WASHINGTON NOTES.

A CLERK in the Examiner's division of the Pension Bureau named J. J. Alley and a pension agent named J. C. Ællmet were recently arrested on the charge of having defrauded pensioners. Officials of the Pension Bureau say they have evidence of conspiracy between the clerks in the Pension Office and Ællmett, by which applicants ator. for pensions have been defrauded on representation of the ability of the conspirators to push along their claims and secure them pensions in advance of regular proceedings of the office. Other clerks in the conspiracy will be arrested.

KANSAS STATE NEWS.

THE little town of Soldier, on the Kansas Central Railroad, was lately visited by a storm which was very destructive. A residence in the outskirts was the first one wrecked and a moment afterward the full fury of a terrific tornado was vented upon the town itself. In a few moments the business block on the east side of the main street, containing fifteen houses, was to-tally demolished. The air was filled with flying timbers, and as the terrible noise of the angry winds subsided, the groans of the wounded and dying rose upon the air. The rain fell in torrents for a time, but the news of the disaster spread rapidly, and all the inhabitants of the town soon gathered about the wrecks in the track of the tornado. It was late at night, but lanterns were provided and search for the victims commenced. The bodies of Mrs. Channel, Mrs. Walters, Mrs. Owen and infant three months old were taken out. The loss to property was estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000.

T. J. Anderson, Department Commander, announces to the members of the Grand Army of the Republic who wish to attend the National Encampment at Denver, that the Colorado pool lines have agreed to allow connecting lines by Kansas to use $15 for the Grand Army rate, basing the rate for through tickets for posts belonging to Kansas. It has also been agreed that Grand Army posts in Kansas traveling west bound on a solid ticket can return singly any time during the month of August on the payment of $1.50 extra, such return ticket to be good only on the line over which the passenger traveled westward. This action on the part of the railroads removes the last obstacle, and it is expected the attendance from Kansas will be very large.

Two cases of paramount importance to the people of Kansas, and to the stockholders of the Kansas Pacific Railway Company were instituted by Attorney General Johnston last week in the Supreme Court. The cases are the quo warranto suits against the Kansas Pacific and Union Pacific railroad companies, which were directed to be brought by the last Legislature. In Sedgwick County sixty-five thousand acres of wheat have been harvested in fine condition, and which will prove more than an average yield. Oats, of which an imnense acreage was sown, are reported very fine, the grain standing five feet high in many fields. Sedgwick County reports 138,000 acres of corn, which is now in tassel. The late rain insured early maturity and a big yield, probably no less than 5,000,000 bushels for that county alone. Potatoes and the field crops are also in very fine condition.

The Trouble With the Party.

The Republicans frequently make the charge against the Democratic party that it is too Democratic. They are fond of quoting the expression of a local leader many years ago that he would vote for Beelzebub as a regular Democratic nominee.

The only trouble about the Democratic party is that its leaders are so often not Democratic enough. The masses of the Democracy are sound and reliable. They attach them-selves politically to the Democratic party because it represents the rights of the people of all classes, of all nationalities, of all colors. Because it opposes oppression in every form. Be-cause it is, in fact, the upholder of a Republican Government, with equal rights for all, as opposed to an oligarchy, whether under the form of mon-

The people are Democratic enough because they are Democrats on principle. They do not live on office. They covet no political honors. Party success is precious to them, not for the patronage it brings, not for the spoils it secures, but because the principles they believe in insure the liberty, happiness and contentment of all the citizens of the Republic, whether rich or poor.

archy, federalism, whigism or central-

We have no wish to do injustice to the great leaders of the party. Many of them are as pure, unselfish and patriotic as they are able. But it a truism that the people have been for years in advance of the leaders.

Since the party has been in a mi-nority the history of its managers has been too often a history of compro-mises, bargains and "deals." The Democratic masses have been too frequently sold out by their leaders to personal ambitions, revenge personal grievances and satisfy personal greed. Factions have sprung up with-in the party, and all factions alike have unfortunately been ready to make combinations in a small way with their political opponents at the sacrifice of principle. Trades and bargains have been arranged in the city Government. in the Board of Aldermen, in the Legislature and in Congress. In all these the leaders and managers have shown themselves not Democratic enough. We have seen it time and again in this city when Democratic factions have entered into alliance with Republicans for the sole purpose of gaining offices from opposing Democratic factions and dividing them with their Republican when Democrats stood up to strengthen the hands and whitewash the character of the Blind-Pool gambler who dragged the high office of Governor through the mud in order to raise himself from a bankrupt to a millionaire. We have seen it time and again at Washington when prominent Democrats, having struck the trail of Republican crimes, have turned from the track, made bargains with the Republican criminals and prostituted their polit-

