

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

VOLUME THIRTY-EIGHT

GOLDTHWAITE MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JULY 1, 1932

NUMBER FORTY-FOUR

A CHANGE OF DATES

The three days jubilee, celebration and barbecue planned for Goldthwaite has been postponed from July 14, 15, 16 to July 19, 20, 21. The change was deemed advisable because of the inability of Roy Gray to reach this place with his carnival and shows prior to the last named dates, while the race horses can be assembled at any time and other forms of entertainment will be available as well the later date as at the time first named.

A large number of sheep, goats and yearlings have been donated for the barbecue and plenty of provisions for the three days is also assured.

Another plan that has been changed is that there will be a free gate to the picnic grounds and barbecue, instead of a 25-cent charge, as first proposed. Of course, there will be a charge for the races, but those who attend the barbecue, hear the speaking and meet with their friends in the park will not be required to pay an entrance fee. If the plans now being formulated are made final, which is now believed to be certain.

A SMALL BLAZE

H. E. Moreland's barn caught fire Wednesday morning shortly before 10 o'clock and was pretty badly damaged before the fire company got on the ground and got the water to running, which soon had the flame extinguished. The principal damage was to the roof, which was practically destroyed and about ten bushels of corn will be a partial loss on account of being scorched. The family car was in the garage at the side of the barn and the firefighters pushed it out of the range of the fire, but in doing so broke off one of the car doors. Mr. Moreland estimates his loss at about $25. He has a theory that rats had gotten a match in some way and thereby started the fire, otherwise he can not guess at the origin of the blaze. There was no insurance.

CLOSING FOR THE FOURTH

The Retail Merchants Association has a provision in the by-laws for observing four holidays—and only four—during the year by closing their places of business for the day. These holidays are: Christmas, July 4, Armistice and Thanksgiving. On the basis of this rule, it is understood most of the business houses of the town will be closed Monday and those from a distance who will have business in the town will be on the safe side to come Tuesday instead of Monday. It is possible some of the business places may remain open on that day, but many of them, and possibly all of them, will be closed Monday observing the Glorious Fourth.

PICNIC AT MULLIN

Arrangements have been made for a big picnic in the grove on Mullin creek, west of the crossing and a short distance south of Mullin, on Friday, July 15. Invitations have been sent out to state and district candidates and county candidates are also invited to be there and speak in the interest of their campaigns. This is expected to be one of the biggest picnics of the season and it is hoped to make it a county wide assembly. At this picnic there will be stands for the sale of cold drinks, fruit, watermelons and other things and those who do not find it convenient to carry baskets can buy their edibles on the picnic grounds.

SUPPLIES FOR ELECTION

The election committee of the Mills County Democratic Executive Committee assisted Chairman John W. Roberts in preparing supplies Monday for the July 23 primary.

POSTAGE GOES UP

After midnight Tuesday, July 5, all letters must carry three cents postage instead of two in accordance with the tax bill recently passed. Letters that are short the additional postage will be delayed and the extra cent collected as postage due.

However, mail addressed to post offices, such as Goldthwaite, which have no carrier service still takes the 2c rate. Post cards and private mailing cards are still one cent. Air mail jumps from 5c to 8c for the first ounce and 13c for each additional ounce. Parcel post rates are also raised, but the rates are so complicated you had better just ask at the post office and not try to figure them yourself.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HOLD ELECTION

The annual election of officers by the Harry F. Edmondson post of the American Legion will be held at the Legion Hall Tuesday night, July 5, instead of Monday, July 4. Delegates will also be elected to the state convention at Corpus Christi August 1. The meeting has been postponed a day in order that members who would be away on the fourth could attend the election.

ADJUTANT

BIDDLE APPOINTED

Judge Roy Simpson has appointed W. L. Biddle to fill the unexpired term of his father, the late Mr. Wm. Biddle, as commissioner of precinct No. 2. The term will expire Jan 1, at which time the commissioner elected in the November election will take charge of the office in his own right. A petition was circulated and freely signed asking that young Mr. Biddle be appointed to succeed his father.

A SAD VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Whiteman returned last Friday from Fort Worth, where they were called on Wednesday of last week by news of the serious illness of Mrs. Whiteman's father, J. G. Meserole, and who succumbed Thursday morning to an illness of some duration. Upon their return they were accompanied by Mrs. Meserole, and who will visit them here for some time. The sympathy of all their many friends is extended to the bereaved family.—Brady Standard.

A GREEDY THIEF

A few nights ago a thief broke open L. J. Gartman's storm cellar at his residence and stole all of his canned meats, which included a number of fowls and two calves. The thief was greedy enough to take practically all of the canned goods in the cellar, not even leaving Mr. Gartman and family a share of it. Officers are working on several clues and it is certainly to be hoped that the guilty party or parties will be brought to justice.

In this connection, it is well enough for those having canned meats, fruits and other things to take warning and guard their storage places with a saved off shot gun.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

County Clerk Porter reports no marriage license issued since last week.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Another good man has fallen in the person of Mr. Wm. Biddle. He has been one of our foremost citizens, striving to render efficient service to those whom he served. Just a short time back he was in our home discussing some of the problems of today, and during the conversation he said that the longer he lived, the greater his desire to serve his people. Little did he think that he was going so soon, and that his task would be shifted to some one else in such a short time. May the one whose duty it shall be to take up his work carry on with the same interest, and with the same unselfish spirit that ruled and guided the life of our former county commissioner.

Our congregations at every service Sunday were beyond our expectation. We are more than anxious to not have a let down in our regular attendance. We insist that everyone keep in mind our Sunday services and do your best to attend every service. It is no little task for a man or woman to prove their loyalty to their church in these strenuous times, but after all it is the best for them and the church. So be loyal, be true, for our church going days will soon be over and we will have to render an account to our Maker for the way we treated His church, and the way we observe His day, as well as the way we live. The prayer of this pastor is: "May the Lord help us during these summer days to be worthy of the vocation wherein we have been called."

Last Thursday night on the campus of the Athens park was designated as Methodist night, and believe it or not, they were masters of their environment. A volley ball game had been matched between the Baptists and Methodists, and Thursday night following the Schmelling-Sharkey fight had been selected as the time for the two teams to get together and show their skill.

