DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION AT GOMEZ

At an early hour Sunday morning a fire of unknown origin completely the general store of A. P. Moore at Gomez. Speculation is rife as to how the fire started, but nothing is definitely known only that it broke out in the storage room adjoining the main building. As soon as the alarm was given a number of people near by gathered at the store in an effort to save as much of its contents as possible, but very little headway was made until smoke made it impossible to enter the building and little was saved. The loss is estimated at from $5,000 to $8,000 with no insurance.

Judge J. H. Moore.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of district judge of the 72nd. judicial District of Texas, subject to the July primaries.

I have, by the good will of the people of Lubbock County, held the office of county judge of that county for two terms, and was strongly solicited to stand for re-election to that office, but declined to again offer for the place, for the reason that I have had the office two terms.

Believing as I do that a public office is a public trust, I have endeavored to accomplish something for the people of my county of which they and I could be proud, and it is with pride that I look upon the things that have been accomplished under my administration, both as county judge and as county superintendent of schools. I deeply appreciate the trust that has been imposed in me, and the hearty co-operation and the many expressions of good will that have come to me from the people of my home county.

I am now seeking a promotion, and if the people of the district honor me with the office to which I aspire, I shall to the best of my ability perform the duties of this responsible office.

When I was a candidate for this

CLEAN-UP WEEK OBSERVED IN BROWNFIELD

Prizes awarded successful contestants
 Clean-up week in Brownfield has come and gone, and one has only to look about him to note the improved general appearance of our little city. All sorts of rubbish, including rags, paper, scrap iron, tin cans, etc., have been gathered together in heaps, preparatory to being hauled away from town. The event has caused no little rivalry among the boys, each of whom coveted the distinction of having his name written in connection with the prizes offered. Public spirited men have contributed to the fund from which the successful contestants were awarded. A committee of judges was appointed to spend Saturday morning inspecting the trash heaps all over town. The following citizens served: C. L. Williams, Dock Powell, W. A. Wooley, Prof. Farrar, and three ministers of the Brownfield churches, J. E. Anderson, J. W. Baughman, and J. P. Kimbrell. It was found that good work had been done, and in some cases the contests were close, but the judges were unanimous in awarding the prizes as follows:
 Largest trash heap.....Wayland Whisenant and Irwin Burnett.
 Second trash heap.....W. C. Mathis and Uyless Graham.
 Cleanest yard.....Mrs. Jno. B. King
 2nd cleanest yard.....Mrs. J. W. Welch

In the contest for the largest collection of rags and paper, James H. Dallas tied with Wayland Whisenant and Irwin Burnett, who worked together. There were others whose work showed up so well that it was decided to distribute two smaller prizes to those who contested so closely with the winners.
 No doubt when the successful contestants see their names appear in this issue of the Herald as winners, they will feel repaid for their efforts, and the satisfaction of having contributed their part to a worthy civic enterprise will be worth more to them than the cash prizes which they

COMMENCEMENT PLAYS SCORE GREAT SUCCESS

The first on program of commencement festivities was in the form of a High School play, entitled, "The Real Thing After All." Staged at the new auditorium May 13, by the senior class of Brownfield High School. If the success of an undertaking is to be measured by the manner in which it is received by the public, we are able to report a successful attempt on the part of the Seniors to give to their friends and patrons an evening of real high class entertainment, for the vast concourse of anxious spectators, together with the wild and enthusiastic applause on their part, gave evidence that it was being given a hearty reception. The many expressions of appreciation which followed gave the cast of characters just cause to feel that they had been repaid for their long and stringent hours of practice and preparation. It was their intention to give to the people of Brownfield an evening long to be remembered, and the demonstrations which the close of each scene brought indicated that their object was being attained. Each character acquitted himself creditably and the play, in the whole, was a pleasing reflection of ability upon Brownfield talent. A great many from the country round about were in attendance, as well as several transients, who happened to be in town on that night, and they expressed themselves as being delighted with the entertainment.