The Democratic people have never been in sympathy with their false "leaders" in their betrayal of Democratic principles. They have repeatedly manifested their disapproval by absenting themselves from the polls. The leaders and their management have not been Democratic enough to win the confidence of their followers. Let the leaders now be bold and firm in their Democracy and the Democratic masses will make a prompt response. Those masses were true as steel during the war, when they were subjected to the cruelest slanders and misrepresentations, and when their political affiliations placed them in a false position. They have been true as steel through nearly a arter of a century's absence from wer. They are true as steel to-day. f the leaders are firm and faithful to true Democratic principles-if they are Democratic enough—the fidelity of the masses will insure the redemption of the country from Republican misrule.— ing to deplore the failure of justice in the the country from Republican misrule.-

Dorsey as a Dynamiter.

Dorsey's threats to expose the Republican campaign and Republican cam-paign methods of 1880 are very distinct, not very definite. His connection with the Star-Route frauds proves that he is as desperate as he is unscrupulous. His temper during the trial was ugly. and he betrayed a vindictive as well as ruffianly disposition in knocking down and kicking the prostrate body of a weak old man who had produced testimony adverse to him. A man ca-pable of thus prejudicing his case in the eyes of all intelligent and decent people, and a man capable of resorting to legal tactics and devices necessary to clear a guilty man, but not to acquit an innocent one, is not a man to hesitate in his revenge, nor to be nice about his methods. If, as he says, he has documents in hand implicating some of the most distinguished members of the Republican party, it will be a very delicate and difficult piece of business to restrain him from making use of them. Had he been convicted, he might have bought a pardon by promise of silence. But having been acquitted, he has no favors to ask and probably is in no conciliatory mood. An intimate acquaintance of Dorsey's says he has several letters from Logan which will make interesting reading on the eve of the National Convention, and his feeling toward Logan is already shown million. member of the National Republican Committee, who, he said, made a brutal assault upon him, and whom he de-nounces as an "ambitious hypocrite." That "ambitious hypocrite" is Senator Logan, and Dorsey's dynamite is ready for him the moment he chooses to provoke the great Star-route desperado into putting a match to it.

"But Dorsey has other crows to pick," says this intimate friend. "He can show the weak spots of many eminent Republicans. If he were to tell all he knows even President Arthur world confirm in the Execution Confirmation. would squirm in the Executive chair. Dorsey, however, may not use all his powers of retaliation. He has had provocation enough to bring all his persecutors down on their marrow bones. He is not vindictive, but there may be circumstances which will compel him to act for the sake of further vindication of his character. I tell you he is the Samson that can pull down the pillars of the Republican temple. Whether he will exert his strength or not remains to be seen. I think he will. Then woe betide the Philistines." The dynamiters hovering about the Govern-ment buildings in London and Dublin are as beloved and cherished by the English Government as is Dorsey with his dynamite by the leaders of the Republican party.—Detroit Free Press.

A Change Imperatively Demanded.

The Star-route defendants were Re-Republican Administration, tried by a Republican Judge, and acquitted by a Republican jury. But the country has seen greater crimes not only condoned but approved by the party which has held continued possession of the Gov. held continued possession of the Gov-ernment for twenty-two years. The scandals of Grantism did not weaken the hold of the President on his party. The Treasury Ring, the Navy Ring, the Post-office Ring, the Army Ring, the Indian Ring, the Land Ring, the Pension Ring, the Printing Ring, the Whisky Ring, the Washington Ring, all flourished under Grant, and some of their villanies were traced quite to the door of the White House itself. Babcock was indicted, when Private Secretary of the President, for complicity in the Whisky Ring. General Grant saved him from the penitentiary by direct Executive interference.

Black Friday was one of the incidents of Republican misrule. Credit Mobilier was an illustration of it. "The Freedman's Bank was robbed, and gutted by man's Bank was robbed and gutted by Republican philanthropists, who shed brother and stole the savings of his wife and children. The San Domingo job was whitewashed by conspicuous Republicans. Republicans looted the Navy. The Emma Mine exposure, the corrupt Venezuelan Commission, the fraudulent Mexican claims, the plunder of Indian tribes, the speculations in public loans, and the collusion in the departments with outside thieves swell the Republican record the Republican record.

