

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

VOLUME THIRTY-SEVEN.

GOLDTHWAITE, MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1932

NUMBER FIFTY

SIX BURGLARIES

Burglars were pretty busy in the eastern part of the county and along the border Tuesday night.

D. A. Jeske's store at Star was entered, the knob was knocked off the safe and about $13 in money was taken. It is possible Mr. Jeske also lost some merchandise, but it could not be missed immediately.

The Star bank building, which is now only occupied as an office was entered and the knob knocked off the safe, but nothing was taken, as the safe could not be opened. This is the second time an effort has been made to rob the safe since the bank was closed. It was evidently the work of strangers who did not know the bank was not being operated.

The door of Shelton's Cash & Carry store was then entered, but Mr. Shelton sleeps in the store and was awakened by the entrance of the burglars and when he appeared with his shotgun they moved off. Their car was parked near Mr. Jeske's store and they left Star going toward Gatesville.

Jim Tom Brown's store at Moline was burglarized, as was also the filling station at Moline. Some gasoline was stolen from the station and a small amount of money and some merchandise was taken from the store. On the same night as the Star and Moline burglaries John Kuykendall's store at Scallorn was burglarized. The thieves took some canned goods and confections and also stole Mr. Kuykendall's shotgun.

Every lead possible is being followed by the sheriff's department, but there is mighty little hope for apprehending the guilty parties. One fact that makes it reasonably certain that the burglaries were all committed by the same parties is that a nail puller and box opener taken from the Kuykendall store at Scallorn was found at Star.

BOY SCOUT AREA ENLARGED

The Pecan Valley Area Boy Scouts of America and the Oil Belt Area Council of the Boy Scouts have been merged and officers elected for the new year. The Pecan Valley was composed of the counties of Brown, Mills, Erath, Lampasas, Comanche and San Saba, while the Oil Belt had two counties, Eastland and Stephens.

The Goldthwaite district was composed of this county having two executive officers, Earl Fairman was elected vice-president and O. H. Yarborough as finance chairman. The Area is in better condition financially and from a standpoint of Scouts and Scouting activities this year, and plans are going forward for the best Scout year we have had in this district.

G. N. Quirls was elected as the executive, with headquarters retained in Brownwood, C. L. Pouncey will assist Mr. Quirls. Dr. Jewell Daugherty is president of the new council, which has been named the Comanche Trail Council, and the next charter application will apply to the National Council for the new name. While Scouting activities have been retrenched for some few months, they will be carried out with renewed activity soon.

SCOUT.

A SERIOUS DIFFICULTY

Tuesday morning two campers near the stock pens, in the southern portion of the city, engaged in a difficulty and one was seriously cut about the face and head. The injured man gave the name of Edward Harrigan and stated his age to be 47. He was given medical attention and afterwards placed in jail for further investigation.

A man about 70 years of age, giving the name of J. B. Lane, was arrested Wednesday on the railroad right-of-way near Scallorn and was placed in jail charged with having done the cutting and the injured man identified him as his assailant. The injured man had nothing of value about him, but the old man carried two suits of Curlee clothes.

COLONIAL TEA

Wednesday, February 24, 1932, 3:30 p. m., Sullivan residence. The Sullivan home presented a pretty picture with waving American flags, burning candles of red, white and blue and cut flowers were even more beautiful in the colors of red, white and blue.

The color note of red, white and blue was carried out in the dining room. The table was covered with Normandy lace and centered with a silver bowl of red, white and blue carnations with the color note repeated in the candles held in silver candlesticks and at intervals from mounds arose the nation's banner. The salad plates were adorned with miniature replicas of the flag.

Mmes. S. P. Sullivan, R. L. Armstrong, Al Dickerson, Fred Martin, members of the Schubert club, were hostesses.

JOHNSON ADDS TO BENGALS' THREAT

Paul Johnson, who has just become eligible for competition with the University track team this semester, promises to be one of the best hurdlers in the Big Six, according to Dewey Youngblood, assistant coach. Johnson has been high-point man in the last two track meets, against Westminster and Kansas University.

Johnson was a three-letter man in both track and football during his high school days at Goldthwaite, Texas, and was also high man of his graduating class.

He attended one year at Daniel Baker college in Brownwood, Texas, where he won a letter in track and another in football.

Johnson was an outstanding man on the Tiger freshman track team last spring, being high-point man in two meets. Last fall he helped his fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, win the intramural track championship.

The above is a report from the University of Missouri. Young Johnson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Johnson of this city and his former class mates and other friends here are proud of the record he is making.

HOME GARDENS FOR EMPLOYMENT AND FOOD

In this time of depression when money is scarce and jobs not plentiful, a vegetable garden can be of great assistance in furnishing the proper kind of food for the best of health. While we all know that there is a national surplus of foodstuffs, we also know that many families are not in position to share that surplus.

Every family in Mills county should have a vegetable garden, and now is the time to plant. Each garden should yield enough food for home consumption; any over and above this demand should be canned for winter use. A small plot of ground will yield a surprising amount of vegetables. This section is especially adaptable for growing Irish and sweet potatoes, beans, peas, beets, okra, egg plant, mustard, turnips, spinach and many others. Mustard, turnips and spinach seeds should be covered with screen wire or fine brush, to protect the young plants from birds.

If you have no garden plot, make arrangements with owners of vacant lots. Let every family in Mills county have a vegetable garden. Its objective will be twofold—besides enjoying fine, fresh vegetables from your garden, it will give employment to a number of idle men.

Chairman Civic Committee, ART AND CIVIC CLUB.

BAPTIST CHURCH

After consulting with professors, editors and Mr. Webster we have come to the conclusion that the word Sino is a Greek word for Chinese, and newspaper writers use the word in order to save time and space; thus teaching a lesson in economics and some of us certainly need such a lesson.

Several of our folk are confined to their room on account of illness. We might not have been to see you, but we certainly are interested and hope that all will be out soon taking their usual turn in helping to carry on our regular community affairs.

We hope that when you read these lines you will be up and feeling fine.

We were entertained for lunch last Sunday at the Saylor Hotel by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miller. We had a delightful time and a good meal, well prepared, for which we are very grateful.

Several motored out to Lake Merritt Friday night and helped render a program to a large crowd. Everyone on the program from town and those of the Lake Merritt school did their parts well, unless it was the writer of these notes. Anyway, we never said that George Washington's father died at the age of 11 years.

We have been asking about W. P. Weaver of late. Seems that most anyone can tell us something of his whereabouts during the week. We hear of him being all over the county, but no one seems to know anything about his whereabouts on Sunday. He is missing some mighty good preaching at the Baptist church and he needs it; as well as some of the rest of these fellows who slip away on Sunday. We want to be lenient with all the brethren, but you ought to come to church when not providentially hindered.

Of course, we know that a goat will eat all the week a hundred yards from the fence and on Sunday morning go right to the fence and put his head thru the wire and get hung and its owner will have to go unloose him, and we do not blame you for that, but do your best to get back in time for church.

We have been informed that the cat hunter, better known as L. E. Booker, has changed his vocation. He has had his picture made and if anybody should need one it can be had from the San Saba music company. Should you desire other information inquire of the Archer Grocery Co.

One by one the old citizens of our community are passing away. We buried the oldest member of our church last Sunday in the person of Bro. W. T. Lucas. He had passed his 91st birthday. Not many of us will ever reach that age. As we laid his mortal remains in the new-made grave to await the coming back of our Savior, I thought of several others who have been here their allotted time and will soon be passing away. It's true many of us younger folk may go ahead of them, but we know that after a man has lived three-score years and ten it is just a question of time until he must answer the call. It looks like men would give their best thought to the greatest thing they could possess. They need it when they come to die. They will need it when they go into judgment, and that is the Christian religion. We were visiting a home this week, where a man was seriously ill and he realized it. He said that, of course, he wanted to live to be with his family, but as far as the future was concerned he had no fears, for he had embraced the Christian religion and that he was ready to go to the call of his Lord. How many of you who read these lines, if you knew death was just outside the door, could you say I am ready for my soul to go into the presence of God? Men, some of you are afraid that you will lose a dime or that someone will rob you, and many of you are robbing your soul of the only thing that will do to, live by, die by, and go into the presence of God with, and that is the Christian religion. Go on, make all the money you can, never give a pen-

STAR SCHOOL NEWS

At last old man Bad Weather has been dethroned and his arch enemy Beautiful Sunshine, is reigning amidst happy shouts and ovations from his people. Mr. Irregularity has tendered his position and the boys and girls are sumptuously crowning punctuality with gorgeous diadems. Classes are getting back to normal. The extra-curricula activities are receiving their due attention. May this beautiful and pleasing condition continue to exist for awhile.

