Vote Is Asked On Retaining County Agent

Commissioners Court To Secure Referendum From Voters at Primary.

A special issue, that of retention or discontinuing the position of county farm agent, will be submitted to the voters in the second primary, Aug. 27. The Democratic Executive committee agreed to submit the proposition on request of the commissioners court and the result will be purely advisory. The matter of retaining the farm agent has been discussed a great deal lately and before entering into a contract for another year the court would like to know just how the taxpayers stand on the proposition. Even though there should be a majority on either side of the question the court would be clothed with discretionary power, but the result of the election will be helpful in making a decision. Every voter should record an opinion on the subject, in order for the court to have a correct knowledge of the desires of the citizens in regard to the proposition.

Mills County Asked to Widen Right-of-Way

Pecan Belt Highway May Link Dallas and San Antonio with Pavement Soon.

The Highway Department has submitted a proposition to the counties through which the Pecan Belt highway passes that a hard surface will be placed on the roadway if a 100-foot right-of-way is furnished by the county. This will mean the addition of 40 feet, as the present right-of-way is already 60 feet. It would seem that this additional land could be easily provided and the benefits to the country through which the roadway passes are so many that the cost will be offset many times over, while a large amount of money will be expended along the line for labor, teams and material. It is estimated that the cost of placing the hard surface topping will cost $10,000 per mile, or approximately $300,000 in this county alone and this amount expended at this time will be helpful to business and give employment to many people.

President W. C. Dew of the Chamber of Commerce called a meeting of citizens at the court house Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 to discuss the matter and prepare data to supply Judge Ely, member of the Highway commission, who is to be here today to deliver an address and will discuss the highway matter with the citizens.

There was an unusually large gathering of interested parties in response to the call and after Mr. Dew explained the object of the meeting and the importance of prompt action, a number of those present announced a will- (Continued on page 4)

A Merchant Confesses

An unusual statement was published some time ago in the News-Gazette, Champion, Ill., signed by E. L. Murdock, head of a former leading ladies' ready-to-wear store, which had closed its doors to avoid being thrown into bankruptcy.

In his statement the merchant set forth the principal reason for the store's failure to maintain the prestige and prosperity it had enjoyed in times past.

He said:

"Perhaps the greatest contributing cause is the fact that four years ago our firm, because we thought the rate was too high, discontinued all advertising in the News-Gazette. We tried other forms of advertising to supplant the News-Gazette, but found none effective. Our business continued on the down grade. Seemingly our friends had forgotten us. The fault was ours."

In every city and town there are stores which have made a serious mistake to which Mr. Murdock confesses in such a manly fashion.

People look to their newspaper for their store news. No amount of handbills, circulars, sign-boards or other substitutes can take the place of the newspaper that goes into the home and is read by every member of the family. — Stephensville Empire-Tribune.

CORONADOS GRANDCHILDREN

"For them still Somewhere on the sunny hill, Or along the winding stream, Through the willows flits a dream; Flits, but shows a smiling face, Flees, but with so quaint a grace, None can choose to stay at home, All must follow, all must roam." —Robert Louis Stevenson.

O. Henry tells us that there are three types of fools — the plain fools, the blank fools, and the people who hunt for buried treasure. I am sure that he could have found all three types present in the gay crowd of boys and girls who last Friday went on an all-day picnic to the Guthrie caves and other places of legendary interest. At eight o'clock Friday morning the party consisting of Morine and Mordine Brown, Virginia Simpson, Marie and J.W. James, Veona Flatt, G. W. Simpson and Ruth, Ollie Mae, Glenn and Izetta Featherstone, accompanied by a garden cart loaded with supplies and drawn by Napoleon Bonepart, Glenn Featherstone's Mexican burro, started from the J. H. Brown residence on the two mile hike to the caves. One stop was made at the Avery Manual barn, where some of the girls assisted in the job of goat shearing until we cut a poor old goat, and then the hike was continued.