The preliminaries consisted of three games being played by the young men from each Sunday school. These games were interesting from the time the first ball was thrown until the last was thrown. Good spirit, with good fellowship prevailed throughout the mele. The Methodists were victorious in all three games. Everyone played good ball. Raymond Little starred for the Methodists, while Walters Hester for the Baptists. Naturally these two boys would do this, as both of them are venturing toward a matrimonial career. After the preliminaries the big show was on. These gentlemen showed that they were not amateurs, but that they had been well trained for the occasion. Fans for both sides whooped them up encouraging them on to victory. Finally the Methodists won. Owen Yarborough was the individual star for the Methodists and Bert Wright for the Baptists.

The only knockout during these games was when some one threw the ball and knocked Tom Toland down, but before the referee could count ten, Tom was on his feet and saying let's go after them boys. We are expecting another game in the near future, and if you can not be a good sport and take defeat, why don't come. We have always been for clean sports, but the moment that anyone in any kind of game between two teams, regardless of what the games may be, tries to take an undue advantage in order to win, that moment that individual should be benched or the game stopped. Especially must we as Christians use Christian ethics in playing just as the boys did the other night. If we do, good can be derived from it, otherwise harm will come.

Regular services at the Baptist church Sunday, with an old fashioned song service at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon. We extend to our next door neighbors an invitation and urge that every community be represented.

TEXAS DELEGATION STAMPEDED BY WETS

Caught in the middle of a landslide for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the Texas delegation at the National Democratic Convention at Chicago cast its 46 votes solidly in favor of the wet plank in the party platform. The unit rule, which has always played a prominent part in deciding the Texas vote, kicked back this time, and so a majority of the 184 Texas delegates was able to swing the whole state into line behind Al Smith and John J. Raskob.

The ballot began after midnight Wednesday, Chicago time, with the dry state of Alabama splitting its 24 votes, 21 for the dry plank and 3 for repeal. After that only Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi and Oklahoma voted solidly in opposition to the immediate repeal plank, which also carried provisions for the immediate legal manufacture of beer and other alcoholic beverages. When the roll call reached Texas, only about 20 votes for repeal were needed. The final vote was 213 3/4 for submission and 93 3/4 for repeal—more than four to one.

The resolutions committee, which drafted the platform, delayed its report from 1 p. m. till 7 p. m., as the members battled over its various planks. Two reports were submitted. The majority report, championed by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, demanded immediate repeal and the legalized manufacture of wine and beer. The minority report was similar to the plank adopted by the Republican convention, two weeks before and asked for submission to the people.

Maury Hughes, Texas delegate on the resolutions committee, battled all day for the minority report. He was allowed time in the debate to defend the minority plank, but just as he started to speak, the Texas delegation sent word that they had caucused and had voted to support the repeal amendment, so there was nothing left for him to do but to assure the convention that John Garner was also wet and try to tie the speaker to the coat tail of Alfred Emanuel Smith. After this major defection, only one speaker, Fitts of Birmingham, Ala., made any serious effort to stem the tide of alcoholic liquor. He made a magnificent speech despite the boos and hisses of the wet galleries, but failed to carry all the votes of his own delegation. Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who was the first speaker for the minority, lost his state to the wets 18 to 6.

Several weeks ago it was reported in Wall street that the Democratic convention would go straight out for repeal and would nominate Newton D. Baker and John N. Garner for president and vice-president. Balloting today probably will decide the presidential nomination.

BREAKING THE RULE

For the first time during the campaign the Eagle has been furnished publicity for a state candidate at advertising rates and while this is breaking the rule by the candidates, it is in fact paid for by supporters and not the candidate in person. A display advertisement in the interest of Hon. Chas. N. Shaver for state superintendent of Public Instruction appears in this issue. This is so unusual that the Eagle is violating its rule and giving some publicity to his candidacy. Mr. Shaver was appointed state superintendent to fill the unexpired term of the late Supt. S. M. N. Marrs and is pretty sure to succeed himself. He seems to be well grounded in the principles that should govern his department and, among other things, he says:

"The people of Texas are facing a serious economic crisis; retrenchment is necessary in every department of our state government; all extravagance and unnecessary expenditures should be eliminated from every department of the school system; the same rule should be applied to the Department of Education in every phase of its operation. But in the elimination of any form of waste that may have gotten into the administration of local schools in the time of general prosperity we must not impair their usefulness by unreasonable and unwise retrenchment."

LEARN HOW TO WALK

An extremely important phase of the automobile accident problem is carelessness or ignorance on the part of the pedestrian. During 1931, pedestrian deaths reached 14,500, out of a total of 34,400 deaths caused by automobiles, and the number of pedestrians injured non-fatally was 300,000. Consequently, if we are to make definite progress in reducing deaths and injuries, we must teach the public to walk.

In the case of the walker on the highway at night, the old rule of "keep to the right" may be suicidal—the left side is the right side. Wearing dark clothing increases the hazard because of its invisibility. Weather conditions are all important, and at the hour between light and darkness, when the pedestrian tends to blend into the background and figuratively disappear, he must be extremely careful, inasmuch as the driver may not be able to see him at all, and hence can not take care of him.

Carelessness in crossing streets, stepping suddenly out from between parked cars, walking around the end of a street car into traffic and thoughtlessness and abstraction regarding traffic lights, court disaster.

If pedestrians can learn "good walking practices," deaths and injuries from automobiles will be reduced.

FARMERS ARE THE BIG FACTOR

When it comes to the dairy industry, we hear more about the distributors of milk products than of the farmers who do the actual producing. But, from the economic standpoint, the distributors are pretty small fry when compared to the farmers.

The dairy industry represents an investment of $10,250,000,000. Of this amount about $9,000,000,000 represents the farmers' investment in land, buildings and equipment. The distributors' investment is the balance—$1,250,000,000.

In other words, the 3,000,000 farmers who own the cows and the farms and produce the milk, are a good deal more important than the 30,000 distributors, even though the latter are necessary to the business. Yet, the farmer gets the short end of the stick. When prices are reduced, the cut is usually taken out of his share. As a result, at a time when millions of farmers are losing money and few making profits, other factors in the dairy industry are making as large a unit profit as they ever did.