The George Washington program on last Friday evening was one of much educational value. The ideals of this great national hero were presented in such a manner that they will never be forgotten. The character of Washington was so vividly exemplified that every boy and girl, regardless of age, should have been able to detect each element of character building. Mr. Gerold in his opening remarks paved the way for the program by comparing Washington with such men as Napoleon, Alexander and Caesar and explaining that Washington's greatness, unlike that of Napoleon, Alexander and Caesar lay in the fact that he wanted to help establish a nation with a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

Highlights Around the High School

Last week our debating teams crossed fire with the Evant debaters in a practice contest. Both schools have orators worthy of praise. On Wednesday of this week the teams went to Evant for another contest. We are proud of our debaters. They are making an excellent start.

The declaimers are doing some intensive work at present. Each one aspires to be the school representative in declamation at the County Meet. This correspondent hopes that from the host of available speakers in the club, county winners will spring forth. Many groans are heard in and around the school buildings, complaining about having too much work to do. This writer is wondering if anything worthwhile is not worth working for. All play and no work maketh Jack a dull boy.

The biology class has finished the study of animals and the students are having an interesting time working out the details of respiration, photosynthesis and many other functions of the plant.

LaEstrella, the Spanish club, has at last gotten down to real work on the Spanish program. The students are having lots of fun speaking their lines.

By the time this is seen in print the Star sextette will have played two basketball games. One at Evant and one at Star with Goldthwaite.

Happenings in the Grades

The reporter wishes to compliment the grades for the splendid part played by them in the program last Friday night. Our hats are off to the grade teachers. They are not only class instructors, but train the boys and girls in elementary stage work.

The primary children did their best to help make the Washington program entertaining. A little play, "Why Washington was a hero" was successfully enacted by Mildred Jeske, Volia Collier, Jane Waddill, Leroy Harper, Eval Horton and Wesley Waddill.

James Childre and Margaret Dean Putnam sang a duet.

The Echo, an interesting little dialogue, was given by Letha Mae Karnes, Nelma Stephan, Elwis Wayne Roberts, Sherlie Lucas. The entire group of primary children sang a patriotic song, to prove that they were loyal little citizens.

BLUE BONNET BEDS

Have you planted your Blue Bonnet bed? If not, it is time. The woods are full of Blue Bonnet plants. Have you planted yours?

ny to God, have a good time, die, leave your good time and your money, go into the presence of God empty handed. PASTOR.

Dr. S. Jones of Chicago has withdrawn his offer to pull teeth or cure toothaches in exchange for a pound of coffee, a second-hand radio or what have you. The end of all bartering came when a patient presented an old-fashioned, high-wheel bicycle in payment for a filling.

Frank Mack, who off and on for more than twenty-three years had been an inmate at the Albany, N. Y., county poorhouse, died recently, leaving $1200 in cash. The county has filed a claim to recover some of the $10,542.85 that his maintenance cost during the last ten years.

E. G. Holmes of Chicago had an original idea for public service. SECOND WIND

Anyone who has indulged in strenuous exertion knows what "getting the second wind" means. There are a lot of people and a lot of industries getting their "second wind" in a business and financial way today.

Those industries and individuals with constitutions strong enough to stand the "reducing process" of the past two years have sweated off their overload of fat, secured "their second wind" and are ready for real work.

There is nothing unusual about the experience we have been through. It was a whole lot like a great national banquet. Most of the guests not only gorged themselves on healthful food, but ate all the indigestible viands they could swallow. Their "morning after" was inevitable. But it was so severe that many of them are still frightened of all nourishment—good as well as bad.

Retrenchment, economy and starvation diets, now being practiced in the extreme, do as much harm as the reign of gluttony and extravagance that preceded them.

The nation now depends on the men and industries that have their "second wind" and are ready to proceed on a normal diet of production and earnings.

OZARK WOMEN FIGHT DEPRESSION

Unique ways of meeting the depression in Arkansas and Iowa are reported. From Bentonville, Ark., comes the news that the loom, forgotten for years, has been rescued from the attic and set up for business in many an Ozark home. Women of North Arkansas, spurred by economic conditions, are learning to fashion rugs, bedspreads, table covers and quilts for sale to tourists visiting that picturesque region. One group of women, specializing in woven rugs, sold almost $1000 worth of their handwork last summer. A report from Harlan, Iowa, says ancient bartering methods are being revived generally there. Members of a Danish Lutheran church are making their church contributions in corn.

BID TO JAPANESE SANITY

The statement of Secretary Stimson on the Far Eastern situation probably will go down in history as one of the important pronouncements of our government.

Certainly the position of America is now clear to the world. Other nations have been invited to join us in that position, but we have gone ahead without waiting their approval.

We state that the nine-power treaty has been violated in China.

We state that the nine-power treaty is one of a series of interrelated treaties, including the Washington naval limitation treaty, of which the London treaty signed last year is a sequel.

We state that strict adherence to the nine-power treaty on the part of all signers was and is a prerequisite to our voluntary limitation of sea forces and island fortifications.

So we say, in effect, that the Japanese violation of the nine-power pact frees us from any treaty bonds on navy or fortifications, and invites our serious consideration of greater naval armament in the Pacific.

We had already said, to be followed by the League of Nations, that no treaties forced from China by Japan as a result of the present conflict would be recognized as legal or binding, that no territory seized would be recognized as belonging to Japan, that no government set up by Japan on Chinese territory would be recognized in any way.

We now declare in the Stimson declaration that instability of government in China furnishes no excuse for a violation or modification of the nine-power pact, that the treaty was drawn for the particular purpose of readjustment in China when stability and strength of government could hardly be expected. So we take direct issue with Japan at all points, and do it while other nations delay.

We invite the Japanese to ponder the opposition of world-wide opinion which is being roused against her. We invite her to consider an America casting off naval limitations and fortifying the Pacific Islands, so as to dominate the Western Pacific.

On the other hand, Japan must be looking very seriously at her prospects in China. What has she to gain by pushing warfare there? If she wins at Shanghai, the conflict has demonstrated pretty clearly that fighting in the interior, without the support of ships and with transport of guns and munitions difficult, would very likely prove inconclusive at best.

Surely it must soon dawn on the most bigoted of Oriental militarists that the better way for their country is the way of the treaties, of conciliation and co-operation with other nations. If sanity yet has any chance at Tokio, there should soon be a move for peace.—Houston Chronicle.

INDIA BUYS OLD CLOTHES

India these days is proving a profitable market for out-of-style American shoes and second-hand American clothes. Those Indians who wear cheap clothing are not accustomed to wearing trousers, so few are sold there. But coats, overcoats and vests find a ready sale.

A sudden change in American fashions a few years ago gave to Indian women who had never before worn leather shoes the opportunity to do so. A large quantity of women's high top boots, rejected by those for whom they were manufactured because of the style shift, were sent to India to be sold at wholesale at 8 cents a pair, retailing at about 25 cents. They are now being worn by Indians who remove the high heels and the "boot" part of the upper leather, the wooden heels being used as fuel for cooking and the surplus leather made into cigarette cases and jewelry boxes.

Both men's and women's overcoats are imported into India. An East Indian will purchase either a man's or a woman's coat — one which sold originally in New York for about $75 and which has been worn for about five years may be bought in India for about $1.80. It is not uncommon to see an Indian laborer, who earns about 18 cents a day wearing a morning coat.

OUR MONEY CROP

We are dependent upon foreign markets for the sale of over half of our cotton production. Great Britain and Germany were our best cotton markets. Since the World War ended our sales of cotton to Germany have been at least 7,000,000 bales less than we can reasonably figure that they would have been if it had not been for the war and its consequences. Our sales of cotton to Great Britain have been approximately 14,500,000 bales less for the last twelve years than they were for the twelve years that preceded 1914. Hence, although our cotton production is no greater than it was two decades ago, the surplus of American cotton has accumulated.

