CRASH NEAR PLAINVIEW BRINGS DEATH TO TWO PROMINENT COLORADOANS, JAS. H. GUITAR, SR., AND HIS OLDEST SON

One of the greatest tragedies which has come to Colorado recently was the highway crash which brought instant death to James H. Guitar, Jr., 23, and later, according to his father, James H. Guitar, Sr., 57, near Plainview, north before noon Saturday.

Death of the senior Guitar occurred in a Plainview hospital at 4 p.m. Monday, the day which would have been the twenty-fifth anniversary of his marriage. Instead of being an occasion for celebration, the anniversary day became the funeral day for Mr. Guitar and the father of the Guitar children. Last night, however, had a birthday on August 12.

The younger Guitar, a Junior graduate of the University of Texas, was going to Plainview Saturday in connection with his first case as a practicing lawyer. He traveled with an accompanying Mrs. N. M. Guitar, who is a sister of the deceased.

Not long after the crash, Mr. Guitar's wife, Mrs. Bessie, and three other persons were taken to the hospital. Mrs. Guitar was taken to a hospital at El Paso, Texas, where she died Monday afternoon. The other persons were taken to a hospital at El Paso, Texas, where they are still recovering.

James H. Guitar, Sr. was born in Carrollton, Mo., on August 19, 1874, and was reared and educated there. As a young man he came to Texas and worked with his brother, the late John Guitar, in establishing oil and gas companies. He was active in the development of the Colorado Oil and Gas Company of West Texas.

His first work was at Stamford where he built a compress. Then he went to a gas well at Merced. In 1907 he came from Merced to Colorado and with the help of a Mexican cleared the ground for Colorado's first oil well. Merced continued to be his headquarters for some time.

He was married on August 12, 1913, to Miss Dovie Hunt of Culbertson, Okla. They met here while she was passing a guitar who had come to his parents and their marriage took place in El Paso, where he and her brother had moved from Texas.

He was a member of the Methodist church. He was a member of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce and the El Paso County Board of Education. He was a member of the El Paso County Board of Education. He was a member of the El Paso County Board of Education.

Each farmer who signs an application should be able to give name and names of all persons on his farm who were interested in his 1937 cotton crop, and the number of acres each person worked or had an interest in.

COUNTY'S GINS ARE PREPARING FOR THE 1938 COTTON CROP

Ginning time comes on again, and gins of Colorado and Mitchell counties are making ready to take care of a crop that promises to start out of the bumper classification only because there has been a government farm program.

The country's first bale of cotton made is retained in August. Last year's first bale came in August 4, but the harvest was unusually early due to a midsummer drought. The first bale of the year before came in August 11 a week later. It is generally conceded that this year's harvest will be later.

There will be a number of new gins in the gin picture in Colorado. Westbrook, Buford and possible other plants in the county during the coming season.

C. P. Gary, who has owned considerable interest in the Farmers Cooperative Gin Company here for the past 10 years and who has operated the company's plant, will be making ready to sell. He has sold his interest in the gin to J. T. Browning of Snyder who is moving here to take charge.

The first producers' cooperative gin in Colorado will be operated through the Colorado Producers Cooperative gin company, which has bought the No. 3 plant of the Farmers Gin Company on West Second street. J. Ed Richardson is to be manager of the plant under the new organization. J. H. Carlock is president of the Producers board.

T. D. Widgen, president of the Farmers Gin Company, says that plans for the operation of the company's No. 1 plant at the south edge of town will be operated by the Farmers Gin company.

The south bridge plant is the only one of the Farmers Gin Company's three plants remaining under the company's management. The plant at Buford was sold some time ago to the Buford Producers Cooperative gin company, of which Earl Hammond is president.

The Colorado gin of the Continental Oil and Cotton company in Montevideo is to continue under the management of C. E. Latta, who has been manager there for the past five years, according to company officials. Considerable repair has already been done at this plant, and it is ready to go. Around 3,500 bales were handled by this plant last year.

Maintaining its practice of affording both round and square bales, the Colorado Gin company plant, known as the Lambert gin before its sale last year to the Texas Cotton Oil company of Abilene, has installed a new round bale press in addition to its other improvements. E. L. Latham is to continue as manager for this gin, which handled 1,800 bales last year.

MAGAZINE TELLS HOW TO GET GOOD PASTURES

Right in our cotton belt one can have as good pastures as any other section, not excepting even those sections that boast that great pasture plant—bluegrass. It may take a little more work and cost a little more to make the cotton belt pasture, but when once established and properly managed it will afford more grazing because of the variety of plants that furnish early, midseason, and late fall grazing. The abundant rainfall of the Midlands and Southeast and a long growing season insure more grazing on land of equal fertility when suitable plants are seeded. The five essentials of a good pasture, as shown by the experience of our wide-awake pasture leaders, are these:

- 1. Clearing the land of trees, brush, stones, and stumps, so it can be cultivated—with a mower. 2. If the land is subject to erosion,

CLASSIFICATION OF COTTON IS OFFERED

COLLEGE STATION.—The service which provides free classification of cotton produced by organized one-variety groups now is available, announces E. A. Miller, agronomist of the Texas A. & M. College extension service.

Forms and instructions may be obtained from any of the cotton classing offices of the bureau of agricultural economics. Addresses of offices in Texas are: P. M. Box 1366, Dallas; P. M. Box 1140, Austin; and 509 U. S. Court House, El Paso.

The service, which will be inaugurated with the current crop, provides free classification of a sample from each bale produced by a member of a qualified improvement group.

Notification of the grade and class, with a certificate to the U. S. cotton classing office, will be returned to the grower from whose bale the sample was drawn. The service is not available to individual growers, but only to members of organized cotton improvement groups.

Miller urged one-variety associations that desire the free service to apply as promptly as possible, so that the bureau may arrange details for handling and shipping the samples.

Only those communities that will qualify by meeting the rules and regulations of the bureau of agricultural economics will be eligible to receive the classing service, Miller said.

STATE'S TAX RATE KEPT AT 49 CENTS

AUSTIN.—Continuation for another year of the present state property tax rate of 49 cents on the $100 valuation was voted by the automatic tax board.

Many persons interested in the public schools had urged that the rate for school purposes be increased substantially from the present 7 cents on $100.

The rates for the general and confederate pension funds were retained at their constitutional maximums of 35 and 7 cents respectively.

Comptroller George H. Sheppard estimated the 7-cent school levy would be sufficient to support a per capita state aid apportionment of $21.40.

Members of the automatic tax board are Governor James V. Allred, Comptroller George H. Sheppard and Treasurer Charles Lockhart. Lockhart favored raising the school rate to 10 cents but his colleagues took the position that under the law they could not increase it.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution urging the legislature to clarify statutes governing the school rate. The resolution said further that determination of the per capita apportionment was a legislative function.

Because a large cotton yield is expected in the Westbrook area, this gin has already started its regular employees to work reconditioning the $19,000 plant. New saws and belts are being installed.

These gins of Colorado, Westbrook and Westbrook, with the Chalk and Westbrook, and the Schuster-owned Flynn gin, and the three Loraine gins, will handle Mitchell county's cotton crop, which has been estimated at more than 20,000 bales even with the acreage cut approximately one-third under the farm program. Last year's harvest was around 29,000 bales.

