BROWNFIELD, TERRY COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY MAY 30, 1919

NO. 46

OLD TERRY TO HAVE GOOD ROADS

We do not believe there is another county on the Plains, or elsewhere for that matter, that is doing more to build up good roads all over the county, than old Terry, and especially when one takes into consideration the population and the resources. And this is because we have a full set of the right kind of commissioners, headed by a progressive county judge, and after all that the all that any county requires to build good roads. If the county judge and the commissioners of any county wait to see if all the tax payers are ready for good roads, all at the same time, the good roads will never be built, for they will not be ready at the same time, and in fact, there are some that never get ready for good roads, and strange as it may seem, those that never get ready are the ones that use the road most, and generally are the lightest tax payers in the county.

In conversation with one of our commissioners recently, he said. We organized Terry county about fifteen years ago, and have been putting from three to four thousand dollars per year on the roads with small scrapers and teams, and what have we? Along in February, we purchased a large tractor and grader and if any citizen will go over the road from here to the county line west, and then will not give up that the grader has not already paid for itself, I will treat. Then he related an incidence that happened a few days ago, when some one was roaring at the amount the commissioners were tying up in grading outfits, when one of the biggest tax payers in the county answered the roaring individual by telling him that the commissioners could blow up the grader and tractor with dynamite, and would already have paid for itself.

So well pleased are the commissioners' court with the first tractor and grader that another outfit just like it was unloaded here last week, and another crew, consisting of J. Johnson and Geo. Bragg, will start it up as soon as some broken parts caused in the shipping arrive.

Now that the road to the west line of the county is in good condition, and is over it that by far the heaviest traffic goes, a good road will now be built to the south part of the county, known as the Lamesa road, and the other crew will go on the Tahoka road. The first one that finishes will then go on the Lubbock road, until every cardinal and secondary road in the county is so that travel will be a pleasure.

Speaking of good roads and those who oppose them reminds the writer of an incident that happened right here a few years ago, when a man that we consider that has ordinary intelligence came to the Herald office one day and wanted us to romp on the commissioners for the reason that the later were spending so much of the county funds on the roads. When asked what better he considered that they could spend the county funds, he replied that he did not know, but that if they did not mind they would not have a dollar in the jury fund. Being that we were good friends, we lit right in with that as a text, and tried to preach that old citizen a sermon on true economy. Why sir, we told the man, would to God we never had another jury fund dollar or any use for one. Did he know that courts while supposed to be a place where one is to get justice or revenge, depending on which the courtier is looking for, they are nevertheless a source of waste, ruin and disappointments? We told him that we hoped that it would never be necessary again for two men to go to law in Terry county. Of course we did not expect no such milenium to occur, but we do believe that we convinced that old gentleman that it makes no difference which side in a suit that seems to win, both are real loosers in the long run, and that every dollar put into good roads was real construction and benefited all the people alike.

But to return to our conversation with the commissioner, he said he told his constituents both times he believed in good roads, and that he was going to use all the influence he had for building them, and that he was not seeking the office, and that they had elected him with this plain statement. And further, that he was going to do his best to put a respectable road into his community before he retired from the job.

If you are a believer in good roads, tell your commissioner about the matter, and do not let him just guess how you stand in the matter. A county commissioner is just a human like you, subject to error—but they are also human when it comes to encouragement. It is very little they get outside of "cussin" and you can cast at least a little sunshine in their path.

Lets have good roads in old Terry if we have to hold court in a shack the balance of our days.

Mr. Sides, who went over seas in the 36th division, and was severely wounded in action, came in from the base hospital at Fort Worth last week, in company with his wife, who went down there to meet him, and who has been staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker, of southwest Terry since her husband has been in the army. Readers of the Herald will recall a very interesting article written by Mr. Sides that appeared several weeks ago, in which he proves that he is a versatile writer as well as a fighter.

Commencement

The beginning of the closing exercises of the Brownfield School is now history, with the preaching of the commencement sermon last Sunday at the Baptist church by Rev. L. L. F. Parker, pastor of the Tahoka Baptist church.