When a Republican Congress passed When a Republican Congress passed the salary grab and the back-pay steal, they only kept time to the quickstep of robbery, with Secor Robeson's marine band furnishing the music. And after indignant public opinion compelled a retreat from that barefaced scheme of spoliation, the doubled salary of the President was preserved as a special compliment to Grant.

The jobbers, the ringsters, the plunderers, the adventurers, and the thieves who invested the White House demanded a third term for Grant. The third-term conspiracy failed only because the party feared a crushing defeat if the experiment was tried.

Great corporations are now control-ling legislation on many matters in which they are interested. They have corrupted and packed courts, and they keep Republican sentiness posted along the avenues leading to all the departments.

Repeated investigations have shown that the great ledgers of the Treasury have been mutilated, that balances involving many millions of dollars have been forced, that erasures and interpolated figures exist by thousands, and that books of account have disappeared. The Presidency was stolen in 1876, and some of the beneficiaries of that Star-route cases. The party that applanded the Great Fraud which carried Hayes into the White House and Sherman into the Treasury, and appropriated all the proceeds of the crime, did not scruple, four years later, to support a candidate whose whole public career was stained with jobbbery. The men who committed the crimes in this long catalogue, or their creatures and representatives, are still in office. They hold the fort, and resist all intrusion. They know how to turn aside dangerous investigation. They sound the alarm at the first approach of the enemy. They mount guard by day and by night over the records. They know how the Navy Department was fired four times within a few weeks.

There is no possibility of reform, or of purification of the public service, while this condition of things exists. All the essays and rules of Eaton, Gregory and Thoman are worth no more for that purpose than the chattering of so many monkeys in a menagerie other issues sink into insignificance when compared with the magnitude of this question. First of all, the country must have a change of party, the in-fusion of new blood into the management of public affairs, and clean hands in every branch of the public service.

-It is a common opinion (says a Pennsylvania farmer) that exposure to the sun is injurious to manure, and the pinion is probably well founded. The sun dries the manure-that we knowand removes the moisture from it. This moisture in the manure absorbs whatever ammonia may have been formed by the decomposition of the organic matter, and, of course, the vapor so formed carries off with it the volatile or gaseous ammonia. So that the exposure of manure to the sun with repeated moistening and drying of the manure will in time completely remove all the valuable nitrogen in it, from which the ammonia is derived, and which is the most useful part of the

Ido not know whether any of you have tried ensilage for feeding cattle. It bears the same relation to the diet of cattle as canned vegetables do to the diet of man. It is nothing more than fodder cut up green and packed in an immense tub, called ensilage, and then fed in a green state to the cattle during the winter. Many have been deterred from trying it on account of supposed expense, others because they thought it in time revolutionize northern farming. My experience was about like this: We dug a hole in a sand knoll four feet deep and twelve by sixteen feet, put a drain of tile around it six inches deeper than the bottom. Planked the bottom, and then put four by four, sixteen feet scantling on every side and planked them inside and out with two inch plank. We did not plane the edges, but I should advise others to do so. I sowed about two acres, on the first of July, with corn, broadcast. The land had been poor, but was heavily manured before to the top of the silo, and was geared to the cutter. The fodder was thrown from the wagon on to a table before the cutter, and run through immediately. As fast as the corn was cut the elevator carried it into the silo, where two men trod it down. The thirty-two loads were put into a space twelve by sixteen "surface measure" and eleven feet deep. Plank were laid across the top of the mass and from ten to fifteen tons of stone placed on the plank. Within a week the top had settled three feet, leaving the contents twelve by sixteen and eight feet deep. This was not disturbed until December 15, when a door was cut into the side. The contents were fresh and sweet. The cattle ate it with avidity. After enough had been taken out so that you could stand in the cavity, it gave out an odor like an empty molasses hogshead. We fed twelve cows and many colts, yearlings and two-year-olds from it. It was liked by them all. We were not exact enough to give figures, but my farmer was convinced that it went as far as twenty tons of good hay —to put it within bounds. The lumber amounted to less than 4,000 feet board measure. I think two men could put it up in three days. The cost was about $50. The silo is a capital storehouse for lodged oats, or any crops which it is difficult to cure. Rather than have hay rained upon and bleached, I would put it into the silo. - From Senator Palmer's address before the Western Michigan Farmers' Club.