 Following this came the Junior play entitled "Light House Nan." on the night of May 22. Nothing had been overlooked and everything possible had been done to insure its perfect rendition, and it must be said to the credit of the characters that no bunch of junior boys and girls could have presented it with less room for criticism. Each seemed to have prepared himself well for the occasion, and the way in which the audience received it gave evidence of their appreciation and delight.
 LAMESA TO BUILD $50,000 SCHOOL BUILDING
 Walter Taylor, architect, who has been in Lamesa and that territory for several days, reports that plans are being made now for the $50,000 school building for Lamesa.
 This building, when complete, will be of brick, two story in height with basement, embracing all modern methods of heating, lighting and ventilation.—Lubbock Avalanche.
 A SAD DEATH
 A very sad and unexpected death occurred in Crosbyton Saturday about noon when L. B. Culwell died as a result of heart failure. Mr. Culwell was the president of the Citizens National Bank, and had been in his office the entire morning attending to business, and was seemingly in the best of health when he left the bank for his home at noon. He ate his dinner and immediately after was struck down. Several neighbors were hurriedly called and the doctor arrived just before the end but all that medical skill could do was of no avail. In the death of Mr. Culwell, Crosbyton loses one of her most prominent citizens and the county, as a whole, suffers an irreparable loss.—Ralls Banner

The Story of the Spud

The Irish potato is not Irish at all and never was. As a matter of fact the spud is a native born American just the same as the red man, and was not even known in Europe until after Columbus discovered America and can now be found growing wild in Chile and near Buenos Aires. But this is no more than has been discovered in Colorado during the past half century. It was first shipped to Spain from the neighborhood of Quito in the early part of the sixteenth century. The first shipments to England were from our Virginia in the year 1586. Sir Walter Raleigh was the first foreigner to claim the spud and was the first to plant it in Ireland in his estate of Yougal, near the city of Cork. In 1857 it was first planted in England, near Lancashire, the seed coming from Sir Walter's garden.

To demonstrate how much the Irish knew about the potato, Sir Walter's first experience is here related. He together with other people at that time, thought the potato was a fruit—Pomme de terre—meaning apple of the earth, and when the first plant grew and the seed stock shot forth he perceived the seed bales upon them and concluded that they were the delicious fruit. Upon boiling them he found that they were not like what he had before and only discovered his mistake when digging up the ground afterward for other purposes. Now Sir Walter was a man of genius and upon experimenting found that treble the quality of potatoes could be raised from the same parcel of ground, as of any other vegetable; and immediately the potato became the principal food of the Irish peasantry. And this is the true story of how the Irish first began to monopolize the spud.

Parmientiere, the great Frenchman, introduced the potato in France under many difficulties. He wanted the French people to adopt it as food, but they would not even taste it until conniving with the authorities he succeeded in foisting them into using the potato. He planted a garden in potatoes and created some excitement about them until they were ripe. He was then allowed a detachment of soldiers to guard the patch. At this time the common people became interested and watching their opportunity stole some of them from the garden. It soon followed that France became a potato-eating country. West India Islands have been the source of supply for many years for a portion of the imports into the United States; but during recent years Colorado as a potato growing state has gone forward by leaps and bounds, and while we have met with many disparagements we are still in the swim with the best quality of spuds on earth.—Field and Farm.

ANOTHER REASON

The following clipping from the Estancia (New Mexico) News-Herald constitutes another reason why Texas should be divided:

"J. L. Smith and family have returned from Texas, all affected more or less with malaria. They say they have had enough of Texas. Mr. Smith's farm near Tajique is rented for the season, but he has rented some land of Mr. Dow and will get into the farming game.

Doubtless many of the readers of the foregoing item would be surprised to know that looking for a case of malaria in the Panhandle would be about the same sized job as the fellow who looked for a needle in the hay stack. But because malaria does exist down in the "sticks" a lot of folks over the whole state, shaking, creatures who perform their labors and transact business between chills and doses.—Southwest Plainsman.

HELP WANTED—MALE OR FEMALE

Bring along the undertaker; Bring the butcher and the baker; Fetch the dry goods man, The clothier and the draper. Bring the preacher and the loafer, With the teacher and the chauffer And let them tell us how to run The paper. Why sure! Any one can do it. It's a cinch. Pooh! Nothing to it. It's a pudding job, a sinecure a snap. It's a simple proposition. That requires no eridition. And experience,—it isn't worth a rap So trot out the clerks and brokers, Call the engineers and stokers And bring the politicians off the street Fetch the 'busman and the plumber With the ad man and the drummer And we'll have them tell us how to run the sheet. Won't it be a great convention? 'Twill attract world wide attention. What suggestions! What monitions! What decrees! But for fear there'll be confusion Let us mention, in conclusion, That we'll run the thing exactly as we please.

