKET STUFF IS NONSENSE. Jesus said the time was fulfilled in his day. He knew Daniel couldn't have taught the time would be fulfilled in the 20th century.

Jesus was born under the Romans and was crucified under the Romans. He was raised by God under the Romans and set on David's throne (Acts 2:29ff). And now sits at God's right hand ruling over every name that is named not only in this world but in that which is to come (Ephesians 1:19ff). He claimed (back in the first century) to have the authority of David (Revelation 3:7). The kingdom of God has already been established because the time was fulfilled back in the first century. See Revelation 1:5; 2:26-27; 3:7; 17:14; 19:16; 1 Peter 3:22; Matthew 28:18 and more.

WARNING NUMBER FIVE: Always pay special attention to the context from which people quote scriptures.

Lindsey admitted that he got his picture of future events from verses "scattered in small bits throughout the Old and New Testaments." Quite a confession. This is characteristic of the "boom in doom" people. For example, in the recent article in this paper Revelation 3:10 was quoted in block capitals and applied to 20th century people. It was written to a little church in Asia-Minor, 1900 years ago. The Philadelphians were promised protection from the trouble which would fall on the world (see Luke 2:1 with reference to the "inhabited earth"). Read the awful war which shook the Roman world in the days of Bar Kosheba and which began in 132 A.D. It seems it doesn't matter who a verse is written to, if it suits your purpose, quote it! And whatever you do, don't let on that the context goes against your view!

The book of Revelation is written (mostly) in symbolic speech. But 1:1, 3; 22:6 and 10 aren't in symbol. Have you read these passages? Read them for yourself without comment of mine. PLEASE read them for yourself without any comment of mine and tell yourself what John thought his book dealt with! LET ME PUT THE QUESTION TO YOU: Did John tell us that the book he wrote 1900 years ago was dealing with things which would soon come to pass and which were at hand?

Are you capable of reading the Bible for yourself? Will you surrender your intellect? Are you really incapable of understanding the phrase "shortly come to pass"? Did John think he was writing about things 1900 years in the future or concerning things which were to "shortly come to pass"? Will you at least read Daniel 8:1 (553 B.C.), 8:13-14 (164/5 B.C.) and 8:26 (especially 8:26)? And one more—Ezekiel 12:21-28. Read that with Revelation 1:1, 3; 22:6 and 10.

And did you notice the frequent quotes from Matthew 24 and Luke 21? They were all applied to the yet future. Matthew 24:14 was applied to the yet future even though Jesus said in 24:34: "THIS generation shall not pass away until all these things be fulfilled." Luke 21:32 says the same thing. Now get this, Jesus back in, say, 32 A.D. says: "THIS generation won't pass away till all these things are accomplished;" and the article still applies it to the yet future. Doesn't this make you wonder? Nor did the article tell you that the troubles of Luke 21 were to end with a worldwide captivity of the Jew (Luke 21:24). That goes against the views of the gentleman who wrote the article. (See Isaiah 13:1, 10ff; 19:1; 34:4-5; Jeremiah 4:19-26; Micah 1:3-5; Zephaniah 1:2-6 etc. etc. for the apocalyptic kind of speech contained in Matthew 24 and Luke 21.) Read Luke 21 and Mark 13 along with Matthew 24 and see for yourself that the Master is dealing there with the judgment on Jerusalem which took place before that generation passed away.

And the writer of the article quoted from Ezekiel 38 & 39 to get a coming Russian war against Israel. He didn't see fit to tell us that the "Russians" are going to war with hand-staves, spears, bows, arrows, shields, bucklers, and the like (38:4; 39:9). Nor did he see fit to tell us that the Israel they are going against sits utterly without defense (38:11). Is this modern Israel? The nation that is armed to the teeth with all kinds of weaponry? Nor did he see fit to tell us that Israel is going to burn the weapons of the enemy (39:9-10) and take seven years to do it. Nor did he see fit to tell us that Gog (Russia, he says) though utterly annihilated before the alleged Millennium arises again 1,000 years later to be annihilated again (Revelation 20:7-10). Nor did he see fit to tell you that Ezekiel describes this Israel that is attacked as living in peace under David as their sole and only king (34:23-24, 37:22-24, 25).

I don't have the space to develop this—just let me assert, for now, that Ezekiel 34-48 describes the (then) coming glory of the believing Jew under the Messiah. This (then) coming glory is described in terms which related well to the Jewish mind. "David" has already made his appearance in the Messiah. The believer has inherited the heavenly country which Abraham sought for (Hebrew 11:11-16). There is a new priesthood and temple already in existence. Note especially that whatever land 37:25 really speaks of, the people are to dwell in it eternally. That can't possibly be understood literally for even the writer of the article believes that this old earth is going to be annihilated.

But what about the Gog affair? Gog and his army are the symbol for the enemies of the people of God. They come from the four points of the compass in relation to Israel. Their number, conservatively estimated is 630 million (39:12-13). They are defeated without firing a shot. This is God's way of saying that under the Messiah his people are unbeatable. Look now at Micah 5:2-5 where the enemy of the Jew after the arrival of the Messiah is said not to be Gog but Assyria. Go ahead, look for yourself. "Assyria" in that passage stands for the enemies of God's people just as Gog and his host stand for them in Ezekiel 38 & 39. Well, you surely don't think Assyria is going to attack Israel sometime in the future—do you?

Just one more. The writer quoted a part of Isaiah 28:22 but completely ignored 21 which when taken with 29:1-14 (especially 29:14) has reference to the 701 B.C. invasion of Jerusalem by Sennacherib. He quotes 2 Peter 3 concerning the Tribulation period when he believes that 2 Peter 3 has reference to after the Millennium (more than 1,000 years later). No more—that's more than enough. The whole thing is a hedge-podge of scriptures taken out of context and woven together to look like it is one piece.

