BROWNFIELD, TERRY COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 26, 1919

NO. 11

RAINS

We sure have been having the genuine article in old Terry, and for that matter the entire south plains section, for the past week, or ever since the big storm on the coast.

Last week the government gauge at Brownfield showed four inches of rainfall, and it was reported much heavier to the west and south west. It is reported that portions of Gaines county had as much as seven inches, and Lovington, N. M. is said to have gotten six inches by Wednesday of last week.

Then there came another good one this week to cap off the climax, and more than an inches has fallen this week.

We understand that some of our farmers are preparing to plant some wheat this fall, and as none of this grain has ever been tried out in this county, this will be watched with interest.

This is the first time since we have been here that the natives have ever really been tired of wet weather, and while they are not saying much, you can tell that they want to see the sun shine some. And for good reason too, for it is reported that some of the corn is sprouting in the ear.

J. C. Bond, one of the most successful farmers of the county, who lives in the Union community, was in one day this week and reported that he was going to sow some wheat this fall. He says they raise wheat on much sandier land than his in Childress county. He says there was a little flaw in their building plans of their new $15,000.00 school building that has to be cleared up before the building can go on, but as soon as that is fixed, and material can be had, their building will be started.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Last Sunday afternoon while out car riding near G. A. Haney's place, Roy Simpson lost control of his car and had one of the most serious accidents that has happened from an auto.

Roy Simpson, his father-in-law, Mr. Rodgers, and Mr. Rodgers's brother-in-law, Mr. Eigoood, were in the car and it being a foot feed, the pedal stuck and refused to work. While Roy was trying to release it and to slow it down, the radius rod came loose and the car turned over head and then tumbled on its side. Mr. Rodgers had two ribs broken, his collar bone dislocated and other bruises, while the other two were not seriously hurt. Mr. Rodgers is in a serious condition.

Dr. Ponton of Lubbock, was here Monday to see him but did not operate. His injuries are internal. We hope to report him improving and out of danger in the next issue.

—Dawson County News.

Following the severest winter ever known in western portion of New Mexico, grass and water are more plentiful than they have been for many years. This information we learned from Jay McPhaul, former citizen of the south plains, who was here the first of the week visiting with acquaintances and attending to business matters. Mr. McPhaul says that cattle and stock of all kinds are in fine shape this year in the Magdalena country. Mr. McPhaul and brother Will, have a nice ranch about forty-five miles northwest of Magdalena.—Lorenza Enterprise.

HARRIS HAPPENINGS

By Sand Bur.

(Delayed on account of the big rains last week.)

Messrs. Arthur Cobb and J. M. McMillian sold some calves to H. P. French and cows and calves to Messrs. Brown & Herndon, of Lorenza, Texas. They delivered the cows and calves at Brownfield as Brown & Herndon were shipping from there. Abbie Taylor is hauling the lumber for a nice little residence on his section of land just over in Yoakum county.

J. C. Dooley and family and Brit Clare and family, visited at Mr. Smith's last Sunday.

Mr. Blanford and family have gone over in Lynn county to pick cotton.

Mrs. M. Taylor and children came in from Roswell, N. M. the other day. They went out there after fruit. We understand they brought back quite a lot of dried fruit which they dried themselves.

Ye scribe and family received an announcement of the wedding, Sept. 10th, of Miss Cecelia Stephenson, of Irene Texas, to Mr. Neol Hollingsworth, of Frost, Texas. Miss Stephenson taught in the Brownfield school last winter, and her many friends there I am sure, join us in wishing her much happiness. She is an accomplished, sweet and lovable girl, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Hollingsworth.

Clyde Lewis and sister, Miss Eldora, left this week for the dry goods markets of Dallas and St. Louis, to lay in a stock of goods for their big general mercantile business. On the way home they will purchase the grocery stock. They will not only have a large stock for the selection of our people, but it will be new in every detail.

Cereal Men Are Looking To West Texas for Supplies

Fort Worth—West Texas is being looked to to furnish a large portion of the raw materials used in the manufacture of grain foods by manufacturers in the corn belt, according to Chester T. Crowell, publicity commissioner of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, who is traveling in the Middle Western States with the exhibits of West Texas products, and who recently interviewed several of the foremost manufacturers of cereals products in that section of the country.

It is said that the crops in the belt where these manufacturers are located are far below normal this year, while there is a surplus of the crops of milo maize, kaffir, corn, fetterita, as well as wheat and corn in Texas.

