COLORADO DELEGATION HAD FULL SWING AS PLAINVIEW LIONS CONVENTION OPENED

Musical Artists Given Round After Round of Applause On Stage And Street

PLAINVIEW, (Special To The Record)—The Colorado delegation, thirty-six strong, that began to storm this Panhandle city Sunday afternoon as annual convention of District 2-T, Lions International, got under way, easily held distinction as one of the most enthusiastic aggregations of boosters to ever attend an area gathering here.

The Colorado Lions and their musical artists were in Plainview with the definite purpose of letting all comers know they were out to put Jimmy Greene into the district governor's chair. Everywhere, in hotel lobbies, the convention hall, model luncheons, on the street, and the convention hall, there was to be seen the smiling countenance of one or more Colorado Lions.

Among the popular convention entertainers were the Chuck Wagon Serenaders, the Jenkins Twins and Mrs. Bill Martin with two of her pupils, the Misses Opal Martin and Winnadel Rowland. The artists never failed to impress their high talent and training in the varied features rendered.

Comedy was interspersed with programs given by the serenaders. The band, seven in number, appeared in gaudy costumes, characteristic of historic eras of the past and personages of different nationalities. Some of the men were grotesque in their make-up. The band was easily one of the convention high-spots.

The talented Jenkins Twins were just as lovely in their musical renditions as they were in personal impress. Colorado has something in which to pride in these charming school girls. Plainview and the Lions attending this convention will remember them for a long time.

Not among the least charming and appreciated were the Misses Martin and Rowland. Mrs. Martin and her

PROJECTED STREET AND BRIDGE CONTRACTS HAVE NOT BEEN LET BY STATE

"We have no statement to make in regard to projected street and bridge improvement projects at Colorado," was reply by Divisional State Highway Engineer French of Abilene when seen by a reporter here Monday afternoon.

Several weeks ago French stated that plans and specifications on the two projects had been finally passed by his department and sent to Austin. Belief was then expressed that as soon as the State bridge engineer checked specifications for widening Lone Wolf Creek bridge the commission would advertise for construction bids.

The city is going ahead with its part of the provisions under which more than $34,000 Federal money was to be spent on Second street and West Point avenue and the bridge, by passing ordinance controlling vehicular traffic on the former thoroughfare.

YOUTH FACING CHARGE OF SHOOTING JIMMIE KINSEY GETS PENITENTIARY TERM

Russell Given 25 Years This Week At Longview; Kinsey Much Better Thursday

C. R. Russell, East Texas youth facing charges of assault to murder in connection with the shooting of Jimmie Kinsey, night manager at the Humble Oil Company service station of Ellis Brothers here on the morning of April 3, this week was convicted on an armed robbery indictment at Longview and given 25 years in the State penitentiary.

Russell was delivered to Gregg county authorities at Longview last week by Sheriff R. E. Gregory after spending several days in the Mitchell county jail. He was arrested at Gladewater after two armed robbery charges had been registered against him. The man continues to maintain he had nothing to do with the Colorado shooting and robbery and his alibi that he was at home of a sister near Paris, Texas, is being attested by relatives of Russell.

Kinsey's condition was much improved Thursday noon, Dr. C. L. Root, chief surgeon at the hospital stated. Kinsey has been critically ill for the past several days and a week ago his life was despaired of. He was given a blood transfusion earlier during the week and an oxygen tent was brought into use to combat weakening effects of pneumonia, developing several days ago.

"Jimmie's condition is much more stable today and indications now point to his recovery," was statement given The Record by Dr. Root.

BOARD PREXY IS HAVING TOUGH TIME IN GETTING HIS TRUSTEES TOGETHER

President J. W. Watson of the school board is rubbing his palms and pondering just when he is to realize the impelling desire of getting enough members of the group together long enough to attend to the matter of electing teaching staff for another school year.

Several times during the past few weeks the president has tentatively set dates for this important executive session, only to find later that business had called a part of his trustees out of town.

And, along with President Watson, it is probable that some of the teachers, too, are entertaining perplexities. Colorado usually has her school faculty elected several weeks before this time. Few, if any, changes, in the present teaching staff, however, are expected.

Baskin Mails 1148 Cotton Contracts To Review Board

One thousand, one hundred, and forty-eight cotton contracts, offering to rent to the government during 1935 a total of 42,873 acres of Mitchell county farm land formerly devoted to cotton, were mailed to the State Board of Review from the office of County Agent E. J. Baskin Friday.

Of the 1,148 contracts 956 were renewals of last year's contracts and 192 were from new signers. The new contracts offered 4,525 acres for rent, which more than made up for the acres lost on old contracts due to the lowering of the rental percentage and which pushed the county total well above that of last year. Last year's contracts brought over $223,000 into the county.

Definite increases in the number of acres rented and in the amount of money due farmers on the contracts will not be known until such readjustments as the Board of Review shall suggest have been made.

WRITES PORTRAYING CHRIST AS RISEN LORD OBSERVED BY LOCAL CONGREGATIONS

Floral and Other Features Of Decoration Make Services Truly Impressive

Celebration of Easter, anniversary of the Sabbath morning on which the Lord came from an empty tomb to claim victory over death, was generally observed in Colorado Sunday with people in all walks of life and religious faiths turning thought to the epochal event in religious history.

Opening observance of the Easter Day was sunrise services at First Christian church and in Ruddle Park. In song, sermon address and pantomime significance of Christ's victory over the grave was portrayed. Rev. Wallace Jones was in charge of the church rites while those at the park were given under sponsorship of the Plainview Baptist church.

For the usual Sunday school and preaching services programs built around the traditions of Easter were given in First Baptist, First Methodist and other churches. Musical renditions, interspersed with readings and other offerings by the children, centered about the importance of giving strong consideration to the redemptive power of a Risen Christ. Brief sermon addresses were delivered by pastors at 11 o'clock.

Sunday evening the Rt. Rev. E. Cecil Seaman of Amarillo, bishop of the North Texas Missionary District, Protestant Episcopal church, delivered an Easter sermon at All Saints' church. The visiting prelate spoke of the subject, "The Resurrection." Auditorium of the church was filled by members of the congregation and visitors.

Bishop Seaman opened his sermon address by recalling how General Pershing reached Europe at the height of his military power as commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, only to be called upon to surrender that authority to another. For the sake of winning the world he placed his army under command of General Foch, literally resigning his power, in that Foch might be all in all for conquering the common foe.

"Even so our Lord, with all the power of heaven at His command, chose to lay it all aside in that God's will be all in all," the bishop outlined. "He did not His but God's will and accepted to follow the super-generosity of God, and the gates of heaven were opened. Even so we must seek salvation and our own resurrection, not by being the general of our own lives, but by serving under God who alone is able to lift us from a dead past into a living present—from a living present through the gates of death and through the resurrection to the Kingdom Eternal."

Outlook For Fruit Crop Is Promising Orchardists State

Outlook for a good fruit yield in this section continues promising, according to belief prevalent among orchardists who direct attention to the fact it is not expected that a killing frost will be on calendar of the weather man after this date.

GENERAL PUBLIC SMILING AFTER RAINS COVER AREA DURING FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Row Crops Bursting Through The Soil; Planters Are Busy In Fields

The liberal smile that took up position across the face of practically every citizen of Mitchell county last Saturday after more than an inch of rain had blanketed the area, continues today as farmers, ranchers and others count the benefits to be derived. It was one of the best rains in some weeks and came at an appropriate time to assure maturing of field seeds and starting off a good crop of range grass.

With small exception farmers of this territory had planted some seed only a few days before the rain. In some instances they had about concluded seeding their fields to row crops, including acreage to cotton. The moisture is causing the seed to germinate and everywhere the young crops are bursting through the soil.