The co-operative movement is the farmers' hope for remedying this condition. The fact that millions of farmers have created and are loyally supporting thousands of co-operatives throughout the country, is a fine augury for the agricultural future.

SETTLERS FROM OHIO REVIVE GHOST TOWN

The abandoned mill town of Carlisle, Wash., and the surrounding prairies and low logged land, soon will be the center of a new colonization project, the largest of its kind undertaken in Washington since pioneer days.

Russian and Hungarian families from Cleveland and Youngstown, Ohio, plan to make this "ghost town" live again. The vanguard of settlers has arrived and more families will follow the first 50.

"The land is good," said Joseph Masechek, leader of the expedition. "The stumps will be a problem, but we figure that once we weather the first year all will be well."

The families will occupy empty houses at Carlisle and each householder will take 40 acres to cultivate by special arrangement with the mill company, which formerly operated the town.

WHAT CREATES PAYROLLS

Wisconsin has been receiving considerable publicity through the newspapers on the political and taxation policies which it has established and which are evidently discouraging normal industrial growth in that state.

A lot of people seem to be awakening to the fact that it takes industries, investments and payrolls to create and maintain employment and that taxation and legislative policies which discourage normal activity, strike directly at the dinner bucket brigade and the taxpayers' pocketbook.

Congressman Thos. L. Blanton has challenged his opponent, Joe Jones of Eastland, to a joint debate in the various counties in the district and Mr. Jones has accepted two dates—July 4 at Cisco and July 15 at Abilene. Those who know the gentlemen and have heard them speak are predicting that the "fur will fly."

Homer C. DeWolfe writes from Austin to say that Jas. V. Alfred will speak in Comanche July 5 and Mr. DeWolfe invites his friends to be there and hear public matters discussed by Mr. Alfred.

"GOOD OLE DAYS RETURN"

This depression has certainly caused the realization of us youths. Young people don't you recall how we used to sit around the fire and listen to the fascinating tales of how our parents used to ride for miles to a party or church, singing, etc., in a wagon filled with hay and we (poor us living in an age of automobiles) hardly ever saw a wagon, much less rode in one. Don't you recall such a thrilling experience as this? Well, our dreams are no more dreams, but realizations. I think every reader would agree with me if he could have seen the gay, laughing crowd of young boys and girls from the Center City and Live Oak communities last Saturday night, who were safely carried to a party at Grover Price's in a hay wagon. There were sixteen present in the wagon) and they were Jack, Divernon, Ada Lee and Yvonne Welch, Roydston, John L. and Nora B. House, Jewel, Olivia and Alta Simpson, Arie, Odet, and Lois Wilkey, Benton Aldredge, Ila Fay Featherston and G. W. Simpson.

We arrived at the party at 10 o'clock. In spite of that we spent two hours in an enjoyable time. We had no time whatsoever to have a good time coming off that long hill on the way home, for every time we regained our correct posture and began breathing normal, after a rough place in the road we heard our chauffeur yell, "duck, duck, duck!" And we ducked to save our heads, hats and permanent waves. The road was so narrow and the limbs from each side so nearly touched each other that it seemed as if we were trying to make a truck line out of a cow track. We arrived home in the wee hours of the morning and expressed our regrets as to being home so early.

Don't pine for the good ole days any more. Just look around and you'll find they are here now. We are not, as the little boy said, "growing backwards," we are still progressing. But the depression has caused the gas to burn so low in our tanks that we are obliged to use the mules. We are not going as fast as we did a year or two ago, but we're getting there just the same. IF.

LARGE BRIDGE ORDERED

Denmark is preparing to construct what is believed to be the largest bridge in Europe. It will span the Storstrommen—Great Stream—between Sjælland and the Island of Falster, and will be used by railways and vehicles. The total length will be 10,827 feet and the height 85 feet. The cost will total approximately $6,723,000. Work will be started immediately and the structure is to be completed in 1940. It is the first link in the proposed route between Copenhagen and Hamburg.

BEAUTY in the HOME

Decorative Doors That Fold Like Curtains

DECORATIVE folding doors are the newest thing to seize the imagination of modern home decorators and designers as solving the problem of how to close off adjoining rooms or divide big rooms into smaller ones in a way agreeable to the color plan. And for wide doorways they are found particularly advantageous. These folding doors resemble draperies more than anything else, and being covered with fabricoid, they can be colored to harmonize with the surroundings and blend with your color scheme.

For home use, these doors are made with neither top nor bottom track and yet fold securely into a small space near the door jam and are firmly latched so that they may be swung at right angles if desired, simply taking the place of both doors and draperies. The framework of these doors is steel and is covered with felt upon which is imposed the fabricoid which may be of any tone, either with a design or plain and may be wiped with a damp cloth as often as necessary to keep it clean. This makes an unusually sound resistant door.

The ways in which a housewife with imagination may decorate such a door are endless, either with sprayed designs or with colors agreeable to the wall paper. The fact that the door looks a good deal like a curtain when opened, and certainly takes up no more room, is attractive to many women who are embarrassed by the space taken up by open doors. And the fact that they can be washed without removing them is another of their appealing qualities.

Builders are increasingly specifying this type of door in new homes and many of them are being used in old ones where they are found to have not only a decorative but also a very practical appearance.

REASON FOR REFERENDUM

A state referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment will be held in conjunction with the Democratic primary election in July, as the result of the decision of the State Democratic Executive Committee at its meeting last Monday. However, the action was not taken at the request of leading prohibitionists, as was expected, though the member introducing the subject, Carl Estes, declared that he did so as a prohibitionist and will vote for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment. While leading prohibitionists had discussed the advisability of submitting the question, and regarded such a proposal with favor, no concerted move was made to have the committee act, and the truth is that the division of the committee on the question was almost a wet and dry division, the wets voting for submission and the dries against it. The attitude of the dries, it has been since explained, was due to the fear that many prohibitionists will remain out of the Democratic primaries this year, because of unwillingness to take the party pledge, and that in consequence the full dry vote would not be polled. It is expected, however, now that the question has been submitted, that the dries will make an effort to bring out their full vote, pledge or no pledge, and that at the same time they will attempt to recapture possession of the party machinery, as represented on the State Executive Committee. In any event, it can be confidently predicted that a much larger vote will be registered in the primary than otherwise would have been polled. While no move toward organizing a campaign has been made at this writing, it is expected that steps in this direction will be taken in the immediate future by leaders on both sides of the question. It is probable that there are some warm weeks ahead of us.