Mr. Crowell said that the American Hominy Company of Indianapolis will send a representative to tour the State with a view of determining the possibilities of West Texas as a grain furnishing center.

M. V. Bownfield informed us this week that there would be an oil driller here in the near future to put down a deep test in the neighborhood of this town. Mr. Bownfield and the gentleman have been negotiating for some time and this is the climax to the dealings. We understand that drilling will likely start in the next month or six weeks, and will be a real deep test. We will give our readers further information as it comes to us.

At the regular monthly session of the Commissioner's Court, which convened the first of this week, Co. Judge T. O. Stark appointed A. P. Maltzberger, who lives in the northeast portion of the county, to serve the unexpired term of F. B. Coe, who recently died.

Mr. Maltzberger is well and favorably known to all in his precinct, and to most everyone in the county, and will no doubt serve as commissioner in a way that will be pleasing to the people of Gaines county.—Seminoe Sentinel.

We are sorry to report that we are to soon be without a dentist in town again, as Doctor Homer Hughes is preparing to enter the University of Southern California, at Los Angeles, about the first part of the coming month. He informs us that he is to make a special study of the

What is Profiteering

A Fort Worth Retailer asks in the Star Telegram what is the meaning of "profiteering". Profiteering consists of charging excessive profits on any article offered for sale. For instance the writer approached a local dealer in auto accessories in Abilene recently and enquired for a certain accessory to a Ford car. We knew that the wholesale price of this attachment to be only 75c, and expected to pay $1.50 for the article, but imagine our chargin when we were called upon to cough up $3.50 for our anticipated purchase. Another instance we know of in Ranger. A local undertaker had a call for a coffin; he had none on hand, but went across the street and bought one from a competitor, paying $40.00 for same, and sold the coffin to his grief stricken customer for $160.00. That's profiteering with a vengeance. Has anyone the nerve to defend such a business?—Taylor County Times.

JOYCE COX

Every Boy Scout in the Eleventh Federal War Savings District can wear a Treasury Achievement Button, an Ace Medal and have bronze, silver and gold palms on his medal ribbon, if he will do as much as Joyce Cox, a Boy Scout of Cameron, Texas. Joyce had sold almost $6,000 worth of War Savings Stamps up to May 1, 1919.

The Achievement Button represents sales of War Savings Stamps to twenty-five individuals. The Ace Medal represents total W. S. S. sales of $250. A bronze palm represents an additional $100, a silver palm an additional $1,000 and a gold palm an additional $5,000 in War Savings Stamps sold. "I'd like to see every Boy Scout in the District wearing gold palms on his medal ribbon by the end of the year," said Frank M. Smith, Federal District Director of the War Loan Organization. "What one boy has done others can do. One of the best War Savings Societies in the District is in the Boy Scout Troop at Tallulah, La. There ought to be a Savings Society in every troop."

A Fort Worth butcher has journeyed all the way to Washington to intercede for the meek and lowly packers. The Fort Worth autocrat of the chop block says that the packers are being imposed upon, and that the inquisition now being leveled at the packers, is injuring, not only his business, but has, in substance, injured all kinds of business all over the country. The Fort Worth dispenser in his statement would have one believe that the packers are winged angels and know no evils.—Taylor County Times.

The old fashion cow which would hang the milker's hat on one horn, the milk bucket on the other, and then kick the milk stool over in the next county is a back number in Higgins, according to the News. A citizen of that town had the cows so well trained that he makes them conform to any emergency. He tried recently to milk in a cream can, and finding that bossy was built too close to the ground, he secured a box and "histed" bossy's hind legs upon the box, which adjusted the proposition and while bossy chewed her cud contentedly and with serenity, meanwhile maintaining her awkward position, her owner milked her clean to the last strippings. The indications are good for oil at the drillings north of Higgins. You can't stop a town as resourceful as that.—Ex-

Commenting on our article of a few issues back in answer to a reader in the north who wanted oil news, the Lynn County News says:

"Correct, Editor Stricklin, you have smelled no 'ile' from these parts, for there 'haint' none so far as we know, however there is much golden liquid in Lynn county as there is anywhere else in western Texas where wells have been 'spudded' in, and that's all. We too receive quite a number of enquiries asking all about the 'big oil' in Lynn county, and, like you, we tell it straight, for there is no use in boosting something that is not to be found here. We agree with you that the potish industry is far more important to the south plains country of the state than oil will ever be. Write the northern brother to come down and look over the situation and satisfy himself that we are playing square when it comes to giving the 'oil' news in Lynn and Caines counties.

