What a Non-Resident Thinks of Terry County.

Mazeland, Rannels county, Texas, Oct. 9, 1903.—Editor Terry County Herald—Some time since the writer with a party of prospectors passed through your town and we were so favorably impressed with the topography of the country, the nature of the soil and location of your town that I have decided to ask you to send some sample copies of your paper and furnish such railroad news as you may have in your possession. We can see a bright future for your section. We have spent the best part of our life in close contact with the soil and have made the culture of cotton and other crops adapted to a semi-arid section a life study, together with dry farming, scientific soil culture and the breeding of seeds and plants for pleasure and profit, and we readily discover in the "red sandy cat-claw land" those elements adapted to the production of the good, luscious things that make for good living. I have a firm conviction that it is a noble mission for any man to use his utmost endeavors to induce people to come up nearer the pure blue skies where it occurs to me that all industrious men can get homes of their own. Do you tell me that I can not make rich loamy level land pay for itself in ten years at $10 per acre? I would take it as an insult.

We saw corn that will make thirty-five bushels per acre. We saw melons that would do honor to one hundred dollar land. Once by modern methods, I raised a melon that weighed forty-four pounds, and I thought it was a "whopper," and it was. But we find that your rich loam produces them just twice as large with little cultivation. I may be pardoned for saying that there is land not as good as yours selling in this county for $50 per acre.

Allow me to suggest that what you want is some real practical farmers and lots of them, and the way to get them is to subdivide the land in small blocks, sell on long time and give the buyer the assurance that he will not be squeezed out in case of a short crop, hail or misfortune, and the way to get these is to get a railroad. That last is the biggest word in the language. Your country being so far removed from a road, has been overlooked by progressive farmers and it would be big money, and all kinds of it, if your big land owners could be brought to see that it would pay them to give one-half of their land to secure a railroad. JOHN BALLEW

Uniform Course of Study for the County.

This subject has been extensively discussed by some of our leading educators. Our present State Superintendent made an effort to this end some two or three years ago; and outlined a course of study for all of our public schools. I have forgotten, if I ever knew, why this effort on his part met with so little favor from the teachers of the State.

It seems to me that if it is right for all the children in the State to study the same kind of books, it would be still more important that they be given uniform courses in these books. Of course I understand that my subject is limited to the course of study for the county; but if it is important for the state, it is still more important for the county as the county is a smaller unit than the state. In the same school, the course is uniform in the same city, so far as my knowledge of city school management goes, it is uniform and in the same county it should be uniform for the same reasons that we have it so in the school or city; and in my opinion it is impossible to have a county school system without "a uniform course of study for the county. I do not mean to say that this is the only factor in a county school system, or that is the most important factor but that it is an indispensable factor.

When I make my report to the county superintendent that I have eight grades, and how many boys and girls are instructed in each grade that I pretend to have, what does all this mean to him or anybody else? What does he know more than he knew before I reported anything? How much system is there about such reports for him or for the state superintendent either? A public school system based upon such reports is not system, but chaos. I may make Texas History the basis of my eighth grade which is my fellow teacher's in an adjoining district may have General or English History in the eighth grade pupils might come to Brownfield or Gomez next year and get themselves classed in the sixth grade. Wouldn't that be mortifying and discouraging? And what would they think of me? Or what would they think of their new teacher? And what would that teacher think of his new pupil or of me? Well, I don't know who would get the worst of the hard thoughts or who would do the hardest teinking. Or suppose another instance which is more common and that effects many times more students; suppose that I and my fellow teacher in the adjoining district change places next year. Well, the situation would be appalling? So much for the evil of our present system or the lack of system. But how much has the doctor relieved me when he tells me what to do for my ailment? I say that the remedy lies in a "uniform course of study for the county," but that doesn't prove it, nor does it tell how this is to be had nor how to deal with the difficulties to be overcome in securing it. Now, who will bell the cat? The best way that I see is for us to get together in our Institute and spend whatever time is necessary in comparing our different courses and selecting the best from each and embody it in one and adopt it and all agree to follow it. The advantage that a county has over the state in this matter is that all the schools in the county are represented by their teachers, since Mr. Colthorp puts it, "we have to come."

What the course of study has been adopted, then come the difficult problem of examinations and reports for promotions that must be solved to make of any effect our first labors. The only solution is in uniform examinations. Let this be put into the hands of the county superintendent, and let him prepare, or have it done by the teachers in the county best suited to each branch of the work, monthly or bi-monthly or quarterly or whatever time may be agreed upon by the teachers examinations; and each teacher put in his request in advance for such of this material as his school may need.

Not only should the examinations be in the charge of the county superintendent, but when examinations for promotions are given, the papers should be passed on by teachers appointed by the superintendent, which teachers of course would not be in anyway connected with or related to the pupil taking such examination. We could very well afford to do each other's work in this matter. And when the pupils have passed their report should bear the signature of the county superintendent and serve as a certificate to the next grade in whatever school he might present it. Especially do I think this plan good in the intermediate and higher school grades and this would serve as an incentive to do the best work possible.

Yours for "a Uniform Course of Study for the County."

The Railroad.