Unless we can sell cotton to Britain and to Germany on a scale comparable to that of 1911, 1912 and 1913 there is no way in the world of providing an outlet for such cotton crops as we have produced in recent years. Average reduction for a year, or for two or three years, will not solve the problem. Cotton production in this country must be permanently reduced.

Our cotton markets in Britain and Germany must be permanently restored. The only chance open to thousands and tens of thousands of persons in the Southern states, who have been growing cotton all of their lives or ever again being able to make a living on the land is the recreation of our cotton markets in Germany and Great Britain. Yet for the past twelve years American policy, with the acquiescence of the Southern states, has been directed toward making it increasingly difficult, and now almost impossible, for Great Britain and Germany to buy what is and always has been the South's chief money crop! — Texas Weekly.

MANY TROUBLES NOT POLITICAL

To hear the talk among men as they congregate on the streets and elsewhere, it would appear that the underlying troubles we are forced to face are political troubles and a large part of these political troubles bound up in high salaries.

Many salaries are too high. But, the trouble we face in an economic way are far more than that of high salaries.

If we are just bent on reducing expense, did it ever occur to you that counties could be combined and with the exception of constable and justices of peace one of our present set of officers could operate three or four counties in one?

Then we have a whole fleet of courts of civil appeals, that might be abolished entirely with—not only no hurt to cause of justice, but—aid toward the speeding up of justice by the removal of this halfway delay station.

The legislature, for years, has been adding to the expense program and increasing salaries for service performed all down the line and up the line, while the people, in the main, have, apparently, looked on much as an indifferent bystander.

When we have had a man putting up a fight for economy we have given him such indifferent support, if in fact, we have given any at all, that he has found his labor a failure and criticism from those who profit by the injustices sought to be remedied his chief compensation in the premises as a rule.

Just an intelligent and emphatic interest in our legislators and the legislative program will bring about a change in this matter.

The Brooks bill, passed by the last legislature, setting aside one cent of the gasoline tax to retire county bonds would have reduced county taxes materially in many counties and still have left many millions for the good road program.

The governor vetoed this bill and has been keeping his eye upon a state bond issue that would enlarge our debts and just as naturally increase our taxes.

It just takes tax money to pay bonded indebtedness of any county, section or state. We are now paying for bonds voted, in many instances with small realization of what the task of paying might mean. — Greenville Messenger.

GOLD SHORTAGE

IS NO MENACE

During the recent decades the production of gold has lagged far behind the production of other forms of wealth. Referring to this relative "shortage" of gold, certain publicists have been wondering publicly what we should do eventually for money. They imply that scarcity of gold may necessitate its abandonment as a standard. Many suggestions are appearing for supplementing gold with paper, that is, for inflating credit.

The fear of scarcity is entirely unwarranted. Certainly gold is scarce. There is said to be only about 18,000 tons of gold in the world. It could be contained in a cube about 31 feet long. The amount is not likely to increase rapidly. . . . But the very scarcity of valuable gold is one of the characteristics that makes it valuable as a standard.

The only ultimate effect of a relative shortage of gold will be to make it more valuable. You will have to give more or other forms of wealth in order to get an ounce of it. To put it in the other way, you will not have to give as much gold, or money, to get other things. Bluntly, prices will come down. That is what is happening today.

The relative shortage of gold is being well taken care of during the present deflation. From the bulletins of the Alexander Hamilton Institute it is apparent that this process has been going on since 1929. Up till that eventful year people were competing with one another to get other forms of wealth. They undervalued gold. Wealth as a whole was increasing rapidly; gold hardly at all. People overlooked the fact. Suddenly, the demand swung to gold, or its equivalent, money. To take this fact out of the realms of theory, consider your dentist. If, in 1929, it took a day's earnings for him to pay for a given amount of gold, today it will normally take the earnings of more than a day. Until such distant time as the amount of gold in the world be-

GOOD WILL

FOR U. S. ABROAD

Maybe the United States is not as unpopular abroad as we have been led to believe. That hope is bolstered by the news that in two European capitals Monday, two prominent avenues were renamed, in each instance the name of Washington being given, in honor of the first American president.

It is significant that these gestures of good will toward America occurred in countries, one of which was a foe in the World War. Hence, it is a case in which friend and former foe join in paying their tribute of present day friendship to the United States.

The Germans were quite as cordial to America while performing the ceremony of changing the name of the big square fronting Lehrton station, in Berlin, to George Washington Square, as were the Italians in christening a wide tree-lined avenue in Rome, "Viale Giorgio Washington."

Such occurrences as these stimulate international goodwill. It is to be wondered if, in the long run, they do not do more to assure peace than the formal treaties that are drawn up and signed by diplomats. — Houston Post.

comes so minute that it becomes difficult to handle in commerce, the value of gold will adjust itself in perfect balance with other forms of wealth. You will simply use less and less to complete comparable transactions.

The real thing to fear is an extraordinary increase in the amount of gold. A discovery of huge deposits, or a method of producing gold cheaply from other elements, would lessen its unique value. Money prices of all other valuables would then soar, and the savings of true investors, in banks, building loans, mortgages and bonds, would suffer accordingly.

ANOTHER YEAR OF LIVE AT HOME

The production of food for the family and feed for the farm animals, which was so successfully practiced thruout the Southwest in 1931 will probably be continued this year. It is an economic measure that contributes both to the health and pocketbook. Those farm families, who conserved food in cans and jars last year, will continue in the same work in 1932. Their examples will be followed by thousands of others, and the records made in 1931 will be broken with the addition of millions of cans in the pantries of Southwestern farmers.

The work of the home demonstration division of the extension service in the matter of making the farm self-sustaining insofar as food for the family is concerned, is outstanding. It should continue to receive encouragement, for there is yet need for educational programs and demonstrations. The time will come, we hope, when canning, preserving and the curing of meats will become of general practice on all farms in the Southwest. That time has not yet arrived. There yet remain thousands of farm families who are ready to welcome the home agent and who will listen willingly to her instructions. It is the plan of extension service to reach 85 per year.

The canning of food products on the farms is primarily for the purpose of providing a varied, balanced menu for the farmer and his family. Three appetizing meals a day is not without its influence in making a good farmer better and a poor farmer, good. The money saved by the production and conservation of food for home use is often equal to the amount received from the cotton crop. Thus the work becomes an economic value by contributing to the farm income.—Farm and Ranch.

A grain crop even surpassing the record production of last year is in sight for Comanche county, according to grain farmers, who say that the crop never looked better at this time of the year. With two and a half more inches of rain for 1932 than had fallen on the corresponding date last year, a good season is in the ground and with a few spring rains the crop will be assured.—Chief.

The sheriff's department was notified as soon as the burglary was discovered and Sheriff Harvey notified all of the nearby towns and gave them description of two negroes that were in Lampasas on Monday, but could not be located Tuesday morning. The officers in Brownwood notified Sheriff Harvey within a few hours that two negroes filling the description sent had been arrested in that city and some of the stolen property had been found and it was thought that all of it would be located in a short time.—Leader.

ELIMINATE UNFIT BUILDINGS

Civic improvement and fire prevention often go hand in hand.

Aged and dilapidated buildings, such as can be seen in most centers of population, are detrimental to property values and retard new construction—and they are, as well, breeders of conflagrations.

A number of cities are making efforts to do away with these eyesores. Harrisburg, Penn., has made conspicuous progress in this direction. During 1931 more than 100 broken-down buildings were removed. One block of 24 structures was cleared up, eliminating, among other fire hazards, 107 stovepipes which were carried thru holes in unprotected lath and plaster! New York, Cleveland, Los Angeles and Chicago are among the larger cities which have rehabilitated and improved dangerous sections.

The benefits to the community from such action are obvious. The way is opened for the construction of new buildings, or for the development of parks. Property values rise in the surrounding territory, with resulting higher tax return for the city treasury. But, perhaps of greatest importance, the chance of fire has been lessened.