E. F. McIntyre.

THE PRAYER OF A MAN.

Teach me that sixty minutes make an hour, sixteen ounces one pound, one hundred cents a dollar. Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, without a gun under my pillow, and unhaunted by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain.

Grant that I may earn my meal ticket on the square, and that in earning it I may not stick the gaff where it does not belong.

Deafen me to the jingle of tainted money and the rustle of unholy skirts. Blind me to the faults of other fellows, but reveal to me mine own. Guide me so that each night, when I look across the dinner table at my wife, who has been a blessing to me. I will have nothing to conceal. Keep me young enough to laugh with my children.

And when come the sweet smell of flowers and the tread of soft steps, and the crunching of wheels out in front, make the ceremony short and the epitaph simple: "Here lies a Man" Ex.

TOUCHED HIS HEART

"Hands up!" cried the business-like highwayman. The victim laughed as he complied.

"The joke is on you," he asserted, chuckling. "I've just paid a large bill sent by a lawyer for aiding me to fill out my income tax schedule. A month ago my landlord raised my rent. My son has just come home from France and can't get a job. Yesterday my salary was decreased. Today the bank in which I kept the remnant of my money went smash. I've been looking all night for one of you chaps. I want to learn this hold up business."

Weeping bitterly, the highwayman thrust the revolver into his would-be victim's hands and disappeared into the darkness.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mrs. J. C. Green left last week for Mariarity N. M., to visit her daughter, Mrs. W. T. Savage and family.

A couple of young men were lodged in jail here Monday charged with stealing cotton seed hulls. Last week several automatic pistols and a ladies watch was stolen from the Lamesa Hardware Company's store. Sunday night some $20 was stolen from the Methodist church birthday jar. When certain boys, in our opinion, are placed in the reformatory, these things will stop. When boys steal out cars and run them all over town at night and get into all the mischief they want to and no control is taken of them, these same boys are going to break into some house, some night and being discovered, they will kill someone. Some good man is going to be forced some night to kill some of this delegation, who will regret having done it all the days of his life, but it is going to come to this or get killed.—Lamesa Reporter.

Of course when a boy gets clean out of reason, the only place for him is the reformatory, but before he reaches that stage, his parents should find him employment and put him to work and keep him at work. The old saying that "Idleness is the Devil's Workshop" is still as true today as the day it was uttered, and the man that brings up a bunch of boys in town with no employment is running a great risk of having an abundance of trouble on his hand. If you have nothing else for them to do, rent a farm and let them help feed the nation and stay out of trouble. Lamesa, like Brownfield and most other places we read of, has on its hands an epidemic of crime, and most of the offenders against the law seem to be mere youths. Let's put the boys to work and keep them out of the reformatory if possible. We were all boys once and let's try and not forget that.

INVESTIGATING OF GOVERNMENT PRINT PAPER WASTE

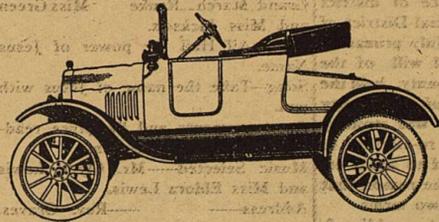

Washington.—Since introducing a house bill to repeal section 2 of the military appropriation act of August 29, 1917, creating a council of defense, Representative McLaughlin of the Fourth district made a personal investigation of the amount of paper wasted by the nation council of defense and other like government publicity bureaus in the circulation of useless literature. By keeping a check on all bulletins coming to his office for a week he finds he received over five pounds of literature of no value whatever. He declares that his investigation disclosed the fact that two tons of paper was wasted every week in mailing of useless bulletins to members of the house and senate—enough to supply 53 eight-page weekly newspapers with sufficient paper to print an edition of 1,200 copies each.

Congressman McLaughlin contends that if the issuance of these worthless government bulletins were stopped it would help relieve the present alleged shortage of print paper and would have a tendency to lower the price. He says these same bulletins are mailed to all newspapers of the country and to thousands of other persons, and that while he has been unable to compute the total waste, he believes that the paper wasted by these departments would supply at least one-fifth of the country newspapers of the nation with sufficient paper.