During Thursday night a total of .37 of an inch was registered at Colorado. Friday night, up to 7 Saturday morning .75 of an inch was registered, placing total for the two days at 1.12 inches. A small amount of moisture fell later during Saturday boosting total precipitation to 1.29 inches.

The rain last night was absorbed by the earth as it came, leaving but little overflow water to find its way into streams. Reports brought to Colorado by farmers and cattlemen from over the territory suggest that an average of more than one inch fell throughout the section.

Another pleasing feature of the rain was to put an end to troubles caused by dust clouds that for several days had held this section within their spell. Surface of the ground and all vegetation, covered with a heavy coating of silt before the rain, was freed of that undesirable situation.

The rains mean that a good grass crop is being started on ranges of this part of the State. Cattlemen state. Surface water supplies were replenished, bringing another source of satisfaction to the cattlemen.

HENNIN' AROUND AT MAX'S

There's the Junior-Senior banquet coming up next week... And since caps and gowns have become the order of commencement time, it's practically the only "dress-up" occasion the Seniors and next-year Juniors have.

Here's one of palest peach mouseline de soie, breathing a simple and girlish charm... The bias-cut skirt fits snugly where skirts should fit that way, and then falls with graceful, graduated fullness to the floor.

Anyway, Max has just received some beautiful dark sheers in the larger sizes... Especially designed to flatter the—er—plump figure without looking a bit like "stylish stouts".

Or maybe you must be a little more practical... Maybe it will be ages

A Layman's Economic Observation On Current Events And Business Conditions

The following article from the pen of Colonel Clarence Ousley is calculated to be of special interest to cotton growers and livestock producers of this territory:

C. O. Moser of Texas, who rose to national prominence during the development of co-operative marketing by farmers, is now president of the Institute of American Fats and Oils which is an agency of information and education in promotion of the larger use of American fats and oils in food products. It is sustained by organizations of livestock producers, organizations of cotton farmers and manufacturers of oleomargarine who have a common interest in the objectives of the institute.

Livestock producers and cotton farmers especially have reason to appreciate the excellent work he is doing in his new field. College trained in dairy husbandry, experienced in practical and successful breeding of livestock, with demonstrated ability of leadership first in college extension work and later in farm organization, he brings to his new service a seasoned mind which enlightens and persuades all amenable to reason. He is doing much to dispel the prejudice which long has persisted against the use of margarine as a table spread, to compose the strife between classes of producers of fats and oils and to increase the consumption of American fats and oils and thereby to enhance their value to producers.

His latest outgiving is a letter to Chester C. Davis, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, in which he recites facts in support of the bills introduced in Congress, by Representative Kleberg—one to discourage by taxation the use of foreign fats and oils in margarine and the other to fix the fat standard of the product. An all-embracing reason is a statement by Congressman Kleberg that "we must determine as a national policy whether we are going to give the American farmers preferential consideration in the domestic market or whether we will give that consideration to Oriental producers."

This is nationalism of a sort, but it is the nationalism that underlies the whole theory and practice of tariff protection to American industry, and it is in keeping with the theory and practice of the emergency measures for agricultural adjustment.

Some telling facts are cited which should appeal to the practically minded. Here are examples: "American fats and oils are essentially food fats. If consumed as such they yield a higher return to the producers than when they are forced into inedible channels. Beef fats do not store well, hence are forced into the soap kettle unless there is a ready and effective demand for them in the food industries, and particularly the margarine industry. The difference between the current price of beef fats in the form of oleo oil, when used in the manufacture of margarine, or when used as soap stock is at present approximately 7 cents a pound, making a difference of $2 to $3.50 per head in the value of a 1,000-pound steer."

The case of cotton seed is presented in a striking chart from which, says Moser, "you will observe the value of cotton oil in cotton seed represents about 60 per cent of the value of the seed, while cotton seed represents 20.4 per cent of the value of the entire crop. Stating it in another way, an increase of 1 cent a pound in the price of cotton oil increases the value of the seed $3 a ton. During the last year the increased value of seed as the result of the improved price of cotton oil is responsible for $20 to $25 per ton increased value of seed."

Equally impressive are authoritative statements from numerous experts and health officials in support of the wholesomeness of oleomargarine. For example, the United States Department of Agriculture declares: "Except for the fat-soluble A, there is no difference in the food value of different kinds of fat. All

Reclaiming Waste Land Pictured As An Important Program For Western Areas

Since scores of Mitchell county citizens have in the recent past expressed considerable interest in projected program to arrest soil erosion and restore fertility to depleted soil through terracing and impounding surface water, the following article written by Henry Field for the Dallas Semi-Weekly Farm news should be of interest:

On almost every farm there is some land that is too thin and infertile for profitable cultivation. Economists call it submarginal land, meaning that it yields no profit when cultivated. But such land need not and should not be left to lie idle, for we have to pay taxes on it the same as on good land; also, if it is gullying, it is flooding land below it with barren, infertile soil, and the gullies eating back into it are endangering better land above it.

There are two ways to reclaim such land. The first is to put it in pasture, and the second is to return it to forest. Many will say that such land will not grow enough grass to make it worth while to put a fence around it. But surprising things can be done with abandoned land if the right method is used. Instances are known where such land has been made more profitable than land planted to cotton.

Lack of moisture is the chief reason why abandoned land makes such poor pasture. But this can be overcome, to a large degree, rather easily. Contour furrows will turn the trick. A contour furrow is one run on the level around a hill for the purpose of holding moisture. It is customary to run them ten feet apart from where the line was begun and continue on a level to the edge of the field or tract, regardless of how the line may twist or turn, and regardless of how close it may run to other contours.

Three precautions must be observed, or contour furrows will not hold water. They must be level along the top, as nearly as possible their entire length; they must not cross gullies or thin spots, and they must be turned upward at the ends. To make sure they will turn upward at the ends, it is well to begin at the bottom of the hill to do the plowing. The team when turning, will turn up the ends of the furrows.

Any vocational agricultural class will run level lines on your land to get practice with a transit. After the lines are run and staked, make one round with a turning plow to throw up a ridge. Next apply a dressing of barnyard manure to the plot; then walk along with a sack of Bermuda grass on your shoulder and throw a sprig of the grass into the water channels above the furrow every two or three feet. Make another round with a plow, this time with the widest-winged plow you have, and wrap up the sprigs of grass in the first furrow. The result will surprise you. In two years you will have a first-class pasture, which will stay with you right through a drought.

You can have a better pasture, however, if you will do one more thing. Go back over your contoured land and broadcast a mixture of such grass and clover seeds as you want to supplement the Bermuda, to give you a winter growth. Get the advice of your county agent as to a selection. Cover the seeds by disking into the soil on which you have spread manure. Then you will have a sure-enough pasture. The contour furrows will hold the manure and seeds in place, and the pasture will be almost as good on top of the hill as at the bottom.

But we still have washed spots and small gullies, on which we have not run contour furrows and on which we have not planted anything. These, too, can be reclaimed quite easily. Dig a shallow trench across them every fifty feet, at the lowest point in each trench place a gunny sack, half full of good top soil and Bermuda grass, lap two other sacks, also filled with soil and sod, over the ends, so as to form a notch for water to pass, and stake them down securely to prevent them washing away the first year.

In time the sacks will rot, but before then the Bermuda will have formed living dams, from which the grass will spread up and down the gully or wash.

There are still two things you can do to improve your waste-land pasture. The first is to mow it two or three times a year, to keep down the weeds and prevent them seeding; the second thing is to harrow the pasture at least once a year, to break up and distribute animal droppings.