All individuals and civic organizations should support movements designed to eliminate unfit buildings. It is easier and cheaper to prevent a fire than to try to put one out after it has started. And, if there were no question of property losses involved, the potential savings of life that results from a determined civic improvement campaign would alone make the work more than worth while.

THE FOOD ROADS

One of the principal problems connected with road work, especially in rural territories, where traffic flow does not justify highways of the extremely expensive type, is how to make needed improvements and new construction without burdening the state or county with debts to be paid in the future.

Fortunately, the problem has, to a great extent, been solved by modern developments in road materials and new engineering practices. By using asphaltic bases, to which gravel or crushed rock is added, we can build a full width, weatherproof, "non-skid" and entirely dependable road for $5000 or less a mile—ten or twelve per cent of the cost of many main highways. And these low cost roads are not wasteful from the standpoint of upkeep. It has been found, in many parts of the country, that upkeep and maintenance is well below that of other types of surfaces, even with heavy traffic. And it is far below the expense required to keep ordinary dirt roads in anything approaching good condition.

Our farmers and small town dwellers need good roads. The farm to market road is the "food road" of the nation. It is as vital to farmers as the city streets are to the urban dweller. It stimulates trade and commerce, and advances the decentralization of industry. And the fact that 5,000,000 farmers are said to be living on roads that become impassable during part of each year shows the direction road development must take.

MILLIONS DROWNED IN YELLOW RIVER

The Yellow river is known as "China's Yellow Curse." EXILE OF CRIMINALS IS STILL PRACTICED

Banishment to the penal colony of Spanish Guinea was the punishment recently meted out to 109 Spanish Communists who participated in the uprising in Catalonia a short time ago. Other countries also retain deportation as the sentence for certain political or criminal offenses. To mention a few: France sends criminals to Devil's Island. Italy transports opponents of the Fascist party to Lipari. And Russia still uses that most notorious punishment of the Czars—exile to Siberia.

French Guiana has been the site of several penal settlements, but they failed because of unfavorable climate and soil. On the other hand, another French colony, located in New Caledonia in the Pacific, was unsuccessful because life there was found to be too easy for hardened criminals. Russia established a famous colony at Sakhalin, an island off the eastern coast of Siberia, but it was found that most of the prisoners would not work, that those who did were unskillful and that crime was common.

Most of the countries chosen for penal colonies are notorious for their bad climate. Either they are extremely hot, like Spanish Guinea, which lies near the Equator, or extremely cold, like Siberia. All have one thing in common; their isolation from civilization. They lie so far off the beaten track that escape from them is almost impossible.—New York Times.

ENLIST THE HOME FOR SAFETY

The federal, state and municipal governments may legislate for accident prevention, the police may seek unrelentingly to enforce it, schools may teach safety, and associations may advocate it, but really effective results can never be obtained until the American home is enlisted wholeheartedly in the cause.

The home is the keystone of the nation's safety arch. It is the first line of offense against an enemy, which annually kills 100,000 persons, injures 3,000,000 or more and produces an economic loss running into the millions. "Nearly one-third of the 560,000 accident fatalities of the last decade actually happened in the homes," says Dr. Herbert J. Stack, safety supervisor of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "That in itself should awaken every household to the necessity of better housekeeping, better care of young children and better safeguards."

WAR HITS GINSENG

Troubles in the Far East have cast a financial shadow over the people of Arkansas in the Ozark mountains. The people in this region have been counting on several thousand dollars' revenue each year from the sale of ginseng, a herb, to China. Although Occidentals regard this herb as of no practical efficiency, the Chinese consider it a panacea, a special gift of the gods. The Ozark mountains in Arkansas are one of the few sources of this herb.

The imbroglia involving China already has been costly to ginseng growers. Virtually all American ginseng is exported and since the Manchurian conflict started the price has dropped to new low figures of $2 to $5 a pound, compared with a record high of $8 to $15 and a 10 year average of $5 to $10.

Originally the chief source of the root, the only part of the plant used, was Korea, and only the wild root was obtainable.

Naturally the supply was limited, especially since the root must be at least four years old before it is considered usable. Until cultivation started only the rich Chinese of the mandarin class could afford to buy it.

Wild root, whether found in Korea or elsewhere, command a higher price than the cultivated variety, and when it was discovered about half a century ago that the plant grew wild on the mountain slopes of Northwest Arkansas residents of the hill country began hunting it to eke out meagre incomes from none too productive farm lands.

Wild ginseng grew only where there was plenty of shade, so the grower's first move was to build an arbor, covered with slats, that provided at least 50 per cent shade. He set out young roots and as winter approached he munched the plants with dead leaves, thus providing the same kind of protection afforded by nature. The experiment proved successful from the start. The first crop was not harvested for five years, but in the meantime, a new "garden" was set out each year and after the first crop had matured roots were harvested annually.

Today nearly every farmer within ten miles of Compton, Ark., has one or more gardens. A youth of 19 reported receiving $5000 for five 50-foot rows of 5-year-old ginseng root a few years ago, and since it did not interfere with his other work or his school attendance, he regarded it as clear profit.

WHY BOOKS PERISH

Historians worry about what will happen in a few hundred years to records of the present age, written or printed on paper which it is certain will fall to dust far sooner than the papyrus rolls of ancient Egypt or the baked-brick "books" of still more ancient times in Babylonia. Unless the records of the past 300 years are reprinted or copied continually, chemists predict that they will be lost completely in a few centuries. Even in a few years ordinary books stored in libraries are found to deteriorate and fall apart. The chief enemies of library books, investigators find, are light and dust or acid in the air. Daylight should be excluded from a library, they recommend, almost as rigorously as from a photographer's darkroom, necessary light being provided by small, frosted incandescent lamps turned on only when needed. Books last best in absolute darkness. All air admitted to rooms where books are kept should be washed by oil and by water; the former to remove dust and the latter to remove acids. Humidity and temperature should be kept at even and moderate values. No book should be taken out of this dark, dust-proof and acid-free mausoleum unless absolutely necessary, for even a few minutes in ordinary light and air may undo the preservative precautions of many years.

OHIO'S COON DOGS

Among the odd conservation measures that have recently come to light is the proposal of the head of the division of conservation of the Ohio department of Agriculture to establish five raccoon ranches in the state. The director of conservation points to the number of Ohio dogs raised for coon hunting and the considerable amount of money invested, and emphasizes his belief that the sport deserves encouragement.

BEAUTY in the HOME

A Gracious Livingroom With No Clutter

A TRULY gracious interior is one that refuses to be cluttered and that does not display too much of any desired number of pieces of this and that and ornaments and doodads. In other words, it is colorfully simple, warm, charming but never looks crowded. It is for this reason that the room pictured above is of interest, partaking both of the stern simplicity of the modern art school and the mellowness of the older American tradition. The couch, chair, and table, designed by Gilbert Rohde, are sturdily built of bentwood with African mahogany veneers on the flat surfaces. Some chairs and couches have deep springy cushions and others use finely woven cane dyed brown to match the wood. The bentwood portions are in beech, smartly finished in colored duco to match the mahogany surfaces, the finish being rubbed to a delightfully luxurious semi-gloss sheen. The pieces are designed on a "related group" idea, now so popular in the home furnishing field, a styling that permits the selection of any desired number of pieces with the definite assurance that the ensemble will be in perfect taste. The colored finish used in this group goes well with the mahogany table top just as furniture of all sorts may be used in any room, part of it mahogany and part of it covered with duco of the same shade. Noticeable features of this present group are the four-roll back to the sofa, creating horizontal lines that make the sofa seem longer than it is, and the unique plaid seat covering to both sofa and chair. Such uncluttered furniture in discreet colors, sitting upon some simple rug with not too much design in its center, always gives the feeling of comfort and hominess to any living room. And that is the one thing that is basically necessary for such a room.

LINDBERGH BABY IS KIDNAPED

News of the kidnaping Tuesday night of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., 20 months old son of the famous American flyer, has stirred the nation from president to humblest citizen.

The baby, who was suffering from a cold, was put to bed Tuesday night at 7:30 at the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N.
J. At ten o'clock his nurse found the bed clothing scattered and the child missing. A window of the nursery had been opened and the child carried down a ladder to the ground. A note, said to contain a demand for $50,000 ransom, was left by the kidnaper.
Lindbergh is said to have agreed to pay the amount demanded, but as Thursday dragged to a close the baby was still missing.