Is Christ coming again? Of course! Will he judge the world? Yes! Is this seven year Tribulation theory true? No! Will we get any warning of Christ's coming? No! Is he going to come at least twice more (as the writer of the article believes)? No! He's coming one more time (Acts 1:8 and Hebrews 9:28).

WARNING NUMBER SIX: Always ask what there is that we're not being told.

The writer of the article believes (but didn't tell us) that there is going to be a restoration of the Levitical priesthood, more bloody sacrifices for sin (Ezekiel 43:13, 19-22, 25-26; 44:27, 29; 45:17 literally understood) and the restoration of sabbath observance and circumcision as essential to communion with God. To bring back the Levitical priesthood would require the return of the Mosaic law (Hebrews 7:11ff) and that would bring back the curse (see Galatians 3:10-13; 5:1ff).

The Hebrew writer believed that if Christ's once for all sacrifice did its job there would be no more bloody sacrifices for sin (10:17-18). I can hardly see us as consigned to perdition because we refuse to accept a position that unintentionally but very definitely undermines the finished work of Christ. The writer is teaching that Judaism must come back with its temple and priesthood and sacrifices. This runs directly against the teaching of Romans, Galatians and Hebrews.

1. If Christ's blood has secured remission of sin there will be no more bloody sacrifices—Hebrews 10:17-18

2. But Christ's blood has secured remission of sins

3. Therefore Christ's blood didn't secure remission of sins

The gentleman who wrote the premillennial article believes that Ezekiel 34-48 is yet to be literally fulfilled. The sacrifices mentioned in Ezekiel (see the passages cited above) are explicitly said to be for sin and to make atonement. There is no getting around that. The restoration of bloody sacrifices for sin would undermine the finished work of Christ. This is serious to ignore!

WARNING NUMBER SEVEN: If people manifest unreliability in their use of scriptures by random choosing and contextual binders to be extra cautious of them when they speak on how to become Christ's and so to be saved. Salvation is a free gift from God. It cannot be earned in any way. We do earn condemnation (Adam didn't earn it for us — perhaps we can discuss Romans 5:12-21 another time). Salvation is a gift offered to everyone who will come to Christ on Christ's terms (Hebrews 5:9; Romans 5:16b).

Our writer in telling people what they "must do" to be saved quoted half of Christ's must in John 3:5. Isn't that interesting? One must be born of the water and the Spirit to enter the kingdom. Now that's what Jesus said.

To three thousand convicted sinners Peter, when they asked him what they must do, said: "Repent and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." That's what the Spirit said through Peter in Acts 2:38.

A convicted and deeply penitent Saul said to the Christ on the Damascus road (Acts 22:10): "What shall I do, Lord?" The Master told him (22:11) that he would be told what he had to do. When the God-sent preacher came he said (22:16): "And now, why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on his name." That's what Jesus had the preacher to tell the penitent Saul who had been a praying believer for at least three days (Acts 9:9). One would have thought if a believing, penitent and praying man with his sins washed away that Paul would. But God sent a preacher to this believing, praying and penitent man and told him his sins had not yet been washed away. Now that's what the Bible says. The Bible does speak of repentance and faith, but it says more than that.

The Roman Christians were people who had confessed with their mouth what they believed in their hearts about Jesus being Lord (Romans 10:9-10); but am I mistaken when I say they were the very ones who were baptized into Christ? Is that not what Romans 6:3 specifically says? Am I not specifically told that these believing people were buried with Christ that their "old man" might be done away and that they would then become Christ's? Is this not what Romans 6:3-6 and 17 explicitly says? Isn't this what your Bible says?

The writer of the article quoted from the Ephesian letter and rightly reminded us that they trusted in Christ and subsequently received the Spirit. But weren't they Ephesians in Acts 19:1-5 who had not only been baptized once but were taken by Paul and baptized again? Isn't that what the Bible explicitly says?

One night, sometime after midnight, a jailer became convicted that two of his prisoners were special people. He asked what he must do (Acts 16:30-34). The opening sentence of Paul was that he must believe (trust) Jesus Christ and he would be saved. Luke tells us that Paul continues his lesson before the jailer and took him right then and baptized him—right then, in the middle of the night. Even before they had taken care of their own wounds! Isn't that what the Bible explicitly says? Did the article you read WARN you about anything like this? Were you told what Peter told the Pentecostians in Acts 2:38? Were you told what Paul was told in Acts 22:16? Were you reminded of how trusting Romans got into Christ (6:3)? Were you urged to be baptized once, much less twice? Did you hear the article to the finish without hearing about being baptized? That jailer didn't hear all the message until he heard about being baptized—the same hour of the night. You were rightly told about trust and penitence! But were you given the whole counsel of God on the matter of salvation? Were you not given half of a verse in John 3? I beg you before God to forget about these supposed coming wars and sit down under God and see for yourself what he requires of you. You earn nothing, mark you! The purchase price was paid 1900 years ago. But it's no sign of humility to refuse to submit to Christ on his terms that he might bless you with his gift.

You were warned about alleged wars that are coming up but you were told that a moment's genuine trust meant a salvation you couldn't lose. Is that what the Hebrew writer believed? Did he not warn people over and over again about turning away from Christ the source of their salvation? I'm begging of you to do this—rather than my citing a few texts from Hebrews, I'm asking you to sit down and read for yourself the whole book. No, I must point you to a few. Look especially at 3:6-4:11; 6:4-8; 10:26-31; 36-39. Now, having read the book ask yourself if the Word promises eternal and effortless salvation to a moment's genuine trust. See for yourself John 8:32; Romans 8:13; 1 Corinthians 8:11; 10:1-12; Galatians 5:4; 2 Peter 2:2, 19-22. And would you please look at Revelation 22:19. Tell me, in light of that threat, that warning (which you didn't receive) if a person can lose what God wants him/her to have?