At the Will Rose house, where Uncle Jesse Gotcher limes, the members of the Three L Club and our several guests halted long enough to get a drink and then we pitched camp in a nearby grove of Spanish oak trees. Then we explored the caves. Many of the caves are crumbling and caving in, and only a few looked safe enough for us to venture far into their dark, uncertain depths. Climbing over the chalky hills and weathering slopes, cautiously picking our way through mysterious, damp smelling passages and crawling on our stomachs through narrow tunnels was very thrilling and exciting. Instead of finding restless spirits and uneasy ghosts in remote corners of the caves as we had hoped to find, we found only crickets and cave rats. While resting in the shade between exploring trips we passed the time away with stories of lost mines and buried treasure, and some of the weird tales revealed that we had several rivals of Doc Davis in our crowd.

After the last cave was explored and our initials scratched on a rocky entrance, we set out to find the old Chisos spring. We found it down in Avery Manual's field in a thick tangle of brush in one of the most picturesque places in Mills county. The large spring is walled with solid rock and a few feet away is a shallow, muddy pond. Tall reeds and water-grass grow around the edges, and just back of the spring is an enormous grapevine. The old Chisos trail used to pass near here and thousands and thousands of cattle being driven from ranches in the southwest to market used to get water at this spring. As we sat on the bank of the pool watching sleepy, sunning frogs and splashed our bare feet in the icy waters of the spring, the ears of fancy heard the noise of stamping hoofs, clashing horns, and angry howls, and we knew that the place had not always known the placid serenity it now enjoys.

Floyd Manual arrived at camp just in time to help partake of a feast, which would make any hand of hungry treasure seekers forget all the buried Spanish gold and pirate booty in Texas. After we had disposed of our food and Napoleon had eaten his oats, we set out for the Dry Pond, where several weeks ago some strange men dug up a copper box containing some worn-out maps and charts.

The Dry Pond is up on top of a hill two miles from the Guthrie caves. The first mile and a half led us across Will Rose's stubble field and up a pasture road to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, where we stopped for water. Beyond Henderson's the road narrowed to a trail and began to steadily climb the hill. In order to search away the spirits which guard buried treasure, the merry twelve marched up the rough winding path whooping and screaming like a band of Comanche Indians on the warpath. Suddenly the leader, Ollie Mae Featherstone, stopped short for just ahead lay—the Dry Pond. The Dry Pond is the dry bed of what once was a large, muddy, dirt tank. Its surface is ridged and uneven showing traces of former diggings and at the foot of an elm tree directly across the pond from one of the largest live oak trees in Mills county, on whose bark are cut two indistinct maps, is the shallow hole where the men found the copper box.

After exploring the pond and its immediate vicinity and climbing the huge live oak we returned to our camp. Mrs. Jennie Simpson, Mrs. J.W. James, Mrs. J. H. Brown, Mrs. C. G. Featherstone and son, Charles Eugene, Uncle Jesse Gotcher and Clifford Rose joined us for supper, and while our slumgullion was cooking we made another trip to the caves.

Of course we would have all been disappointed if the day had passed without us seeing a single rattlesnake. Just before sunset we found a small rattlesnake in a deep cave which resembled a dug-out well, but it crawled under some rocks and escaped death at our hands.

After supper Mordine Brown, president of the Three L club, administered the oath of allegiance of our club to Ruth Featherstone and Veona Flatt, after which they were given the right hand of membership.

At sunset the happy party separated, each one having had a good supply of fun, food, excitement and thrills.

Unlike Coronado's children, who followed the trail of buried gold, we, his grandchildren, only followed the trail of legend, but like our ancestors, we felt the lure of the unknown. And why do people always know about buried treasure? Who tells them? J. Frank Dobie was undoubtedly right when he said, "Riches hoarded in the ground do not need a sign to signify their presence. Like murder, they will out—but not out of the ground." —REPORTER.