As none of the bed clothes were taken, it was feared that the sick child would suffer from exposure to the weather. Radio stations all over the country were asked to broadcast the baby's diet and treatment in the hope that the kidnapers might hear of it and observe it.

Meanwhile the police forces of the nation were exerting every effort to trace the criminals.
President Hoover issued instructions that federal detectives and prohibition agents join the search. Flyer friends of the Lindberghs scoured the country from the air, seeking some indication that might aid in the search.

Lindbergh is said to be worth two or three million dollars and his wife's father, Senator Morrow, left nineteen million dollars to his family when he died last year.

BABY GORILLA HAS PNEUMONIA

The cold that hit N'Gi, the baby gorilla of the National Zoo at Washington, has turned to pneumonia, and science is literally fighting in the dark to save the priceless and much loved little black ape.

An oxygen tank has been installed in 6-year-old N'Gi's cage.
Adrenalin and strychnine have been administered but the doctors have no way of telling whether they are doing any good. They can not take N'Gi's temperature, and lack of records keeps them from knowing whether the pulse rate of 40 are near normal or not. It would be right enough for a 6-year-old boy with pneumonia, but may be all wrong for N'Gi.

The little ape was captured in Africa by the big game expedition of Walter P. Chrysler. In the beginning Head Keeper William Blackburn kept him at home to bring up practically with his own children. When he grew too big and powerful, N'Gi went to a glass-enclosed cage at the zoo. There for the past two years N'Gi played, rolled and smiled constantly until a cold came along last month. On warm days when no crowd was about, Blackburn would open the cage and take N'Gi for a walk, holding in his hand like a little boy.

But now N'Gi lies huddled in a corner, pulling his burlap blanket about his shoulders. He will hardly eat and never smiles.

The little fellow is the only animal in the entire collection to carry insurance. The government does not provide any, but Dr. William M. Mann, the zoo director, enlisted the aid of some friends to get N'Gi a $10,000 policy. Gorillas are hard to get.

on whether or not to take up for discussion a bill giving each state full control of the liquor traffic within that state. Congressman Mansfield of Texas was the 145th representative to sign the petition asking consideration of the bill.

Fifty million dollars has been lopped off the federal budget bureau's estimates for the next fiscal year. The money will come mostly from the veteran's administration, the farm board, and interstate commerce commission. The veteran's administration will receive $169,572,000 less than this year.

While Robert P. Lamont, Sr., as secretary of commerce, is trying to show American business men how to meet Russian competition, his son, Robert P. Lamont, Jr., will be trying to teach them to raise more cattle and produce more meat. The young man has accepted a position with the Soviet government.

lived here. Her body was brought back to the churchyard of her girlhood home in Big Valley.
Many floral offerings, the silent

BO-PEEP

THE WAR IN CHINA

After a week of merciless slaughter in the warfare around Shanghai, prospects of a truce seemed about to materialize yesterday. Chinese troops, encircled on three sides by greatly reinforced Japanese forces, had to withdraw from devastated Chapel to a line about 10 miles west of the city.

Foreigners Now Safe

Considerable fear had been felt for the consequences if the Chinese troops should retreat into the international settlement of Shanghai and so force the battle into territory now guarded by American, British and European soldiers. But as they withdrew in the other direction, the battle has been removed from the city, and its residents are breathing easier.

Chinese Attack Ships

From Pootung, the Chinese town across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai, mines were set off close to the Japanese flag ship, which is anchored close to the Japanese consulate in the international settlement of Shanghai. Terrific explosions followed, but the Japanese claimed no great damage resulted.

Ten Miles or Twelve

All along the Japanese have been claiming they would stop fighting if the Chinese would retreat 12 miles west of Shanghai and so remove any threat to Japanese in the city. Now the Chinese have moved back 10 miles, which leaves them in control of an important railway line. If they retire further, the line will be under the control of the Japanese.

League Too Slow

Held back apparently by the influence of England and France, the League of Nations has been very deliberate in its actions to end hostilities in the Far East.
Practically all the smaller members of the League were eager for a boycott or similar action against Japan. France and England seemed disposed to let events take their own course.
America, which has been playing a lone hand, has been the only nation to speak out. The Assembly of the League of Nations convened yesterday to consider the problem, but it is expected that a truce will already have been arranged before it has time to take action.

Back to Manchuria

Japan probably will be glad enough to withdraw from China now that she can do so after claiming a victory. There is hardly any question of her control of Manchuria being seriously challenged by China now. But another threat has risen there.

Russia is said to be concentrating troops and military supplies along the Manchurian border in Siberia. Japan in invading Harbin has trespassed on ground supposed to be under Russian control. If the Soviets decide to protect their sphere of influence by arms, a real war will ensue that will make the Shanghai operations look like a dog fight.

America's Fleet Sails

Two hundred proud ships of the American navy will soon be massed in the Pacific ocean near Japan. While American officials claim that the maneuver is made in accordance with plans two years old, the world sees the movement as a quiet suggestion that America will be able to back up her notes in the future.

A new constitutional amendment will be submitted to the voters of the United States. Wednesday the senate passed by an overwhelming majority the Norris proposal to end the "lame duck" session of congress. At present representatives and senators defeated at the polls in November continue to serve until December of the following year —13 months. If the amendment carries, they will give up their offices to their successors on January 3, after the election.

Everyone in these parts who is in a position to do gardening, has been busy during the last week of sunshine. Potatoes, beans and corn seem to be taking the lead. The last two years have taught us the lesson of living at home. With the soil and rainfall we have, there is no reason for not having an early spring garden.

MULLIN LADY HONORED
The following was taken from the Hico News-Review.

The junior class presented their annual play Saturday night. Owing to many and various causes the juniors and their excellent director, Miss Nelson, had postponed the date of the play several times. However, this gave the actors a determination to give the public their best talent and the zest and spirit of each actor was fine. The glee club and orchestra came in for their share of flowers and many are the compliments extended the junior glee club and orchestra.

MAD DOG SCARE

Quite a bit of excitement prevailed in the Williams ranch community Tuesday evening, when a dog appeared affected by hydrophobia. Three other dogs were bitten by the affected dog at the home of L. W. French. The dog was shot several times by L. V. French, but the shot used was so small it failed to kill, but when F. Q. Hughitt appeared with a gun load of buck shot only one shot was required to end his life. The dogs bitten belonged to L. W. French and J. F. Williams.

A FAREWELL PARTY

On last Thursday night at the lovely home of Mrs. G. M. Fletcher a party under the auspices of the Home Mission was given honoring Mrs. C. C. Hancock, who is leaving at an early date for Gatesville, where they will reside.

The guests were met at the door by Misses Fletcher and Herrington in colonial costumes and ushered into the rooms, where all kinds of merriment had been arranged in wheel of fortune, 42 and bridge. Little Charles Hugh Hancock and Georgia Ruth Preston dressed in costumes of George and Martha Washington danced the minuet with Mrs. L. J. Smith at the piano.

While everything was at the highest point of glee a knock at the door was heard and a black mammy was ushered in with a sheet of laundry for Mrs. Hancock, but when opened found to contain gifts from many friends that had met to bid her adieu.

It is with a pang of regret we see Mrs. Hancock leave, for in this dear little town she first saw light of Texas, happy childhood was spent here, also courtship days were enjoyed, she was wooed and won in Mullin.

She has been very active in church and social work, having been pianist for the Methodist church for years. But our loss is Gatesville's gain.

A most delicious plate was passed to some 45 guests.

A LIFETIME FRIEND.

MARY RUTH HANCOCK HONORED ON EVE OF HER DEPARTURE

Miss Johnnie Mae Ramsey named her friend, Miss Mary Ruth Hancock, as honoree at the clever and interesting party Friday night at the Methodist parsonage.

The honoree is leaving the latter part of this week for her new home in Gatesville.

The inviting guest rooms were made attractive with pretty flowers and decorations effectively arranged.