Many plots of land are so badly gullied and sheet-washed that there is not enough soil left on them to start Bermuda grass off. But even these can be reclaimed, by growing trees on them, or at least in the gullies. They made be made to yield a profit after a few years. One of the best soil-builders in the South is the black locust tree. Because of its vigor and widespread, interlacing root system, it grows well on badly eroded land, and in exposed clay sub-soil unsuited to agriculture. Its value has been repeatedly demonstrated.

Secure nursery seedlings eighteen inches tall. These can be had for a few dollars a thousand. At staggered intervals six feet each way dig holes twelve inches deep in the sides of the gully, but not in the water channel. Discard the hard clay you dig out and replace it with rich top soil. Open a small hole with a stick or planting bar, set the seedlings in these holes, press the dirt firmly around the roots with the heel and fill the hole with soil so it will hold water. Young locusts will start growing at once if set during the growing season, and in ten or twelve years they will reach fence-post size, if protected from stock and fire the first three years.

The seedlings probably would grow if you merely drove a planting bar into the hard clay, withdrew it, put the seedling in the hole and filled in dirt around it; but they grow ten times faster if they are given a little top soil for a starter and provided with basins to catch water.

Cottonwoods and willows are suitable trees for planting in gullies where there is sufficient moisture. They are easily propagated from cuttings. Often when willow or cottonwood posts are used in dams across gullies, the posts will leaf out and in time grow so as to fill the gullies.

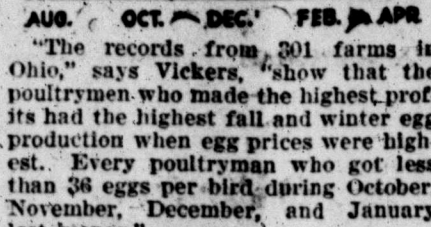

The kudzu vine, a forage plant that cattle like, has almost unbelievable powers of growth. It is propagated from crowns or roots resembling those of sweet potatoes. The proper time for setting these is early spring. A dozen plants will fill an ordinary gully in a few years with foliage. It should be planted in a hole, having at its bottom well-rotted manure, with top soil over that and the roots or crowns in the top soil. More than ordinary care is required to get them started, but, when started, they rival in their growth the tales told of Jack and the beanstalk. They must be protected from live stock the first year, and from fire at all times.

By use of contoured furrows and pasture plantings, worn-out fields can be made profitable, while trees or vines, such as the kudzu, will stabilize and fill up the gullies.

EARLY LAYERS BEST PAYERS, RECORDS SHOW

Either get the pullets in the nests and laying consistently from October through January, or don't count on making any money on this year's poultry project.

This timely admonition is now being voiced to poultry raisers by leading authorities on egg production and prices. One conspicuous source of this advice, G. S. Vickers, Manager of the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association, cites some very impressive facts to point out how and where money is made or lost each season in poultry operations.

"The records from 301 farms in Ohio," says Vickers, "show that the poultrymen who made the highest profits had the highest fall and winter egg production when egg prices were highest. Every poultryman who got less than 34 eggs per bird during October, November, December, and January lost money."

This statement appears to be thoroughly substantiated by the national ten-year average of egg prices at the farm as prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and illustrated in the accompanying chart. The average egg production per bird during the past 10 has reached its peak in December, graphically supports the contention of all expert opinion and experience that money is either made or lost by the way the birds produce the eggs in the deciding four months' period from October 1st to February 1st.

All folks whose chances of making money out of their chickens come principally through egg production, should face the foregoing facts squarely, according to poultry adviser J. H. McAdams, and make sure right now that they are following a program of handling and growing their chicks and pullets so that they will be ready to come into profitable production by October 1st. Now is the time to do something about it, he says; next fall will be too late.

"To begin with," says McAdams, "it is not natural for a hen to lay heavily during the fall and winter months. But if poultry raising is to continue profitable, it is absolutely necessary that the management of this year's flock, starting with the selection of chicks and continuing right on through to the laying house, should be so planned and guided to get that heavy fall egg production even though nature is not working directly with the feeder. Such a management program must include certain definite steps which must be followed through.

Careful Chick Selection
"First, there is the selecting of the chicks. Since they are to be the foundation of the season's work, the chicks should come from a flock that has proved itself capable of heavy, profitable egg production during those months of the year when eggs bring the best prices.

"Having carefully selected the chicks, the next essential step is to have and maintain adequate brooder equipment for them. Before the chicks arrive, brooder houses should be put in order by removing, cleaning, and disinfecting all movable equipment—troughs, nesting boxes, feed hoppers. Then with broom and hoe a good surface cleaning inside the brooders should be administered. A thorough scrubbing with lye and water is next in order. After that the ceiling, walls, and floor should be disinfected by drenching with a solution of 1 1/2 pint of Purina cresofol in a gallon of water, followed by a thorough airing of all equipment.

Correct Brooder Temperature
Dependable heating facilities must be available so that the brooder houses can be kept at even temperature at all times, free of draft, but with good ventilation. A temperature of from 90° to 95° at back level is recommended when the chicks go in. This should be gradually reduced the first two or three weeks until the temperature stands at 80° to 85° after three weeks; then continued gradual reduction is advised until by the time the chicks are six weeks old the temperature is from 60° to 65°. Litter, if used, may be a good grade of peat moss, or shavings or clean cut straw from which the chaffy part has been removed. Or the brooder house may be equipped with a false floor so the chicks themselves stand on half-inch mesh half screen wire instead of a litter. When a litter is used it is wise to cover it with newspapers or burlap bags for a few days, until the chicks have learned what food is and where to find it.

Overcrowding of chicks should positively be avoided. Suffocation, general unthriftiness, and disease are liable to take a heavy toll when too many chicks are crowded into the brooders. Not more than 20 chicks to a brooder space ten by twelve feet, are recommended. Plenty of drinking and feeding space should also be provided for—allowing a feeding hopper and a drinking fountain for every 60 birds, at the start.

Feed and Water
"If good chicks and good surroundings are essential to a profitable start, proper food and drink are equally important—for these are what chicks are made of. When the chicks are placed in the brooder house, they should first be given a drink of pure, clean water that has been warmed just enough to remove the chill. It will be well to safeguard the birds against possible spread of cold germs or other contamination through the drinking water by

WOW DRIVE LARGEST IN YEARS, OMAHA REPORTS

OMAHA.—The second annual "President's Month" drive of the Woodmen of the World, the strongest fraternal life insurance association in the world nearly doubled the record established last year, it was announced at the national headquarters here.

In the month's drive which began March 1 and ended March 31, a total of $21,912,300 in new insurance was filed in the campaign which was carried on in the forty-four states in which the Woodmen of the World does business. In the same period in 1934 the total was $12,745,000. Nearly one-third of the business was written on "climax day," which was March 30, when the total for the single day was $6,305,550.

For the fourth successive campaign the State of Texas led the field with a total of $5,106,750 in new insurance. The Woodmen of the World field forces in that State are directed by R. E. Miller of Dallas.

SENIORS TO SIMMONS

A number of Colorado High school seniors are planning to go to Abilene Saturday for Hardin-Simmons University's annual Senior Day program.

Worm Control
"Parasites, particularly roundworms and tapeworms, are pests that can easily infest growing birds, with resulting unthriftiness and high mortality, unless proper action is taken to curb and control them. Roundworm contamination can be prevented almost 100% by making sure that the pullets do not range over ground where other chickens have been running during the past year. It is not so easy to prevent tapeworms, but scattering handfuls of lime over the droppings around the brooder house every few days and refraining from feeding milk or other liquid food which draws flies, will help control tapeworm contamination.

"Should birds become infested with worms, it will pay to get rid of them by giving each pullet a Purina testule to kill and expel the roundworms and later a Purina tapeworm kernel to remove the tapeworms. It is recommended that all growing stock be wormed at housing time, to clear the way for maximum, unimpeded production.