Mrs. Gladys Noblitz's cat, a persistent animal with a heart-rending yowl, got its mistress out of the Camden, N. J. jail, although she had twenty-seven days to serve on a thirty-day sentence for creating a disturbance. For three nights the cat wailed, making sleep impossible for the fifteen other women prisoners. With everyone on the verge of mutiny, the warden called the county recorder and Mrs. Noblitz's sentence was suspended.

HIGHWAY IMPROVED

An order was passed by the State Highway Department at Austin last week in which they assumed control of the maintenance of the present road from Walnut Springs to Iredell at which place it connects with the State Highway No. 67, Waco to Hico via Meridian.

A crew was put to work cutting weeds, brush, etc., along the road to Iredell and within a few days this road will be graded and graveled where necessary in order that an all-weather road may be available for truckmen, tourists and others.

Formerly quite a number of truckmen used this road with their shipments of cattle and other livestock en route to the Fort Worth market from Lampasas, Goldthwaite, Evant, Hico, Hamilton, Dublin and other towns of these sections. But owing to considerable rainy weather during the spring months some parts of this road became almost impassable and caused the truckmen to change to another route to avoid this short stretch of road.—Walnut Springs Hustler.

Election Law For Primary Is Summarized

Who May Vote, Who Is Exempt from Poll Tax and Full In- structions for Voting

The following extracts from the Texas Election Law answer many of the questions that confront the voter. As the second Democratic primary will be held on August 27, just one week from tomorrow, it may be well to read over the law in advance.

In every election a number of votes are lost because the voter does not follow the law. For example if the voter should use a blue, red or any other color pencil to mark his ballot, it cannot be counted. If he checks off the candidates he favors or puts an X in front of the name, his vote will not count.

Qualifications for Voting

The following classes of persons will not be allowed to vote in the state of Texas: Persons under the age of 21; idiots and lunatics; all paupers supported by the county; all persons convicted of any felony except those restored to full citizenship and right of suffrage, or pardoned; all soldiers, marines and seamen employed in the service of the United States.

Who May Vote

Every person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications who shall have attained the age of 21 years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he or she offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified voter. Provided that any voter subject to pay poll tax under the laws of the state of Texas shall have paid said tax before offering to vote at any election in this state and holds a receipt showing that said poll tax was paid before the first day of February preceding such election, and if said voter is exempt from paying a poll tax.

Poll Tax Exemptions

Persons over the age of 60; Indians are not taxed; insane persons blind; deaf or dumb persons; persons who have lost a hand; persons who have lost a foot, and persons who are permanently disabled.

You are not entitled to vote at a primary election if you are not 21 years old at the time you offer to vote, notwithstanding you may become 21 years old on or before the date of holding the general election.

How to Vote

You may vote by marking out ALL the names for whom you do not desire to vote.

You cannot carry with you to the polling place any paper or ballot on which is marked or printed the names of any one for whom you have agreed to vote, or for whom you have been requested to vote, and any judge of election may require you to make affidavit that you have no such paper or ballot, and if you have such you will be required to deliver it to the officers of the election before you will be allowed to prepare your ballot.

If you need any assistance in the preparation of your ballot, it must be given before the election judges, and a heavy fine and imprisonment is imposed upon any judge or clerk of an election who by word, writing, sign or token indicates how he desires you to vote.

Balloting

All ballots shall be printed with black ink on clear white paper of uniform style and of sufficient thickness to prevent the marks thereon to be seen through the paper. A vote is properly rejected when the voter tears off a part of the ballot. A ballot with a cross after the name against which he desires to vote cannot be counted. Use a black pencil or ink and mark out all the names for whom you do not desire to vote. Do not mark out the names of the persons for whom you desire to vote.

Time of Primary

The fourth Saturday in July, is the general primary elec-

People and Events Now Making News

Tom Connolly, a jobless lumberjack from Wisconsin, is riding a log down the Mississippi. He hopes to reach New Orleans for Thanksgiving. He is no relation of Tom Connolly, Texas senator, who wouldn't like to be accused of log rolling.