And one more thing. The writer told us that we "are born condemned to hell and eternal separation from God." I'm grateful to God that this kind of Calvinism is dying. (A.W. Pink laments that it is dying. I'm glad that people are beginning to see through this brand of Calvinism. It has been mocking the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ long enough. No one seriously doubts the wickedness and horror of sin. The Cross gives us one grand exegesis and manifestation of our vileness. We can accept that, we MUST accept that. But this other, that we are born condemned and violent sinners, created by God for no other reason than to damn us—that's not the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Born condemned to eternal conscious torment? Born condemned without reference to my choice? My Bible doesn't require me to saddle God with that. Yes, I know about the passages cited in its favor! They're abused and misused. John Calvin said this:

Not all men are created with a similar destiny but eternal life is foreordained for some, and eternal damnation for others. Every man, therefore, being created for one or the other of these ends, we say, he is predestined either to life or to death.

I will not believe it! Of a God who would make such eternal decrees. Wesley said to Whitfield, "Whitfield, your God is my Devil!" I find it a little amusing (and yet, why should I?) to hear such Calvinists who preach that we lost free will in Adam argue against the atheist that we have free will. Such Calvinists oppose philosophical determinism and then preach theological determinism. They argue against the atheist (Bernard Ramm and Gordon H. Clark, as examples) and urge him to believe that people are not without free will, and that they are responsible for their thoughts and actions. Then they go to their Bible and ask us to believe that we are born without free will. And then, still claim we are responsible for our sins.

In conclusion Modern millennialism is a serious and basic error and so is this thoroughgoing Calvinism. But that doesn't mean the people who hold such views are mean or uncaring. The ones I know are sweet people who (as I judge in the light of the Word) have moved in the wrong direction. It does matter what we believe! There are basic truths which must be believed and submitted to. This article is a warning against the previous warning article. Compare them both.

I've belonged to Christ for over twenty years and I just want to tell you that I've never enjoyed him more than I do today. So I pray that you will turn to his Word and permit him to lead and guide you to him. Where I'm from they sell milk in glass bottles. When empty, the bottles are left outside for the milkman to pick up. The father told his seven year old boy to "put out the milk bottles." The boy picked them up, headed for the door which the father opened. He stepped outside and stopped—it was so dark. The boy began to protest a little about "it's dark out there!" The father said: "Aw, son, it's only to the end of the path." But the boy with wavering voice still protested so the father stepped outside with him. The child ran to the end of the path, clattered the bottles down and ran back as the father stepped back into the house. He threw his arms around his father's waist and said: "It's too dark to go out there without a father!" So it is—so why don't you get right with him?

Scanning Social Security

By JIM LATIMER

Today more than ever people seek security in material things which are necessary to sustaining life. Such things as food, clothing, and shelter are essential to the well being of all of us. How to attain these things is a matter of concern to everyone.

What happens when someone's income is cut off because of severe disability, death, or becoming too old to work any more. These questions each of us must ask himself in order to plan some kind of economic security for ourselves and our dependents.

In emergency and short term situations, Social Security is not a place to go to get help. Programs operated by the federal government rarely are set up to furnish immediate money to someone in an emergency. Social Security is no exception.

There are quick payments in some cases of social security however, and these cases are paid by the

Many of the questions we get from this area concern the purchase of supplement insurance to cover hospital and medical bills. We have several pamphlets to make it easy to understand Medicare parts A and B, but many persons cannot understand these pamphlets. One excellent pamphlet however, is very easy to read and is available without charge just for the asking. Use the address above to order your copy of "Guide to Health Insurance for People with Medicare".

With hospital bills approaching $300 per day in this area, it is very important that we use all the resources we have available to meet hospital and medical costs. A long stay in a hospital, with its normally concurrent doctor bill expenses can be totally devastating. Persons with considerable resources can be broke when a serious and lingering illness occurs.

I trust that not many of you will stay in a hospital this year, but statistics show that some of you will have several days in some hospital.

Since medicare does not cover everything, be prepared with other insurance if you can afford it. If you have Medicaid, it is not likely you need or can afford other hospital-medical insurance.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Texans have always been proud to be Americans, and yet we treasure our unique state heritage — a legacy of independent will, pride and high principles.

Many of the cherished traditions which are a major source of strength today took shape during the brief nine years of the Republic of Texas. The Declaration of Independence which founded the Republic March 2, 1836, sets forth many of the values that have helped shape the Texas character.

When our Texas forebears spoke of tyranny from a "far distant seat of government," Mexico City was their target, not Washington, D.C. But while we today are not plagued by "the merciless savage, with the tomahawk and the scapling knife," some of the Texas freedom fighters' concerns have as much meaning today in the interminable conflict with a "savage" bureaucracy whose "weapons" are the regulation and impenetrable organization.

The authors of the independence document declared "the whole nature of their government has been forcibly changed without their consent." "...Moderation is at length so far lost by those in power that even the semblance of freedom is removed," the signers contended. Those words seem uncomfortably applicable to us today. Sometimes it even seems that we, too, are confronted by "a hostile majority in an unknown tongue" to the "point at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue."

Certainly, the brave citizens of the Texas Republic faced tyrannies unknown to us. We have not been militarily invaded. Our Legislature has not been dissolved. We still are blessed with the freedom and the means to seek the values underscored in the Texas Declaration of Independence — a strong defense, a strong public education system, protections for civil liberties, and freedom of religion.

And we have something else — the same indomitable spirit of our forefathers, as best exemplified in a letter, written by the young commandant of the Alamo, and an inspiration to all Texans then and now. Writing to "the People of Texas and all Americans in the world," Col. William Barret Travis said:

"I am besieged, by a thousand or more of the Mexicans under Santa Anna — I have sustained continual bombardment & cannonade for 24 hours & have not lost a man — The enemy has demanded a surrender at discretion, otherwise, the garrison are to be put to the sword, if the fort is taken — I have answered the demand with a cannon shot, & our flag still waves proudly from the walls — I shall never surrender or retreat. Then, I call on you in the name of Liberty, of patriotism & everything dear to the American character, to come to our aid, with all despatch — The enemy is receiving reinforcements daily & will no doubt increase to three or four thousand in four or five days. If this call is neglected, I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible & die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor & that of his country — Victory or Death.