"By starting early in the season with the number of well-selected chicks that the brooder equipment will accommodate without crowding, and following definitely a good program of feeding and management right through the first five months, there should be no question about making money on chick operations for 1935," McAdams concludes.

CLAIM THAT WHISKEY IS SNAKE BITE CURE GIVEN JAR BY STATE OFFICIAL

Those Coloradans who persist in holding to the theory that whiskey is an effective antidote for snake bite will find that contention set aside by Dr. John W. Brown of Abstin, State health official.

"If one is bitten by a poisonous snake do not run or get overheated and do not take any alcoholic stimulants because circulation increased by alcohol or exercise serves to distribute the poison much more rapidly through the body," Dr. Brown writes in a recent communication to The Record.

When one is so unfortunate to be bitten by a poisonous snake, such as the rattlesnake, the following first aid measures should be carried out, Dr. Brown suggested:

After making proper incisions at the site of the wound, apply suction and continue for at least half an hour.

Apply a tourniquet above the site of the wound, releasing same every ten or fifteen minutes for about a minute at a time.

If the proper antivenom serum is available, apply it according to directions, but most important of all is to remove as much of the poison as is possible so as to prevent its absorption.

Secure the services of a physician at the earliest possible moment.

'Wild Youth' Rests With Parents, Boy Preacher Charges

A youth who at 13 arose in a prayer meeting at Lamesa and preached a sermon now is pastor of Highland Park Methodist Episcopal church at El Paso, the El Paso Times reports. He is Robert Allan Salsar, a student at the Texas College of Mines and president of the freshman class. He was licensed to preach three years ago and has been active in the church for eight years.

Of his first sermon, young Salsar said: "I suddenly felt the urge to preach—and I got up and did."

He attended grade school at Lamesa, then the Terrill school for boys at Dallas, and spent six months as unofficial chaplain in the Civilian Conservation corps at James, N. M.

He lost his right forearm as a result of a hunting accident while on vacation at Lamesa.

After being graduated from the College of Mines, the youthful minister intends to enter Garrett seminary at Evanston, Ill.

"Youth is as religiously sound thinking today as at any time," he said recently.

"Part of the blame for so-called 'wild youth' rests with the parents, who too often are so busy making money they do not have time to rear their children."

"Students in college today are no more lax in their morals than they have been since the 13th or 14th centuries. I see no more carousing among students today than during the days of prohibition, and probably not as much."

"However, I believe that both old and young are coming back under the influence of the church. The depression brought about problems that have caused youth to look ahead."

THEATRE NEWS

SECRET BRIDE

With thrilling romance, two mysterious murders and the impeachment of a governor on bribery charges this mystery-drama has plenty to offer. Barbara Stanwyck is cast as the secret bride of the attorney general of the state (Warren William) who is compelled to investigate her father (Arthur Byron), the governor, on bribery charges. When a big financier is found dead, presumably a suicide and an investigator, who made the charges, is murdered, things look pretty black for the governor. Barbara Stanwyck and Warren William are called to the impeachment trial of Byron which winds up in a dramatic scene in which the murders are cleared up as well as the bribery case. The twists and suspense of the story will keep the audience guessing.

HOME ON THE RANGE

With east story treatment and handling well above average, this adaptation from Zane Grey's popular "Code of the West" should do much to bolster up this type of good clean family fare and widen the limited appeal usually accorded them. The film displays a generous share of all action and excitement.

A LETTER

Dear Colorado Record Reader:

I have a little confession to make. I think you will be interested because you may be in the same fix I was once. Up to a year ago, I steered clear of the clearance sales and specials. Never bought at one when I could help it. And I've been married and keeping house for five years.

You see I belonged to the "flapper generation" -- the gay, foolish nineteen-twenties. And while we weren't as bad as we were painted, we WERE brought up on some extravagant ideas. "Bargain hunter" was a mark of scorn. Money was something to be spent not wisely, but too well.

When John married me in November, '29 he married my silly ideas, too. I believed in buying the best -- I still do -- but there was no sense or system to my buying. If I wanted a hat or a dress or a wing chair I ran right out and got it without so much as a glance at the ads to compare prices or selection. Often my over-hasty spending brought disappointment.

John stood it as long as he could -- he's grand and would have a fit if he knew I was writing this -- but on my birthday on January 3rd a year ago he finally put his foot down. He gave me a birthday package. On the outside was a note that said "Here are two things you should read." Inside the package was the latest best-seller -- and a January Sale ad from the Colorado Record.

Last year has been no bed of roses. John's salary is small enough. But I've learned how to buy sensibly by watching the ads -- and I've learned how to live with a feeling of pride and security, too. We're actually buying more and better things than we used to -- and spending less and saving money. Next month we are taking a trip to Florida.

Who am I? A reader of the Colorado Record, like yourself, and a woman who knows by experience that you, too should

COSTLY TO NEGLECT COWS ON PASTURE, WARNS ARENDS

If any man who milks cows were to stand in front of his place day after day and throw away dollar bills, he would soon be seized and held for observation. Crazy as that sounds, it's no more unreasonable than the deliberate practice of throwing away costly cow flesh every year—as many a sane, intelligent cow owner persists in doing when pastures come in, according to W. R. Arends, noted dairy advisor and staff member of the Purina Mills dairy department.

"There's nothing like fresh green grass," Arends says, "to stimulate milk flow. And there's nothing like grass to 'shoot the middle' out of good cows when nothing else is fed with it. The man who turns his cows out on pasture, no matter how good it is, to let them get what they can out of it, may think he's making cheap milk on grass alone. But he's not—he's making that milk with grass plus cow flesh—a most expensive way of doing the job.

"That's not just one man's opinion. It is the voice of time-tested experience, the proven record of long scientific research. To quote one of many statements from Henry and Morrison, America's leading publication on Feeds and Feeding:

"The proper-feeding of milk cows on pasture is much simpler than feeding the winter," says Henry and Morrison, "and doubtless this is the reason that so many farmers, busy with their crops, fail to give their herd the necessary attention in summer. Often the cows are merely turned to pasture after milking at night and in the morning with no further thought as to the supply of feed actually available for them. It is then no wonder that when the pastures become scanty in mid-summer, the cows run down in flesh and fall off severely in yield of milk. Even if fed liberally when barn feeding starts in the fall, quite commonly they cannot then be brought back to their usual production."

Neglect is Costly

"From the time cows go on pasture they should be fed a supplementary ration," says Arends. "For grass, no matter how good it is, takes more from the cow than it puts back into her system. Its juicy green freshness and succulence at first stimulate the cow to pour out the milk in more than normal abundance. Since grass, which is 80% water, cannot furnish all the milk-making materials for the extra heavy production it causes, the cow naturally is forced to draw on her own body to make up the deficiency. This continued withdrawal and lack of sufficient replacement material leads to the inevitable milk slump and falling off in body weight which comes later in the season—a condition which is hastened along faster by the natural decline in available pasture. When these things happen the man behind the cows discovers that the feed cost of rebuilding flesh and milk yield runs into way more money than he would have had to spend to keep the cows on a balanced, body-sustaining, supplementary ration right from the start.

"A feed to be effective in holding up milk and body weight through spring and summer must obviously be reinforced in mineral to keep a cow from drawing on her body for calcium caused by heavy milking stimulated by green pasture. It must also be highly concentrated to insure a cow getting plenty of nutrients even in small quantities, since cows do not take readily to grain with succulent pasture available. A third requirement for such a feed is the proper blending of its ingredients to counteract the laxative condition of pasture for better health and fitness of the cows. And it is equally essential that the cost of feeding should be reasonable.

