

GRANDMOTHER'S SHAKER BOND.

Dear grandmother's well-worn shaker! I found it one dark, rainy day...

ARIEL, The Half-Breed.

A Romance of Colonial Days.

BY ROBERT A. CUMMING.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

Perhaps the fair and gentle captive touched some chord in the heart of this child of the forest...

Marden and his companion having concealed the canoe in a clump of trees on the shore...

Ariel was not so confident, remembering his late experience, but started to reconnoiter...

Perplexed but undaunted, Ariel once more felt for and clasped the hand of the incognito...

"Quick, Ariel, quick to the canoe!" he shouted, retreating slowly...

Ariel and Mlle. Destain had watched the scene with breathless interest...

the one they had left. The same dusky figure stepped out of the canoe...

"Is the lady safe, Ariel?" asked Marden.

"She is safe, M. Marden," said Ninon, laying her hand on his arm...

"We must make that certain," he replied; "but while they have boats they can follow us..."

Ariel was now about to solve the problem which had occupied his mind...

"It must be Stella," she said, "I mean that Indian woman who was my jailer..."

"But how came she to desert her friends to follow you?" asked Marden.

Ninon reflected for a moment. "I tried to gain her friendship," she said, "and must have succeeded unconsciously..."

"It is quite plain, now," said Marden, "and she followed you because she dared not remain behind..."

Leaving Ninon to repose as best she could, Marden and the boy sought the nearest point to the camp of the enemy...

Marden, having imparted his scheme to Ariel, they paddled their canoe to the spot which had been their former hiding-place...

HE GRASPED THE GUNWALE.

The adventurers had barely time to creep under the side of the barge and place it between them and the firelight...

Ariel was not so confident, remembering his late experience, but started to reconnoiter...

Emboldened by success, the adventurers proceeded to sink one of the canoes, retaining the other to aid them to escape...

When they returned to the spot where they left Mlle. Destain, they found her locked in the deep slumber consequent on release from long and painful anxiety...

tant view of the scene of their late operations. Once more the fire was burning brightly, and figures which resembled demons in its red glare were running about without apparent object...

CHAPTER XVI. A LONG CHASE.

"Now the first thing to do is to take in the sails, for it won't do to have them flapping like that and giving notice to the redskins where to find us..."

"In five minutes they won't be able to see us at all," said Eph. "But there's a little island on our starboard bow..."

"Well, we'll get the boat out and tow our craft behind that island and lay there all snug till the fog lifts and the wind comes up again..."

The fog, which gathers with great rapidity and disappears as quickly, had now settled down upon them...

The next difficulty arose from the weak condition of the men, who had all been taken from the hospital ward of the fort.

"I'll take your place, Jabe," said his wife. "I know how to row, and so does Mrs. Knowles..."

Jabe looked at his wife with admiration, but there was no time for words. The two women got into the boat...

Ephraim calculated that it would take the redskins an hour to overhaul them, and by that time he hoped to reach the shelter of the island...

On the same principle he became aware that they had entered their haven by observing the tops of trees on either side of the narrow channel...

"Jabe!" cried Nellie, "they've found some one hiding and dragged him out. He seems to be talking to them and pointing to the dead men..."

"He's explaining the mistake to them," said Jabe.

"They don't believe him," continued Nellie. "Some of them are throwing wood on the fire; they're tying his hands and feet..."

She had already commenced the descent, and with her husband's aid, reached the ground, pale and trembling...

So engrossed were they by thoughts of the tragic scene enacted so near them, and by hopes and fears of their own safety, that they were not aware of the presence of a stranger...

ELECTRIC DANGERS.

Extracts From an Excellent Essay by Prof. Henry Morton.

"Prof. Henry Morton, in his paper on 'Dangers of Electricity,' read before the National Electric Light Association Convention, shows how easily and safely electricity can be utilized..."

"There's a tree; but none of us are in good condition for climbing," remarked Eph.

"Jabe," said his wife, "don't you remember how I used to climb apple-trees when I was a girl?"

"I see men on an island about half a mile away. They're walking up and down the shore as if they were looking for something..."

"This is their barge, and its drifted away from them," argued Eph, logically, "and if so they're in a bad way..."

"I think they're Frenchmen. There's one large man that wears a sword and appears to give orders..."

"I see something else!" cried Nellie, more excitedly than before.

"What is it?" asked her husband.

"I see another island with four people on it, and they are watching the others. One looks like a squaw and the other like—like—oh, Jabe! But I can't tell..."