The Sears and Roebuck mail order firm is accorded in the printing fraternity as having one of the best and most complete printing plants in the world, and many printers place it as the very best. Printers ink pays, and that is why the firm has built and equipped so complete a plant. A Chicago visitor in the Record office recently stated that they employ about three hundred printers and own the best printing machinery manufactured. Every foot of space in their plant is utilized some way and every second of an employee's time is charged against the particular job he is employed on. When he picks up the copy for a job he punches a time clock and when he lays that ticket down again he punches out on the job on the clock, thus keeping an accurate record down to the second as to the time cost on the job, and enabling the firm to estimate from a most complete cost system just what a job costs, even to a fraction of a cent. A printers time costs in Chicago is $2.48 an hour, and that is what they figure the cost on the work.

There are two or three morals in this. In the first place the time cost of $2.48 an hour in the city shop for work gives the country printer who thinks work in his shop is only worth about 50 cents per hour something to think about. It also gives the fellow who thinks job work in the country print shop a chance to compare prices with those of the largest mail order concern in the world. The fact that they put such a large investment in a printing plant is a strong object lesson to the modern merchant who doesn't think there is any virtue in advertising the goods he has for sale.—Canadian Record.

CONSTIPATION

And Sour Stomach Caused This Lady Much Suffering. Black-Draught Relieved.

Meadersville, Ky.—Mrs. Pearl Patrick, of this place, writes: "I was very constipated. I had sour stomach and was so uncomfortable. I went to the doctor. He gave me some pills. They weakened me and seemed to tear up my digestion. They would gripe me and afterwards it seemed I was more constipated than before.

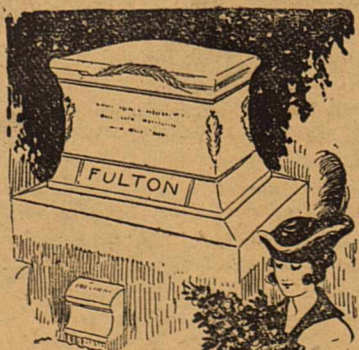

I heard of Black-Draught and decided to try it. I found it just what I needed. It was an easy laxative, and not bad to swallow. My digestion soon improved. I got well of the sour stomach, my bowels soon seemed normal, no more griping, and I would take a dose now and then, and was in good shape.

I cannot say too much for Black-Draught for it is the finest laxative one can use."

Theford's Black-Draught has for many years been found of great value in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Easy to take, gentle and reliable in its action, leaving no bad after-effects, it has won the praise of thousands of people who have used it.

Miss Edna Walters came in last week from Wichita Falls, where she has been on a visit. She says that only the rich can live there as it takes $100.00 per month to get board and lodging. She says her brother-in-law, Clifford Dickson paid $50.00 for one week's grocery bill. Well, we wonder how any newspaper editors exists there at all?

Mrs. Mary Cheers, of Douglass,

Ariz., has been visiting her brother, Tom Wright, of Yoakum county, and left this week for her home.

Why Rural Press is a Power

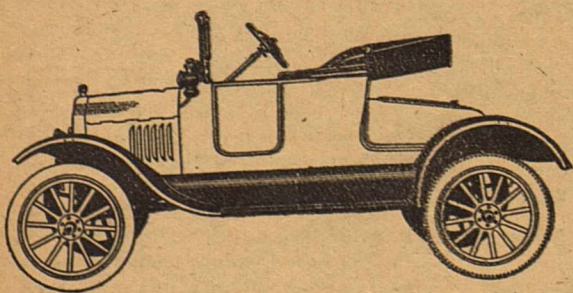

The average man can live in a big city all his life and never see his name in the paper, but the farmer and the average man and woman in any small town can see their names in the local country paper at least ten times a year, and always connected with some worthy cause, some faithful service, something that will bring joy to all through life. The country newspaper is the paper that spreads happiness and content.

Don't you always read about the ball game you saw the day before? If you witness a fire you read the details of the blaze with double interest. If you hadn't seen the fire perhaps you wouldn't read the account at all. Why is this? asks the Oelwein (Ia.) Iowan. It is because the things you know about are the very things you like to read about. This is why the country papers have such a tremendous hold on their readers. They tell them about the comings and goings of their friends and their neighbors, the people they know. Nothing on earth is as interesting to the farmers and the people living in the town as the news of their babies, the marriage of their boys and girls, their social and church events, the illness and deaths among their close friends. Year after year, the country newspaper records the history of its community.