"For a long time, the booze politicians imagined they carried the labor vote in their vest pocket," editorializes the Houston Post. "If there was one group more than another whom they believed was under their perfect control, it was the same group of working people. But the liquor interests are being rapidly disillusioned in this regard lately. About the time Mr. Gompers denounced the Eighteenth amendment and undertook to let it be known that labor would help to nullify it, a poll of the American labor unions showed a majority of about two to one in favor of prohibition. Following this the Texas Federation of Labor helped along with the work of enlightenment by voting by a big majority not to endorse a resolution calling for light wines and beer. Our Texas union men are too sharp to be caught in any such scheme as this to break down the prohibition laws. This reminds The Record that the Fort Worth labor leaders and delegates who attended the Cleburne meeting of the State federation led off in the fight on the light wines and beer resolution and their votes helped to bury it. Organized labor away down here in Texas is for none dry prohibition.—Fort Worth Record.

"More important than all Mr. Root said, 'is the necessity that we shall restore our republican form of government with the liberty of the individual citizen preserved by limitations upon official power and put an end to the dictatorship which we created in order to carry on war.' Well, there is a republican congress. Why doesn't it proceed to execute the Root program?—Waco Times-Herald. Yes, there is a Root congress. Why doesn't it proceed to inaugurate the Root program? Why doesn't it fulfill its pledges made in the campaign of 1918?—Fort Worth Record. This is one time the Republicans have no campaign dope to offer the public. Despite a devastating war America stands supreme in money matters. There is not a head line in America and jails and hospitals have no inmates. Let the Democrats rule.—Terry County Herald. Democrats of Terry county are reminded that it is all important that they should attend the May precinct primary conventions. Never mind the minor issues of candidates. This is the paramount question: "Shall the Democrats of Texas repudiate President Wilson and his administration?" If progressive Democrats control the San Francisco convention there will a presidential platform. This will insure control of the government by the forces of the Democratic party. Product of America, wealth makers of America, toilers of America, are not going to turn the government over to the reactionary forces. New York is not America,

Foetic Nomenclature.

Illinois is an Indian word with the French suffix "ois," meaning "Tribe of Men." Indiana means "Indian Land." Michigan is an Indian word meaning "Fish Weir," so called from a fancied resemblance of the lake to a fish trap. Minnesota is Indian for "Sky-tinted water." Ohio means "beautiful water." Wisconsin means "rushing water."

Famous English Lotteries.

It brought a shock to many Londoners when somebody informed them that Westminster bridge was built from the proceeds of a lottery. Then somebody dug up the fact that away back in 1736, parliament incorporated a lottery through which the beginnings were made toward establishing the British museum.

AN EDITORIAL APOLOGY

The author of these lines is not an editor nor a publisher nor anything that looks like one. Still he has made it the rule of his life to serve in what ever capacity circumstances demanded. This week it happens that the Editor of this paper is away on business, and usually, when other things stop, the Herald still moves on, so your humble servant, the writer, as announced in the news section, was asked to look after the Editorial and News Departments, and in general, to superintend this weeks publication of the Herald. There being no plausible reason for his refusal, other than the duties which his own calling enjoins upon him, he consented to crowd as much work as possible into every day this week, and do his best toward bringing out an issue as nearly in keeping with the usual standard as is possible under the existing circumstances. It is safe to say that there are other things at which he has had more experience. And consequently, could with a greater degree of efficiency but those things are hardly to be considered in case of emergency, as emergencies are constantly arising and bringing with them something new and untried. Errors will no doubt result from this change of office affairs this week, but like the bashful lover who blundered in his first proposal, we claim leniency on the plea of inexperience. It is only with a view of rendering service to the people with whom we have cast our lot that we accept the additional responsibility, and take this means of offering our humble apology for any errors that might occur.

Judge J. Harvey Moore this week authorizes the announcement of his entry in the race for district judge of the 72nd. Judicial district, subject to the democratic primaries in July Judge Moore has a state ment in another part of this issue which we call your attention to. He has served the people of Lubbock County as county judge and county school superintendent for the past four years, and has done so in a most creditable manner. The records of progress in school work as well as in county affairs is something that the people as well as Judge Moore himself may well be proud of, and shows his ability as an executive officer. He has been strongly solicited to offer for re-election as county judge, but like all other ambitious men, he seeks promotion, and will greatly appreciate your support and influence in the July primaries. We have known Judge Moore for a number of years and have found him progressive and yet conservative.