Preparing for the gin harvest along with the gins are associated industries, such as the compress, the oil mill and others.

CASA MANANA HAS GALA OPENING IN FORT WORTH

Casa Manana, Fort Worth's glamorous production, got away to a flying start in the big open air theater Friday night, when, under a star spangled Texas sky, a large and highly enthusiastic attendance jamming the big amphitheater to the limits, witnessed the sparkling array of big time talent, presented by Music Corporation of America as the 1938 edition of this world famous attraction.

Heading the initial program, which was declared most entertaining than any prior Casa Manana production, is Wayne King's orchestra, and Morton Downey, famed stage, screen and radio star, and both headline features made a decided hit with patrons. King's music, in particular, catching the fancy of the crowd, which included outstanding leaders in the State's social, civic and business circles, and Downey's pleasant manner plus his golden voice won instant acclaim.

In the capacity crowd, were visitors from cities and towns from all over Texas and adjoining states. Delegations and booster groups from Amarillo, Abilene, Lubbock, San Antonio, Austin, Dallas, Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., Galveston, Shreveport, La., and other points were on hand.

Second only to the featured stars, and gaining even more spontaneous applause was the All Texas Beauty ensemble, presented in four spectacular dance routines, created especially for Casa Manana by Paul Oscar, and the work of these 52 gorgeous Texas girls, from all points in the Lone Star State, reflected much credit upon Oscar and his associate, Lauretta (Jeffie) Jefferson. The outstanding sequence, all of which revealed the girls in amazingly beautiful costumes, was a Tiller routine. Appearing with the dancing beauties as soloist was Edna Sedgewick, famed dancing sprite from Hollywood, whose twinkling toes added much to the ultimate beauty of the whole presentation. Other attractions appearing on the first program, and which pleased spectators, were the Three Non-comedians, Knickerbocker comedians; Horton Spurr, bouncing dancer and comedian extraordinary, Serge Flass, novelty balancer, F. W. Taylor's adagio trio, which both delighted and surprised, Monroe and Grant, whose antics on the bounding net seemed to convulse first nighters, and Walter Nilsson, comedy cyclist, who did almost impossible things on a wheel.

The new policy of sane prices plus an extraordinary program lasting five hours, combining all the best there is in amusements, and adhering to the theory that the patron is the person who must first be satisfied, registered solidly with Casa Manana visitors, and this wise theory is reflecting the tremendous demands for reservations, now flooding the management. Another added feature meeting instant favor is that a patron now can drive almost to the doors of the giant theater, and park under police supervision, within the Casa Manana grounds.

Many compliments on the reconstructed dance floor, which makes this vast area one of the finest on the North American continent, were heard, and the theater system of numbering tables and seats, thus insuring patrons securing identically what they reserved, bought, and selected, likewise was well received.

As in previous years, a visit to Casa Manana is almost imperative, for without this glamorous night spot, where one is able to dine and dance in comfort under Texas skies, and rest assured that costs are reduced to a minimum within the reach of all, the great Southwest would be a strange sight this, or any year to come.

By all means, plan to attend Casa Manana. You'll find all of Texas there. It's the biggest amusement bargain anyone could find. For instance, where in the world could one find Wayne King and his orchestra, Morton Downey, seven excellent acts, and those 52 beautiful dancing darlings, at popular prices. It doesn't seem possible. But one can, right at Casa Manana in Fort Worth.

WORK-ON RED CROSS FLOOD QUOTA STILL GOING FORWARD HERE

Work on raising Colorado's quota of $75 for Red Cross work in flood rehabilitation in Brady, San Saba, and other stricken towns is still going forward, according to Dell Barber, county Red Cross chairman.

Barber said Thursday morning that donations to date total about $50. A message from the Red Cross this week stated that damage has been found to be even greater than estimated at first, and asked that Colorado raise more than its quota if possible.

Those wishing to make donations are requested to contact Gus Chesney, Dell Barber, or some employe of the City National bank. A list of donations will be published next week.

DRIVERS URGED TO LEARN RIGHT-OF-WAY

AUSTIN—State police today urged drivers to study laws relating to right of way after analysis of 771 recent accidents showed that one or more vehicles involved in 123 or 16 per cent of the crashes were not in their rightful positions.

Unless intersections are controlled by local regulations, police pointed out, vehicles approaching from each driver's right have the privilege of entering the intersection first.

Drinking on the part of a driver or pedestrian was listed as the cause of 101 of the 771 accidents, with speed ranking third. Fifty-four collisions were caused when automobiles moved too close to the center of the highway or were driven on the wrong side.

Other facts revealed in the study showed that 48 accidents were caused by pedestrians running into paths of vehicles, 40 by improper left turn, 31 by disregard of traffic control signals, 30 because drivers did not signal intention of making turns or stops, 27 by improper passing and 19 by driver's lack of attention.

State safety officials warned the drivers of motor vehicles to use more courtesy at intersections and places where other vehicles or pedestrians may possibly move into their line of travel. Through courtesy, they explained, hundreds of crashes can be prevented each year and many lives may be saved.

Aside from the continued heavy toll on Texas highways, the safety officials were encouraged by the continued reduction in violent traffic fatalities. A general nine per cent decrease has been reported for the first five months of this year, despite a nine per cent increase in travel.

PER CAPITA OF $22 IS RETAINED FOR SCHOOLS

AUSTIN—The per capita apportionment of State aid to schools was retained Friday by a 6-to-3 vote of the Board of Education at the record high of $22, which will require nearly $1,000,000 more than the estimated revenue available next year.

Acting on Comptroller George H. Sheppard's calculations that prohibitive income to the available school fund in the next fiscal year would equal $21.40 per capita, the board's majority adopted an optimistic financial outlook and kept the apportionment at the figure to which it was advanced last year.

In retaining the $22, the board rejected a proposal by Ben F. Tisinger of Dallas that the apportionment be determined on the basis of needs to fulfill a constitutional direction for schools to be operated for six months at State expense. Under his plan the apportionment would have been $22.55.

LORAIN SEEMS ASSURED OF WINNING SECOND HALF OF FAST PLAY IN LIONS CLUB SOFTBALL; CHINA GROVE, BUFORD TIED IN SLOW LEAGUE

As the final week of the second half of the Lions club softball league schedule draws to a close, Loraine seems virtually certain to finish with a perfect record in the fast division.

Loraine will play its fifth and last scheduled game of the half with Shell tonight (Thursday). Shell has a record of having lost three games out of its four played thus far, so the odds in favor of Loraine's finishing with its present 1,000 per cent record are heavy.

The perfect record which China Grove held in the slow league was marred Monday night when it was defeated by Buford 6-4. Buford's battery was A. Penster at catch, Roberts at pitch, Hairston pitched for China Grove, and Krop caught. This game placed Buford and China Grove in a tie at the top of the slow league.

Col-Tex, winner of the first half of the league's fast division, slipped down into third place Tuesday night by losing to Standard, 6-1. The pitching of Standard's twirling marvel, Cunningham, was credited with this result. Gressett was at catch for Standard. Pitcher Dorn and Catcher Sturdivant formed Col-Tex's battery. Pushing Westbrook decidedly into the cellar, Shell downed that team 14-8 last Thursday night. Colorado escaped a tie with Shell for fourth place by giving Westbrook another defeat, 10-7, on Tuesday night. Rogers and Cathart formed Westbrook's battery, and R. Howell and M. Vest were up for Colorado.