Is it any wonder that the country newspaper is the most powerful advertising medium on earth? Just as its power is great in holding its readers' interest, so it is helpful in shaping the thought and powerful as an advertising medium. It turns the printed word into almost the spoken word.

No metropolitan daily or magazine no billboard, no farm journal—good as they are—rings the bell with the farmers and small town people as does their home newspaper. It is an integral part of the community that cannot be filled by any other medium.—Publishers' Auxiliary

THE IRON TEST

(Synopsis)

Bert Forde, adventurer, who is heir to the Bresford millions, is a performer in the Jenkins circus, in which his cousin, Lewis Craven, is manager. Both are in love with Edith Paige, a beautiful rider. Craven learns that old Beresford is dead and that ten millions await Bert. If Bert dies he (Craven) gets the fortune. Craven keeps the news from Bert, who becomes the victim of mysterious "accidents" bringing him almost daily near death. A stranger wearing a red mask figures in the accidents. One night a knife is thrust between a rope and a horizontal bar. When Bert and Edith are in mid air the rope parts and they are plunged into almost certain death.

Chapter 4—"The Noose"

Bert, grasping Edith's hands tightly as the severed rope of the trapeze gave under their weight, fought desperately to avoid the plunge that meant death to them both. As the trapeze bar started to slip from under his knees, he threw one leg upward and managed to wind it around the remaining rope. Then he twisted his other leg around it and, for the moment, they were safe, their plunge halted.

The attendant who had Edith's horse was the first to spring into action. While Jenkins and even Craven stood helpless and seemingly petrified, the man ran forward with a blanket. The audience was too intent watching the death struggle in midair to note the rescuer, but Jenkins, standing in the ring with a blanket. The audience was too intent watching the death struggle in midair to note the rescuer, but Jenkins, standing in the ring with the clown, sensed the rescue quickly. Craven came up and he was only too willing to grasp one corner of the blanket so that Edith could land safely. Jenkins held one end, the clown another and the holster the fourth.

Bert let Edith drop into the blanket and she landed safely, rolling lightly and making a graceful bow to the now cheering audience. Craven let go his end of the blanket to assist Edith, and she, realizing Bert was still in a perilous position aloft, grasped the edge and held it while Bert dropped to safety.

When both his favorites were safe on the ground, Jenkins exploded.

"That rope was cut!" he exclaimed in anger. "I'm going to wire to Los Angeles for a first class detective. This thing cannot go on!"

Craven nodded his approval of the plan to get a detective.

The party then left the ring—all but Peaky, who picked up the knife which the "Red Mask" had used in his dastardly attempt on Bert's life. He put it in his pocket and smiled wisely.

The act of Bert and Edith, which had provided a thrill not on the program, had closed the afternoon performance and Jenkins, Craven and others accompanied the stars to their vans. Bert was apparently unruffled by the experience, but Edith was plainly unnerved. After seeing her to her van, Bert announced that he was going to Benham, on the other side of the bay, for a set of fags he had ordered for use in the new act that was to be tried that night.

"Take my car," suggested Jenkins. "No, I'll shoot across the bay in a motorboat and be back in an hour," replied Bert. He then turned to Craven and invited him to go, but the latter replied:

"Not me! I've got to go to the hotel and work on my accounts."

Bert quickly changed from his cowboy togs to ordinary clothes and started towards the bay, stopping to play with one of the bears as he passed the animal tent. Meanwhile Craven had repaired to his hotel.

Arriving at the dock, Bert hired the only motorboat, a trim little craft with a skiff behind it. He then leapt immediately aboard and started away. He had gone about a mile out into the bay when the boat began to slow up. He looked over the side and saw that it had run afoul of a mass of driftwood. Giving the painter a turn around the wheel to keep the boat headed straight, he grabbed a boathook and started forward. He began to push at the obstacle.

As Bert bent over the bow, the "Red Mask" suddenly emerged from the cabin, where he had been hidden. He was armed with a club. Creeping up behind Bert he struck him a resounding blow on the back of the head and Bert toppled forward unconscious. He did not fall into the water, but "Red Mask" started to push him in. Then the villain changed his mind and went aft, dragging Bert's inert body. "Red Mask" cut a length off the painter, securely bound Bert and left him in the cockpit. Then he went into the cabin, brought out a bit and brace and proceeded to bore a hole in the bottom of the launch. "Red Mask" leaped into the skiff, cut loose and commenced to row back to land.