A big vote in the primary, it is believed, will help Gov. Sterling more than any other candidate for governor, and will insure his renomination in the first primary by a decisive majority. It should be said, in this connection, however, that on the eve of the meeting of the State Executive Committee, Gov. Sterling told the newspapers that he had no interest in any move to submit the prohibition question, and that certainly he would not request the committee to take any action on the matter. Be that as it may, it is generally agreed that he will be the chief beneficiary of the increased vote which the submission of the prohibition question is expected to bring out.—The Texas Weekly.

DRYS AND WETS SPENDING FREELY IN CAMPAIGNS

More than $100,000 has been spent by organized dries thus far in their campaign to keep both the Republican and Democratic parties dry, it was disclosed Friday in campaign fund reports filed with the clerk of the house.

Reports of the major wet organizations also filed with the clerk revealed they are being heavily financed in their general program of covering the nation for repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The large expenditures of both the wet and dry organizations indicated they may drain many of the sources of campaign contributions for the political parties.

The report of the board of strategy, headed by Rev. E. H. Cherrington, showed contributions of $42,315 and expenditures of $35,257 from October 7 last to June 1.

The allied forces, led by Daniel A. Poling of New York, showed receipts of $53,102 from January 1 to February 29, unpaid pledges of $58,563 and expenditures of $52,900.

SENATE PASSES RELIEF BILL

The $500,000,000 public works bond issue section of the Democratic relief bill, to which President Hoover is opposed, was approved by the senate Wednesday. Despite the hint of a presidential veto from Senator Moses, a number of administration senators voted for the bond issue. The Democrats were almost solid for it, together with Western Independent Republicans.

A TEXAN WHO WENT FAR

Success as a rule that knows few exceptions does not depend on the greased machinery of inherited ease, but on the effort of the individual. Robert S. Lovett was an example of that. The obscure farm boy who earned his first dollar digging stumps from a railroad right-of-way rose to head the great Harriman system. The practically self-educated Texas lawyer became one of the ablest jurists in the transportation field.

Bob Lovett when he died the other day had been away from his home state a matter of 27 years. But Texas never forgot him—partly because Harriman's railroad wheels were still daily covering a huge extent of state mileage and more because Bob Lovett was still a Texan. He had won his early legal battles in this state. He had achieved a national reputation in Texas. When he left it was because his larger duties called him away.

The list of his achievements is long. It includes notable war service on the war industries board, organization of its division of priorities, and in government rail administration the direction of capital expenditures. Add to that his extraordinary record as a railroad lawyer, his success at the head of the Union Pacific system, and his handling of the E. H. Harriman interests in Wall Street, after the passing of the "Little Giant." These give you the picture of the many sided man who came off a San Jacinto farm in South Texas. But when you ask his friends, you find it is not of the able lawyer and administrator they think in sorrow, but of an easy going, approachable companion whom Texas has always known as just Bob Lovett.—Dallas News.

SAVED FROM SUICIDE MAN KILLED BY BLAST

It was time for J. W. Edwards of Austin to die. Unable to find work in Houston, where he had gone to look for a job, he turned on the gas and waited for the end. Then a friend called. They talked. Edwards thought the gas had blown out of the room and lit a match. He died a few hours later from burns. His friend, who jumped out of the second story window, will recover. Letters explaining his act were blown open by the explosion.

FARM CREDITS FOR ALL

The house at Washington has passed without a record vote an amendment to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act, which will substantially increase the loaning powers of the corporation in so far as they apply to certain agricultural interests of the southwest. Inasmuch as the senate has already indorsed a similar measure, it is to be hoped that conferees of both houses can get together quickly on a program which will guarantee credit relief to the live stock, dairying and citrus interests of Texas and other states.

When the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was first organized, the act creating that organization provided that agriculture was to receive loans totaling not more than $200,000,000 from the corporation. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur Hyde limited considerably the class of farmers eligible for government aid, arousing considerable criticism, especially in the Southwest. As a result, delegations from Texas and other states which felt their farmers and live stock growers unjustly discriminated against, went to Washington and presented their case before congress, with the exceedingly happy result that the house has now expressly directed Mr. Hyde to liberalize the original agricultural loan policy of the administration.

Perhaps the intent to safeguard the loan to the small farmer by a lien on the growing crop was in itself admirable. Nevertheless, many groups of farmers and live stock growers found themselves left out in the cold—responsible men in their respective communities and well worthy of assistance from Washington. Live stock men and dairy producers, unable to furnish the security of "growing crops," were ruled ineligible. This was an obvious injustice, since these agriculturists, in Texas and in other states, were fully capable of repaying loans to the government as well as to private individuals. The citrus men of the valley and the growers of vegetables in the Winter Garden district of Texas found themselves similarly handicapped.

Congress should hasten to put an end to this situation by speedily amending the act. As it stands, certain favored groups of our far population are given the benefit of federal aid, while other equally deserving and equally solvent groups are declared ineligible for such aid. Farm credits should be extended to all, the only restriction being the judgment exercised by the official of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who decides on the advisability of the loans, whether they be to cotton farmers or citrus growers or live stock men or dairymen.—Houston Chronicle.

DON'T COMPETE WITH UNCLE SAM

Uncle Sam has a monopoly on the letter carrying business, and the post office department has just given notice that a $500 fine is waiting for anyone who tries to compete with the mailman. Now that letter postage is to be raised to three cents, some big business firms figured to make a saving by hiring men to deliver their bills. A thousand bills require $30 postage, and a man could deliver them for less than that in thickly settled districts. All right, says Uncle Sam, if the man is an employe of the company, and if he doesn't use the mail box. But if he tries to deliver for more than one firm, he'll be arrested and fined.