SOCIETY

Week end party
Miss Patsy Caudle had for her week end guests the Senior girls of Brownfield High School at her home in Meadow. Those who enjoyed her hospitality were Misses, Minnie Lee Cardwell, Emily Miller, Mary Hudson, Lorelle Brownfield and Jewelle McBurnett. The young ladies report a delightful time and the occasion will long be remembered as one of the happy events of Commencement week.

B. Y. P. U. SOCIAL

One of the gayest social functions of the week was on Monday evening, May 24th, when the Welch home threw open its doors to receive the members of the Baptist Young Peoples Union and their friends.

The event was a delightful one for the younger set of Brownfield. The spirit of hospitality and good will prevailed, making every guest feel at home, and not a dull moment was spent. Misses Osie Hastings, Ruth Turner and Lucille Treadaway rendered some delightful music. An interesting feature was a musical guessing contest, in which Mr. Otho Welch and Miss Lucille Treadaway were the winners. The merriment was kept up until a late hour, when refreshments were served and the guests departed, having had their full measure of the enjoyment of the evening.

On Thursday of last week the Slaton baseball team went to Brownfield and defeated the latter team by a score of 10 to 7. Next Sunday a game will be pulled off here between Slaton and Tahoka, which promises to be interesting, as both have strong teams. Both have strong teams, eh? The inference is that Brownfield hasn't. We do not resent this, but we do wonder if our defeat at the hands of Slaton is any reflection upon the strength of our team.

THOUSANDS HAVE BOUGHT HOME BREW OUTFITS

New Orleans, LA., May 14.—Evidence which, according to the authorities, involves more than 10,000 persons in New Orleans and the Gulf Coast States in violation of the national prohibition laws, was gathered in a raid on a house on St. Charles street today.

Hundreds of cases of malt, several barrels of hops and thousands of prescriptions, said to give instructions on how to make home brew with high alcoholic percentages, were confiscated by raiding prohibition enforcement officers. Books in which are recorded the names of thousands of persons who have purchased home brew outfits also were taken.

The concern raided has for the last months maintained offices with show windows exhibiting home-brew outfits and distributing pamphlets describing the same, according to the authorities.

FIFTH SUNDAY MEETING OF CHURCHES OF CHRIST

To the Brethren in Christ, Greeting:

If, by the Grace of God, through the mediation of our Lord Jesus Christ, we shall see the happy fruition of our hopes, we shall on the 30th day of May, 1920, have the privilege of meeting face to face in the fellowship and communion of the Lord in a blended effort for the accomplishment of His holy purposes. Therefore it has seemed good to us to send you letters, earnestly desiring that you assemble yourselves together with us at the time appointed, to blend with ours, your voices in worshipful hymns of acceptable praise and thanksgiving, to offer the most sincere petitions from hearts unfeigned, and to eat and drink at His table in His Kingdom as has been appointed to us. To this end we watch, work and pray, confidently trusting that the feeble sacrifices of our humble hearts may, through His grace, find acceptance before the Throne of His Majesty, and that the extension of His grace may bring to us seasons of refreshing from the Lord.

Church of Christ, Brownfield,
Per J. P. Kimbrell, Minister

Chautauqua here this week

The erection of a large tent on a vacant lot Monday brought a thrill from which even our older citizens were not immune, and just as some of them had got a couple of ptits and started after the water, they happened to think that there were no elephants along, and that this was not even a circus, but merely a show with the animals left out. The Cadmean Chautauqua people were preparing for their first of a series of entertainments to be given this week.

Now the thing is on in full blast and both old and young alike are "taking it in." Large audiences greet every performance. This is the one week in all the year that Brownfield will be treated to this kind of amusement and all those who miss it will be left out till another year.

BROTHERS & Brothers will appreciate your grocery orders.