Bert came to with all but his head submerged. He struggled to free himself, but was too tightly bound. Then he noted a hook on one side of the cockpit, where the basket was hung. Working his way to it, he commenced to saw the rope across it and after a seemingly endless time freed his hands. The launch by this time was almost submerged. Quickly ridding himself of the bonds on his legs, Bert leaped into the water.

After a short swim he landed in shallow water, on the edge of an island, and walked ashore. He started inland but soon found that he was on a barren island. He heard the screech of wild ducks and this gave him an idea, a long chance that might save him. He fashioned a screen of reeds and managed to decoy three ducks. Then, using his cuffs for paper, a piece of reed for a pen, and a few drops of his own blood for ink, he wrote a note reading: "Jenkins' Circus, Benham, Calif. Wrecked on an island in bay. Help. B. Ford."

He released the three birds, one bearing his message and sat down to wait. He had little hopes of rescue. Two hunters, their launch filled with fat game, were startled soon after to see a duck flying low over them, apparently with a letter tied to one of its legs. One of them fired and an instant later the bird fluttered into the water. They went to the spot, picked up the bird and message and started at once to Bert's aid. He saw them coming and waded out to meet them. As he climbed aboard the launch, he thanked them, and told them of his mysterious accident.

Meanwhile it had grown dark and Edith and Jenkins had begun to worry over Bert's continued absence. The evening performance began and was almost over. Still no sign of Bert. Craven pretending worry, said he would go down to the dock and seek news of the missing one. Instead he went over to the booth of a concessionaire and there entered in to contest with Peaky, shooting little pointed darts at a board with numbers corresponding to numbers on prizes. He paid no money and accepted no prizes, but even with the little air rifle the man displayed remarkable marksmanship, and Peaky, good marksman that he was, was no match for him.

Craven sauntered back to the main tent. Jenkins by now was almost distracted, because the show was almost over now, and Bert's new act, almost due, was to be the climax. Everything was in readiness for the act, except the actor. Jenkins broke under the strain and stepped into the center of the ring to apologize to the audience. He had only begun to explain Bert's absence when suddenly there was an outburst of cheering. Bert, in cowboy costume, rode in to the ring on his horse, Diabolus, with a balancing pole, the French flag fluttering from the end, Old Glory from the other.

He bowed to the audience, then started Diabolus up the runway to a three inch cable which was stretched between two platforms fifteen feet in the air. It was the introduction of his new act. Diabolus was to walk the rope, bearing Bert on his back. As the magnificent horse stepped upon the cable, there was a rent in the tent at one side. The evil, half visible, face of "Red Mask" showed through, and then the point of a tiny rifle.

The horse was half way across the cable. Suddenly there was a sharp "ping" the beast reared, falling to the ground with his rider.

Neither horse or rider was hurt. As Jenkins, Edith and others gathered around, Bert said to Jenkins: "No detective work needed there, I guess that was an accident."

Jenkins nodded in agreement, but said that the detective would be brought on anyway. After the others had left the ring and the audience convinced Bert was unhurt, had started out, Peaky stood under the cable at the spot where Bert had fallen. He examined the ground and after a minute picked up one of the little air rifle darts. He put it in his pocket along with the knife that had severed the trapeze rope. "Accident—Hell!" he muttered.

Bert stepped into his van, unaware of danger. He had begun to undress for bed when there came a rap at his door. He threw it open, and as he did so his foot struck a cord drawn across the opening and he started to plunge forward. But he never did reach the ground. His head and left arm were caught in a noose and he was swung upward, the noose drawing tight around him. A series of heavy weights attached to the rope which curved over a limb directly in front of Bert's van dropped downward as he assented. They told how he was drawn upward. The disappearing figure of "Red Mask" told why.

"Higher Ups" Not to Blame

The Brotherhoods claim that the higher officials are to blame for the deplorable railroad conditions. Let's see. This week we received a shipment of print paper on which the News is printed. There was twenty bundles of 100 pounds each. Not a bundle came through with a whole wrapper. Several of the bundles were badly damaged, showing gross carelessness in handling. Every shipment in the past few months have been in this same condition. No railroad president or higher up handled the paper. Besides, the time in getting seven shipments of paper from Dallas to Canyon during the month of August varied from fourteen to twenty-one days. Two years ago shipments never took more than six or seven days. That was before the Brotherhoods undertook to run things. And again, no higher official has been setting out cars of live stock between Canyon and the Kan. City market. The Brotherhoods cannot pass the buck to higher up on this kind of stuff. There's not a shipper who cannot tell stories of mistreatment by men of the Brotherhoods. These fellows feel that they hold the balance of power and being in a position to demoralize business in the United States by a strike, they continue to do as they please. Just how long are the people going to stand for it?—Canyon News.