WEDDING RING LOST 47 YEARS IS RETURNED

Just before Charles Wolf and his wife of Eldora, Iowa, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Mrs. Wolf's wedding ring, lost 47 years before, was returned to them.

The ring slipped from Mrs. Wolf's finger two years after their marriage, when she was working in a field with her husband. It could not be found. Then, 47 years later John Wentholt plowed the same land. He saw a gleam from the soil and picked up the ring, identified it by its initials and returned it to Mrs. Wolf.

SCHOOL CHECKS EXEMPT FROM TAX

Checks and warrants issued by common and independent school districts in payment of salaries and equipment purchases will be exempted from the 2-cent check tax levied by the national government, according to a ruling received from the internal revenue bureau by C. School officials in many districts disburse funds by issuing ordinary checks, Shaver reported.

GOVERNMENT COSTS

Constantly we are being reminded of the high cost of government. It is a topic of general discussion. As a matter of fact the total cost of government in the United States—national, state and local—is computed at fourteen billion dollars a year.

Fourteen billions. When spoken, the words roll out with consummate ease. Even the printed figures 14,000,000,000, might well be the score of an extra inning ball game.

But fourteen billion dollars, the cost of running our government is a sum not easily comprehended. Only by translating it into more familiar forms of wealth or income, does its magnitude become more clear.

For instance, the Texas Weekly says, last year's cost of government was more than twenty times the value of the South's cotton crop. The entire agricultural output of the United States, including all the production from farms, ranches, dairies and orchards would be short several billions in paying the nation's tax bill. Every two years we spend on government an amount equal to the total World War debt of this country, and should all of Europe's debts to us be paid in one lump sum it would last but little over six months in the hands of the government tax eaters, at the present rate of feeding.

Were the government but a single spendthrift, disposing of $300 a minute, for ten hours each day and every day in the year, when would he expend the last dollar of fourteen billion? In the year 2172. But before that time arrived his thoughts might have turned to saving.—Meridian, Conn. Record.

JUDGE SENTENCES YOUTHS TO CHURCH

At Atlanta, Ga., sentences of compulsory church attendance are being resorted to by Recorder E. L. Cone in municipal court to check drinking by boys and girls.

"The good influence of the church is needed to stop this consumption of liquor by children," Recorder Cone declared. "If I had the authority I'd do the job that their parents should be doing and turn them over my knees and administer a good old-fashioned dose of hickory."

Period Accessories in the Boudoir

PERIOD designs in furniture and decorations and also in the accessories of the toilet table have always been popular for the American bedroom. As the Colonial style has found favor widely as the best note to strike in furnishing a sleeping apartment, and also as the approaching Washington Centennial has given an added interest in early American motifs, some of the most alluring dressing tables now being displayed are equipped with comb, brush, mirror, slipper horn and maniere appliances that are really American in form, color, design and inspiration.

Monticello, the home of Jefferson, has given its name to one group of these toilet accessories which were to reflect the best of the early colonial taste. The pieces are early restrained and based in spirit, as were the work of the early American craftsmen. The shapes are based on the best work of the Colonial—simplicity and grace.

These toilet accessories come in styles reflecting the spirit of various English and French periods also, and are from designs by such artists as Verne Cook Salomonsky, Ben Nash, Ethel Parsons, Robert Leonard, Margaret Pritchard, and Burton Keeler. Decorators are finding them valuable in giving a final touch in the proper period spirit to the ensemble of the sleeping room, and the lady who uses the boudoir takes delight in their color, design and finish as well as feeling sure that she has something accordingly within the historic range of the rest of the apartment.

KEYNOTES

Here are some pointed sentences from the keynote address of the Democratic national convention as delivered Monday by Senator Barkley of Kentucky:

"This convention should recommend the passage by congress of a resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment and its submission to the people of the states through conventions."

"No fair man or woman wishes to be unjust to Mr. Hoover or his administration. . . . But that the Hoover administration and the policies it has pursued have largely contributed to the disaster which has overtaken ours and the world's affairs no intelligent observer can dispute."

"We propose to reduce the exorbitant and indefensible rates of the Smoot-Hawley, Hoover-Grundy tariff act. . . . We propose again to start the wheels of industry and afford an outlet for the energies and ambitions of industrious men and women."

"We propose to abolish every useless office, every unnecessary bureau and commission."

"We shall undertake to afford (to the farmer) in this emergency the character of relief which has been so generously granted to other forms of industry and finance."

"We should restrict the channels of stock market operations and expand those of commercial operations. . . . Banking institutions as such should be divorced from stock market operations of the character which contributed to the loss of billions of dollars and the confidence of our people."

"The only constructive measures brought forward in this congress originated with the Democratic membership of that body."

"On the fourth of next March the nominee of this convention will be inaugurated president of the United States."

PICTURES THAT TEACH

Along a mountain trail in the high Sierras a half-dozen horsemen view snow-clad peaks, majestic valleys, and pine-clad slopes. The scene is miles away from civilization and remote from automobile roads, but a camera man has made a permanent record of nature's grandeur in this little known section of our country. Down along the bayous of southeast Texas, the logging camps are converting acres of virgin timber into useful lumber. The whirring teeth of the huge saws eat deep into the hearts of the endless logs. It is a sight never to be forgotten, but how many people have the opportunity to visit a saw mill now? Along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea are the cradles of civilization—Egyptian, Hebrew, Greek and Roman. The pyramids gleam in the sun. Fishermen haul in their nets by the Sea of Galilee. The busy, modern streets of Rome lead to the Coliseum, where the Christian martyrs once battled for their lives or to the Senate house, where Julius Caesar was murdered on the Ides of March nearly two thousand years ago.

As much as everyone would like for his children to view these scenes, the average man knows they will never have the opportunity to take such expensive journeys far from home. Even with the wealth of a Croesus, no family would be able to visit more than a small number of the interesting places in the world. But fortunately it is now possible at trifling expense to see any of them through the eyes of the motion picture camera.

Numerous organizations supply motion picture films and lantern slides of educational subjects, but the most convenient and most moderate is the Visual Instruction Bureau of the University of Texas at Austin. Under the able management of its chief, Mrs. Charles Joe Moore, this bureau is supplying many Texas schools, clubs and similar organizations with films and slides to illustrate practically any subject of interest.