Physical education classes adjust to today's students

COLLEGE STATION — The old-fashioned gym class led by a whistle-toting, military style PE teacher is disappearing from the schoolyards and gyms.

Physical education classes now are being designed for individual activity and structured to help youngsters learn lifelong skills, say physical education experts at Texas A&M University.

With the rising incidence of heart disease and other ailments, schools are realizing they have a responsibility to help children maintain healthy bodies through adulthood by teaching a variety of physical skills, notes Dr. Charles Shea.

On the elementary level, there is less emphasis on competition, he adds. Instead teachers work on motor skills, encouraging children to learn the best way to do a movement or a series of movements. In high school students are being taught things relevant to their world now and later in life, including outdoor recreation activities, ballet, tennis and equestrian skills.

operations purchasing 2200-acre-feet of water or less per year would pay a base cost for water on a per-acre-foot basis. Those purchasing more than 3600-acre-feet of water per year would pay the full cost of water. The bill also would encourage better waste management and conservation. Patterson said economics and not the federal government should dictate farm size.

Exports Reported—New sales of upland cotton were reported at 21,600 running bales for the week ended Feb. 17, bringing the season's total to 8,566,500. The major buyers were Canada, 11,400 bales, and Korea, 6,000. The week's exports were reported at 262,700 running bales (114,400 to China), compared with 313,300 a week ago. This brought the total to 4,243,800 for the year.

Winter Or Spring?

Winter and Spring seasons sometimes overlap and can lead to confusion. Knowing how to dress, set thermostats and make other important decisions can be influenced by the season. Inflation can also have serious impact on ones styles for living. What can be done?

Take a step at a time, obvious as it may appear, effective and efficient management is important. Fighting inflation seems almost hopeless at times, however, cost cutting methods and techniques are valid and can discourage rising inflation.

Take a look at variable jobs done at home and site new techniques for more efficiency. One of the many job performances is food preparation. Whether to eat out regularly or manage for meals at home has become a strong issue for families wishing to economize. This is particularly true where there are two or one. Deliberate and concentrated thought needs to be given. If equipment is at home, it can be utilized to avoid waste in terms of food, energy and money. Little things mean so much.

If the surface unit area of the cooking range is used, use one surface unit instead of three or four to cook the meal. Select a flat bottom, medium weight cook ware or pan with straight sides and cover. Make cup shape inserts from aluminum foil. This may be done by molding aluminum foil over the bottom of a cup or glass making it to have a flat bottom. Place three or four foil holders in pan. Fill with vegetables or meat. Set heat for medium or low and cook the meal for the cost of cooking just one of these foods in a separate pan with separate heat.

A coming boom in microwave foods will help families want to eat more meals at home for less. Improved management is affordable also. The food news for microwave owners is that foods and meals will be in cardboard, plastics and other suitable containers for the microwave oven. With the thought that microwave cooking is different and foods prepared for the process should have different characteristics—less moisture for example—than items intended for conventional ovens. Food processors are pushing to meet consumer's needs in this respect. There are some kinks however, to be worked out and microwave oven companies will need to help standardize performance standards of microwave ovens. With this in mind, food processors can state more definite instructions for cooking in keeping with timing and power settings. Convenience food companies are pushing to get their foods for microwave cooking on the market at a modest if not economical price to the consumer. Several hundred million will be spent on research and development.

Food company's also anticipate increase in number of sales for microwave ovens. One company - Swanson has introduced a line of six microwave entrees such as lasagna and fried chicken. Other products will be converted for microwave cooking such as T.V. dinners.

Another company, Pillsbury will feature products including variable food items and variable quantities to serve small to large size families. Other company's are working to better serve the consumer with products they can afford.

And mentioning microwave ovens. They do need maintenance by the owner. Keep it clean. Usually a paper towel will wipe it clean. Mild detergent in warm water and a sponge or soft cloth will do the job. Clean the door seals of the oven and the door. This adds to performance and contributes to safety. Dried particles inside the oven may be loosened by placing a cup of water in oven and bringing the water to boiling. The steam from the boiling water will loosen the dried particles.

Do not use commercial cleaners or abrasive cleaners. Stains from ceramic oven floors may be removed. Use baking soda or a ceramic glass cleaner to scrub the surface. To remove odors, boil one part lemon juice and three parts water in a measuring cup in the oven.

Perhaps the latest news is the initial response to the introduction of microwave convection combining ovens. Three manufacturing company are looking favorable in this direction. Some think the combination will be the major appliance of this decade. One company plans to market the convection combination oven in the fall. Proposed retail price is $800.

What do microwave/convection ovens do? These products can be used either as a convection oven, a microwave oven or in combination of the two as the oven automatically cycles back and forth from microwave to convection cooking. This means they brown and crisp better than microwave ovens as well as cooks faster than convection ovens. They are most effective in preparing foods as roasts and baked goods.

It is believed that the microwave convection combination ovens will not really affect the microwave oven market. Choices will exist and consumer my choose in keeping with which best meets his needs. For your copy of Microwave Cooking write to: Vivian Liner, Home Service Advisor, Southwestern Public Service Company, Box 631, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Ask for the publication titled "Microwave". Also, "Tips and Hints for Microwave Ovens" is available. Be sure to specify one or both of these publications.

There will be a Microwave Cooking School on Tuesday night, March 25, at 7 p.m. at the downtown Reddy Room located at 1120 Main Street in Lubbock. No reservations are needed.