The erowd, which was by this time quite large, wanted to know how about the broken watch and parasol. He said he simply happened to clutch them in trying to save himself. They asked him why he ran so hard if he was innocent. He wanted to know what a man could do but run when a lady screamed like that at him. Then begged again that the young lady would not prosecute him, saying that if she proceeded against him it would disgrace his family forever. Hating publicity and being too tenderhearted to play the role of prosecutor for the good of the public, she said that if the nasty man would just go where she would never see him again she would be glad of it. The captors were very indignant at her leniency toward a fellow so richly deserving of punishment, but of course they could do nothing but release him. -St. Louis Repub-

They are killing the sea lions for their skins and fat. The latter they are "trying out" for oil on the rocks. At one place Captain Larco found a colony of Chinamen engaged in gathering abalones and catching and drying rock cod and bluefish for shipment to China. They have accumulated several tons of dried fish and will soon have a sowing. On September 12 I cut it load for a schooner. The most interest with an ordinary mower. There were ing portion of Captain Larco's story was with an ordinary, mower. There were thirty-two loads of green corn fodder, my farmer thought a ton to a load. I used a $35 feed cutter, placed outside the barn in which the silo had been built. An elevator ran from the cutter of the silo and was genered to about three acres. The sides are precipitous and almost inaccessible except during calm weather: While becalmed near the rock he visited it and was amazed at the scene presented to his vision. The island is covered with a layer of guano, in which sea fowls of all descriptions were tound laying or incubating their eggs. The surface appeared to be almost entirely covered with eggs, principally those of sea gulls, shaggs and a small bird known as the salt water duck. He says it was difficult to walk without treading upon the eggs. He brought away several bushels of these eggs. The shage's aggs are of of these eggs. The shagg's eggs are of a light blue color and somewhat smaller than a domestic hen's egg. The gull eggs are somewhat larger in size, light brown, spotted with black dots. Larce says he could easily load a ship with these eggs from this island, but as there is no market for them here they are not worth gathering.—Boston Journal.

Perilous Adventure of a Baby.

The one and one-half year-old son of Mr. Pierce, of this city, narrowly escaped a terrible death yesterday. The Pierce family occupy rooms on the third floor of No. 506 Market street, and yesterday morning about eight o'clock, the child was lying on a sofa in night clothes opposite a window facing the police station. Mrs. Pierce had her back to the window, and turned around just in time to see the child's body disappear. Half wild with fright, she tore down-stairs, expecting to find the mangled remains of her boy on the pavement below, but upon reaching the ground she was attracted by screams, and, looking up, saw her child suspended in the air by his night-gown, which had fortunately caught in a nail projecting from the window-sill. The mother shrieked and started upstairs fearing the heavy would fell here. stairs, fearing the boy would fall before she could reach him. The cloth was strong, however, and the boy was reseued from his perilous position uninjured. After the excitement was over Mrs. Pierce fell in a dead faint across the window-sill, but she was soon revived with the assistance of the neighbors - Wilmington (Del.) Evening.

Had to Go On.

In the panicky days of 1872 a Baltimore dealer went to a trusted friend and asked his advice in regard to failing, and effecting a cheap settlement with his creditors.

·What are your liabilities?" was asked. "About $2,000."

"And your assets?"

"Oh, I'm worth about $50,000." "And how much do you hope to beat your creditors out of?' "Well, perhaps $1,200."

"My dear sir, you are next door to a business idiot! Where you beat your creditors out of $1,200, the lawyers will beat you out of $2,400. You have started altogether wrong. You should be worth $2,000 and be in debt $50,000. Let this be a solemn warning never to do such a foolish thing again. No, sir, you can't fail. Go back to business and pay dollar for dollar, and it will serve you just right, too."

The dealer followed the advice, and it wasn't until last year that he could bring a failure around and settle for twelve cents on the dollar .- Wall Street News.

Secret She Reveals for the Benefit of Women.