Some idea of the bureau's vast resources may be obtained from the fact that it now has more than 25,000 lantern slides alone, in addition to its library of motion picture films, film strips, stereographs and prints. Most of these are loaned free to subscribers who have paid a nominal annual registration fee and pay the transportation charges. Others are rented for a small sum. Although the demands on the bureau are increasing yearly, there are still literally thousands of Texas schools which have not yet taken advantage of its facilities.

The importance of moving pictures in education has lately been demonstrated by the University of Chicago, which is producing sound films for a number of university courses. These films, which will be sold to other schools for $1400 each in addition to being used at Chicago, will include moving pictures of microscopic subjects and of intricate laboratory tests too expensive to repeat often.

Yale University has provided a series of historical dramas, The Chronicles of America, in which the principal events in American history are acted out. The costumes, settings and actions are historically accurate, and the stories intensely interesting. The slides at the university include many that are beautiful and realistically colored. Art and architectural subjects especially are reproduced with amazing vividness. With most of them are included carefully prepared lectures, which may be given as the pictures are shown.

Seeing is indeed believing, and when the beauty of nature, the marvels of man's inventive genius, the pageant of history, the masterpieces of art are flashed upon the silver screen, those who see the pictures will be far better able to believe in the reality of the originals than they were before. Though pictures that teach can never supplant the living teacher or the printed page, they provide a powerful stimulant to the learning process. They should be utilized by every school.

The announcement of J. M. Geeslin of Center City as a candidate for county commissioner for his precinct, subject to the July primary, appears in this paper. Mr. Geeslin is one of the best known as well as one of the best qualified men in his precinct. Geeslin, who served the precinct as commissioner for several years, and made a record of which he has a right to be proud and one that reflects credit upon those who had the good judgment to elect him. Monroe Geeslin is a sound thinking business man, industrious and economical and would make a mighty safe and helpful member of the commissioners court as well as a mighty good man to have in charge of the road work in his precinct. It will be necessary for the voters to write his name on their tickets, as the time for printing names on the ballot has passed.

NEW PROCFS YIELDS MAGIC PLANT SUBSTANCE

One of the world's most mysterious substances, chlorophyll, the live-giving green pigment in the leaves of plants, is now available to science and industry. Dr. Frank M. Schertz of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has found a way to extract it at low cost from blue grass, spinach and other plants and has isolated the largest single batch of the pure compound.

With plenty of chlorophyll available for study, experts hope to explain a long-standing riddle. Sunlight falls alike on man, animals and plants, but only the plants have the power of harnessing its energy to manufacture food. The chlorophyll in their green leaves, in some way still unknown, takes carbon dioxide gas from the air and transforms its carbon into sugars and starches, yielding oxygen in return, through the pores of the leaves. New studies of chlorophyll may reveal the secret of this process, says Popular Science Monthly.

Commercial applications are also foreseen for Dr. Schertz's discovery. Chlorophyll already is used in soap manufacture and other industries. Medicinal pills are made from it. Hitherto Germany and Switzerland have furnished small quantities, extracted at almost prohibitive cost. With a cheap supply available, Dr. Schertz foresees new uses. One derivative of chlorophyll, he says, offers great promise as a beneficial coloring matter for ice cream.

Chlorophyll has been analyzed and found a combination of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and the metallic element magnesium. It loses its green tint and becomes blue black upon extraction.

These may not be boom times, but they are a lot better than the ten years following the Civil War, says State Press in the Dallas News. He adds: "When we think of the Confederate soldiers who walked home from Appomattox and similar points of demobilization — when we think of the Confederate soldiers who had subsisted on parched corn and occasional messes of stringy beef, walking hundreds of miles to their homes and finding the fences down, the live stock perished, the fields weed grown and only Confederate currency to use for money — when we think of all that and twice as much more, we realize that our times are good in comparison with those times. The Confederate soldiers did not expect Washington to do anything for them. And Washington did nothing for them. They retrieved their homes and rebuilt their prosperity by hard work and thrifty methods. No pension, no bonus, no hospitalization, no readjusted compensation for the Confederate soldier. Just self-help, courage, persistence for him. The poverty of the South for ten years after the Civil War has only a pallid reflex in the present situation. Grandmother had one silk dress in the course of her lifetime. Granddaughter has one or two a year, yet is no happier than her grandma was. Happiness is mental, not financial."

SOME EXCITING POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS

Texas history carries accounts of many warm political campaigns, all of which were attended not only with great interest, but by excitement, which frequently reached fever heat and made argument dangerous.

Old timers tell us that one of the warmest campaigns of early days was when Sam Houston and Governor Reynolds made the race for governor. Reynolds was not a speaker, and was represented on the stump by a Mr. Wigfall, a great orator. The tilts between Houston and Wigfall were acrimonious and exciting, and many traveled as far as one hundred miles to hear their joint discussions.

The first contest at the polls witnessed by the writer was the state-wide prohibition election in 1887. Every person who could make a speech was pressed into the campaign and there were joint debates nearly every day in the cities and towns and country school houses. One of the United States Senators, Jno. H. Reagan, lined up with the prohibitionists; the other senator, Richard Coke, trained with the anti. Most of the congressmen were against prohibition, but D. B. Culberson, congressman from the old Fourth district, took the stump for the pros. The election was held in August. The campaign proved a bonanza for the makers and sellers of ribbon. The pros wore white badges on which were printed, "For God and Home and Native Land." The anti wore blue badges, which carried the words, "For Texas and Freedom." Thousands of ribbons were used as every man, woman and child, and some of the dogs were "badged." Fanning was the banner dry county of the state, giving the prohibitionists a majority of 1172. The state went wet by a majority of 90,000.

The Campaign of 1886
 There was quite an interest in the race for governor in 1886. Marion Martin, who was known as the "Swamp Fox of Navarro," was pitted against Gen. L. L. Ross, the Democratic nominee. Martin was supported by the Knights of Labor party and several other organizations, and carried a few counties, but Ross' majority was more than 100,000.