In slow league play, Colorado High school defeated Carr on Tuesday night 12-2. Carr previously had defeated Ira 15-13 on Thursday night. Colorado High school is now in second place. Ira and Snyder will play the slow league game tonight (Thursday).

Standings are as follows:

	FAST LEAGUE
	GP	W	L	PC
Loraine	4	4	0	1,000
Standard	5	4	1	800
Col-Tex	5	3	2	600

	SLOW LEAGUE

WICHITA FALLS PHYSICIAN, BROTHER OF TWO LOCAL WOMEN, DIED UNEXPECTEDLY SUNDAY

News of the unexpected death of Dr. C. W. Stevenson, 49, prominent Wichita Falls physician and brother of two Colorado women, Mrs. George Mahon and Mrs. W. W. Rhode, was received in Colorado late Sunday. He was the son of Judge and Mrs. O. E. Stevenson of Loraine.

Dr. Stevenson had been ill of bronchial pneumonia since Friday night, but his condition had not been considered alarming.

A graduate of the University of Texas medical school at Galveston, Dr. Stevenson launched his private practice in Loraine before the World War, remaining in Loraine about two years. He served in the medical corps during the war; and after the war he went to Wichita Falls to practice.

At the time of his death he was president of Dr. White's sanitarium in Wichita Falls and was associated with Drs. Hyman and Kanatser in the Medical and Surgical clinic at Wichita Falls. He was a fellow of the American College of Physicians.

His parents, Judge and Mrs. Stevenson of Loraine, were physically unable to go to the funeral, which was held in Wichita Falls Tuesday morning. Mrs. Mahon and her husband, Congressman Mahon, went to Loraine and remained with them, as did Dr. Wm. S. Rhode, one of his nephews in Colorado.

Mrs. W. W. Rhode went to Wichita Falls early Monday with a brother, M. K. Stevenson of Sweetwater. She was joined there by two of her sons, Dr. Oscar Rhode and Alfred Rhode, who had just begun a vacation in Albuquerque, N. M., when news of their uncle's death came.

The two Colorado women are the only surviving sisters, and there is one brother, O. E. Stevenson, Jr., of Sudan, in addition to the one at Sweetwater. Other survivors besides these and the parents are the wife and a daughter, Gladys.

COTTON ACREAGE MAY BE REDUCED

WASHINGTON—Agricultural adjustment administration officials said recently that unless domestic and foreign consumption of American cotton increased this fall and winter, growers may be asked to plant less than 30,000,000 acres to the crop next year.

Confronted with a record surplus of about 13,500,000 bales, growers reduced their planting operations from about 35,000,000 acres last year to 26,900,000 acres this year.

Should yields on this year's acreage equal the average of the last ten years, the crop would be about 11,500,000 bales. This is slightly more American cotton than was consumed in the United States and abroad during the marketing season which closes this week.

Officials explained that unless consumption increased, little or none of the surplus cotton would be used. Consequently, growers would be in the same relative position next spring as they were this spring.

AAA cotton experts feel confident, however, that a business and industrial upswing will come this fall, bringing with it improved domestic markets for cotton goods.

It is officially estimated that American cotton consumed during the present marketing year totaled 5,600,000 bales, or about 2,000,000 bales less than in the preceding year.

Exports, on the other hand, increased slightly. They have been estimated at 5,565,000 bales, or 125,000 bales more than in the preceding season.

COTTON GINNERS MUST KEEP CLOSE RECORDS

The President approved, on June 14, 1938, an amendment to the Act of Congress authorizing the Director of the Census to collect and publish periodical reports of cotton ginned, cotton consumed and cotton held. The amendment is as follows:

"It shall also be the duty of every cotton ginner to keep a record of the county or parish in which each bale of cotton ginned by him is grown and to report at the March canvass of each year a segregation of the total number of bales ginned by counties or parishes in which grown."

The reports have heretofore shown the number of bales ginned within a county, but did not show the number actually grown or produced in the county because of the movement of seed cotton across county and state lines for ginning. This amendment is designed to have each ginner keep a record of each bale ginned by him, showing the county in which the seed cotton is grown in order that accurate statistics may be compiled as to the actual production of cotton in each county. These statistics will enable the Department of Agriculture to make equitable allocations of acreage and production as required by the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, and will also be used by this Bureau in connection with the census of agriculture taken every five years.

Ginners are requested to follow the requirements of the law and keep a record of the county in which each bale of cotton ginned is grown. The segregation of the total ginnings by counties will be called for at the March canvass.

SUDDEN ILLNESS CLAIMS LIFE OF MRS. W. S. (DOC) WIMBERLEY IN LORAIN

Stricken about 9:30 Tuesday night while visiting in Loraine, Mrs. W. S. (Doc) Wimberley, 45, of Colorado succumbed unexpectedly in the Wimberley tourist camp in Loraine shortly after 5 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Wimberley and her husband, Colorado auto dealer, had started to return to Colorado when she complained of feeling badly. She became so ill that they turned back and went to a cabin in Mr. Wimberley's new lodge, where a physician was summoned. She died without regaining consciousness. Death was attributed to a stroke of paralysis.

Born Essie Clopton on August 27, 1892, Mrs. Wimberley spent her early girlhood in Midland county. She and Mr. Wimberley were married in Paint Rock about 23 years ago. They lived for years in and near Loraine, moving to Colorado in 1934.

Survivors in addition to Mr. Wimberley are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Clopton of Loraine, one brother, Ben Clopton of Loraine, three sisters, Mrs. Witt Stewart of Royalty, Mrs. Charles Goodman of Midland, and Mrs. W. C. Evans of Fort Worth. Funeral services are being held from the home here Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Woodie Holden, minister of the Church of Christ, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. A. Scoggins of the Loraine Methodist church. Interment will be in the Colorado cemetery.

Arrangements are in charge of a Loraine funeral home.

RENDERBROOK RANCH EMPLOYE SUCCUMBS ON EVE OF VACATION

A long-planned vacation for Herman Blakeley 52, Renderbrook ranch employe, and his wife was to have begun Monday. His funeral was held Sunday afternoon.

Blakeley came to Colorado last Thursday afternoon to trade for a car in which to take his vacation. On the way back to the ranch he complained of a facial pain and nausea. During the night he became quite ill, and at 4 a.m. Friday he was brought to Root hospital for treatment. A few hours later, at 12:30 noon, he died unexpectedly.

Death was attributed to a heart block. His wife, suffering from shock and grief, had to be kept under medical care in the hospital for several hours after his death.

Blakeley and his wife had been employed on the Renderbrook ranch since January. Before coming here they worked for several years on the Spade ranch near Lubbock. Both the Renderbrook and Spade ranches are Ellwood-owned.

He was born in Van Zandt county on May 29, 1886, and was married when a young man to Hattie Wade. They lived at Plainview for several years. On their vacation they had planned to visit relatives in Littlefield, Kilgore, and New Mexico points.

Survivors include two children, Troy Blakeley of Morton, Texas, and Mrs. G. H. Fowler of Littlefield; his wife and mother, Mrs. Jim Blakeley of Kilgore; five brothers, Frank of Hobbs, Sam and Pike of Kilgore, Luther and Bill of Lubbock; one sister, Mrs. M. L. Moore of Lubbock.