Senator Short Addresses Young Texans

"Perhaps there has been no greater time in our history for the need to replant the seeds of patriotism and to preserve and proliferate freedom and the free enterprise system," stated State Senator E.L. Short in Austin recently to some two hundred delegates of the Texas Young Americans for Freedom.

Short joined several other state officials in addressing the state convention of young Texans between the ages of 18 and 35. Short reminded the delegates of the thoughts of Dr. Milton Friedman, winner of the 1976 Nobel Prize for Economic Science when he reflected that the basic problem in the United States today is that government interference is threatening to strangle the true source of our achievement. He continued by stating that "We, the public-at-large, need to have a greater understanding of the king of system, the kind of principles that have fostered this great achievement of the past 200 years."

Short told the youthful group that "each of us must become soldiers on the battlefield of progress, not forgetting that work in the free enterprise system--which built everything we have--can build everything we want."

The Senator continued, "In the past two decades we have experienced drastic changes--changes often brought about because of lifetime judicial appointments which have resulted in the writing of laws by the Federal Courts. We have seen an increased infringement on states' rights. What I am telling you today is that far too great a part of our daily lives are governed by the Federal Bureaucracy."

Short commended the delegates for their sensitivity to the greatness of the American Dream and the constant struggle to preserve it.

Phone Rate Increase Is Requested

General Telephone Company of the Southwest last week filed a statewide request for new revenues with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC), seeking $58.3 million of which the company would receive $29.7 million after taxes.

In Tahoka the present one-party residential phone rate of $8 per month would be raised to 9.21, which also would be the new rate for Wilson phone users, who now pay $8.60. In Tahoka, the current one-party business phone rate would rise from $19.50 to $21.37 per month, and in Wilson from the present $21.20 to $21.37.

General Telephone, the largest independent (non-Bell) telephone company in Texas, serves over 1.2 million telephones in 291 exchanges across the state. Major cities served include Garland, Irving and Plano in the Dallas/Fort Worth area, Baytown and Dickinson in the Houston area, Texarkana, San Angelo, and

Bryan-College Station. F.E. Hightower, vice president--revenue requirements in the company's four-state headquarters in San Angelo, said: "Continued erosion of earnings through customer growth and requirements for services, rapidly changing technology, the need to improve and expand service and services, and unprecedented high levels of inflation make our request necessary."

"We have been able to defer a request for new revenues through programs to improve efficiency, to reduce expenses, and intensified marketing efforts," he said.

"Rates now in effect were established on a city-by-city basis prior to the establishment of the PUC in September 1976. As a result, rates vary greatly. Our filing seeks to make rates for services uniform."

Public Notice

Southwestern Public Service Company, pursuant to law and the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to apply for a general rate increase affecting all classes of its retail consumers in the county of Lynn whose rates are subject to the original jurisdiction of either the municipalities of Tahoka or Wilson or the Public Utility Commission of Texas. A copy of the Company's statement of intent and proposed tariffs has been filed with said municipalities and said Commission.

The revised tariffs are proposed to become effective April 4, 1980. Applied to all affected consumers in the 31 counties comprising the Company's Texas service area, they will increase the Company's retail operating revenues by approximately 14.8 percent.

A woman asks: "What are the latest reports about drug treatments for breast cancer?"

ANSWERline: Current research shows that drug therapy is a valuable addition to surgery for women who show signs of cancer spread at the time that breast cancer is diagnosed and the stage of the disease has been determined through microscopic examination of tissue samples. This additional use of drugs is showing best results so far in women who develop breast cancer before they undergo menopause. These results include a greatly lowered recurrence rate of breast cancer and a lower death rate among women in this group. The drugs being used include a combination of different drugs (each with a different anti-cancer effect) which is abbreviated as "CMF" and a single drug known as L-PAM. Please note that these drugs have been shown to be useful only for certain breast cancer patients and are not being prescribed for all patients. A real estate broker explains:

"I have twenty people who work for me. I offered a bonus as an incentive to those who stopped smoking. Of the five smokers in my firm, all have quit! Have other employers tried the same thing?"

ANSWERline: Employers have taken a very helpful attitude in aiding workers to stop smoking cigarettes for more than humanitarian reasons.

Fewer cigarette smokers mean better office or plant morale, fewer fires and a lesser amount of sick time taken. Many firms allow educational programs about the hazards of cigarette smoking to be held on their premises. Some pay the cost of smoking withdrawal clinics and some actually pay employees to stop smoking on the job. One employer "bet" his workers sums of up to $100 each to get them to end the cigarette habit for one year. Out of 65 contenders for the prize, 25 came out winners in health and wealth!

Lockett 77

$42 made more per acre.

In 56 comparisons over the last three years, certified Lockett 77 from Pioneer produced an average gross income of $309* per acre . . . giving it a $42 per acre advantage over competitive varieties.

Why such an advantage? Outstanding seedling vigor with excellent cold tolerance and seedling disease escape help Lockett 77 make a good stand. Added to that are multiple disease tolerance, hardy plant characteristics, and early maturity . . . a combination that helps Lockett 77 deliver outstanding performance.

Farmers who've grown certified Lockett 77 are well pleased with results. Jack and Paul Hopper at Knott recorded a lint yield of 1,553 lbs./planted acre in 1979. Ben Roming at Lariat got 830 lbs./A. And over the last four years at Tell, Texas, Clinton Halford averaged 975 lbs. of lint per acre with certified Lockett 77.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

The trigger is about to be pulled on raw cotton imports under the "import trigger mechanism" written in the 1977 farm law. Thus the sometimes heated conversation over possible effects on U.S. cotton prices soon be settled.

The law provides for a U.S. raw cotton import quota of 500,000 bales beginning whenever the average of U.S. spot prices for any month exceeds 130 percent of the previous 36-month average.

USDA has reported that the special import quota opened up if spot prices for grade 41 staple 34 February average 78.45 cents per pound or 81.02 cents per pound. Officially USDA is expected to announce the average on March 3. But since the average for the first three weeks of February was 81.02 and since that time have been above 80 cents, there is little room for doubt that the 78.45-cent level has been exceeded.