We are being continually asked about the C. H. & G. railroad; what the company proposes doing, when they will be here to close up the contract with the Terry county people, etc. To these inquiries we will state that from what the company is now doing toward the construction of the road it seems that they mean business; that as soon as possible they will commence the survey from Hereford to the center of Terry county, as provided in the contract, and that Mr. Lees will be here in a very short time to close up the contract with our people. This we learn has been unavoidably delayed, but in no sense abandoned. And we will further state that the delay has served a good purpose to the people here, as quite a number of non-residents have been induced to subscribe to the bonus, which they would not have done had the matter been closed a month or six weeks ago. There has only been a few weeks delay in the matter, and this should not discourage any one. Those who are presumed to understand the situation have the utmost confidence in the company carrying out its part of the agreement to the letter. Let our people stand ready to comply with theirs.

Figures show that are more cattle raised in central and eastern Texas now than there were when that country was an open range. When the Plains country is settled up such will be the case here. Instead of large pastures and great herds all over the country, every farmer will have a few cattle to sell or ship to market each year and the aggregate will be greater than it was when the cattle business occupied the entire plains country. The cattle industry in Texas is not destroyed by stock farmers taking possession of the country; it is simply being placed on a basis where the man of small means can derive a part of the profits from that business.

A. Esser, district manager of the North American Accident Insurance company of Chicago, was heralded into the Times office a few days ago by our old friend, B. D. Harkrader, and we three had a pleasant talk. Mr. Esser has established his office in this city. He impressed us as a man who will do business. He has worked the insurance business in western Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and has made it pan out shekels in desirable quantities for all concerned—the insured as well as the insurers.—Beatrice (Neb) Weekly Times.

Mr. Esser made many friends during his stay in Brownfield, who will wish him the utmost success in all his undertakings. We can state too, that he will always have a good word to say for the Texas Plains country.

Auto Road from Brownfield to Hereford.

There is talk of opening an auto road from Brownfield to Hereford. This has become a necessity. When prospectors and homeseekers start here, many of them are stopped at Plainview and Lubbock on the north, and at Big Springs and Lamesa on the south by false representation concerning this country. At Hereford the situation is different. This part of the country and Hereford already have interests in common, for the reason that it will not be long until we will be connected with that town by a railroad and it will naturally draw a large trade from this part of the south Plains. Prospectors and homeseekers could be directed to come to Hereford and there met with autos and brought directly here. At Hereford they would learn the railroad situation and nothing would be done there to mislead or deceive them. Let this auto road proposition be put on foot and a contract made with some one to make the road. Let every man who feels an interest in the welfare of his county and town contribute something towards making the road.

Good Times Coming, If Not Already Here.

In the early Spring—April—1 it was stated that 413, 605 freight cars were standing idly on side tracks. On June 24 it was officially reported that this number had been reduced to 313, 298. And now we see that not only is nearly every car capable of haulage in commission, but that 3,000 new ones have been ordered from the various shops of the East and West.

This is an encouraging sign. It demonstrates that the little panic we found in the commercial districts a few months ago has entirely disappeared. Confidence is restored. Real estate transaction are many.

The big mercantile centres are taxed for help in boxing, shipping and billing the early Fall demands for goods.

Crops have been universally bounteous. The harvesting season is on and drawing to a close. The nation's health is splendid. We have escaped calamities. Our banks are stronger than ever, our merchants happier than for a long while, our people more contented. Cheer up and let's all be glad together.—Stanton Reporter

There is good land enough in Terry county to supply 1000 farmers with homes and then leave many holding several sections. The subdividing of land into small farms should be encouraged. By so doing the country will soon be settled up with an industrious and thrifty set of farmers with plenty and prosperity abounding on every hand.

Write to us for a list of good bargains in real estate.

A notice will be found elsewhere in this paper announcing the fact that the ladies of Gomez will give a dinner on November 3rd, election day. This is done for the benefit of the Methodist church, and should be patronized.

Dr. Ellis reports a nine pound boy born to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bryan Tuesday night. He thinks that Jack may be able to leave the youngster long enough to come town by the middle of next week.

Coal is a necessity on the plains country and it always pays to buy the best quality. Messrs. Shipley & Shipley, of Plainview, carry a large supply of Colorado "nigger head" coal at $3 50 per ton. Teis firm has established a reputation for giving full weights and square dealing and it will pay you to give them your orders.

It is an unusual thing to see corn stalks bearing three ears in the low lands of Texas and elsewhere, but on the Texas Plains it is a frequent occurrence to see stalks bearing four good ears. It is the fortune of Mr. Fred Heine, of Terry county, to have raised a stalk of June corn this year that has five well developed ears. If any one who reads this statement claims to be "from Missouri," the proof is ready for them. They have only to call at the real estate office of Bigger, Hill & Co., in Brownfield, to see this curiosity.

On the first page of this issue of the Herald can be read a letter from Mr. John Ballew, a citizen of Mazeland, Runnells county, giving his impressions of Terry county. As this letter is written by a non-resident who has no interests here, his statements can be taken as unbiased and absolutely correct. Mr. Ballew says that he saw corn here that will make thirty-five bushels per acre. The corn crop of Terry county will average thirty-five bushels per acre, and if he had made a close investigation he could have seen exceptional crops that have measured out sixty bushels per acre. But Mr. Ballew is conservative in his statement about the corn crop as well as other things, and thirty-five bushel per acre corn sounds good for any country.