Funeral services were held in Lubbock Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial was also in Lubbock. Kiker & Son had charge of local arrangements.

Night Boat

By Sidney S. Margolius

Art watched the deckhands pull in the gangplank and tried to analyze the impulse that had led him onto the boat. "An hour's refreshing moonlight voyage across the bay, and a short train ride through beautiful, scenic country" would bring him to Asbury Park, a wall placard told him. He had no interest in Asbury Park.

He had been wandering around the Battery, feeling the cold rain-drops pelt against his face, when he had noticed a party of girls and men trooping gaily up the boat's gangplank. The whistle had tooted warningly, and on an impulse, he had followed them.

The power of suggestion, he misty wind enveloped him. He looked into the black water.

The black water. People killed themselves by leaping into black water. Suicide! An awful thought. He shuddered. But his eyes seemed fastened to the inky depths.

And why not? No one would ever know the difference. No one knew he was on the boat. The woman behind the chairs had neither seen nor heard him cross the deck, his footfalls lost in the rushing wind. The men in the pilot house up above were straining their eyes into the fog far beyond him. It could soon be over.

Often had he wondered why people killed themselves. How foolish, he had thought, how weak, that any-thought, with a feeling of bitter amusement. Since that final quarrel with Frances, he had been nothing more than a sheep, led here and there at the end of his impulses. Sheep—sheep—sheep. The engines throbbed the word as the boat curved into the river channel.

"This isn't an engagement, Frances—it's the fight of a century. Confound it, it can't go on!"

Quarrels . . . a thousand sharp-edged, acrimonious debates . . . bitter, barbed words speeding back and forth.

"This isn't an engagement, Frances—it's the fight of a century," he had said. "Confound it, it can't go on!"

Then he had said harshly, "Is it best to cut the rope with one slice of the knife, or pull it apart strand by strand?"

A strange look had come into her eyes. "Aren't you being rather the-atrical?" she had asked quietly.

But he had not been able to stop the flow of words.

"No, no! We can't go on pounding at each other. We're miserable now—we'd kill each other if we were married." Even as he had spoken, he had hated himself.

"All right," she had said briefly. "We'll use a knife. I don't love you, Art."

Two weeks, and those words still kept running through his mind.

Even now, he could hardly tell what had happened. Perhaps they had loved each other too wildly. Perhaps Frances had never really loved him. Out of all his doubts, he knew only one certainty—he loved Frances, loved her as he had never thought it possible to love. He would always love her. But he could never bring himself to tell her that now.

"You'll never know, Fran."

Perhaps time would efface this sting, never its memory.

The boat sped through the Narrows. "I don't love you, Art," the engines hummed.

He climbed the steps to the smoking salon. The gay young party that had flocked up the gangplank ahead of him was playing bridge. Laughing, making love over a bridge table. Playing a game with brightly colored bits of pasteboard. He felt like some disembodied spirit watching living people.

The foredeck was empty this stormy night. No, a woman sat sheltered by a pile of folding chairs, her face lost in shadows. The boat surged forward, dipped and rose again in the rough water. The thick, one should take such a way out. And over a love affair, too! It seemed incredible. But now he had learned something—he knew more.

A sound, a falling chair, pierced his consciousness. He turned—and froze against the rail, the intake of breath caught in his throat.

And then, his momentary paralysis was followed by swift, instinctive action. He leaped for the other side of the deck, shed his coat automatically, and dove straight for the spot where he had seen the woman disappear into the water. Groping desperately, he struggled against the current.

The doctor came into Art's stateroom.

"Well, young man," he said pompously, "how do you feel?"

"All right," Art rolled restlessly on the bed. "How's the woman?"

"She'll be all right. Just suffering from submersion. She's lucky, at that. People who want to die ought to be put in straitjackets until they come to their senses. As for you, you deserve a medal, but you're lucky to be alive, too."

"Yes, I suppose I am."

"It's really difficult to understand the case," the doctor continued. "Here's a woman, evidently cultured and far from destitute trying to commit suicide. She's obviously not out of her mind, and she's young and pretty. I can't see why anyone like that would want to die. Can you?"

"No," Art said slowly. "I can't." He stretched himself and smiled. "Do you ever prescribe cold baths for your patients, Doc? This one did wonders for me!"

The night boat nosed into its berth at the end of the "refreshing, moonlight voyage across the bay." Dimly, Art heard the rattle of the gangplank being pulled up into place.

READY FOR RUN-OFF

G. A. Jerry Sadler, 30, Longview, is the youngest candidate for State office and is opposing the oldest. Sadler fought through a field of veteran campaigners to run a close second to C. V. Terrell, incumbent in the Railroad Commission, who has been in public office in Texas for more than half a century. Sadler's slogan is "Put Sadler in the Saddle," and he is shown here with one foot in the stirrup. Sadler promised a continuation of his same fast and furious campaign methods that enabled him to win a run-off place.

A total of 284 votes was cast. On the matter of issuing $25,000 in bonds for improving, enlarging, and extending the water system, the vote was as follows: For, 103; against, 171. Vote on the sewage bonds of some $35,000 was 109 for and 168 against.

If the bonds had been voted, they would have represented 55% of the total cost of the proposed work. A PWA grant was to have been sought for the remaining 45%.

TWO CITY OFFICIALS ATTEND AUSTIN CONFERENCE ON UNDERGROUND WATER

Hearing discussions and data on the underground water situation on the "high plains" of Texas, Mayor J. A. Sadler and City Councilman V. J. (Jack) Richardson attended the state-wide underground water conference in Austin Friday.

Since Colorado's water supply is obtained solely from underground streams, the conference was considered of high importance to Coloradans. Some facts brought out at the meeting are embodied in the following article by H. L. Kiefer in the Sunday edition of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal:

"The 'High Plains' have abundant reason to give serious consideration to the problem of water—before it is too late.

"By the 'High Plains' are meant the immense region bounded roughly on the south by the Texas and Pacific railroad, on the west by the New Mexico line, the north by the Texas boundary and on the east by a panel of north and south counties of which Dickens is one and Motley is another.

"The fact that the time is right now to begin thinking of water for domestic, industrial and irrigation purposes was the one completely overshadowing all others, so far as Lubbock and the Plains are concerned, which emerged from the "ground water conference" held in the Driskill hotel in Austin Friday.

"The size of the attendance frankly amazed Gov. James V. Allred, who called the meeting, and other officials who had assisted in the preparations. They said they had expected that 100 "might" be on hand. The only interpretation placed by anyone on the size of the attendance and on the interest evidenced in the proposition was that an underground water problem from which no part of Texas is exempt does exist and that something must be done about it.

Legislation Far Removed
"That 'something,' according to the expressed wishes of spokesmen for large regions, probably will be eventual legislation placing the control of the development and use of such water in state hands. The needed legislation is so intricate, however, and is so certain to arouse the bitterness of opposition in some quarters regardless how it may be drawn, that it would be the wildest of guess-work to say when attempts to enact such state laws will be successful. The expressed demand of this meeting was that something be prepared for submission to the approaching January session of the legislature.