"Then we'll have to look out," said Eph; "for they'll unite forces and come in search of the barge..."

"They're firing on the Frenchmen," cried Nellie, "but I can't see the savages are striking at them with knives and tomahawks..."

"Be careful, Nellie, that you don't fall," said her husband, anxiously.

"It's all over," continued Nellie. "Most of the men were killed at the first fire, and the rest didn't make any resistance..."

"He jumped in the river and was shot or drowned," muttered Jabe.

"I don't understand it," said Jabe. "The French are their allies. Why did they attack them?"

"It's plain enough to me," said Eph. "They've been following us for two days; they lost us among the islands..."

"I don't know where," said Jabe.

"I don't understand it," said Jabe. "The French are their allies. Why did they attack them?"

"I don't understand it," said Jabe. "The French are their allies. Why did they attack them?"

USEFUL AND SUGGESTIVE.

—Alum, dissolved in water and applied to a bedstead with a feather, will exterminate bed-bugs.

—In using yelks of eggs, it must be remembered that a broken egg must be closely covered in the dish in which it is kept until desired for use.

—Squash Fritters.—Two cupfuls cooked squash, one cupful milk, two eggs, a little salt. Flour to make them turn easily on the griddle.—House-keeper.

—Sponge Cake.—One and one-fourth cups of flour, one cup of sugar, three eggs beaten very light, one teaspoonful of baking powder, four tablespoonfuls boiling water; flavor to taste, add water last and pour in carefully, stirring constantly, bake moderately.—Boston Globe.

—Lyonnaise Potatoes.—Cut some cold boiled potatoes into small square blocks; shred half an onion finely; dry potatoes and onion into boiling lard and fry a light brown; drain on paper and serve in a very hot dish. Dust with powdered parsley before serving.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

—French Toast.—This is a delicate and delicious dish if carefully prepared; and the preparation has the advantage of being quite simple. Dip pieces of bread or rolls—baker's softener more readily—in milk, then in a beaten egg, and toast or fry until of a uniform and delicate brown.—N. Y. Observer.

—To remove ants from a closet, the most efficacious method is to grease a tin pipe with lard, and place it on the closet floor, under the shelves. The ants will seek the lard in preference to anything else, and in a little while the plate will be covered with them, when they can be destroyed and the plate returned for another capture.

—For a salad dressing, easily prepared, beat the raw yolk of an egg with a small teaspoonful of mustard and drop in a few drops of lemon. Add gradually, stirring well, one-half of a pint of olive oil, a little salt and vinegar to thin it. Should the dressing curdle beat up another egg and add the curdled dressing, little by little, stirring constantly.—N. Y. World.

—Gems of Rolled Oats.—Soak two cups of rolled oats for five hours (or over night) in one and three-quarter cups of sour milk. Add one teaspoonful (level) of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of light-brown sugar, one teaspoonful of sifted flour, and two well-beaten eggs, in the order given, the soda dissolved in a little water. Bake in hot, well-greased gem pans, in a hot oven, for twenty-five minutes.

—Cecils.—Take two cups of cold, finely chopped meat, the yolks of two eggs, a teaspoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of stale bread crumbs, a teaspoonful of finely chopped onion, half a grated nutmeg, a little pepper and salt, mix all together well, put in a frying pan and stir over the fire until well heated. Take up and spread out on a large dish to cool. When cold, form in little balls, dip first in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs, and fry in boiling lard.—Louisville Courier Journal.

—Apple Potpie.—Pare and slice some apples; line an earthen dish with paste put in a layer of apples and sugar; cover with a thin crust; then lay in more apples and sugar, and continue until the dish is full, having a crust on top; add spice of any kind desired; cut an opening in the center of the top crust to allow the steam to escape; place the dish in a steamer, and steam until a fork can be removed free from the dough after piercing the crust; serve with rich cream, flavored and sweetened, or a cold sauce.

—American Silk Plushes. Plushes are manufactured in England, France and Germany. The silk plushes used in this market are the product of American labor. Pennsylvania is the center of this silk plush industry. Within the last four or five years all the silk plush used in the United States was imported from England. About four years ago the first American silk-plush plants were established. At first the same price was charged for them as for English tapestry, but the manufacturers here and abroad began to cut prices and when this warfare was well under way it was not a great while before the American maker was on top. We furnish the market a first-class article in silk plush at a much lower price than is asked for the imported plush. There is in fact very little difference between the grade of silk plush goods made in England and those produced in this country. The Sumner was informed that there is one firm in Philadelphia whose silk plushes are equal in every way to the English.—Chicago Post.