Beginning some time in March, U.S. textile mills aggregate will have 90 days in which to import a 21-day supply of cotton, calculated to be about half million bales.

Those who have argued against this provision of the law since 1977, primarily producers, have based their objections on the belief that, when triggered, the import provision would put a ceiling on prices for U.S. cotton.

Other producers and producer groups, including Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, have maintained that U.S. prices would never reach 130 percent of the previous three-year average until there was a tight supply of cotton worldwide. Therefore, they contend, U.S. interests will be unable to find any substantial volume of foreign cotton for sale at a price which, plus freight, is below the U.S. price.

Despite the possibility that a small volume of cotton in quantities unavailable from U.S. supplies may be imported, the consensus in the trade and among other observers at this point seems to side with the latter argument.

For example the respected Cotton Outlook magazine, published in Liverpool England, said in early February, "There is of course little likelihood that cotton would be imported into the U.S. in large volume since offers from elsewhere are by no means plentiful."

However, as PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson observes, "All we can do at this point is speculate. The market, as always, will make the final decision."

alternative would emphasize the use of backup regulatory authorities at the local, state, and national level to carry out an effective national soil and water conservation program. This approach would be coupled with a strong cost-share and technical assistance program and low interest loans that would offer incentives for resource management.

Conservation Performance Bonus: This strategy provides incentives to producers who voluntarily apply and maintain conservation measures that meet USDA standards. It offers incentives to obtain benefits under Federal Programs but has no required cross compliance. Priority would be given to resource areas where present conditions pose the greatest threat to future food and fiber production.

Natural Resource Contracts: Under this strategy, USDA would offer to purchase erosion reduction, irrigation water reductions, and other outputs of conservation from producers. The public would, in effect, buy specific benefits from those who run, operate, or control private natural resource.

ASCS News

National Soil and Water Conservation Act - 1977—The USDA has developed the following objectives: reduce erosion and preserving prime farmlands, improve water quality, conserving water, improving fish and wildlife, including the preservation of wetlands from destruction by agriculture and other means, reducing upstream flood damages, conserving energy and solving related resource problems.

The USDA is considering the following 7 different ways to carry out the following objectives:

A Redirection of Present Programs—Under this strategy, USDA would continue existing programs, but funds and personnel would be redirected to accomplish certain national conservation objectives. Cooperation would continue to be mostly voluntary.

Cross Compliance: Under this approach, producers would be required to apply effective conservation measures to qualify for benefits under USDA programs, including commodity price support, low interest loans, cost sharing, and crop insurance.

A Regional Resource Project Approach—This strategy would direct USDA programs toward the more urgent and chronic resource problems. Federal participation would be available only for programs that contribute to meeting stated national conservation objectives.

State Leadership—Under this strategy states would assume leadership for planning and carrying out conservation programs. State and local governments would develop conservation programs for USDA approval, provide technical assistance to producers, and fund those activities that benefit mostly state and local efforts. USDA would fund activities that have national benefits but are beyond the interest or financial resources of the producer or state and local governments.

How To Take A Soil Sample Step By Step

Taking a soil sample is not a difficult or complicated job if a few basic "do's and don'ts" are followed. Soil tests can be only as accurate as the samples on which they are made. Proper collection of soil samples is extremely important. Chemical tests of poorly taken samples may be actually misleading.

Here are three basic steps in the selection of site and actually taking the sample:

1. Take one soil sample from the lawn and one from the garden.
  2. The sample should be taken from over all the area. This can be done by taking a small amount of soil from 5 to 10 different places. Place these in a clean container (plastic bucket, paper sack, etc.). Mix thoroughly and take approximately one pint for the composite sample.
  3. When taking the small samples, use a spade, soil auger or soil sampling tube. Scrape the litter from the surface. To use an auger or tube, make the boring six inches deep in the soil. To use a spade, dig a V-shaped hole and take a one-half inch slice of soil from the smooth side of the hole. Repeat in 5 to 10 different places.
- When the sample has been placed in the sample box, the box should be numbered to correspond with the number on the soil sampling sheet. Be sure to keep a record of sample numbers and where they were taken.

The sample, along with the information sheet should be mailed to the Soil Testing Lab, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Route 3, Box 213AA, Lubbock, Texas 79401.

A few precautions are important in taking the sample:

1. Avoid sampling spots such as small gullies, slight field depressions, and unusual spots.
2. Do not use old vegetable cans, match boxes, etc. to submit samples.
3. Do not use heat to dry samples.
4. Be sure to keep a record for yourself as to the area represented by each sample.
5. Be sure sample numbers on the boxes correspond with sample numbers on the information sheet.

Cotton Prices Move Higher

Cotton prices moved higher during the week ended Feb. 28 after fluctuating widely, according to Paul R. Dickson, Area Director for the Texas High Plains Cotton Division Offices.

Trading was slow to moderate while demand was light to moderate most of the week. High Plains growers sold mixed lots of mikes 30 - 32 around 1575 points over 1979 loan rates, up 50 points from a week earlier. Mixed lots of mostly mikes 27 - 29 brought around 1350 over 1979 loan, up about 225 points, Dickson said.

Lubbock's Marketing Services Office graded about 19,500 samples in the week ended Feb. 28. This brought the season's total to 2,448,000, according to USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. About 1,894,000 had been classed by the same date last year.

Predominant grades for the week were grade 32 at 21 percent and grade 42 - 47 percent. About 12 percent of the samples were reduced one grade because of bark and four percent for grass.

Predominant staples were staple 30 - 39 percent, staple 31 - 41 percent and staple 32 - nine percent. Micronaire 30 - 32 accounted for 35 percent, 27 - 29 amounted to 39 percent while 26 and below was 11 percent.