SERVICE CLUB TENETS BECKON FOR GOOD CITIZENSHIP

'LIONISM DOES NOT DEAL IN PERSONALITIES,' CLUB TOLD IN SPIRITED TALKS

Objectives Should Point To Community Good, Visitor Says In Address

"It does not matter whether or not all of you Lions esteem Jim Greene with favor, in your private or public interpretation, it is up to every loyal Lion to put his best efforts into this campaign and elect him district governor for the sake of your club. Loyalty to the community and to Lionism demands that much of every member of this organization."

That was the unqualified mandate to members of the Lions Club Friday by County Judge Chas. Lewis of Nolan county, a guest speaker. He was prompted to put club members "on the carpet" after only six of the some seventy five present had pledged to go to annual district convention in Plainview the following Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, there to work for election of the Colorado man.

Judge Lewis spoke after Joe Pond, chairman of the Greene for governor committee, and Dr. Dave Bridgford, club president, had addressed the men on the importance of them manifesting interest in the club's candidate for district executive.

"Jim Greene did not request that his name be offered as candidate for this high office," Pond declared. "We determined two years ago that in 1935 this Lions Club would offer a man for this high place in Lionism and now it is up to us to back up that undertaking with that kind of team endeavor that gets the job done."

"If there are no more than six Lions to go from Colorado to the Plainview convention we had just as well stop right now and go no further in this campaign to place a member of this organization in the district governor's chair," Dr. Bridgford said. "We pride in one of the largest and most active Lions Clubs in this section of the West. We cannot afford to be negligent in prosecuting one of the greatest undertakings we have ever sponsored. To elect Jim Greene district governor would mean more to Colorado and this club than did the annual convention that we entertained last year."

Other guest speakers were Bob McKissick, county attorney of Nolan county, and H. C. Ennis of Fort Worth, traveling auditor for the Texas Electric Service Company. Red Wallace was another visitor present. Greene offered suggestion that he did not seek the support of any club member through personal regard, but rather that they, if they went to Plainview and fought for his election, they be prompted in the Recent discovery near Coahoma of the bones of a prehistoric monster is the source of considerable speculative interest in that community. The bones were found four feet underground by a crew digging hole for a "dead man" at an oil derrick. The find recalls interest developed along Lone Wolf Creek near Colorado several years ago when "Boots" Vaughan and others found bones of some prehistoric animal. The bones were taken out under personal direction of an expert from the Colorado Museum of Natural History at Denver, Colorado, and shipped to that institution for exhibition. Vaughan has since been connected with the museum.

Prehistoric Past Reflected By Old Bones At Oil Rig

OUTLOOK PROMISING IN LORAIN COMMUNITY IS MAYOR HALL'S REPORT

The outlook at Loraine and vicinity is excellent with everybody going about behind a broad smile. J. C. Hall, mayor of that town, announced, when seen in Colorado Monday afternoon.

The Loraine mayor reported that over an inch of rain fell over the Loraine territory Friday and Saturday. Farmers are busy planting and with the moisture available they should realize good stands, he suggested.

BOB HUBBARD REELECTED TO LOCAL SERVICE CLUB

Bob Hubbard, in charge of the Jones, Russell Company mortuary, Friday was voted active membership in the Lions Club. Hubbard was a Lion for several months prior to his going to Karnes City last year to live. Upon returning to Colorado a few weeks ago he filed application for reinstatement.

undertaking through club loyalty. The candidate offered strong tribute to the two men that were being offered as his opponents for district governor. "They are outstanding citizens in their respective communities and Lions of the truest type," he said.

"It matters not whether or not you are successful in your ambition to elect me to this office I will return to Colorado from Plainview with this same grin covering my face—loser or winner. And, be it said, that there will be no personalities entertained, if you do not go to Plainview in a unit to support me. Lionism is too big for anything of that color and I am ambitious to be a Lion above all other requisites."

CLUB DELEGATION RETURNS AFTER ATTENDING ANNUAL DISTRICT LIONS CONCLAVE

Colorado, Defeated By Lions Of Panhandle In Fight For Governor

The more than thirty Lions who Sunday, Monday and Tuesday were in Plainview to attend annual convention of District 27, Lions International, have returned to report another outstanding gathering of proponents of the tenets of Lionism. Plainview entertained the visitors royally, it is said.

Drive to place Jim Greene in the district governor's chair was defeated as convention delegates Tuesday afternoon balloted in this election and also to name the convention host city for 1936. Ralph Randle of the Panhandle club defeated Greene for chief executive of the district and Childress won over Big Spring in the scramble to capture next annual meeting.

Members of the Colorado delegation returning Monday night were elated over evident prospects of electing their candidate. "Looks as if we have the district governor's campaign sewed up," one of the Lions announced. Developments later, however, changed tide to the Panhandle candidate and by noon Tuesday it was apparent that Greene stood for defeat.

The new district governor succeeds County Judge E. L. Pitts of Lubbock, who was elected to the office during sessions of the 1934 convention held here. Lion Randle is outstanding in his home community and section as a Lion and progressive citizen, lending strong favor to belief prevalent among Colorado Lions that he will render effective service as district governor.

WRITER KILLED IN CAR CRASH AT DEL RIO WAS NATIVE OF THIS COUNTY

DEL RIO, April 20.—Injuries received in an automobile accident Thursday proved fatal here today to Mrs. Virginia Lee Cookson, 55, of Los Angeles, novelist, who wrote under the name of Lee Chambers. The body was held here pending word from relatives in California.

Ten years ago Mrs. Cookson told a strange story of being kidnaped and sold to Orientals. She said a strange man crowded her off a mountain road near Orange, Cal., "abducted her and sold her into 'white slavery.'" She said later she was rescued at Mexicali, Lower California, Mexico. At Mexicali, in a subterranean palace, she said she met Dorothy Arnold, who disappeared in New York City 25 years ago. Prior to her death her sister, Mrs. J. W. Heartfield of Beaumont, arrived here. The late I. T. Petty of Colorado, Texas, was her father; her mother, Mrs. Sallie Connally, lives in Los Angeles. Her husband, Walter Cookson, said she was enroute to Houston when found in the wreckage of her automobile near here. Her skull had been fractured.

RURAL CLUBWOMEN HAVE MATTRESS SCHOOL HERE

Because good mattresses have been named as prime requisites of a good home, home demonstration club women of Mitchell county met at the office of Miss Emma Gunter Friday to learn how to make good mattresses at home.

Miss Gunter explained how a mattress can be made of 9 and 1-4 yards of good ticking cut 7 feet by 4 feet and 10 inches, with a boxing strip six inches wide. The cotton is weighed and divided into four equal portions by weight to insure even distribution. Waxed thread and a heavy mattress needle are used in whipping in the rolled edge finish. She concluded her instructions by telling how the mattress should be placed on the floor after the tick is closed and beaten with broom handles to fluff up the cotton and do away with lumps. After being tacked the mattress should be sunned for three or four days, she said.

After her explanation the women were taken to the relief office mattress factory to see how such instructions are carried out.

Among those present were Mrs. Ivan Barber of Bauman, Mrs. P. H. Pace and Mrs. E. R. Uzzle of Fairview, Mrs. E. F. Hammett of Shepherd, Mrs. Dewey Phillips of Iatan, Mrs. W. K. Miles of Looney, and Mrs. Lee M. Jones of Plainview.

EARLY DAYS OF COLORADO RECALLED AS WALNUT ST. STRUCTURE BEING REBUILT

New Home of Jones, Russell Co., To Be Among Best Appointed In City

The "Colorado City" of half a century ago, when this community was the cattle and financial center of a territory embracing much of the State, is recalled as the old Coe building on Walnut street is being rebuilt into a modern business structure. The building was purchased by Jones, Russell Company several weeks ago and is to be occupied by the concern.