—He Picked More Than One. In the Berlin law courts a person who was caught red-handed has been proceeded against for stealing roses from a prettily decorated grave. The accused produced in court a copy of the inscription on the tablet over the grave, which runs as follows: "Traveler, pause a moment at this spot and pluck a rose in remembrance of what I was." The defendant, on the strength of this, contended that he was acting simply in accordance with the expressed wishes of the deceased; but the judge thought otherwise. The inscription on the tablet stated plainly that the traveler was to pluck a rose. There was no mention in the legend that he should pluck a handful of roses from the bower. So the learned judge forthwith pronounced the defendant guilty.—London Daily News.

—A Principle of Evolution. Guest—See here, waiter, I ordered a young duck and you have brought a tough old hen.

Waiter.—No, sah, dat war a duck. But de duck egg war incubated by a hen, sah; and when the duck came out he done gone assumed de proclivities of de hen, sah.—Puck.

—Easily Settled. Charley Nobrains—Say, Mr. Brown, Fweddy Littlestone and I have got a bet of a pack of cigarettes, about the weight of a pair of donkeys.

Freddy—Yeth; and we want you to settle it for us.

Brown—All right. Come over here and I'll weigh you.—Light.

—Two Wicasset (Me.) schoolgirls the other day showed the value of a cool head and the right kind of education. A little girl near them fell into the water from a floating stage, when one of the girls, Miss Daisy Budd, sprang to the stage, seized the child and held her until her companion, Miss May Lenox, could help pull her out. The Lilliputian says the girls then began practically to illustrate their knowledge of resuscitating drowned persons taught in their physiology, and the little one was restored to consciousness and, at last accounts, was doing well.

Fire, old gun, 100 rounds for People's victory

"I stand erect, and with a clarion voice, proclaim: 'Cock-a-doodle-de,' for the people who are again freed from Republican thralldom and the hidraheaded monster of iniquity, the author of the McKinley bill and the House which passed it, and that was controlled by Reed rule.

Let the American eagle scream, because the people have again triumphed over rine-rule, bossism, and that class of legislation that is making the rich richer, and the poor, poorer.

We, the American people, having go-our back up, concluded that the r. o. p. must give up its strongholds in the North, so that we would no longer have to depend on a "solid South" to have our will carried out

"The Republican party having died from an overdose of bossism in the Lower House of Congress, the McKinley bill which passed both Houses and was signed by the President, the Federal election law and other obnoxious measures that passed Czar Reed's branch of Congress, I am on the way to the funeral; so clear the track."

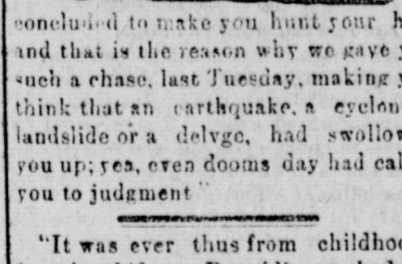

The flag of American liberty still floats, with the Democracy triumphantly carrying it to the front.

"We, the American people, having watched your maneuvers, y. e. g. o. p., and found out your short comings, have concluded to make you hunt your hole and that is the reason why we gave you such a chase, last Tuesday, making you think that an earthquake, a cyclone, a landslide or a deluge, had swallowed you up; yea, even dooms day had called you to judgment"

No matter which party is elected, my light shines for all.

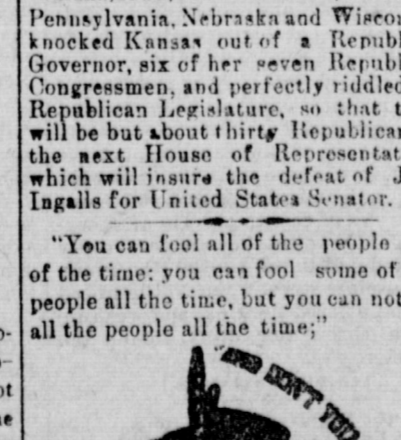

"It was ever thus from childhood's hour, and if you Republicans had not tried to rule too much you might have ruled longer, but please now take an day, and got Democratic Governors in Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Nebraska and Wisconsin; knocked Kansas out of a Republican Governor, six of her seven Republican Congressmen, and seven riddled her Republican Legislature, so that there will be about thirty Republicans in the next House of Representatives which will insure the defeat of J. J. Ingalls for United States Senator.