All who were fortunate enough to hear the sermon pronounce it one of the most masterful efforts of the kind they ever heard, and those who missed it, lost a great literary treat. The writer shall long remember one of the best of the many good points of the sermon. And that one was the admonition to the graduates to take Jesus Christ into their lives. The speaker cited one great college in the United States that so far has forbidden the Bible to be brought on the premises, or a gospel preacher to propound the word of God in its halls. Then the speaker announced that no great statesman, lawyer or business or professional man had ever left the portals of that college. Strange you say, but it is nevertheless true. And no wonder; do we suppose God is going to prosper any institution that openly or secretly defies his divine will?

There are five young people who have satisfactorily passed the test of the prescribed course of study, and are graduates of the Brownfield public school. They are: Lorell Brownfield, Minnie Lee Cardwell, Romie Stewart, Mary Hudson and Vida Taylor. May these bright young people always complete their course through life with as much credit as they have attained on this occasion.

A report of the balance of the exercises will be given next week.

W. B. Snodgrass, one of our progressive west side cattlemen had business in the county capital one day this week. He reports a fine calf crop on the ranch this year.

To Stay With Brownfield

In conversation one day this week with W. W. Ditto, proprietor of the Santa Fe Hotel, he informed us that after visiting several places in the oil fields, he had decided that old Brownfield was good enough for him and that he had completed arrangements to stay here by leasing the Santa Fe another twelve month.

This is good news to the many customers and friends of this splendid hotel man, for we have heard numerous regrets from people of all walks that he was leaving.

There is no need to state that W. W. Ditto is progressive, and stands for every advancement of the town, that would be wasting words, for it is a well known fact that he is at all times ready with his influence and pocket book to get in the push for the upbuilding of the town, and we are glad not only for the sake of his regular customers, but for the entire community, to announce that W. W. Ditto and his estimable family are going to remain citizens of the town.

Election Results in Terry County

The election passed off very quietly here last Saturday, hardly a respectable counting vote being polled. But nevertheless it was about the liveliest amendment election ever held in Terry county, outside the statewide prohibition election held here in 1911. The people seemed to be both busy and not interested last Saturday.

For prohibition 120; against prohibition 38.

For woman suffrage 116, against woman suffrage, 64.

For raising the governor's salary 53; against raising the governor's salary 108.

For the land amendment 10, and against the land amendment 71.

Thinks Plains Wheat Will Make 40 Bushels

District Judge W. R. Spencer, in speaking of the condition of crops over the south plains one day last week, remarks that without some unknown harm comes to the wheat of the south plains, there will be something near 40 bushels raised to the acre. Judge Spencer is in a position to know about the general crop conditions over the south plains as most anyone having been in this country for years, seeing the results of the different crops of small grain of these years and the approximate yield in bushels per acre. Judge Spencer makes many trips in his car to the different places where he presides over district court and it was just after one of these trips that he made the above statement. —Lubbock Avalanche.

Oil Developments Progress Nicely

Work at the oil well south of town is progressing nicely and the indications are that Tahoka and Lynn county can soon boost of a gusher. The formation coming from the well consisting of a blue shale dirt is proof enough that the oil sand is not far off, not over a few hundred feet at the most. The company has had a force of men at work changing the steam boiler to a oil burner and the drilling operations have been suspended until this is done. At present they are waiting for the flues for the boiler, and we are authorized to announce that drilling will commence again about Monday and maybe before. Listen for more and better oil news from Lynn County.—Tahoka News.

Crosby County Murder Case

The case of the State vs. Bug Graves, charged with the murder of Joe Wrotan, near Wake, early in April, was commenced at Crosbyton Monday.

The attorneys for the defense made every possible effort to have the case continued, but District Judge Spencer overruled all motions.

The witnesses were summoned and sworn, and by the time court was ready to adjourn two witnesses for the state had been examined, same being Jim Norris, uncle of Wrotan, and Mrs. Kiker, who lives about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the tragedy and witnessed same through a spy glass while searching the landscape for her children, who were returning from school. Wednesday morning the State placed two more witnesses on the stand, and rested.

More than a hundred witnesses had been summoned for the defense but only a few were used—all being character witnesses.