Field stored modules moved to gins at a better rate during the week as spring-like weather prevailed until Friday.

General Telephone Files For First Statewide Rate Changes Since 1976; New Rates Should Be More Equitable

For the first time since the Public Utility Commission of Texas began regulation of Texas telephone companies, General Telephone Company of the Southwest is asking for rate changes designed to produce about $58 million in additional annual local revenues. Because this case is being filed on a statewide basis, adhering to statewide rate making principles, there is no "average" increase we can quote for an "average" customer. Increases will vary from community to community. Rates for all General Telephone customers in Texas will be affected, but there will be no changes in long distance rates. Here is our case:

Phone service is a good buy
You don't need us to tell you prices have gone up. But the price for phone service hasn't gone up as much as you may think. In fact, you may easily spend more on coffee for coffee breaks than you do for a month of basic local service. Contrast that with the prices you pay for shoes and sugar or gasoline and hamburger. Or contrast it with what we pay for poles, wires, cables, etc. We can't sell 1980 service at 1976 prices, and stay in business.

We're facing facts
America's investor-owned utilities are fighting to stay financially sound and we're in the middle of that fight. As part of on-going good management, we constantly work to improve the efficiency of our operations. We've even gone to the length of redesigning truck bodies ourselves because we needed a less expensive, lighter weight, more fuel efficient model and automotive engineers weren't interested in the small (to them) number we'd purchase. We've managed to avoid the rate increase arena for nearly four years through efforts like these but they aren't enough any more. We don't intend to become a financial burden to anyone, and we can face facts. So, let's face this one: it's either a rate increase or some other alternative.

- What alternatives?
1. Downgrade customer service.
  2. Defer plant and equipment additions.
  3. Let our shareowners' investment deteriorate.
  4. Ask our employees to give up justified wage increases.

Alternative 1: Downgrade customer service
You expect phones to work as close to 100 percent of the time as is possible and when phone service is out, you want it fixed. Fast. We agree. And you don't want to wait to get service to begin with, no matter how fast Texas grows. We also agree. Therefore, we can't let service deteriorate simply because costs of providing it increase. In fact, from our point of view, service in some spots could stand improving, and we ought to know we've been in this business a long time. But improvements cost money.

Alternative 2: Defer plant and equipment additions

We've already done that...or as much as we possibly could. Texas has been experiencing unprecedented growth and that's nice, because growth is healthy. The trouble is we have had to spend (and borrow) unprecedented amounts of money (at unprecedented interest rates) to provide the facilities to meet that growth. And the dollars we spent in 1979 and will spend in 1980 don't buy as much as they used to. They don't even buy as much as they did the last time we had increases in rates - 1976. We've had customers tell us, "Look, my service is fine. Let it stay the same until 1999, just leave the rates alone." Sounds great, but it's not that simple. Even if it were possible, we'd still be spending millions each year just to maintain what's out there now. Practically speaking, however, we can't stand still. The rules under which we operate say we must meet all reasonable service requests in a timely manner. Telephone equipment is complex and it can't be put in overnight. With the way Texas has been growing and the way inflation is rampaging, some days it seems as though it will take all the running we can do and all the dollars we have just to stay in the same place. The engineering and construction work we do (and pay for) today determines the quality and quantity of service tomorrow.

Alternative 3: Let our shareowners' investment deteriorate

Everyone loves this answer, except the shareowners...and they may be you, directly, or indirectly, if you have a pension plan, life insurance or own mutual fund shares. Realistically, however, shareowners have to earn a reasonable return on their investment. Otherwise, they don't invest. Would you? It was yesterday's investment money which bought the equipment serving you today and today's investment money is needed to buy the equipment to serve you tomorrow.

Alternative 4: Ask our employees to give up justified wage increases

Our employees are skilled and dedicated and we need them. To cut costs by denying them justified increases would be counterproductive. We must pay competitive wages and benefits to attract and hold employees with the skills and productivity we need. As Texas grows, we'll need even more. If we lose or can't find quality employees, your service could suffer.

So what's left?
That's pretty obvious: a rate increase. But it won't happen right away. It's not that simple and it isn't automatic. Most businesses, if their costs go up, simply raise their prices or drop the service. We are a regulated utility and even when we aren't receiving enough money for service, we must continue providing it and keep on doing so until we can

Girl Scout Week Week March 9-15

"Girl Scouting: Where the Future Begins" will be the theme of Girl Scout Week, scheduled nationally March 9-15, according to Mrs. Nolen Swain, president of Caprock Girl Scout Council.

Highlighting the local 68th birthday celebration will be a council-wide reunion luncheon for Girl Scout adults and a Girl Scout Fair. Girls will observe the birthday on March 12 and troop events during the week will include church attendance, flag ceremonies, and community service.

The reunion luncheon is scheduled at noon on Friday, March 7, at the council service center. Mrs. Harvey Turnbough will be hostess. Mrs. Rod Shaw, Mrs. Keith Strain, and Mrs. C.A. Warren will present a program on the "Cabana", a world center where many council Scouts have visited since its opening in the 1950's. Reservations may be made by calling the service center, 745-2855 by Wednesday, March 5.

Approximately 100 troops will share skills and activities with the general public, their parents and friends at the Girl Scout Fair to be held 1-4 p.m. Saturday, March 8, at the Merchant's Building, South Plains Fair Grounds. Well-Being, People, Out-of-doors, and the World Today and Tomorrow will be depicted in activities including singing games, puppets, sign language, origami, cooking, aerobics, drawing, rapelling, quilting, clown make-up and international friendship.

A parade of flags of the member countries of the World Association of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides and troop donations to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund will be presented during the closing ceremonies at 4 p.m. Members of the program committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Billy M. Hall will direct the event.