"Despite the fact that the 'High Plains' area faces a problem, according to those who should be most competent to know, the region is much more fortunate than many other sections and cities. Houston, for example, fears that the steady lowering of its water table may result in ruin of all that remains by encroachment of salt water from the Gulf of Mexico. El Paso, with a steadily diminishing supply, draws its water from strata which lie between salt water sands. Officials of that city, for whom Ashley Classen was spokesman, voiced the frank fear that salt water may seep into the sweet, with resultant ruin of the good sands. Classen, formerly a salesman in Lubbock, is now water superintendent in El Paso.

Cheering Note Is Heard
"The cheering note as it concerns the High Plains and Lubbock was voiced by W. N. White, senior hydraulic engineer, water resource branch, U. S. geological survey, one of the speakers during the conference.

"He pointed out that even with increasing irrigation, ground water tables on the High Plains have been lowered very little over the years for which there are records. Then he pointed to another statement to the effect that the water impounded underground comes from "natural" sources.

The term means, in substance, that the impounded water is that which has seeped into the soil from precipitation—from the rain and snow that falls upon the region itself. For many years, it was supposed those underground streams and lakes were fed by the eternal snows of the Rocky mountains.

Balance Stays Fairly Even
"Thus when more water is drawn from underground during a year than is put back by nature, the table inevitably goes down. Thus far, the balance has been fairly well maintained, although not wholly so. Among the evidences that more is being drawn out than is being put back are the lowered tables from which Lubbock draws its supplies and the fact that many springs, perhaps hundreds of them, which once were the outlet for underground excesses have ceased to flow. There no longer is an excess to feed them.
"If the use of the reserve should continue in increasing amounts, throwing income and out-go even more out of balance it will mean, the officials warned, that the table will keep on dropping until it hits dry bottom."

M. E. CARTER HERE
M. E. Carter of New Braunfels, who is now connected with the Texas Liquor Control board, was here for a few hours Wednesday.

VISITING IN MINNESOTA
Mrs. Herbert Gunn left Sunday to spend her vacation with relatives in Lyle, Minnesota.

Miss Eugenia French, well known home economist of the Ball Brothers company, will be in Colorado on August 12 and 13 at 2 p.m., at which time she will give a free demonstration of meat, fruit and vegetable preserving at Tucker Grocery and Market.

Miss French attended Texas State College for Women where she was awarded special prizes in recognition of her Home Demonstration work. She also was on the special honor roll and did demonstrations in food classes. Miss French, because of her special training and study in Home Economics, is not only perfectly prepared technically for her work but she also has a charming personality which claims her audience's attention and admiration. Having had considerable practical experience, she is able to explain all the latest and most economical methods of canning foods in glass containers in such a manner that it is easy for listeners to understand every step in the process.

The Ball Brothers company, manufacturers of quality glass jars for nearly half a century, is sending Miss French and scores of other qualified demonstrators all over the country to show housewives the United States Government-approved methods of steam pressure, hot water bath, and open kettle canning. Every one in this vicinity is cordially invited to hear Miss French and ask her any questions pertaining to canning.

WESTBROOK PTA WILL MEET NEXT THURSDAY TO PLAN YEAR'S WORK

Plans for its work during the coming school year will be made by the Westbrook Parent-Teacher association when it meets at the Westbrook auditorium Thursday afternoon, August 11, at 3:30.

Announcement of the meeting was issued this week by Mrs. Jeff A. Jones, president. One important matter to be taken up at the meeting will be the election of an operator for the school cafeteria during the year.

This organization, one of the most active P-TA groups in the county, has an extensive program planned for the coming year. In fact, the year's program has already been launched with a summer round-up for health and teeth inspection of children of pre-school age.

Besides carrying on the cafeteria last year, the Westbrook P-TA served the annual banquet of the Mitchell County Teachers association; placed nearly 100 additional articles, including silver and china, in the cafeteria; held open house and joint installation of officers in the spring with the Iatan-Carr and Fairview P-TA groups as guests; carried out a health program.

Special emphasis is to be placed this year on the health program, according to Mrs. Jones. The women also hope to expand their cafeteria service, especially in the matter of underprivileged children.

A. F. KING EXPRESSES HIS THANKS TO VOTERS

Mrs. L. K. Shaw had as week-end guests her sister, Mrs. W. H. Fulkerson, and children and her mother, Mrs. O. P. Jones of Tahoka. They brought Louene Shaw home after a two-weeks visit in Tahoka.

NEW YIELDS ARE MAILED OUT FOR MITCHELL FARMS

COUNTY'S TOTAL YIELD FIGURE STANDS AT 9,878,500 LBS.

New 1938 yields for Mitchell county farms have been mailed out from the county agent's office following receipt of a total county yield of 9,878,500 pounds of lint cotton.

This total figure was divided among farms of the county on the basis described in the following letter, which was mailed to each farmer: "Your new yield for 1938 is — pounds per acre. The years used by the county committee to set the above yield were from 1933 through 1937. The committee has set a normal yield based on records of production, measured acreage, weather conditions, types of soil, drainage, production practices, and general fertility of the land.

"You will get a new yield in 1939 based on the production for the years 1934 through 1938. We would like to urge you now to keep your gin receipts and records so that when we ask for your 1938 production they will be complete.
"We would like to urge you to keep this letter for future reference." According to John Mogford, agricultural assistant in the county agent's office, each farmer's soil conservation payment under the 1938 program will be his acreage allotment times his yield times 2.4 cents per pound.

Field work on checking Mitchell county's 1,226 cotton farms for compliance in the 1938 farm program has been completed, according to John Mogford, agricultural assistant in the office of B. J. Baskin, county agent.

Acreage calculations from these check-ups are to be completed in the county agent's office by Saturday, Mogford says. Only two men in the county are so far remaining out of compliance, records show.

All farms checked and calculated so far have made necessary adjustments for compliance with the exception of these two, according to Mogford. The 1,226 farms checked included 191,191 acres.