As has heretofore been stated the defense based their case on insanity and four doctors of high repute were summoned to examine the defendant, but from some cause were not required to testify.

The jury reported Friday morning and a verdict of guilty was returned, and his punishment placed at 25 years in the penitentiary.—Ralls Banner.

Reduced to petticoat or saloon domination, we unhesitatingly bow to the former. Woman's natural instinct and influence is upward, while the saloon thrives on fallen humanity. As stated last week a temporary organization of the Brownfield Commercial Club was perfected, and a permanent organization was carried out this week, and there are men behind the movement that don't know what the word FAIL means, and they were out on the streets this week after signatures of men who believe in a live organization to the extent of $12.00 per year dues, and the last figures we had on the matter, nearly forty boosters had signed the pledge. Let the good work go on to perfection.

During all the occupation of little Belgium by the German hords, there was a paper published thereabouts that gave the German commander more trouble and annoyance than he ever dreamed was coming to him and the name of the paper was Free Belgium in English. Many Americans have wondered who the plucky editor was that dared in the face of hanging from the German commander, to continue to tell the people the real facts, that England and France and lastly America itself were coming to their rescue. Further than that, the paper actually defied the German war lord and drew funny caricatures of the German spies and their commander in trying to locate the hidden paper. Now the truth of the matter is out, and it was found that the paper was published in a cellar by prominent business men of Brussels, assisted by neavy printers and that it was circulated from one to another under sealed covers. At no time in the history of the art of printing has it been suppressed, and let us hope that the free press of no free nation will ever be muzzled.

To Make Americans.

With all the unrest that has assailed the various nations of the world during the past year, from which even our own country has not escaped, as witness, the May Day uprisings and the recent sending of bombs through the mails, American men and women are being brought face to face with a condition which they have either consistently ignored or half heartedly deplored in the past.

The jolt that the war gave them has opened their eyes and made their minds receptive to the dangers that lurk in the insidious propaganda that is being spread throughout our country by the Bolshevik, I. W. W. and kindred organizations and all loyal Americans are casting about for some way to offset their pernicious influence.

Most people are agreed that the best and only sure way to accomplish this end is to inculcate in the boys and girls of the present time, the principals of loyalty, kindness and brotherly interest that will make them impervious to the dangerous to the dangerous doctrines of these world destroyers.

Certainly no better way of doing this could be devised than the method adopted by the founders of the Boy Scout movement and the faithfulness with which the boys of the association carried out the work assigned them in the various campaigns and activities connected with the war work at home, has demonstrated that the Scouts are true blue.

President Wilson has, by proclamation, set aside the week June 8 to 14 for a drive for membership for this organization. Of the 10,000,000 boys in the United States between the ages of 11 and 21, only 375,000 belong to the Boy Scouts. Everyone of the 10,000,000 should belong and every American father and mother is gravely derelict in parental duty, to say nothing of their obligations to their country, if the boys of their home are not encouraged to join. Not only are the Scouts taught the duties, obligations and highest conceptions of American citizenship but they are given much useful knowledge and training that they do not get any where else.—Panhandle Plainsman.

Maids and Matrons

Mrs. John S. Powell was hostess to the Maids and Matrons Club, last Tuesday afternoon. An interesting program was rendered, the subject being Norway and Sweeden, led by Mrs. Will Adams and Miss Hickerman. This being the last meeting of the regular club year, officers were elected as follows:

President, Mrs. J. L. Randal, elected by unanimous vote; vice-president, Mrs. Prideaux; Secretary, Mrs. John King, reelected; Treasurer, Mrs. Stricklin, reelected, Parliamentarian, Mrs. Will Adams, Critic, Mrs. W. A. Bell.

After much jesting and pleasant comment over the election, the hostess served a delicious salad plate. The afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, and the Club adjourned until the first regular meeting in October.

BUILDING MATERIAL MERCHANTS AND HOME BUILDERS

This Country No Field for Bolshevism.