COMMITTEE READY FOR CAMPAIGN TO RAISE S. A. FUND

Kirby Pleased With Organization for Pushing Drive
Throughout State.

ELKS PROMISE HELP FOR STATE WORKERS

Soldiers Fall into Line When Asked to Head District
and Local Units.

With the appointment of his executive committee complete John Kirby, state chairman for the $600,000
home service fund drive in Texas, September 29, outlined a vigorous policy to its members at Dallas Saturday.

"I am pleased with the success that has been met in perfecting a strong committee to get the money that is required for placing the Salvation Army on a firm basis in Texas for all time," Mr. Kirby told the committee. "In this work we have the cooperation of virtually every soldier who was 'over there'. We are getting the support of religious and fraternal organizations."

Elks Help in Drive

The order of Elks promised support of the campaign in the following telegram from Frank L. Rain, exalted ruler of the organization:

"I earnestly co-operate with you and the good people of my native State. We are behind you in your home service campaign.

"Commander Evangeline Booth told us in our recent convention at Atlantic City that if it had not been for the Elks the Salvation Army would not have achieved the success that it did in the great war.

"Great good is being done by the Salvation Army along a line that cannot be accomplished by any other organization. We as an order have always aided the Salvation Army and the Elks from coast to coast are assisting them in their present drives.
Here's hoping that you 'go over the top' in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana."

Chairman Kirby is expected to appoint the full number of his executive committee this week, according to Lieut. Col. George Wood, commander of the Southwestern District. Five members of the state committee have been appointed. The number probably will be brought to fifteen.

County Units Are Formed

County organizations are rapidly swinging into line for the intensive week of work that is planned to cover the campaign work. Field men of the Salvation Army corps report success in each county in which they work.

"By far the most gratifying feature of the campaign is the support that the returned soldier is giving the Salvation Army," Mr. Kirby told the executive committee at its last session.
"I find that this sympathy for the Salvation Army is deep and sincere.
The boys really want to help."

Richard Burgess of El Paso who was one of the first Texas soldiers to go overseas, has been appointed to lead
the campaign in the El Paso district.
Burgess returned to America with the rank of colonel.

Soldier Ready to Help

"I am not too busy to show the Salvation Army the attention that is due it by every returned soldier," Mr.

Burgess said in accepting the position
offered him on the state committee.

Definite plans for the campaigns in each county are now in the hands of the state central executive committee. The state committee is the nucleus of an organization of workers that extends down to the last publicity man and county chairman in the state.

"There are to be no loafers on the state committee," Mr. Kirby said in announcing his appointees. "Each man nominated for a place who accepts will have a definite work to perform. Each district chairman will be responsible for the men in his district who are able to give substantial sums of money. Each county chairman will be responsible for the men who are able to give freely in his community. By this plan it is the hope of the Salvation Army that the drive may be brought to a speedy close."

Halls Built on Border

Construction work on two recreation halls for the Salvation Army at Santa Helena and Lajitas in the Big Bend district will begin at once according to a letter received last night from Colonel G. T. Langhorne of the United States cavalry by Lieutenant Colonel George Wood, commander of the southwestern division of the Salvation Army.

Colonel Langhorne acknowledged receipt of a check from Lieutenant Colonel Wood for $1,000. The money was sent the first of the week from the Dallas office of the Salvation Army.

"I take this opportunity to thank you," Colonel Langhorne wrote, "and express the gratitude and appreciation of the officers and soldiers for your consideration of them."

Twenty-Five in Girls' Hotel.

The girls' hotel at Dallas maintained
by the Salvation Army now accommodates 25 girls, according to Lieutenant Colonel George Wood in his report for the year ending March 31, 1919. These girls, Mr. Wood declares, are given clean rooms and wholesome meals
much below the cost for the poorest kind of board and room obtainable in Dallas. The home is at 1718 Corsicana street.

Many Get S. A. Groceries.

Meats and groceries have been supplied 22,104 needy citizens of the southwest by the Salvation Army in the past year, according to Lieutenant Colonel George Wood of the Dallas office. 1945 were given lodging, employment was found for 369, medical aid was given 1148. The total number of suffering people relieve by the Salvation Army in the year is 30,669. The cost of giving the relief amounted to $17,268.48.

tion with the Higginbotham Harris
Co. as yard man, and personally, we think that company has made a wise choice, for he is a man of sterling qualities, and while he will be faithful to his employees, the people can expect a square deal through him.