Probably the most spectacular campaign in the history of the state was the race for governor in 1892, between James Stephen Hogg and Geo. Clark. Hogg had swept the state like an avalanche two years before, the principal plank in his platform being the establishment of a commission to regulate the railways. The venerable James W. Throckmorton, an ex-governor, announced early, but soon saw that nothing could stop the Hogg wave and withdrew. Henry D. McDonald, a brilliant lawyer of Paris, was a candidate, but took fright and quit. Gustave Cook, a fine speaker, was brought out to oppose Hogg, but made a very poor showing.

Hogg had an easy time in his first race, but opposition to him for his second term was pronounced and bitter. George Clark, of Waco, known as a political "Warwick," was selected to oppose the "old commoner." Clark was a trained politician, and had as his leading helpers many of the state's leading politicians, including ex-Governor Ross and ex-Senator Maxey.

The Convention Split
 When the convention came on there was a split and both candidates ran, each claiming the nomination. To make matters worse for Hogg, the Populist party appeared in the field with Judge Nugent, a very able and popular man, as its candidate. The cities were against Hogg, but the country was largely for him. Many farmers, however, had joined the Populist party, and supported Nugent. For several weeks Texas was a revel of oratory, and an almost continuous torchlight procession. Hogg won, but his lead over Clark was only 40,000. Nugent polled about 100,000 votes.

The three-cornered race for governor two years later, when John H. Reagan, Charles A. Culberson and S. W. T. Lanham were the candidates, was very interesting. For a time it looked like a ground swell for

FATHER FINDS SON AFTER LONG SEARCH

A 57,000-mile hunt finally brought W. H. Gifford, 64-year old retired pilot, in touch with his long lost son, missing since the war.

Directly after the war his son, Percy, was smitten with the wanderlust and went off alone for an unknown destination. After failing to get in touch with him, Gifford went on a personal search, but returned months later empty-handed.

The ambition to find the errant Percy became the father's life purpose. Last November, convinced that he was still alive, he set out for Australia, against the advice of his friends.

Three false trails led him to "Percy Giffords," but none of them was his son. Finally an old friend in Brisbane provided a clue.

Another 1500-mile journey to the small mining town of Mt. Isa, and there he found him.

Terrific hardships had changed the boy, and he related that at one time he had not slept in a bed for four years.

Reagan, but Culberson won out.

The last race for governor under the old convention plan was twenty-six years ago, when the candidates were Thomas Campbell, Judge Bell, O. B. Colquitt and Judge Brooks. In the selection of delegates by the counties Campbell had a slight lead, with Bell, Colquitt and Brooks bunched. The state convention was a boisterous affair, but Campbell was nominated on the third ballot.

Nobody ever saw, anywhere, a more exciting contest than the Bailey-anti-Bailey affair of twenty years ago. It wasn't a contest for office, but for delegates to the national convention. More speeches were made, perhaps, than in any campaign Texas has known, and there were more bitter feeling and more fights than ever attended a political contest of any character in the state. The Bailey ticket won by a majority of 20,000. —Hico News Review.

Scientists Make The Apple Blush

Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, Yonkers, New York. Left: A green and untreated apple. Right: Apple exposed to mercury arc (blue, violet and ultra-violet) for 40 hours. The cross was made by covering that section with paper during exposure.

PAINTING the lily has always been considered a waste of time, but rouging the apple is another story. The peach that blushes or the red-cheeked apple have a commercial advantage over their green sisters. The green-colored apple may be of equal deliciousness within, but it does not sell itself as does red fruit. Then too, Nature ordains fruit unevenly, according to how the sunlight strikes it.

At the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, you may see McIntosh apples of a beautiful red color, produced from green fruit in from forty to ninety-six hours. It is hardly fair to call this an artificial make-up, however. It is the sun's own method under control. By turning the blue, violet and ultra-violet rays of a mercury lamp on the green fruit, using a filter of some special glass (pyrex or Correx), you speed up the action of the sun and at the same time protect the apple from burning or overheating. In other words, the fruit is colored quickly by improving on the sun's method.

Dr. John M. Arthur, in charge of this investigation, has found that only living cells of the apple peel will respond to this treatment. If the peel is too old or crushed, no color results. The best results in the latitude of New York, come from picking the apples about August 25, when forty hours' exposure will color them. Picked as late as September 14, they needed ninety-six hours' exposure to the light. The skin cells are growing older and don't blush so readily. A temperature of fifteen degrees C (fifty-nine degrees F.) proved best. Apples are usually picked partly green and ripened in storage; picked dead ripe they would spoil before marketing. So this plan does not mean that you get a green apple looking deceptively ripe; not at all: you get your apple ripened as usual but given the red color by the sun's own method's before it is stored.

RAIL TRANSPORTATION IS EFFICIENT AND ECONOMICAL

● THE RAILROAD is the most efficient and the most economical transportation agency the human mind has ever devised.

The ability of commercial trucks to operate with various charges for their services has been because they are not required to carry all kinds and classes of freight. The truck can choose its freight and is privileged to reject that which it cannot handle, either because it is not equipped for such heavy service or the rates are too low to be profitable. The railroad CANNOT DISCRIMINATE but must accept all freight offered it.

In 1930 the shippers of Texas paid the railroads $225,228,142 in freight charges. If the same volume and character of traffic had been carried by trucks it would have cost the shippers, according to the best available data on trucking costs, $900,000,000, or four times as much.

What will be the effect on the shippers of Texas if only the traffic which the trucks cannot handle is left to the railroads? If traffic paying the higher rate is taken from the railroads by the trucks, it will be necessary for the rail carriers to increase their rates on the low grade traffic or go out of business. The total transportation bill will be greatly increased.

The railroad rate structure is a composite designed for the purpose of enabling the free movement of ALL ARTICLES OF COMMERCE, making it possible to bring even the cheapest commodities into general use and distribution. Were it not for the low rates made available by the railroads on many low grade commodities and raw materials, their distribution and use would be impossible and all commerce and industry would be seriously affected.

● THE RAILROADS CANNOT SUBSIST ON LOW GRADE TRAFFIC ALONE.

LO, THE POOR FARMER

The agricultural situation, which many believe will have to improve before normal economic conditions can return is worse than than many city dwellers realize. Farm products have led the deflation which has extended now over nearly three years.