Bolshevism is vicious in its theory and criminal in its practices. It has appeared in certain European countries which have suffered from the domination of unintelligent autocrats, where vast numbers of the people are uneducated and have had little or nothing to say about their political or economic fortunes. It is a pity that such peoples misguided by fanatical or wrong-minded leaders, have not been able to seize the opportunity presented to them to lay the foundations of beneficent institutions and to proceed in orderly fashion. They will be compelled for their own salvation to throw off their present leaders, to make an "about face," and to start on new lines. I have no fear of Bolshevism in this country. I have no patience with that small minority of men, many of them recently come among us, unacquainted with our institutions and purposes, familiar only with institutions and conditions radically different from ours, who seek to overthrow our government. I do not believe that those elements are very strong or will get very far. The people of this country are committed to the rule of the majority and to the rule of law. There is no good cause which cannot get a hearing of our people. It is up to the man who advocates it to persuade the majority that he is right. If he can, he can secure what he seeks at the poles. If he cannot he must abide by the will of the majority or suffer the penalty. The majority will not tolerate any effort by a misguided minority to impose its will by violence. If aliens among us propose such a course, the quicker they are put out of the country the better. If naturalized citizens who took the oath to support the Government attempt it, the quicker they are denaturalized the better.

I have no patience with those who advocate rule of any class. Democracy arose on the downfall of class. Because our forefathers did not want class rule they deposed such rulers as the Stewarts, the Burtons and their adherents. Their descendants and those of our people coming from the free nations, have recently aided in deposing the German ruling classes, and will not permit ruling classes to be set up here. There is no one class in society that has more sense than all the others. Any class would make a sad failure in governing this nation or any other nation. History teaches that lesson very plainly. I am in favor of improving our government whenever the need for improvement is demonstrated, but not of upsetting it. It is time for us to refresh our own minds as to the real essence and meaning of our institutions, and to bring them home to the uninitiated among us so that government of the nation by all the people may endure. Every legitimate effort should be made to counteract the schemes of the wild agitators who seek to develop Bolshevism in this great free country of ours.

Presbyterian Ladies Entertain

At the Presbyterian church on Monday afternoon the Aid was hostess to the Missionary Society and their guests. The program proved to be one of those rare, and informal kind, led by Miss Hennie Meriwether. A few words of welcome were given by Mrs. Prideaux. Mrs. Dallas favored those present with several piano selections. One of the most effective things was that given by Miss Meriwether when she told of her going away to accept a position in the Lubbock Schools, for another year. This was not wholly a surprise, as we have felt, that other schools and larger places, were anxious to secure the most efficient and capable teachers, so our loss is their gain as Miss Hennies presence in the community is certainly an asset. Miss Hickerson and Mrs. Dallas gave two vocal duets. Mrs. King gave a piano selection which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Bell on the behalf of the Methodist Society gave a response, in her pleasing manner. The expression class of Miss Meriwether gave a number of readings which were much enjoyed. Delicious punch and wafers were served at the end of the program, and those present mingled together as friends and co-workers. We hope to enjoy many more such occasions.

Mrs. A. B. Bynum carried her little son, Travis, to Lubbock last Saturday to remain over Sunday, in order to have his wound dressed, he having had his thumb cut off up there last week.

E. C. Loggins, representing the Dallas News was here last week to look after the circulation of that great journal.

Mrs. Chas. Triplett, of Lubbock, was here a few days last week on a visit to friends.

Mrs. Rutledge, of the west side, was brought down on the train from Lubbock last week, and we understand is very low, though doing as well as can be expected. Bert Shepherd met the family here with his car.

Santa Fe Assistant Engineer Moves To Chicago.

S. E. Ross, Assistant Engineer of the Santa Fe Railway Co., who has for the past three years made Lubbock his headquarters while in construction of the line running from Lubbock to Seagraves, will leave Friday for Chicago where he will be in the office of the Chief Engineer. Mr. Ross' family will accompany him there.

We are very sorry to see this family leave our town, having made many friends among all acquaintances. And as Mr. Ross says, he will miss the good people of Lubbock, but the business he follows will not allow him the privilege of selecting his own headquarters. Mr. Ross has made a record in handling the construction of the above railway, which is one of the best construction which the system owns, a fine roadbed with eighty pound rails. To give some idea of the efficiency which the construction worked, something near one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of freight was carried since construction started until received in the hands of the company; two thousand cars of cattle were hauled over the road without the loss of a single one. This construction was made in some ways under more favorable conditions than many, being one of the newest, there is not one piece of right of way in litigation, all being furnished by the citizens over which the right of way passed or bought outright by interested parties, which can not be said about many of the older roads.