PICKED UP ALONG THE NEWS PATH

Death has brushed and re-brushed its wings over Colorado homes during the past week. . . . Nothing has shocked the town in recent months as did the death of James Guitar, Jr., and the fatal injury of his father, James, Sr., in a horrible scrambling of steel and glass on the highway near Plainview Saturday. . . . Our memory of the younger James is of a black-haired, black-eyed youth, unusually attractive, nearly always bare-headed. . . . Men who know him best conceded him a fine future—had he been allowed a future. . . . We remember the senior Guitar as a distinguished-looking man with a twinkle in his eye, a man who devoted his time and efforts to his own business and expected others to do the same, a man who had the admiration and companionship of his sons. . . . Because it lies so hopelessly far beyond our powers of reasoning, we aren't allowed to wonder why life had to end for them, but it seems to be our right—and perhaps our duty—to wonder why the tragedy had to happen as it did. . . . Must highways go on being lanes ribbons of death and mutilation? The accident that befell the Guitars could have happened to anyone who was abroad in a car that day, or any day. . . . "And Sudden Death—" Most of Mitchell county's sorrow has come thus during this week. . . . First the Renderbrook ranch employe, John Blakeley, sickened on the eve of a planned vacation trip, and succumbed unexpectedly within a few hours. . . . That was Friday. . . . The Guitar tragedy came Saturday, with James, Jr., dying instantly and his father dying in the early hours of Monday morning. . . . The unexpected death of Dr. C. W. Stevenson, former Mitchell countian, occurred in Wichita Falls Sunday afternoon, and his going touched the Rhode and Mahon homes here, the home of his parents in Loraine, and the homes of these people's friends and relatives. . . . Death struck suddenly again on Wednesday morning to claim the life of Mrs. "Doc" Wimberley. . . . The passing of W. A. Dozier on Sunday was not sudden or unexpected, but it brought its share of somberness to Mitchell county homes. . . . The expressive knack which has made Jean Way, daughter of Mrs. C. E. Way of Colorado, advertising copy writer for Lane Bryant in New York may be easily detected in a squib which she wrote on "Cotton" for her father, the late C. E. Way, several years ago. . . . It goes like this: "Cotton is the overcoat of a seed that is planted and grown in the Southern states to keep the producer broke and the buyer crazy. The fiber varies in color and weight and the man who can guess the nearest length of a fiber is called a cotton man by the public, a fool by the farmer, and a poor business man by his creditors. The price of cotton is fixed in New York and goes up when you have sold and down when you have bought. A buyer working for a group of mills was sent to New York to watch the cotton market, and after a few days' deliberation he wired his firm to this effect—"Some think it will go up, some think it will go down, I do, too. Whatever you do will be wrong. Act at once." Cotton is planted in the spring, mottogated in the summer, and left in the field in the winter."

This said that Mrs. Frank Lupton could, if she would, command practically her own price for that beautiful antique brass and silver candelabrum which has been in her family for many generations. . . . Did you know that A. E. (Mac) McClam, manager of the R. & R. theaters, is really an artist under the skin, or something? He has been known to do lovely water-color paintings on velvet, so I'm told.

Dame Rumor is whispering that a certain very comely red-head is to marry a local youth some time during the chrysanthemum-football-falling-leaf season. . . .

A "bugologist" could have had a swell time in Colorado these past few nights. . . . Little black bugs in countless thousands swooped down on every street light, every illuminated place in town. . . . Each morning found lampposts and gutters and even store fronts black with them. . . . They dealt performers and audience misery at the amateur hour program in Ruddick park Friday night. . . . Business men swept them up from store fronts and sidewalks each morning and piled them inches deep in the gutters. . . . Cars stopping in fillings stations where lights were bright sounded as if they were in a fast shower of rain from the impact of countless flying beetles. . . . Nobody knew where they came from, or why, and nobody knows (tho everybody's kinda holding his breath) why they haven't been back in any great numbers since about Monday night. . . . Some bright fellow coined the suggestion that they were flying weevils out of "hillbilly" flour votes, but we don't know about that—we only heard. . . .

A "Mrs. George McManus" and children, traveling from the California coast to New York, were reported registered at a local hotel Sunday night. . . . Here's wondering if she was the wife of the cartoonist of "Maggie and Jiggs" fame. . . . Your guess is as good as ours. . . . That's pure "sass," folks. It was our newspaper's duty to find out, but we didn't quite get around to it.

Did you know that since January 25th when Texas began to distribute benefit checks to her eligible unemployed, she averaged about $630,000 a month for the first six months going back into trade channels via the unemployed worker? To date total benefit checks amount to four and a half million, and Texas has twenty-seven and a half million in her reserve fund.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN ON CLEANING UP RURAL MAIL BOXES OF COUNTY

With two more days yet to go on the nation-wide movement to clean up and repair rural mail boxes, Postmaster J. Y. Fraser has issued this statement for Mitchell county users of rural mail boxes:

To the Rural Patron of the Colorado, Texas, Post Office:
The Second Assistant Postmaster General has requested this office to conduct a rural mail box week beginning on August 1, 1938.

During this week it is desired that patrons of the post office who are served by rural carrier by the following method.

1. Paint all rural mail boxes white including the post.
2. Neatly paint the name of the box owner on the side of the box so that as the carrier approaches it he may readily see whose box it is.
3. See that boxes are in good condition and that a proper signal is on the box and that the lid easily and securely fastens.
4. See that the box is level on the post in such manner that when children take the mail from the box they will not pull the box down in trying to reach the mail.
5. See that the box is properly located so that it may be easily accessible to the carrier. (Rural carriers are not required by postal law to alight from their vehicle in order to deposit mail into or receive mail from a box.)

What it Means to you to Have a Nice Box

1. The satisfaction that you personally gain from looking at your box and seeing a nicely, properly erected mail box.
2. The impression which passers-by obtain when they see such a box in front of your house or with your name on it. It immediately tells whether you are a person with pride in your surroundings or one of those who does not particularly care how your service is rendered.
3. A box which easily opens but securely closes will prevent valuable mail matter from blowing out of the box or otherwise becoming lost when the lid easily drops open.
4. A proper signal displayed indicates that there is mail in the box and prevents delay. A rag tied on a stick or a piece of tin fastened on a wire might be overlooked or misunderstood when new carriers are handling the mail.
5. It assists the rural carrier in discharging satisfactory, and efficient service.

It is my desire and I hope that there will be a spontaneous cooperation in this matter.

Your enthusiastic interest will be appreciated by the postmaster and especially by the rural carriers who have to visit these boxes under all kinds of weather conditions and practically every day.

It's Vive l'Amour in New Orleans As Don Ameche, Simone Simon, Robert Young Star in "Josette"

THREE DELIGHTFUL STARS IN SAUCIEST ESCAPE IN HISTORY OF LOVE Oo-la-la!

The sauciest escape in the history of love, as gay as a Mardi Gras, with three delightful stars and merry with Gordon and Revel tunes, brings Don Ameche, Simone Simon and Robert Young to the Palace theatre Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday, August 6, 7, and 8 in 20th Century-Fox's comedy hit, "Josette."

Se's got zis—and zat! It's a comedy hit which will be dynamite with Joe Penner fans and a surefire bet for all audiences—even those normally not enthusiastic about the adenoidal comic's exclusive brand of buffoonery. It is easily Penner's all-time best, due largely to more and better story values, a thoroughly fine supporting cast—dominated by Lucille Ball and Fritz Feld—and lightning fast direction. Joe wins a trailer in a raffle, to the disgust of his wife, Lucille Ball. She makes him sleep in it, and he awakens to find bank robbers have stolen it. The gang kidnaps Vicki Lester, wealthy heiress, and Joe is forced to write the ransom notes. After a mad chase on the part of his wife and the police, Joe, Vicki and the trailer are rescued. Edward Cline directed.

Patrons' reactions to this Zanuck donation to delirium will be guided by the individuals' tastes in comedy. Those who prefer humor in its broadest vein will find it a hilarious laugh riot, while to others who crave rib-tickling of more subtle variety it will be little more than average acceptable entertainment. Feature is predominately dependent on the Ritz Brothers, and since these Caliphs of Clowning are given plenty of footage and perform in their best manner in innumerable gag situations, they carry the burden with ease and distinction. Marjorie Weaver is impressive in the featured femme role and Tony Martin contributes some welcome musical interludes, albeit he does little to raise the acting average. Loose direction by David Butler.

Players are the Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin, Marjorie Weaver, Slim Summerville, John Carradine, Wally Vernon.