The entire building, among the largest business structures in town, is to be made new and modern throughout, including the second floor. Ground floor of the building will be entirely new except the side and rear walls. A modern plate glass front is to take place of the old arched entrance.

In preparation for moving into their new home, Jones, Russell Company are announcing a store-wide removal sale, to open Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Hardware, furniture, floor coverings, china ware, guns and the scores of other items in stock throughout the large establishment are to be sacrificed in the specially arranged bargain carnival. T. B. Russell, manager, and his assistants have been busy several days concluding plans for the sale.

In their new home the concern plans having all departments together. The mortuary, now housed in a two-story building at East Fourth and Hickory, is to be moved to the Walnut street address. Russell stated Monday that his company would undertake to open in their new home with one of the most complete stocks every carried by a similar concern in this part of West Texas.

M. M. Iglehart, local building contractor, is in charge of the construction and remodeling work. W. W. Whipkey is the supervising architect.

BALD PATE SUCCEEDS IN PUTTING OVER CAMPAIGN IN 'UGLY MAN' CONTEST

Bob Hubbard's bald pate is credited with having put him well in the lead during an ugly man's contest at the Buford Baptist church last Friday evening. Candidacy of the local undertaker was championed by the Rev. Albert Click, Colorado Methodist minister.

Other candidates offered for the distinction included E. Blasingame of Buford and S. O. Wulfjen of Colorado. Miss Fannie Fay Womack, member of the Buford school faculty, was given first place in a pretty girl's contest.

The occasion was sponsored by the Baptist church. Funds from an auction sale and the contests went into a fund for financing erection of the new church there. Wulfjen acted as auctioneer. Lee Carter was another Coloradoan taking part in the program.

YARD DEMONSTRATORS PLAN FIELD TRIP HERE

"Seeing is believing" will be the slogan of the yard improvement demonstrators who are planning a field trip, Monday, April 29 to Snyder and Sweetwater under the supervision of the Mitchell county home demonstration agent.

Learning the names also of common hardy shrubs and evergreens will be part of the day's trip. Individual homes will be viewed and such places as the Post Office, Bell Telephone, City Auditorium, City Park and school yards besides a visit to the greens house.

The following yard demonstrators are asked to make the trip: Mrs. Jess Lee and Mrs. D. McCollum of the Bauman club, Mrs. Ollie Thompson of the Looney club, Mrs. Bill Fowler of the Hyman club, Mrs. T. L. McKenny of the Iatan club, Mrs. J. C. Franklin and Mrs. Tom Daughtrey of the Plainview club, Mrs. Jack Latham of the Lone Star club, Mrs. J. H. Carlock of the Shepherd club, Mrs. C. W. DOCTOR TOLD HER HOW TO LOSE 17 POUNDS OF FAT

Gossipers Peeved

Mrs. Robert Hickey of Roseville, Calif., writes: "My doctor prescribed Kruschen Salts for me—he said they wouldn't hurt me in the least. I've lost 17 lbs. in 6 weeks. Kruschen is worth its weight in gold."

Mrs. Hickey paid no attention to gossipers who said there was no safe way to reduce—envious women who don't like to see others youthfully slim. She wisely followed her doctor's advice. Why don't YOU?

Get a jar of Kruschen to-day (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle) and if you don't lose 12 lbs. and feel years younger and healthier—money back. Simply take half teaspoonful in cup of hot water every morning (tastes fine with juice of half lemon added). W. L. Doss sells lots of it.

EDITORIAL—SETTING AN EXAMPLE FOR THE FRESHMEN.

The Freshman class, being the youngest class in school, in the rank of grade if not in age, needs a good example to follow. Naturally it is the duty of long standing, for the Seniors, which are undoubtedly the most dignified, to place for them an example.

Everyday in some Freshman class, a certain student commits a crime, or otherwise, and is duly questioned as to why he did that thing. The old answer which has been tested and never fails, is "well, I saw a certain Senior doing it." The teacher gives a heavy sigh and assures him that all is well if a Senior did it also.

Seriously, the Freshman aren't nearly so "green" as they are pictured to be and they always finish their school year with praise from the upper classmen in regard to their success. Nevertheless it is the duty of someone to set them an example, and the lot usually falls to the Seniors.

SENIOR AVERAGES SOAR HEAVENWARD

The Seniors of this year are, and have a right to be, very proud of their honor students. Not that our honor students are any different from others of past years, but that their averages range higher.

Miss Billie Berry, first in honors, claims the valedictory with an average of 96.9; Miss Mirl Garner, second in the honors, gained the salutatory with the average of 96.55; and Reynolds Brown, the "brilliance of the Senior male sex" claims the honors for boys with an average of 94.75.

These three, with many many more soaring averages, represent a very commendable class of students, and one that the Seniors are proud of!

SENIORS RECEIVE INVITATION TO ABILENE

On Friday of last week the Seniors received an invitation, in person of five ladies from Abilene, to the rally given on the Hardin-Simmons campus next Saturday, April 27.

Hardin-Simmons is entertaining the high school seniors within a large area around Abilene with a picnic lunch and other interesting features for the day. This Senior day is planned to create interest in Hardin-Simmons University, but all Senior guests are assured of a "good time," and plenty of entertainment.

SENIOR CLASS PICNIC

Last Thursday afternoon, April 18, the Seniors completely ignored their standing of dignity by going on an Easter egg hunt at Ruddick Park. The childish hunt began at 6:30 when the "would-be children" had gathered at the park. They were "rounded up" and told where the eggs were hidden. Then came the mighty rush as the scramble began for the eggs. A prize was given to the one who found the most, and also the least eggs.

After the hunt was over, the Seniors (again a little less like children) began the "weiner roast." As every one could not secure a place around the fire, the weiners were consumed without going through the "heating process." After the fruit was consumed, the Seniors departed after everyone had enjoyed a "swell time."

THE LAST HOWL

To those Seniors that have taken part in our athletic activities in the past years, we, the Senior class wish to take this opportunity to express our most sincere gratitude and appreciation. The Wolves have not always been at the top of the list, but what they have attained they richly deserved. At times they have fought without the spiritual backing of our school but that spirit in a Wolf never dies even after his actual participation has ended. To the Wolves of the Senior class of '35 we give our last salute. In football they have fought a mighty battle, in basketball they have set a mighty mark, in track they have run a mighty race; some in victory and some in defeat but to them we give our deepest tribute.

Three class listened to a most interesting talk given by Miss Katie Buchanan on "The Penitentes of New Mexico."

The Penitentes is a form of worship that Indians and Mexicans of New Mexico carry out in the forty days preceding Easter or in the Lenten season. The Penitentes originated in the early part of the 13th century in Italy, under the leadership of St. Francis. It was at its height in Europe at the time of the discovery of America, consequently it made its way into the New World. During this period of worship the crucifixion of Christ is imitated as near as possible by the crucifixion of a Penitente. In years past the person who was "El Cristo" was actually nailed to the cross and allowed to die. But this is no longer permitted. "El Cristo" even now endures much suffering, but he is taken from the cross in time for his life to be saved. If, however, "El Cristo" dies he and his family are rewarded with a place in heaven.

"I CANNOT FORGET THE PAST YEARS"

I cannot forget the past years of my life,
 Nor the joys therein;
 The world's great descriptive volumes cannot
 This tale begin.

Success and happiness, heartaches and strife,
 All speak again;
 Repeating to me that my efforts for joy
 Were not in vain.

Fate now recalls the first contact experienced,
 With Cupid's dart;
 The face still smiles that first captured me,
 And stole my heart.

The Past lives again, the Present smiles on,
 Hope is my guide;
 These memories of the Past help me now to
 My Future decide.