Mr. Ross, since turning the road over to the company about a year ago has been employed in making a record of costs for the construction, and has finished this work. With the record that he has now we are expecting a fine future for him.

Mr. Ross' address will hereafter be 1033 Railway Exchange Bldg., Chicago, Ill., office of chief engineer.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Need of Education For The Home

The popular demand that our schools give training for the home is based upon the significance of the home in the life of every individual, and upon the value to society of a wholesome home life. The home is important in the life of the individual because the physical, mental, and moral welfare of children, the chief product of the home, depends largely upon the conditions which prevail in that home. The home is also an educational institution and the place where characters are made or marred. The atmosphere and the teaching, conscious or unconscious, of the home determines in a large measure the child's attitude toward all other institutions and toward all the relations of life. But a good, wholesome home has a wider influence than upon the individual members of that household. The homemaker's interest must go beyond her own home and include the welfare of the community.

In America the home is the most important of all institutions, and it means vastly more than the house. The house is not the home as the body is not the spirit. So house-keeping is not home making; the former deals with the material things and processes of the household, while the latter has to do with the spiritual things related to the members of the family. Home making is a profession or at least it may be made one and certainly ought to be so considered. To call any work a profession implies the existence of a certain body of related facts or principles--the inheritance of the ages. But when we begin to examine the province of home making we are at once struck with the immensity of the field. As the home is the unit of society, so home making relates to all human activities.

What should this training for home making consist of? The homemaker should know the needs of the body and how to supply the daily food; she must have a scientific interest in the problems of house-keeping, sanitation, and hygiene; she must know how to furnish a home simply, beautifully, and in good taste; she must develop a love for work through the habit of working successfully; she must learn how to administer a home efficiently and economically; she must be educated for service in the home and in society; she must have a proper balance between theory and practice; finally she must have a keen sense of appreciation of her privileges, duties, and responsibilities.

Where are our girls to learn these things so essential to an education for the home? Many mothers do not have time to teach these things. Thousands of mothers have not received this instruction and do not know how. The home life has now shifted to the public school so many responsibilities that we must now look to the schools to furnish training for home making. The girl has become school minded; she learns other subjects by the school route; so she should be given an opportunity in school to learn home making. If the school can increase her interest in and respect for the home and its activities, it will have rendered a very valuable service to society.--Jessie E. Rambo, head of home Economics Dept., West Texas State Normal College.

Biggest Texas Pure-bred Cattle Deal.

Jacksonville Fla., April 26- J. J. Logan, banker and coal dealer of this city, has gone to Texas to complete the biggest pure-bred Aberdeen-Angus cattle deal ever made. and the biggest deal in pure-breds in the history of the Lone Star State. The deal that sends to Florida 350 head of pure-bred Aberdeen-Angus cattle, was made through W. H. Hill of Sam H. Hill & Son, Christoval, Texas. This is the Cress well herd, one of the oldest in Texas of this breed. The famous grand champion bull Defender, of Tiera Alta, grand champion at leading shows and fairs of the South and Southwest, was purchased several weeks ago from the Hill to head the Florida herd.

Mr. Logan will not only have a show of the first water for Florida, and the Southeast, but he will distribute the bred heifers to Florida farmers who wish to get into the pure-bred beef business. He also purchased two Aberdeen-Angus steers to take back to Florida and fatten for the fairs and shows to demonstrate the best there is in the finished beef steer. Aberdeen-Angus steers have not only won over all breeds at the Chicago International 16 out of 17 grand championships for beef carcass, but they have been winning most of the grand championships at southern shows, too, demonstrating to Mr. Logan that they are the right breed for him to push in his state with the cleaning up of the cattle tick and the demand for beef cattle.

Seeing the lady was still very weak, he offered her his bed in the caboose, which was gladly accepted. There are still good people in this old planet yet, and this conductor is one of them.