AS A WOMEN SEES IT

Mrs. Edward P. Costigan is the President of the National Consumers league. Mrs. Costigan recently appeared before the house agricultural committee, speaking in support of the Anderson bill. She told the committee that for twenty years the league has been interested in bringing about better wages and working conditions for the women; that the children's bureau of the federal department has estimated that from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 American children that the cost of living has kept in Pointing out that while 1917 to 1918 food has risen 105 per cent, Mrs. Costigan testified that the union rate of wages had increased only 48 per cent. Not only was meat rapidly disappearing from the table of the poor, advance of the increase in wages are under nourshed and underfed; to 1918 food had risen 105 per cent.

Pointing out that while from 1917 Mrs. Costigan testified that the union rate of wages had increased only 48 per cent. Not only was meat rapidly disappearing from the table of the poor, she said, but all the meat substitute as well. Because of these facts the representatives of the league had been studying the reports of the federal trade commission to find out the reason if possible to discover a remedy. This work and study has gone on during all this year and Mrs. Costigan stated that it had been quite clear that in addition to the inflation of the currency and the decreased production there were large monopolies and combinations which had been able to control the price paid the farmer at one end and the price charged the consumer at the other. The National Consumers league believes that gambling in food should not be tolerated.

TO ELIMINATE MIDDLEMEN

Dallas, Texas, May 8.—That the movement to eliminate the middleman in cotton handling is far reaching and is being developed in England at this time is the contention of A.H. Wicker & Company of Dallas. This movement is closely allied with the heavy tax imposed upon cotton as a result of the World War, they state.

"Few people realize the heavy tax, imposed on cotton as a result of the WORLD WAR. The tax is, in fact, tremendous and is said to even exceed the price paid the farmer for the cotton.

The American spinner is reported to be making profits of no less than one dollar per pound, and in many cases, it is rumored, very much more possibly double. But even on the basis of one dollar per pound, the major part of this goes to the government in taxes, the spinner in fact, adding to the amount of his profit sufficient to cover his taxes.

Even there the American spinner has a very decided advantage over the English spinner, owing to the number of additional hands through which cotton goes, to get to the English spinner, each middleman paying an even higher pro rata tax than the American, and there are perhaps, more middlemen handling the cotton after it reaches the shores of England, thence to the mills fifty miles distant, than is the case in America. As each must figure larger profits, to enable him to pay these heavy war taxes, these taxes multiply as the bale passes from hand to hand, until by the time it has reached the Lancashire spinner, there is an added expense in profits and multiplied war taxes, amounting to what is variously estimated at $50.00 to 100.00 per bale, the later estimate being applied to the staples and this in addition to the tax on Mills profits.

The result of this multiplied excess war tax is bringing about a strange result. It has shaken the British complacency to the old order of things. The result is a syndicating of British spinners with the avowed intention of cutting corners, and many of the shrewdest and more farseeing Liverpool cotton men state frankly that the new move means the elimination of the greater part of the numerous middlemen.

Even the stolid, complacent Lancashire spinner has at last awakened to the necessity of co-operation, Organization and an end to blind purchasing, just as our Complacent, Generous producers, are awakening to the necessity of terminating "BLIND MARKETING."

The Campaign Is On

Brownfield is seriously handicapped in growth and development because of a shortage of Homes.

Many families are living in camped quarters or hunting a place to live.

Every patriotic citizen should lend his efforts to this campaign to build more homes. If you are a renter build a home of your own. If you own a vacant lot improve it with a house for rent or for sale.

We cannot hope to attract additional families to Brownfield unless we can provide comfortable housing.

Our modern home plans will help you to decide.

HOGVILLE LOCAL NEWS By Dunk Botts.

A young fellow from Pumpkinville with a smooth gliding tongue and a one-cylinder mind, is about to put Yam Barlow out of the race for Miss Petunia Belcher. Yam happened to be passing her house last Sunday night about ten o'clock and saw this fellow and Petunia featuring a good-bye at the front door and since then he has had but little to say to anybody and seems to be verw much downcast.

Gape Allsop says if he had fifty million dollars and was sure he would not wake up and find the same old shortage of funds, he would give the Old Miser a dime just to see how he looks when he smiles.

Bill Hellwanger believes the most cruel and inhuman act he has ever known of is for a policeman to arrest a drunk man, and take him to jail and turn him loose inside a dark cell and leave him to ram his head against the cold metallic walls of the cell at every angle of his course before he finally gets settled down. However he believes those good old days are about over.