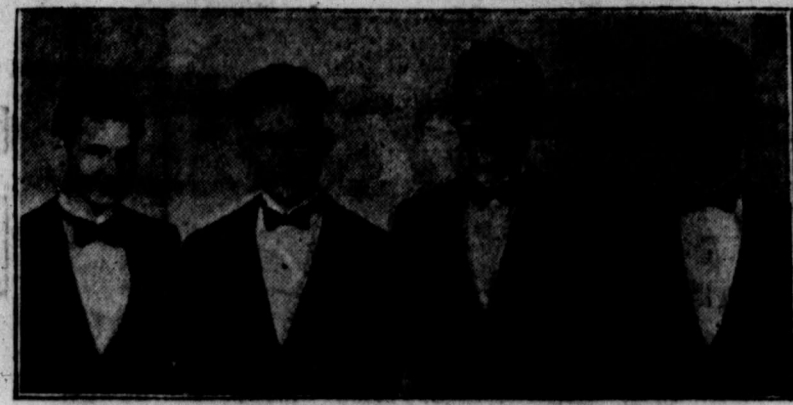

I cannot forget the past years of my life,
 Nor the joys therein;
 The world's great descriptive volumes cannot
 This tale begin.

Mahon Seeks Fund For Protection Of West Texas Land

Congressman George Mahon last week called on Secretary Ickes of the Interior Department for an allotment of $100,000 from the Public Works appropriation for making a survey of the Underground Water resources of the high plains region. These funds would be used by the Geological Survey in completing work on this problem, a preliminary survey having been made last year. This preliminary report indicated some doubt as to the presence of sufficient underground water for extensive irrigation over a wide area.

Mr. Mahon also conferred with Dr. Mead of the Bureau of Reclamation in an effort to secure funds for making irrigation loans to individual farmers. Mr. Mahon has already secured an interpretation from Federal Housing Administration officials which would allow that agency to insure loans made by local banks for this purpose. Dr. Mead is of the opinion that loans may be made possible through an allocation of funds from the Public Works appropriation. However, nothing definite may be determined at this time because the President has not announced his plans for administering the new appropriations.

In discussing this problem, Mr. Mahon said: "I believe that the two greatest natural resources of West Texas are its soil and its water supply. With a record of the extent of this water supply that would prevent exploitation, and with a properly directed irrigation program, conservation of the soil resources would be possible, and West Texas would look forward to a more stable prosperity."

REV. HOLMES NICHOLS

Rev. Holmes Nichols writes from El Reno, Okla., to this column and says in part:
"Am 76 and still going strong, sermons, marriage, addresses and funerals, as in the days ago. Hope to see the book you are to publish, still appreciate the Record which has been coming to me for 30 years.
"Am doing my best not to live in the past. Ruth and Martha both live in Denton. Martha is supervisor of public school music in Denton. Mrs. N. Well, Marshall still with us. Love to Whipkey tribe. Remember me to friends.
"HOLMES NICHOLS."
Bro. Nichols was pastor here of the Baptist church and was partly responsible for our coming to Colorado. The children spoken of, Ruth, Martha, and Marshall were but small children when here. This writer knew Bro. Nichols when he was section foreman on the Katy, was converted under a brush arbor at Elm Mott, ten miles north of Waco about 1898. He was soon ordained a minister. He was fathered, financially and spiritually by a Bro. Henry Johnson, one of the best men we have ever known. He was our pastor at West and when we came to Colorado was our pastor here. We clip the following from the El Reno Daily Tribune:
NICHOLS CLAIMS MODERN WEDDINGS DIFFER FROM THOSE OF EARLY DAYS
Pioneer Minister Has Performed More Than 700 Ceremonies Here
"There isn't the solemnity in weddings nowadays that is best for marriages, as there was at one time," says Rev. Holmes Nichols, the "marrying preacher" of El Reno.
Reverend Nichols has performed more than 700 marriages since he came to El Reno 18 years ago, tying the bond of domesticity to couples during each of the hours of the day and night in his experience.
In their home at 921 South Rock Island avenue, Reverend and Mrs. Nichols are completing their 45th year of married life this year, and say they are happy and contented together.
If the "marrying preacher" does as well by his clientele as he and Mrs. Nichols have done, all will be happy, he says.
"There is too much frivolity and joking among the majority of young people who marry now," the preacher said. Too many of them do not observe the marital vows with the proper seriousness they should.
Denying that he is a "parson" was related by Reverend Nichols in telling of one of the earliest ceremonies he performed.
"It was down in Texas, near Waco. One day a man came in and asked me if I was the parson." I told him that I was a preacher—a minister of the gospel.
"The man said he lived out in the brakes (black land river bottoms) about 15 or 16 miles, and that he could find no one closer to come out and perform the ceremony.

"I went, since the man left his marriage license with me. When I got there, I found an old fashioned Texas home. We got through the wedding and went in to supper—it was a great meal, and while we sat at the table, the mother of the bride asked me if I would 'Do the begin-is well-nigh perfect. They go the same places, take part in the same things. So far they've never dated but twice in different crowds... and it's a strange fact that their "boy friends" have little trouble distinguishing between them...

Nobody knows how that is—but their teachers would like to. Their present teachers have solved the problem by simply calling them both "Sissy"—which may account somewhat for the sameness of their grades...
Once, when they were in grammar school, one teacher tried to settle things by having one sit on the first seat of the first row, the other on the back seat of the last... One day, just to test him, they changed seats... He never knew the difference until told about it a year later...
Recently an out-of-town girl attended a dance at the country club and the Twins were there... She kept remarking to friends about what a ruck "that girl" was getting—a different partner every time she came around the room... Walking into a downtown cafe later she discovered that "that girl" was twins...
And at last it comes to this—even their own mother hangs her head and admits that sometimes, "just lately" she confuses them herself.
Louise came in one morning not long ago and kissed her goodbye before going to school.
"But you've kissed me once, hon," Mrs. Jenkins said.
"That," replied Louise, "must have been Lois."
And their future? They want to dance and sing, of course. But they're sensible girls—so they'll start with a business course.

CEMETERY ROCK WALL IS COMPLETED; NEED $60 FOR CEMENT BILL

The rock wall around the Colorado cemetery is completed, but Mayor J. A. Sadler stated Monday that $60 worth of the cement used is still to be paid for and requested citizens to contribute that amount to clear the debt.
With the wall finished, with 300 new trees leafed out, and with all graves straight and clean, the cemetery's transformation into one of the most beautiful burial spots in this section nears completion. It was taken over by the city several months ago.
Erection of the wall and other improvements have taken place under the direction of Mayor Sadler, with citizens contributing materials and the relief office furnishing labor.
It is noted that citizens of the town and county are taking a much more active interest in beautifying individual lots since the recent improvements. Around fifty new copings have been built around private lots and trees and flowering plants have been set out. Water is now available in all parts of the cemetery.

BIRTHDAY DINNER SUNDAY

A double birthday dinner for Jimmie McCorkle and his sister, Lillian, was served Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. McCorkle. Guests in addition to the family were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Van Winkle and son, E. B., of Iatan; Miss Juanita Collier of Westbrook; Woodrow Crabtree of Colorado. An Easter egg hunt took place in the afternoon, when Mrs. Crabtree and Bobby and Mary Crabtree were additional guests.

DO NOT SPEND YOUR MONEY WITH OTHER TOWNS WHO CONTRIBUTE NOTHING TO THE SUPPORT OF YOUR TOWN

Some remember mountains and some recall the sea
When summer blends with Autumn in leafy minstrelsy
But in my heart a garden, like a page of Spring
Blots out seas and mountains, with nice remembering.
Each year I visit gardens more lovely than before
With memory taking little slips to plant around my door
Ah, never seas nor mountains can equal the rare thing
A garden has to offer through the fragrant Spring.
Even the sea is changeless, mountains too the same
Only gardens differ like a magic game
And so I seek out gardens taking memory slips
To grow and bloom forever, reminders of my trips. F. B. W.