As a consequence the current price of agricultural produce is only 56 per cent of the pre-war level, while exchange value of farm products in terms of the goods which farmers normally buy is now only 50 per cent of the 1910-1914 average.

Farm indebtedness incurred heavily in the period of high agricultural prices in the war period involves a burden which farmers by the thousands are unable to bear. At current price of farm produce a large part of their indebtedness can not be paid.

In spite of the increasing seriousness of the agricultural situation it commands much less attention than it did five years and ten years ago, when farm conditions were comparatively good; when farmers were feeling the effects of declining prices, but when a large majority of them were relatively prosperous.

Farm relief was an important issue in the 1928 conventions. The need of it received but passing notice last week at Chicago.

One has to turn to the farm journals or to the farms themselves to get a picture of the agricultural situation and a fair understanding of difficulties with which the typical American farmer is confronted. It is a picture of a major industry undergoing a tremendous transformation with the standard of living of those engaging in it definitely declining.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

JUDGES CONFUSED OVER HOME-BREW

A question whether "home-brew" is intoxicating has divided the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin in deciding a case involving a conviction for possessing intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale.

The conviction, against Chas. Walker, Erath county, who had been sentenced to one year imprisonment, was reversed and remanded by a two-to-one decision. Judge O. S. Lattimore dissented from Presiding Judge W. C. Morrow and Judge F. L. Hawkins, in approving the opinion, written by Judge George E. Christian of the Commission of Appeals.

"If the liquor was 'home-brew,' the evidence to the effect that it was intoxicating was not conclusive," the majority opinion stated. "Beer is, within the judicial knowledge of the court, an intoxicating liquor. The courts have no judicial knowledge that home brew is an intoxicating liquor."

There was disagreement among officers who raided Walker's place and found 17 pint bottles "with a liquid of some character" in a trunk, whether the liquid was "beer" or "home brew". The officers said they had taken "two or three swallows" of the liquid and testified they believed it was intoxicating.

SMITH'S NOSE WORTH ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS

Detectives must have two good noses—one for crime and another on the face. That is why a magistrate in Paris has awarded $1000 damages to a sleuth attached to the police squad for the suppression of gambling. The detective had sued a taxi company because his nose had been injured in a taxi accident and he could no longer carry on his work at vace tracks because "he would immediately be recognized on account of his injured nose."

FLIERS GIVEN PERMIT TO GO OVER RUSSIA

Jas. Mattern of Fort Worth and Bennett Griffin of Oklahoma City, who plan a round-the-world flight from west to east, have been granted permission by the Soviet government to fly over Russian territory. They submitted two routes over Siberia and asked the Soviet Union information bureau to have Russian flying officials designate the one which seemed more desirable. The route over Moscow, Irkutsk and Yakutsk was advised.

RECKLESS DRIVERS

Don't you take too many unnecessary and foolhardy chances when you are driving your car?

Often you have avoided accidents by only a few seconds. If other drivers had not favored you disaster would have been sure.

Perhaps you gained a few car lengths. Was it worth the risk? You may have reached your destination a few minutes earlier. Was that saving of minutes necessary?

Was it worth jeopardizing your life and others with you and in other cars on the road? If you drive a car for the thrills of narrow escapes you are not fit to sit behind a wheel. If only your neck were risked the matter might not be so serious.

The motoring world could get along without those who take long chances.

It is usually those who drive the fastest and in the most reckless way, who have the fewest demands upon their time.—Houston Chronicle.

COLORADO IS GIVEN BONDS TO FILE SUIT

The state of Colorado recently accepted a gift of $700,000 worth of North Carolina bonds. The only condition attached to the gift was that Colorado sue North Carolina and validate an entire issue of $7,000,000 worth of bonds. North Carolina has repudiated the bonds on the ground that they were issued by "carpetbaggers," following the war between the states and the funds squandered.

Gov. William H. Adams of Colorado opposed acceptance of the bonds on the ground that it was beneath the dignity of the state to act as a collection agency. He was overruled in the state auditing board meeting by four other elected state officials. The governor may prevent the state becoming a party to the suit, as the attorney general of the state is not authorized to bring suit except on request of the governor or the legislature.

Thomas Denny, Jr., New York City, holds practically the entire bond issue. He made the offer to the state because individuals can not sue a state, but one state can sue another.

WM. BIDDLE PASSED AWAY

Mr. William Biddle of Center City died of heart trouble in a sanitarium in Brownwood last Sunday, shortly after noon, and his remains were brought to Mills county and interred in the cemetery at Center City Monday morning at 11 o'clock, services being conducted by his former pastor, Rev. T. M. Mitchell, after which the Masonic fraternity took charge and conducted the burial rites.

Mr. Biddle was a citizen of Mills county for many years. He was born in England July 7, 1864, and immigrated to America with his parents at an early age. The family located first in Pennsylvania and later moved to Illinois, in which state he grew to manhood. He came to Mills county in 1896 and was married here to Miss Mittle Blackburn, daughter of Mr. L. G. Blackburn, in 1897. After a few years residence in this county they moved to Kansas, but returned to Mills county 28 years ago and he continued to reside here until the time of his death.

For eight years Mr. Biddle served his precinct as county commissioner and was known to the other officers of the county and the people generally as one of the most faithful and hardest working members of the court. He was always anxious for improvement in his work and gave of his time and ability to the limit in an endeavor to benefit those he served and who had trusted him. No better hearted man ever lived and no more loyal friend could be found than Wm. Biddle. Those who knew him honored him and depended upon him. His health had been failing for several months and finally, when it became necessary for him to give up his work and go to the hospital, much anxiety was expressed among his neighbors and other friends and the fear was expressed from the beginning that his condition was more serious than he realized. He appeared to rally, however, and Sunday morning he was cheerful and the hope was entertained that he would be restored to health, or at least become able to return home, but shortly after noon his heart ceased to perform its functions and before the seriousness of his condition could be made known he had passed away.

Mr. Biddle was a valuable man for the county and for his community and his going has left a vacancy that will be felt for a long time to come. Mills county is a better place because of his life and influence, but is poorer because he has gone.