Alexander Moseley, who in his young days was caught stealing hogs, but had by upright living about lived the mistake of his youth down, had the whole affair vividly portrayed by Mrs. Zero Peck, who got mad at him at the postoffice yesterday. She made the affair so pain that it seemed to one not familiar with the case, that the hogs had been stolen only a few days ago, and it required an explanation to keep the Assistant Constable from arresting Alexander.

Zero Peck sees many ways by which a fellow can lose money and mighty few ways by which he can make it. He says even his old hens are dead sure to stop laying eggs right at the time when they are the highest price. Silé Sims says he has not bought an article of any kind in five years that did not have some kind of a guarantee, and if he has had a thing during that time that was worth a darn he cannot recall it.

Never in the history of the town was whiskey as scarce in Hogville as at the present time. The postmaster is on the verge of issuing a proclamation offering to give anybody half of what they can find. Unless there is some emergency step taken there is going to be a drouth.

Alexander Moseley announces the arrival of spring for sure this time. He has noticed his dogs taking spells of fighting at their necks with their right hind foot.

"LITTLE GIRLS" UP-TO-DATE. DRESS.

Recently a little jingle appeared on this page in regard to the modern dress of young women. The following on the same subject was recently published in an Alabama paper.

If you think you please the men.
Little girl, you think again;
I am sure if you could see
Yourself as you look to me
You would see no beauty there
In the clothes you fail to wear.
Not one man in fifty towns
Likes your skin tight flimsy gowns
Men may look at you and smile—
Not because they like your style,
But because you look a sight
In your dress so blooming tight;
You don't please the man that thinks
Folks you please are only ginks.
Taking you from head to toe,
Let me tell you what I know:
With your funny, close-cut hat,
You remind me of a rat;
Next, your shoulders, tailored square,
Not a soft'ning curve is there;
Next, your waist, so flat and big,
Bu't to suit your other rig;
Then your hips! You've none at all,
Though your clothes so tightly fall;
Skirts that don't reach near your feet,
Feet that might look trim and neat
Underneath a full-grown dress—
In that short skirt look a mess.
Twice as big as they should be—
Think you please us? Hully gee!
In that skirt so scant and slim,
No, by Neds! You don't please Him.
And your little spindling legs—
Shapeless as some wooden pegs.
Showing every step you take,
Hide them child, for pitys sake!
Wheres your mother—does she know
That you're simply wild to show
What a few clothes you can wear—
And the crowds of men that stare;
Little Girl, we do implore
Won't you wear some clothes once more?

Let Grandmother's way prevail—
Don't let folks broadcast the tale
That you wear no underclothes,
But your corset and your hose.

ANCIENT SWAMP ANIMALS OF NEW MEXICO.

Fossil turtles, some of them not less than three million and others seven million years old, have recently been found in San Juan County, Northern New Mexico. Remains of extinct turtles are rather common, but most of them consist of many small pieces, badly crushed and flattened of otherwise damaged. The remarkable feature of many of those lately discovered in New Mexico is that the bony box-like shell is almost as perfect as when it was occupied by the body of the living animal during the Tertiary and Cretaceous periods. No less than 50 specimens were perfect enough to be identified and described by specialists of the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior. Sixteen of them are new to science and have therefore been given new names.

A comparison of these shells with those of living turtles shows that the collection consists entirely of swamp and river turtles, containing no strictly land turtles. The little ones are about 6 inches long, but some of the largest measure nearly 30 inches.

In the same rocks with the upper Cretaceous turtles there are found fragments of those strange reptiles known as dinosaurs. Four different kinds—flesh eating, duck billed, horned and armored—were identified. The armored dinosaurs, neary complete skeletons of which have been found in Montana and Canada, were the most bizarre animals the world has ever known. They were stocky, short legged, big-bodied creatures completely incased in bony armor. Flat plates covered the back and hips the neck was protected by transverse rings of bone placed one behind another, and the belly was covered by a mail-like mosaic of small bony plates. Even the eyes were provided with bony shutters like the visor on a helmet, which were closed down over the eyeballs in time of danger.

J. P. Kimbrell, local minister of the Church of Christ, is looking after the Herald office this week during the absence of editor Stricklin.