Colorado Commercial Club of 25 Years Ago Made Resolutions to 'Do Things'

Thrusting a number of irons into the fire at once, figuratively speaking, the Colorado Commercial club met to "do things" twenty-five years ago, one judges from an account in the Record for Friday, April 29, 1910, of a mass meeting called by the club.

Most pressing of the questions considered, it was reported, was the condition of the county courthouse. Robert M. Webb, club president, pointed out that it would be "utterly useless to attempt any civic or county improvement with the courthouse in its present condition."

County Judge A. J. Coe, in defining the attitude of the county commissioners, said that the walls were cracking and repairs wouldn't be worth the expense. C. M. Adams suggested that the courthouse park be turned over to the ladies' organizations of the town, saying that such would be a guarantee of its being kept in good shape.

Launching of a magazine to be known as The West Texas Magazine was endorsed at the mass meeting. Plans were made to canvass for new club members. And, aiming to be sure and have plenty of time, preparations for a Fourth of July barbecue and Central West Texas picnic were set in motion, with J. A. Buchanan named general chairman.

School had closed with the commencement exercises on Tuesday evening at the opera house. Louella Merrill was class salutatorian and Omeira Terry was valedictorian. . . . Others on the program were Mary Watson, Lela Whipkey, Orion McCreeless, Mattie Shuford, Olive Greenwood, Mary Risinger, Lillian Liles, Anthony Van Tuyl, and Marguerite Cowan. Dr. N. J. Phenix presented the diplomas, and Annie Mary Lupton and Brooks Bell brought in the flowers.

A party consisting of A. J. Herrington, Harry Collins, and Joe Smoot had gone to Dallas after two Rambler autos. One of the machines was reported to have been purchased by Judge C. H. Earnest.

The U. D. C. chapter had observed San Jacinto Day with an open meeting on the lawn of Mrs. Wilbur Dupree's home. . . . Misses Dupree and Graves sang. Mrs. Merritt read a paper, and Mrs. Allen talked.

One item stated that "His Honor, Mayor Charles Adams, now rides in his own automobile, and its a beauty, too—45 horse power."

W. J. Hatch and family were to leave soon for Virginia, where they would make their home.

Messrs. Sam and Will Singleton, father and son, had been here from Lynn county.

Mrs. A. J. Payne, Mrs. Dry, and Miss Verah Cooper had attended a district federation of clubs in Big Spring.

D. T. Bozeman, the "Grand Poobah of Cuthbert", had called at the Record office.

Judge A. J. Coe, Jesse Bullock, Earl Jackson, Al Jones, and Ernest Keathley had been appointed to arrange for the county singing convention.

Madame Cleo, "Great Palmist and Clairvoyant," was available for consultations at the St. James Hotel.

The Rev. Holmes Nichols had preached the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday.

The Loraine notes said that Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baker had attended the Smith-Ellis nuptials in Colorado

Western Cow Boy Offers Tribute To Late B. Warren

Bob Beverley, pioneer cowboy of the Pecos River section, offers the following tribute to the late Ben Warren of near Carlsbad, a brother of Will Warren of Colorado:

I first knew Ben thirty-six years ago at the old WT ranch west of the Pecos river. Ben was then in the employ of Joe White. Just a boy, growing into manhood, was Ben at that time. Just a cowboy on the open range west of the Pecos river. And as the years passed, our friendship lasted, and I never had to go back to see if Ben was still my friend. He remained the same all the years of our acquaintance.

It was as a cowboy I knew him—all the years, a child of the west. Those who never knew the one, never knew the other. Most people saw the wide brim hat and the boots and spurs the cowboy wore, but never saw the honest face and the true heart of the cowboy. To know the cowboy, one had to go into his home or camp and live there and see his hard toil, see his true faithfulness to his employer and to his neighbors. Brave, cheerful, hospitable, true to his life's calling, he, as Teddy Roosevelt said, was the pioneer of our Western civilization—a civilization from whose face he must soon disappear. He remained true to the trust placed in him, the custodian of other people's property, as well as his own. He pursued his life's duties through the snows of winter and the droughts of summer, out in the wide open plains and in the dark canyons of the mountains where he met the trials of the West, hardships and death itself, and was still uncomplaining.

In no other vocation of man was he saying more true: "The survival of the fittest, than on the open range of the West."

In my mind, I can see the same Ben riding over the hills, always riding towards the West, his face fixed on the distant ridge where there ascends a blue smoke. The chuck wagon is camped for the last roundup. He is riding the same pet pony, as in years gone by. He sits steady in the saddle, his reins held in his left hand, his feet firmly in the stirrups. He has the perfect poise of the rider of long ago. As he rides on, he looks neither to the right nor left. His gaze is fixed on the last camp where there will be no more long, cold and wet guards to stand. Ben rides into the darkness and his horse's hoofbeats grow fainter and fainter, and I know that Ben will pass this way no more. His horse is roped out and saddled for the last roundup when the strays will be cut out and great and good and true riders of Ben's like will meet us over there on that range and invite us up to their shack, saying: "We knew you boys were coming, so we never came back."

Fare thee well, old friend.

Unique Plan Takes Conoco Advertising Direct To Millions

One of the most unusual and dramatic ways ever conceived to exploit the use of newspaper advertising has been adopted by the Continental Oil Company. A novel contest has been inaugurated whereby during the coming Spring months cars and trucks will be seen on the streets and highways of some forty states plastered in hodge-podge compelling fashion with reprints of Continental's newspaper advertisements.

In addition to the circulation of ten million that Continental Oil Company gets for its advertising by using 1,363 daily and weekly newspapers, Continental's advertisements through this unique stunt will do double duty this Spring.

The unique appearance of Continental cars and trucks not only serves to call attention to the Conoco campaign now running in newspapers but also reminds Conoco salesmen of the tremendous number of car owners who read about Conoco products throughout the year in their newspapers.

It is estimated that more than 3,000 cars and trucks will participart in the stunt. Aside from these company-owned and operated vehicles, it is expected that a good percentage of the 22,000 Conoco dealers will likewise participate.

Continental is one of the country's largest users of newspaper advertising and gives this medium a large share of the credit in achieving an increase of 60.4% in sales of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil since April, 1934.

Continental this year is celebrating its sixtieth anniversary. It began operations in Ogden, Utah in 1875. From a small distributor of Kerosene and lubricants long before the advent of the motor car it has grown into one of the nation's leading oil companies.

Motorists who know these facts will save money:

Motor oils refined by the usual methods have some oiliness and film strength, but they may form carbon and sludge, which lead to expensive motor repairs.

Other oils may form almost no carbon and sludge, but are so over-refined that they are robbed of oiliness and film strength they need to prevent motor wear.

Germ Processed Oil is refined to eliminate carbon and sludge troubles and then the Germ Process adds extra oiliness and 2 to 4 times more film strength than any mineral oil.*

YOU will save money on repairs and have a smoother running motor if you use Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil!

The Germ Process—adding concentrated oily essence to highly refined oil—gives it the extra oiliness and film strength so necessary for full protection of high-powered, high-speed motors. No other oil is made by the Germ Process.

Germ Processed Oil cuts down costly starting wear, which other oils fail to do. It is the only oil with the "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away.

Germ Processed Oil is free from carbon and sludge troubles. It has a lower rate of consumption and gives longer mileage, as proved by the famous Indianapolis Destruction Test.

Say, "O. K.—Drain"—and fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil.