Various games and contests kept the happy group bubbling with laughter. The jolly classmates from primary days were there to enjoy the party and all anticipate frequent visits to Gatesville. In the midst of the fun and frolic, there was a tap at the door and the Santa Fe agent called for Miss Hancock to sign for an express package. She was startled at the hurry of the agent and then delighted over a lovely package of handkerchiefs, gifts from her school mates. All the guests are hoping Johnnie Mae will soon have another party.

SMALL BOY BREAKS ARM

Otis Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Coleman, climbed a tree Monday trying to get a squirrel and fell several feet breaking his arm at the elbow.

He is improving nicely and indications are good for speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Pickens of Lometa visited in the home of J. J. Canady Sunday.

ROCK SPRINGS

Our Sunday school wasn't so full Sunday, but we had a good lesson. The B. Y. P. U. program Sunday night was well rendered. There wasn't as large a crowd as we had during the Beef contest. We hope everyone still keeps up interest.

Several from here attended Mrs. Barton Reed's funeral at Big Valley last Thursday afternoon. We wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved.

Our pastor, Bro. Renfro, invited Center Point Methodists and Baptists to be with us all day the second Sunday. Bro. Will Spinks will preach at the eleven o'clock hour. Everybody come and bring someone with you. You come, too, Big Valley.

The Big Bees were well entertained last Friday night. Little Bees sure know how to entertain. They had several contests, which were good. Ray Stark and Abbie Hunt played their guitars and sang. They have good voices. The next was women singing. Everyone singing a different song. Mrs. Nickols sang the longest. The men sang and Hardy McClary sang the loudest and longest. Then Hardy outsang Mrs. Nickols. Mrs. Ray Stark dramatized the Star Spangled Banner, while Mrs. Claud Smith and Mr. Ray Stark sang. There was a spelling match, which was funny to see grown folks miss words. The ladies drove tacks in a board. The one who drove ten in the board quickest won. Mrs. Ray Davis beat. The men sewed a button on a piece of cloth. Marvin Spinks was the lucky man.

They also know how to make tea cakes and hot chocolate. My it was all fine. I am sure everyone got all they wanted and more than they needed. Mrs. Harvey Dunkle and Loy Long and wife from town were the invited guests. Some couldn't be there and we sure did miss everyone of you. We were very sorry Herbert Cooke was absent, for he was the one who started this contest. We wish to thank you again for the nice entertainment, Little Beef.

Claud Laird and wife treated Homer Doggett and wife and Mrs. Nickols and boys to ice cream Monday night.

There has been some visitors in the community sometime back, as people have been missing things. These visitors are not welcome at anytime.

Several from here attended the singing at Center Point Sunday afternoon. When you miss these singings you miss a treat. The scribe made a pop call in the Hutchings home Sunday afternoon. I was sorry to find Otis suffering so with hay fever.

Mrs. Nickols and Fred Shipman visited in the Traylor home Sunday afternoon.

Sam Marler from Mullin and his half brother, Randle D. Tombs, from Seymore, Texas, attended Sunday school Sunday morning. They also visited in J. M. Traylor's and John Roberts' home during the day.

HAVE YOUR HOUSE DELIVERED COMPLETE

One of these days, it is predicted, you will be able to stroll into a house store, pick out your new home and have it delivered to your lot. Two or three days later you move in. It will be as simple as buying an automobile—all in one transaction, financing and everything. Metal producers see in the ready-made house possibilities of a wonderful outlet for their commodities. Lumber manufacturers are taking up the idea for reasons of commercial defense as well as offense. Real estate developers and the building industries visualize a boom in small-house building. At present a house is built. Most other things are manufactured. Result is that houses being without the advantages of mass production are relatively just as costly as ever. Under the new dispensation houses are to have their parts manufactured in large sections at the factory and merely assembled on the job. All costly hand production on the job is to be eliminated. The manufactured house is to be vastly cheaper and of better quality than the ordinary run of houses under present methods. A good, thoroughly modern five or six-room house for $3000 is on the cards. The country is built up several years ahead on monumental structures, but there are 14,000,000 obsolete or obsolescent houses in the country. Make it as cheap and easy to buy a house as an automobile and the field for expansion is enormous. Maybe the building industry will again come to the front as a prosperity maker.—Magazine of Wall Street.

"I refuse to believe that the intelligence of the country can not see that business prosperity must rest on a sounder basis than political favoritism or insipid guidance or interference from Washington." — Albert C. Ritchie, Gov. of Maryland.

vin Spinks, Ray Davis, J. C. Stark and C. R. Wilson from town.

Woody Traylor traded James Nickols a goat for a pocket knife last week.

Goodie Miller and Miss Myrna from the city visited with Mrs. Lillie Moore and Miss Nellie from Brownwood in E. D. Robertson's home Sunday.

Gus Roush, Jr., spent Saturday night with Woody Traylor and family.

Misses Ethel McClary and Nellie Dee Cooke reported an awful good dinner with Ray Stark and wife Sunday.

Woody Traylor and family and Marion Robertson and family from Big Valley visited J. M. Traylor and family Sunday.

Barton Smith and family and Hammond Bodkin and wife, from town and Homer and Bobbie Smith from Nabors Creek and Mrs. Tom Graves and daughters from Lake Mexritt visited Claud Smith and wife Sunday.

Gus Roush and wife enjoyed themselves Sunday afternoon car riding.

KEEP TO THE LEFT!

Custom has ordained that the pedestrian on the rural highway like the vehicles shall "keep to the right." That is proper for the vehicle, but for the pedestrian the right side is the wrong side, according to Maxwell N. Halsey, traffic engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

Two thousand persons are killed annually in the United States and many thousands injured because they cling to the ancient custom. They are struck at curves, over the crest of hills and in narrow passes by automobiles coming from behind. Dusk, before the headlight is turned on, is very dangerous, but later in the night, when the silhouette of the pedestrian blends into the background even under the strongest of headlights, is the most dangerous time of all.

"Until the state provides sidewalks for the country road, the pedestrian should always keep on the left side," Mr. Halsey declares; "then at least he can see the cars coming and move to safety if the occasion demands it. It may feel awkward at first, but it will pay."

"There are signs of an awakening in this matter, North Carolina, West Virginia, Kansas, Delaware, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey have laws which authorize the proper authorities to build sidewalks along highways. In other states, county authorities have been authorized to undertake similar construction."

Remember, when walking on a country road, that the left side is the right side.

THE LOGICAL SOLUTION

Rural communities with road building problems on their hands should think twice before constructing single-lane pavements, which can take care of only an extremely limited amount of traffic. Any saving in first cost on such a road is more than offset by extra cost for widening as traffic grows.

A still greater objection to the single-lane highway is its tendency to increase accidents. It is said that the average driver on such a road will be on the pavement most of the time. But it is when he is getting off or on the pavement, or "in the rough," that accidents happen. As the amount of traffic increases, the single-lane highway is extremely dangerous.

By using the modern, inexpensive, waterproof surfaces, rural communities can build weatherproof, year-round roads, of full width, for $5000 a mile or less. Maintenance cost is low and such roads are as satisfactory as the most expensive type of highway, save when there is an excessive amount of traffic. This is the logical solution to the country road problem.

Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York has been confirmed by the Senate as a Justice of the Supreme Court, succeeding Oliver Wendell Holmes, who recently retired. Justice Cardozo is the second Jew in the court, the other being Louis Brandeis. It is considered remarkable that there should be two Jews on the supreme tribunal of the nation, but Cardozo appears to be an able, impartial judge, and it is likely that the other Jew, Brandeis, who is over 70, may retire soon. Both are known as Progressives. Cardozo, though appointed by President Hoover, is a Democrat.

THE "WHY" OF DEPRESSION

In a recent copyright article appearing in the San Francisco Chronicle, Leonard P. Ayers, vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Company, held that rigid economy is the only cure for the depression.

He pointed out that the war cost the participating nations $200,000,000,000—a sum equal to about $200 a minute from the time of Julius Caesar to that of Herbert Hoover! Most of this money was raised by borrowing against the future.

After the war, all nations decided to make the modern improvements the war made them desire. This was accomplished by borrowing billions. The result was a period of expanding indebtedness—which produced a kind of artificial prosperity.