Two Josettes! To prevent Papa's proposed remarriage with a scheming beauty, Don and Bob pack him off to New York, so naturally he takes his Josette with him. Josette No. 2 remains in the gay city of the South for the oo-la-la-laughiest courtship in the annals of romance.

Bert Lehr heads the featured cast with Joan Davis, who recently was acclaimed No. 1 comedienne by a New York newspaper's nationwide poll. Paul Hurst, William Collier, Sr., and Tala Birell have prominent roles in the film.

ABOUT FISHERMEN

Dr. Ratliff on his return from a fishing trip on Devil's River referred to it as a "fishermen's paradise." All he said about catching the big ones, etc. is all right.

Dr. Ratliff may have administered an anesthetic to the fish, then hauled them out. Anesthesia is a boon to the modern surgeon, also to the modern patient, but it was never intended to aid fishermen in gathering heavy strings of finny tribesmen. Izaak Walton, the fisherman's patron saint, would never have endorsed this method. Izaak, who associated mostly among clergymen and who married twice, each time into a clerical family, is suspected of having introduced exaggeration into fish stories. He did it to be interesting, not for sorry purposes of deceit or for boasting his own prowess. The late Mr. Walton was a hook and sinker fisherman.

About the fisherman's paradise, our aloofness from belief comes of our certain knowledge that there is no "fisherman's paradise." Not in this world. If there is in the next world a "fisherman's paradise," or any kind of paradise in which fishermen are allowed, we are glad. We have no enmity against fishermen. We simply don't trust their conservatism in any report concerning fishing. Saint Peter gave up fishing to become a missionary. No fisherman has done that since Peter's time. No fisherman would be qualified.

WE ARE GETTING OLD

This writer, past the year of 78, while walking down the street or road meditate and bring to our mind these verses which you might say, "Don't Pass Him By":

If you should meet an old, old man
I pray you please be kind
It may be he is lost and ill
Or does not know his mind.

I pray you ask of him his wants
If he is hungry or cold
Don't leave him trembling in the night
If he is weak and old.

A smile is sometime quite enough
The old are quick to see
Oh please be kind to those who are
So near eternity.

I pray, I pray for those so old
So timid, fearful too
Oh, don't pass by an old, old man
If he seems needing you.

Old men are easily flattered especially by girls, and girls sometimes take pity on the ancients by deigning to amuse them and pretending to have loads of fun in the effort. We praise the girls who are kind that way. They make us oldsters happy without tiring themselves. This writer attends the baseball games regularly and was complimented on our ability by the girls. We walked off the playground with erect bearing, with hoisted shoulders and beaming face. For an old man to be noticed by a girl is stimulating to his pride of life. If given a chance he will tell what a devil of a young man he was, how gallant and how popular with the ladies. It makes him forget his rheumatiz. We are writing this at some length in order that some of our reader girls may read it by an odd chance and become a missionary to the aged.

One of our reader friends writes to this column on the subject of old age. Here is his letter:

"The old man who says, 'I'm just as young as I ever was, and to prove his statement by his actions is almost certain to make a fool of himself. An old man should advertise himself by his meekness and wisdom, not by his youthful antics. Too much action in an old man is like a broadcast of jazz music from a megaphone on an old cathedral.'"

After reading this letter we close with the following verse:

When I pass out and my time is spent
I hope for no lofty monument,
No splendid procession marching slow
Along the last long road I go;
No pomp and glory I care for then
When I depart from the world of men.

But I'd like to think, when my race is through,
That there will be in the world a few
Who'll say, "Well, there is a good man gone!
I am sorry to see him passing on.
For he was a sort that's fair and square,
The kind of a fellow it's hard to spare."

"He hadn't money, he hadn't fame,
But he kept the rules and played the game.
His eyes were true and his laugh was clear,
He held his truth and his honor dear;
And now that his work is at an end,
I know how much I shall miss my friend."

If my life shall earn such words as those
I shall smile in peace as my eyelids close,
I shall rest in quiet, and be content,
With the words of a friend for my monument!

A TRIBUTE TO TEACHERS

It won't be long now until the opening of school and thousands of teachers will take their place to learn the young idea how to shoot and we herewith throw this bouquet to our teachers, all of which they well deserve.

Democracy is the greatest gift to civilization. The school is its greatest gift. From the beginning of man's struggle for knowledge, self-respect and the recognition of his inalienable rights, the school has been his greatest ally. The teacher is the sentinel keeping watch against the encroachments of ignorance, superstition and folly. Teachers are soldiers in the army of peace, Christianity and citizenship.

I quote herewith Henry Van Dyke's eulogy of the unknown teacher: "I sing the praise of the unknown teacher. Great generals win campaigns, but it is the unknown soldier who wins the war. Famous educators plan new systems of pedagogy, but it is the unknown teacher who directs and guides the young. He lives in obscurity and contends with hardship. For him no trumpets blare, no chariots wait, no golden decorations are decreed. He keeps the watch along the borders of darkness and makes the attack on the trenches of ignorance and folly. Patient in his daily duty, he strives to conquer the evil powers which are the enemies of youth. He awakens sleeping spirits. He quickens the indolent, encourages the eager and steadies the unstable. He communicates his own joy in learning and shares with boys and girls the best treasures of his mind. He lights many candles which, in later years, will shine back to cheer him. This is his reward. Knowledge may be gained from books, but the love of knowledge is transmitted only by personal contact. No one has deserved better of the republic than the unknown teacher. No one is more worthy to be enrolled in democratic aristocracy, king of himself and servant of mankind."

CONTRIBUTED

A young skeptic once said to an elderly lady, "I once believed in God, but now, since studying philosophy and mathematics I am convinced that God is but an empty word."

"Well," said the lady, "it is true that I have not learned these things, but since you have, can you tell me from whence this egg comes?"

"Why, of course, from a hen," was the reply.

"And where does the hen come from?"

"Why, from the egg."

Then the lady inquired, "May I ask which existed first, the hen or the egg?"

"Oh, no. I should have said the egg was first."

"Then I suppose you mean that one egg existed without having come from a hen?"

The young man hesitated: "Well, you see—that is—of course, well, the hen was first."

"Very well," said she, "Who made that first hen from which all succeeding eggs and hens have come?"

"What do you mean by all this?" he asked.

"Simply this: I say that he who created the first egg or hen is he who created the world. You can't explain the existence even of a hen or an egg without God, and yet you wish me to believe that you can explain the existence of the whole world without him!"

NET LOSS EVEN AFTER LIQUOR PAYS TAXES

In letters from readers Dr. N. A. Moore of Abilene writes, The writer of this column has been a staunch prohibitionist all his life. We fought, bled and died in the battle of 1877. Here is Mr. Moore's letter:

Many good people even justify the sale of liquor on the ground that the tax from it is used to accomplish a number of desirable things such as old-age pensions, children's hospitals, schools, etc. This is a shallow thinking and faulty reasoning. When the aged have to be pensioned from liquor revenue the good done the one class is more than offset by the poverty caused to another class. If the children are educated and made fit for the world by the income from the sale of intoxicants, the world is made more unfit for them by the same process. To sell liquor to build highways at the same time places upon those highways drunken drivers, and drinkers who render the highways ten times more dangerous than they were. To build jails, penitentiaries, insane asylums and pay for extra police officers from whiskey funds will avail nothing for the crop of criminals and insane will have been proportionally increased. Some say it will help the unemployed in its manufacture and sale, but for every man who is given a job, five men will be rendered unfit for employment by the manufactured article.