Founded in Savannah, Georgia in 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low, the purpose of the Girl Scout movement is to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct and patriotism that they may develop into happy resourceful citizens. Rules for acceptance and participation in Girl Scouts in the same for everyone without regard to race, color or national origin and approximately 5,000 girls from the ages of six to seventeen are served each year in Caprock Council.

Students Give Rotary Talks

Three Tahoka High girls presented their upcoming University Interscholastic League competitive entry numbers at Rotary last Thursday noon.

Miss Denise Ehlers presented an example of prose interpretation; Miss Sheri Tomlinson, persuasive speaking; and Miss Perry Dunlap, poetry interpretation.

Their sponsor, Mrs. Leah Taylor, told of the many phases of training students receive in these annual contests, which include, science, mathematics and number sense, spelling, journalism, one act plays, the above three contests, and others.

Students enter these contests on a voluntary basis. She pointed out that in recent years several local students have advanced to the state finals in Austin.

prove to the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) that we're in financial need. Only then can we plead our case for a rate increase. What's more, it takes time before we receive authority to increase rates. By then, inflation may have lowered the buying power of the dollar enough so we're right back where we started or worse.

The tax collector wins

We're asking for about $58 million in additional annual local revenues, half of which will go to increase taxes. Just about half of any increase we ever get goes to increased taxes.

About those varied increases

We can't give you an "average" increase for an "average" customer. Increases are going to vary, literally, all over the map of Texas. The chief reason is a shift from city-by-city rate-making to statewide rate-making. When this shift is completed, you will be paying rates based on the number of telephone numbers you can call without a long distance charge. We think you'll find this system fairer to all.

No increase is popular

We know you aren't going to like an increase in phone rates. In today's economic climate, we don't blame you. We don't like it, either. We also didn't like the astounding increases in electricity, gasoline, telephone equipment, taxes, interest rates, etc., we've faced over the last few years...but we've had to pay them.

We're consumers ourselves

We're trying to be as open and aboveboard as we can. There's nothing hidden about our operations and we aren't some giant out to gouge the consumer. We're consumers ourselves and we're doing our best to protect you and your phone service...and to keep the rates for it within everyone's reach.

We'll talk and listen

So, there it is. We've got to earn more money and raising rates is our only choice. If you have questions about your individual service rate, call your local business office or your division manager. Division managers are listed in the front of your phone book. They'll even help arrange speakers for your club or organization. We're all people you can talk to...and we want to keep you talking.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Burn down your cities and leave our farms and your cities will spring up again as if by magic; but destroy our farms and grass will grow in the streets of every city in this country."

That quote by William Jennings Bryan has been something of a motto for the American Agriculture Movement (AAM) and certainly it contains a great deal of wisdom.

It also reflects the sense of desperation that a large number of farmers, primarily from Texas and other grain-producing states, have felt during the past few years. That sense of desperation, frustration and alienation held the beginnings of the Movement during late summer of 1977. During the most recent visit of AAM farmers to Washington this month, many of the feelings are unchanged, even though there have been some price improvements since they began.

There is no question that our farm economy, particularly the grain industry, has been a topsy-turvy roller coaster that has taken it to the heights of prosperity during the early 70's, only to drop to the bottom by 1977. Net farm income in 1979 was up $5 billion above the previous year's level, but that $33 billion-plus figure doesn't tell the full story. In terms of "real dollars," or income after inflation, the increase was only $1 billion or about 7 percent and USDA estimates for 1980 net farm income are even gloomier. USDA is predicting a U.S. total in the mid $20 billion range, a drop of some $13 billion.

At this point, many might question the effectiveness of AAM during their brief history and wonder if the continuing trips to Washington have been worth the time, expense and effort.

There is no way that anyone can say AAM has failed in their objectives. Members of AAM have made great strides since their beginnings in 1977 and have learned, the hard way, how to become politically effective. They have learned a lot about how to "sell" agriculture, not just as a commodity, but as a political viewpoint and vital concern not only for rural areas, but for the nation as a whole.

The problems faced by our farmers are ones that should be shared with the rest of the population, for as a "food problem" it affects all of us. There is no doubt that these problems are real, especially when one compares returns on equity in agriculture and other industries in this country. In 1977, that return was 3.5 percent; 1978 it rose to 4.6 percent and stayed at that figure during 1979. Compare those figures with the 17 percent return to manufacturing corporations, 13 to 23 percent to oil companies and some 11.7 percent to textile manufacturers.

Even with improved prices, there are still long-range problems to be faced. In particular, the problem of ever increasing costs for fuel and other production inputs is squeezing the American farmer hard. Last year diesel fuel prices increased 99 percent and gasoline prices increased 60 percent. And increases in 1980 are expected to be even larger. Fertilizer prices, after a few years of relative stability, are climbing steadily upward.

That is the story farmers have been telling their congressmen and the public in Washington this week. That is the story that they must continue to tell. It is well past the time that Washington and every consumer in this country realized one fact: There is no such thing as a free lunch. And it's time the American farmer stopped picking up the ticket.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm has recently announced the approval of a Community Services Administration grant in the amount of $131,300 to the South Plains Community Action Association, Inc., located in Levelland.

These funds will be used to provide a variety of services which include neighborhood projects, referrals, social services, job and education advancement counseling, transportation, youth recreation, job counseling and G.E.D. classes, along with many others.

The counties in the 17 District which are served include Garza and Lynn.

The oyster is one of the most nourishing of all sea foods.

Job prospects look encouraging for Aggie graduates

COLLEGE STATE Nearly 95 percent of the spring graduates at Texas University have jobs before leaving the campus and a large percentage of the top dollars despite predictions of recession, increased unemployment and university officials report.

Of the 2,700 potential graduates, most will have degrees in engineering, agriculture, science — all highly paid employers.

Salaries for Texas students have in recent years above average in all fields. Winn, associate director of university's placement office, says the latest list of $2,000 average and other engineering salaries ranged from $1,483, based on figures reported to the university by its 1979 fall graduates.