Now the trend is the other way. We have been forced into debt contraction, and our economic troubles have resulted. In past years we mortgaged our future income and the time for paying the piper has come.

Individuals, families, businesses and governments must balance their budgets in order to bring order out of chaos. Waste and extravagance must be eliminated. The depression will pass—but we cannot do away with it by a policy of spending that will merely duplicate the period of inflation we have just left behind us.

A REAL JEKYLL-HYDE

A well to do and respected gentleman of Verona, who has lived for years a double life as a murderous maniac, quite in the manner of Stevenson's famous story of Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, has been unmasked by the Italian police; much to the relief, it is reported, of the maniac himself. For more than 10 years various persons in Italy have been receiving by mail apparently innocent packages, which turned out to contain explosive bombs. About 70 such parcels have been mailed, the police estimate, during this period. For many months detectives investigating these cases have been convinced that the same person was mailing all of the infernal machines, but were at a loss to locate this criminal or to imagine his motive, since the recipients of the parcels were of all political parties and apparently had nothing whatever in common. Finally, police officers examined the handwriting of many citizens of the town of Verona, where they suspected that the unknown criminal lived. Ultimately, the criminal was discovered, it is reported, in the person of a well known and respected man of that town. No reasonable motive has been found for the outrages. The criminal merely felt impelled, by some insane impulse, to send out the deadly parcels and chose the names of his victims at random, he is said to have confessed, from city directories or telephone books. The majority of these persons he had never known or heard of previously. The same part of his mind welcomed discovery and arrest, he is reported to have said, as freeing him from a diabolical dominance, which he himself could not escape.

A SWIMMING POOL IN OLD BABYLON

Luxurious outdoor swimming pools on plutocratic estates are not such new things as Hollywood scenario writers imagine. Thousands of years ago in ancient Babylonia, it is proved by recent discoveries at the ruins of the ancient city of Kish, there was such a pool nearly 50 feet long and almost as wide, occupying a part of the palace courtyard and doubtless used on hot Babylonian afternoons by the king himself and those who happened for the moment to be his favorite wives or ministers. Professor S. H. Langdon of Oxford University, who is in charge of the excavations at Kish, by which this swimming pool was discovered, described it recently in an address at Oxford. The sides of the pool, he explained were lined with hard, smooth bricks, not greatly inferior to modern tile. Earthenware pipes, not unlike those still in use, brought a continual stream of fresh water to the pool. Drains made of similar pipes laid in strong cement carried away the overflow. Excavators in Babylonia long have realized that the engineers and builders of that ancient land knew much about architecture, among their many triumphs being the famous temple tower or ziggurat of Babylon, made famous as the Tower of Babel. It is evident, too, that Babylonian engineers know much about handling water in canals, for the entire country was irrigated by a complicated canal system drawing its water from the two rivers, the Tigris and the Euphrates. The new Kish discoveries now prove that Babylonian engineers were proficient also in water supply and drainage by pipes, a part of the art, which we now call plumbing.

EXPLORER INVITED TO GO HEADHUNTING

How to decline gracefully an invitation to go head-hunting is one of the more delicate social problems of South American jungle explorers. That situation was faced by Matthew W. Stirling, scientist of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, who is leading an expedition in the wilds of Ecuador making sound movies of the Jivaro Indians, the institution has announced. A letter from Mr. Stirling, written just before he left on a two month's trip in the interior, has just been received.

Mr. Stirling went among the Jivaros especially to study their head-hunting customs. Apparently the Indians thought the best way for him to study head-hunting was to go out and hunt a few heads himself, but he declined.

The Jivaros keep human heads as souvenirs of their prowess in battle, he writes. Heads of dead enemies are severed, the bones removed and the heads shrunk by a laborious process of treating with hot sand, until they are about the size of an orange, but still retain their human features. The head then is dyed black with charcoal.

Mr. Stirling says he found the Jivaros an extremely primitive people, but friendly. They live in a primeval forest on the border between Ecuador and Peru, a region which is believed to have been seldom, if ever, penetrated by white men. He and his party are now exploring this area on foot, practically out of all touch with civilization.

Virulent poisons used by the Jivaros on their arrows, and strange drugs used in religious rites are objects of study for the Smithsonian expedition.

One drug, known as maikoa, has been found to produce visions, and the Jivaros believe no man can become a successful warrior until he has experienced these visions. The maikoa is prepared from a jungle shrub and made into a drink.

The Jivaros believe in witchcraft, and think that illnesses are caused by spells cast by some neighboring family. If the victim dies of such a disease a blood feud is likely to start between the victim's family and some other family believed to have cast the spell.

RUSSIAN TO BE SHOT FOR 'DAMAGING' THEFT

A man has been sentenced to be shot for stealing in the town of Samara, in the Middle Volga region in Russia, but the charge was based on ordinary theft—it was theft which came under the head of "damaging" because it interfered with the economic program of the government.

This man, named Popoff, was on trial for several weeks with 39 other railroad employes for stealing warehouse goods destined to loyal collective farm workers and selling them for their own profit.

The others received jail sentences of from ten years down to one year at hard labor. This indicates the seriousness with which the government regards this type of crime and the drastic measures it uses to stamp it out. The maximum penalty for murder is only ten years in jail.

The trial attracted widespread attention in the Samara district, but was unheard of in Moscow until a short notice appeared in the newspapers.

CHINESE CREMATED FOR STEALING BRIDE

Chinese peasants of a village near Foochow recently wreaked terrible vengeance on lawless soldiers and semi-bandits, who have held the district in thrall for many years.

A group of soldiers attacked the village some time ago and carried off the bride from a wedding feast. When she was released after the payment of a large sum of money, she was in such a condition that she succumbed to her injuries. A few weeks later the peasants invited the soldiers to a feast in the large village hall. During the feast the villagers withdrew, locked the door and then set fire to the building, burning the soldiers alive.

TAXES

Much has been said and written on this subject. It is something that affects every man, woman and child of this nation, either directly or indirectly. There has been a steady increase in the rate of taxation for the last decade, until the taxpayer has about exhausted all his means, and yet there is a deficiency in nearly all of our county, state and national treasuries. Some of our very smartest minds have been studying out ways and means to meet the ever increasing cost of government, and it looks like we are on the rocks. We have added bureaus, commissions and increased offices and salaries until it looks like we will have to call a halt. We have city, school, road, county, state and national government taxes galore and some of us can not pay them. It looks to me like we are going to have to cut out some of the expense. We have issued bonds by the million—city, road, county and national,—that are tax exempt and the man who has money, has invested in these securities, in order to get something that is tax exempt and I don't blame him for so doing, because they draw on the average of about 5 per cent and taxes are on the average about 3 per cent, therefore, he gets about 8 per cent for the money invested in tax exempt securities. I say we had better quit issuing this class of securities and begin right at home using the pruning knife, cutting out these useless, bureaus, commissions and offices, especially those that are overlapping. We have drawn on our county, state and national treasuries for first one thing then another until they are broke and can not pay until someone finds a way to get more tax money. They are crying for more money. "They are all dressed up and nowhere to go." I honestly believe that the cost of government can be cut 30 per cent at least and not impair the efficiency.

The cost of the special session of this state's legislature to pass a cotton acreage reduction law was about $200,000, yet this law was held by a district court as unconstitutional. The tax payers are left with the bag to hold. I say this was a good law, but is unconstitutional. We have city, road, county, state, income, franchise, and occupation taxes and the Lord only knows on what else we are taxed until we can not pay them all. I say reduce expenses, then we can make both ends meet.

Star, Texas.

LIGHTNING CALCULATORS

Dr. Salli Finkelstein of Warsaw, ready to have his powers as a lightning calculator tested, is given two numbers to multiply together, each consisting of three figures. The answer is noted on a piece of paper almost immediately. He casts his eye on a column of fifteen figures and presents the total in a quarter of a second.

The Warsaw doctor, who recently arrived in this country, is but one of a long line of mathematicians some of whom were distinguished men of science and others all but idiots. Perhaps the most astonishing of these boy prodigies was Zerah Colburn. When he was 6 his father heard him repeating parts of the multiplication table which he had never been taught. At 9 years of age this simple boy from Vermont stood before the Duke of Cambridge, on July 27, 1813. "Give the number of seconds since the beginning of the Christian era," he was told.