(New York World.) Several years ago the American public were aroused by the entree upon the stage of a little lady who had been previously out little announced. She was one of an innumerable number of aspirants for public favor and had no instrumentality, aside from her own talents, to cause recognition. from her own talents, to cause recognition. In spite of this fact, however, she quickly achieved a warm place in the heart of the public which she has continued to hold ever since. When it was announced, therefore, that Miss Maude Granger would star the coming season in the play "Her Second Love," written by Mr. John A. Stevens, it was only natural that musual interest Love," written by Mr. John A. Stevens, it was only natural that unusual interest should be manifested not only in theatrical circles, but in other branches of the community. This was specially the case, as it was known that Miss Granger had, for the past year, been in exceedingly delicate health, and the determination to star in a strong emotional play was the more surprising. One of the staff of this paper was accordingly deputized to see the popular lady and verify the rumor or announce its incorrectness.

Miss Granger's countenance is familiar nearly every one in the United States. It is a face once seen never to be forgotten. Features remarkable in their outline and Features remarkable in fheir outline and contour are surmounted by a pair of large and deep eyes indicative of the greatest soul power. It is easy to see where Miss Granger obtains the ability to portray characters of the most emotional nature. She possesses within herself the elements of feeling without which no emotion can be conveyed to an audience. The man of news found the lady at her home in this city and was accorded a quiet welcome. It was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and color of her countenance both indicated.

"Is it true, Miss Granger, that you contemplate a starring tour the coming season?"

"Yes, indeed. My season begins in Chicago on the 16th of July. From there I go to San Francisco and then play the remainder of the season through the Eastern and Western States."

"Are you confident your health will per-

and Western States."

"Are you confident your health will permit such an undertaking?"
A ringing laugh was the first reply to this question, after which she said:

"Certainly. It is true I have been ill for the past two years, but now I am wholly recovered. Few people can have any idea of the strain a conscientious actress undergoes in essaying an emotional part. It is necessary to put one's whole soul into the work in order to rightly portray the character. This necessitates an utter abandoment of one's personality and an assumption of the character portrayed. If this is an emotional part it is necessary to feel the same emotions the part is supposed to feel.

an emotional part it is necessary to feet the same emotions the part is supposed to feel. For more than a year I actually cried each light in certain passages of a part I was playing. The audience considered it art. Probably it was, but those were none the less real tears and the effect was none the less trying upon my health."

"But do you sufficients a waiding this in less real tears and the effect was none the less trying upon my health."

"But do you anticipate avoiding this in the future?"

"Not in the least. I expect to have just as great a strain as before, but with restored health and a knowledge of how to retain it I do not fear."

"You speak of a 'knowledge of how to retain health.' Will you please explain what you mean by that?"

You must be aware that women by their very natures are subject to troubles and afflictions unknown to the sterner sex. The name of these troubles is legion, but in whatever form they may come they are weaknesses which interfere with every ambition and hope in life. I believe thousands of noble women are to-day suffering agonies of which even their best friends and relatives know little or nothing, and agones of which even their best friends and relatives know little or nothing, and when I reflect upon it 1 confess it makes me sad. Now all this misery arises large-ly from an ignorance of the laws of life or a neglect to carefully observe them. I speak from the depths of a bitter experi-ence in saying this, and I am thankful I know the means of restoration, and how to know the means of restoration, and how to know the means of restoration, and how to remain in perfect health."

"Please explain more fully,"

"Well, I have found a remedy which seems specially adapted for this very purpose. It is pure and palatable and controls the health and life as, I believe, nothing else will. It is really invaluable and if all the women in America were to use it I am quite sure most of the suffering and many deaths might be avoided."

"What is this wooderful remedy?"

"What is this wonderful remedy?"
"Warner's Safe Cure."

"Warner's Safe Cure."
"And you use it?"
"Constantly."
"And hence believe you will be able to go through the coming season successfully?"
"I am quite certain of it."
"A few questions more, Miss Granger.
Will you please give me a list of the parts you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in public?"

you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in public?"

"I first played for some time with the amateurs in New York and Brooklyn. I then went to the Union Square theater for two seasons, after that to the Boston Globe for one season and then to Booth's theater in this city. Next I supported John McCullough and afterwards starred in Juliet, Camille, Rosalind, etc. Subsequently I created the part of Cicely Blaine in the Galley Slave and also starred in Two Nights in Rome, playing the part of Antonia. The past year I have been playing in the Planter's Wife and the coming season, as I have said, will be devoted to Her Second Love."

As the writer was returning home he fell into a train of musing and wondered if all the women in this land who are suffering could only know Miss Granger's experience and the remarkable results achieved by the pure remedy she used, how much happiness secured.