Once in conversation with a woman champion of liquor to her observation that liquor has a place, the evangelist, Sam Jones, replied, "Yes, madam, but hell is that place."

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they are benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it increased the appetite and improved digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. CARDUI, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

THE RECORD OPENS NEW QUAKER OATS ADVERTISING DRIVE

Selected to participate in the new national advertising campaign on Quaker Oats, the Record today prints the first of a series of eight advertisements that are being run in support of this product in the Colorado market.

Other advertising media chosen by The Quaker Oats company for this new campaign include 400 daily newspapers, a large list of Sunday newspaper rotogravure sections and two magazines widely distributed with newspapers, "The American Weekly" and "This Week."

Local grocers are cooperating with this extensive drive to publicize the health benefits and economy of Quaker Oats as a year-around cereal. Oatmeal is nature's richest economical food source of Thiamin (Vitamin B₁), the food element that is essential for sound nerves and good digestion. In fact, scientific research has shown that without Thiamin good health is impossible. Thiamin is not stored in the body. This means everybody should have fresh daily supplies, say dietetic authorities. Mothers who have been impressed by the healthy growth and sound progress of those world-famous young Canadian Misses, the Dionne Quins, will be interested in learning that Thiamin is richly contained in oatmeal. Throughout the critical growing period, oatmeal has been an important part of the Quins' diet. In fact, Quaker Oats is the brand of oatmeal given full approval by authorities in charge of the Quins' care and feeding.

COTTON HARVEST OF OVER 20,000 BALES FORECAST FOR MITCHELL COUNTIANS

A cotton harvest of 20,000 bales or more was forecast for Mitchell county before the recent rains by George A. Wall of the Southern Cotton company, according to a news item carried recently by the Abilene Reporter-News.

Wall conceded that his estimates would probably be upped considerably by the timely season received in the latter part of July. A portion of his estimate story follows:

"While the total production this year is expected to be below that of 1937 because of the 30 per cent reduction in acreage, the per-acre yield probably will be higher. The usual seasonal conditions have caused an outlook for five to 10 per cent greater production.

"Geo. A. Wall of the Southern Cotton company says conditions this year compare favorably with that of 1914, 1919, 1928 and 1932, all bumper crop years. He pointed out that during those years the rainfall was heavy during summer months and in each instance the total precipitation at end of July was more inches.

"Last year in an estimate of the cotton yield that appeared in the Reporter-News, Mr. Wall was within five per cent of the total yield throughout the territory.

"The following chart shows Mr. Wall's 1936 estimate by county and the 1937 production—keeping in mind there is a 30 per cent acreage reduction:

County	1937	1938
Taylor	33,000	27,000
Noian	27,000	17,500
Jones	67,115	45,000
Fisher	44,329	32,000
Scurry	47,000	25,000
Mitnell	29,565	20,000
Howard	47,114	20,000
Coleman	25,863	20,000
Loke	3,314	3,500

"Mr. Wall made this estimate before the recent rains, and said in some instances the production will probably be higher. In practically every county he found better conditions than in 1937."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To The Colorado Record:
SEVEN WELLS

A natural name for a place of unequalled scenic beauty and a rare field for scientific research.

This is not a scientific article but the query of an amateur whose curiosity is very much aroused over recent and interesting discoveries near Seven Wells. How much do we know of the natural history of this region, and what has been done in the way of scientific research? If there is any published work on the natural history or geology of this section I would like to know where I can get them. I have naturally supposed the climate to have always been semi-arid, but a recent discovery has led me to believe otherwise, and I would like very much to hear from others that are interested in this work and exchange viewpoints.

My curiosity was first aroused by a flint with a pinkish outer covering that often occurs in a freak form—caricatures of some animal, or the nose, ear, or finger of a human being. Many contain shell fossils in the outer layer, and I have one that has a small fossil in the flinty section. The curious thing about them however, is they all seem to run to a certain form. I have many small pieces that seem to have been broken or stopped in some stage of development, or poured into an imperfect mold. As if to prove this theory I found two almost perfect cone-shaped stones with a round hole almost directly in the center about the size of a lead pencil, and I have seen several others. Some think they are an Indian relic but this seems unlikely from the natural pinkish covering over the flint, and they do not have the roughened look of artificiality of the Indian relics.

Next in line is a dark brown stone. Something like lava mixed with sandstone. This also occurs in many freakish forms, but its main interest is in the imprint and petrified wood it contains. I have a specimen that has the imprint of the taproot of a small tree or bush, also the main lateral roots, though the wood itself has rotted away. Then there are pieces that have what appear to be worm holes, and was suddenly stopped at a certain stage of decay.

It was while searching in the creek bed for specimens that would shed a little more light on the subject that I made my prize discovery. A bone splinter of enormous size when compared with bones of the largest animals of today, about one inch thick, many times the thickness of the bones of the largest cow or horse. Also fragments of tusk-like teeth of some strange animal, two or three inches long and the part not broken an inch or more wide, though not over a half inch thick, with the root curving inward at about a forty-five degree angle. What strange animal was this? Obviously not the same as the one of the giant bone.

I began a systematic search of each side draw and canyon and found what appears to be an old seashore, the stone and pebbles along a steep incline are rich in fossilized shell of oyster and other sea shells. At one point the sand and small stones have solidified into a solid mass of rock that bears what appears to be human footprints made by feet encased in moccasins or other soft sole footwear, with from one to three clear prints of toes, corresponding in size to the first, second and third toe of a human foot. But I did not tarry long at this place. I kept thinking about a deep ravine that ran into the creek a short distance up the creek from my first discovery. About half way up its course I found another splinter that was broken from the first one I found. I searched literally every inch of the floor and walls of the ravine, but it was not until the recent rains that I found part of the largest skeleton I ever saw. The bones were so badly decayed I saved only four large pieces, the skull had already crumbled to fragments, but I have two enormous teeth, ten inches long, nine inches thick, and four inches wide. One still has a section of jaw bone attached. Chipped and broken pieces in the petrified stone covering shows the outer layer of enamel of the back molars of a mammoth vegetable animal.

They say "seein' is believin'" and "truth is stranger than fiction," but my wife says "they just ain't no

Harlen Barber and Will Stamp of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Hampton of DeLeon.

He is only advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, and whose spirit is entering into living peace. And the men who have this life in them are the true lords and kings of the earth—they, and they only.

The most solid comfort one can fall back upon is the thought that the business of one's life is to help in some small way to reduce the sum of ignorance and degradation, and misery on the face of this beautiful earth.

Neither gold nor grandeur can render us happy.

A friend is the first person who comes in when the whole world has gone out.

MONEY SAVING SALE

There's no let-up in the continued sweep of gas floor furnace popularity in the Southwest. Each year more and more people are replacing other types of heat with circulated warmth as provided by floor furnace or circulating heater. And it is little wonder, for circulating heat is the most healthful kind of warmth. With one there are no chilling drafts at your back or down at your feet. It sends a flow of warm air into every part of the room. It stops wall sweating. Switch to this better heat now and enjoy the most comfortable winter you've ever known.