The child thought a moment. Then, "57,234,384,000," was the answer. He found no difficulty in extracting the cube root of 268,336,125 mentally, or in giving the square root of 998,001 in forty seconds.

So he kept on dazzling the Duke by extracting square and cube roots mentally, without hesitation, and by raising the number 8 to the 16th power in a minute, although the answer ran into the hundreds of trillions. And yet Zerah could just about read and write. Napoleon saw to it that he was educated in Paris. He ended as a professor of languages in the University of Vermont, dying at 38, a man of ordinary intellectual capacity.

BWARE OF GYPSIES

News items in a number of newspapers reaching this office give accounts of nomadic bands of gypsies that have visited these towns and fleeced their people.

Last week a roving band of the colorful men and women appeared in San Saba and fleeced the San Saba bank out of $1000. The money was taken by one of the tribe while another was telling fortunes for employes. In Coleman, not long ago, a filling station owner between here and Novice missed $20 after gypsies had stopped at his place of business.

Gypsies seem to come in droves at certain times. Where they come from or where they go has always been a mystery to us. They are always garbed in brilliant clothing and plenty of it. One dress worn by a gypsy woman should make wardrobes of a season's crop of a large city's debutantes. They are made large and bunglesome, obviously for the purpose of concealing loot taken in towns and along routes they traverse.

Before automobiles were in general use they traveled in wagons drawn by horses and their sojourns in towns were prolonged. Now, as a general rule, they travel in the finest cars. Those in San Saba were using a Lincoln. This has made them harder to catch, if they are caught at all.

The best thing to do when a gypsy or a band of gypsies enter your place is to eject him or them, forcefully if necessary, and not get the least bit interested in their fortune telling schemes. — Coleman Democrat-Voice.

MAKE HATS ON FARMS

California farm women, whose normal purchasing power has been depleted because of low prices of farm products, are keeping right up to modern styles in clothes through their own initiative and labor. Eighteen counties, according to Harriet G. Eddy, assistant professor of agricultural extension and state leader of home demonstration agents in the college of agriculture, University of California, have reported meetings and projects on hats.

Farm women in sixteen of these counties, according to Miss Eddy, have made 2256 new hats out of old ones. The average cost of trimming these hats was less than 30 cents.

CAMERA MEN RISK LIVES

Close escapes from death are common among newsreel camera men and fatal accidents are not infrequent, according to an article in the Elks magazine, entitled "Shooting the News." The account tells of some of the hair-raising stunts of the film news-gatherers in their worldwide quest for thrills to entertain a public which demands the exciting and the bizarre.

The article recounts the story of cameraman Charles Traube, who set his camera a few feet off the course of Lee Bible's racing car as it plunged down the speed course at 200 miles an hour and swerving, hit Traube and hurled his shattered body 400 feet away. Another cameraman named Geiskop was miraculously saved when, grinding his camera in the path of the speed driver Lockhart, on Daytona Beach, Fla., the bullet-like car hit a sand hummock and semisautted directly over Geiskop's head, tossing its driver to his death. In both cases the cameras escaped intact, and movie patrons twenty-four hours later were witnessing the thrilling records of the fatal races, unaware in the case of Traube that the cameraman had paid for his daring with his life.

One of the difficult tasks of a newsreel camera man, according to the article, is to "steal" pictures of a championship prizefight, after exclusive picture rights have been sold to one newsreel company. Scores of guards are posted throughout the audience and every precaution is taken to prevent picture taking. At one of the Dempsey fights two camera men impersonated peanut vendors, moving freely through the audience and about the ring with baskets of peanuts on their arms. Concealed beneath the peanuts were whirling automatic miniature cameras focused through small holes in the sides of the baskets. At another fight a camera man rented a watertank that overlooked the arena, drained it of water, bored holes through it and "shot" the whole fight, unmolested.

READ THE ADS

There are a number of advertisements in this issue that should interest every reader. It is a mighty good habit to form to read all the advertisements each issue.

EGGS AT $6 A DOZEN MAKE FARM PROSPER

Eggs at $6 a dozen, even in depression times, are enough to make any farm prosper. That's the price Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Bagley of Moyock, N. C., are getting this year, and the demand is way ahead of the supply. Their eggs are not ordinary eggs, however. They are quail eggs.

Up to two years ago, the Bagleys specialized in raising canna lilies. They were so successful that every farmer in Moyock started raising cannas, and the place became known as the "Village of Cannas."

Foreseeing a large surplus of lilies, the Bagleys abandoned them and started raising bob-white quail. They didn't know a thing about quail, but they learned about the potential profits in quail breeding thru Move Game Birds in America, a New York foundation devoted to encouraging the breeding of game birds. Taking a young friend and neighbor into partnership on the quail venture, they bought fifty mated pairs of pen-bred bob-white quail and started a quail farm.

From fifty little bob-white hens in the first season they sold $1000 worth of eggs and increased their breeding stock to 125 pairs. Next season they expect to make real money out of this latest side line. Quail eggs are in demand at 50 cents apiece; pen-bred bob-white quail are in demand at $5 apiece.

Hues For a Cheerful Kitchen

By KATHARINE CRUMBAUGH

If we all went to Nature for hints on decoration, results would often be much more satisfying. The grass and trees are in deeper shades of color, distance makes things grow lighter and the sky is lightest of all. So we should have our floors the darkest, the walls next and the ceilings lightest. The larger trees and bushes are in the darkest colors of all, greens, dark reds and browns. These may represent the furniture just as the flowers, which are brightest and most outstanding, may give a hint for the accent of colors in the room that is being decorated, a lesson direct from Nature to keep the most brilliant colors in small quantities.

Take, for instance, a kitchen with a southern exposure. The floor may be painted a dark green, the walls a lighter seafoam green and the ceiling the lightest green of all. The kitchen cabinet may be colored jade green which is a stronger color than the wall tone, but not so strong as the floor. Bright mandarin red will do well for the trim or accent color. The kitchen cabinet may be in mandarin red and the trim in jade green; though, if the large piece is done in a strong color like red, we must quiet things down by painting the breakfast nook in jade. If all the furniture were in red it would seem to rush at one as soon as the door were opened but, by using the red in the right proportion, harmony is secured just as a red line woven in and out of a rug excites and attracts more than if the rug were pure red itself.

This reporter has been having chronic pains with a severe case of sore throat. Since such little things as that does not stop star reporters, you find me still on the job. I believe, however, I do not practice them, every commandment in the Bible, including work. Twain's well known adage, "Be good and you will be lonesome." So here is the news.

Mount Olive school children put on a Washington program Friday night, even if the program was delayed by bad weather, it was well attended. The program gave our declaimers an opportunity for practice. All of us decided to tell the other schools not to get disheartened when first prizes are awarded, because Mount Olive has decided to take the majority.

We do not want the other schools to feel bad, either, when we will be awarded first prize for indoor baseball. Readers, please do not think we are very optimistic. We are only behind our children in their undertakings. Just read over the honor roll below, and you will understand better. However, we want to give the sixth grade the "gate." No one in it averaged the honor roll.

The first grade beat them all. Get busy sixth grade!

First grade, Ruby Lee Guess, James Bynum. Second grade, Flora Barrington, Arnold Scott, Third grade, Ruby Brown, James Koen. Fourth grade, Myrtle McCarty, Joe Bailey Kirby. Fifth grade, Ruby Ballentine, Hershey Montgomery. Seventh grade, Clinton Harris, Cecil Scott, Mildred Wilcox. Eighth grade, Alvin Guess, Cecil Huckabee, Eva Koen.

The second grade led the entire school on the highest average. I bet the sixth grade will wake up when they hear that.

The outsiders are starting to get up the play "Happy Valley" for the next school program.

A nice crowd attended Bro. O. C. Lester's meeting Sunday. Remember that next Sunday is regular preaching day for Bro. Chambers. All who want to hear a pure unorthodox Primitive Baptist sermon, Sunday will be a good day to hear one.

All of the mountain folks are starting to plant corn and fix their land for future planting. So I guess I will have to "hang up" and leave the "eavesdroppers" in suspense.