Stockyards in Iowa cities are almost bare as a result of a farmers' strike. The hog and cattle raisers are holding their stock for higher prices, and logs and barricades across market roads are being used to discourage any non-strikers from going to market.

A reign of terror followed the escape of 23 convicts from the Oklahoma reformatory Monday. A stabbing, a shooting, several kidnappings and an attempted attack on a 17-year-old girl were all charged to the convicts by authorities. Only four had been caught the first day.

National headquarters of the Republicans in charge of the eastern campaign have been opened in New York in 49 hotel rooms decorated in green and gold. The colors, we presume, were chosen to represent the colors of the currency and gold coins of Hoover prosperity.

Negroes trying to force their way into the Democratic primaries were turned down by Justice Greenwood at Austin this week. He refused to render an opinion where no specific individuals were named. It begins to look as though the negroes were trying to forsake the G.O.P.

British airplanes and armored cars made an attack on Chief Itumbu in southwest Africa the other day when the chief said he would fight before paying a fine of 50 head of cattle. The chief and his tribesmen escaped, but a swarm of bees played havoc with the Tommies in their armored cars.

Over in China the Changs, the Chings and the Chiangs are having a hard time to determine which is to be boss. The unified action produced by the Japanese attack early this year is gone, and the Chinese leaders are again squabbling among themselves over the division of power—and graft.

John Garner told a New York audience in a voice quivering with emotion that he has voted the Democratic ticket straight ever since he was 19. We can't quite figure that out unless, like Pat Neff, John got mixed up on his age. He still thinks Al Smith one of the greatest leaders America has ever produced, he said.

A Washington nerve specialist who frequently does not see his patients for months at a time has a camera concealed in the wall of his office. With it an assistant makes several snapshots of the patient at each visit. By comparing photographs made at different times, the doctor can note any changes in the appearance of his patient. Probably the next development will be an X-ray attachment which will disclose the figures in the patient's bank account.

AMERICAN DOCTOR MOTORS ACROSS AFRICA

Dr. Arthur Torrence, anthropologist, specialist on tropical diseases and fellow of the Royal Society of England, stopped off at Detroit recently on his way home from his fifth trip to Africa on scientific expeditions.

Carrying him on his way to California, where he is a member of the Hooper Foundation and of the Medical school of the University of California, was a 1929 model American automobile, which he drove across the continent of Africa from the East to the West coast through 16,000 miles of jungle passage, all under the car's own power except for an impassable 100 miles.

Studies of sleeping sickness, on which Dr. Torrence is an international authority, took him on his early missions to Africa. There he made surveys of the deadly Tsetse fly, spreader of the disease; and among his strange cargo here were two small crocodiles afflicted with the ailment, which he was taking home for further observation. They are veritable reservoirs of the parasitic germ, he reported.

On an earlier expedition Dr. Torrence happened into a strange tribe of dwarfs in the Lake Chad district on the edge of the Sahara desert, which one school of scientists believe are a remnant of prehistoric civilization and may prove to be 'the cradle of the human race.' They live in caves, have a kind of jabber instead of language, subsist on roots and vegetables, and resemble pygmies, although lacking in courage and stamina. Dr. Torrence's report of them, during his most recent trip, are to be set down in a book from his pen entitled "Junglemania."

Two other cars started out on his trans-African trip, Dr. Torrence reported. One proved too light for the strenuous going and the other was smashed in the charge of a hippopotamus. His route carried him from East Africa through Uganda, Belgian Congo, French Equatoria and Lake Chad to Nigeria on the African Gold Coast. In September Dr. Torrence plans a trip to New Guinea to study leprosy in its native state.

NEARLY SIX MARRIAGES FOR EVERY U. S. DIVORCE

According to the returns received by the Bureau of Census at Washington, there were 1,060,095 marriages performed in the United States during the year 1931, as compared with 1,128,572 in 1930, a decrease of 68,477 or 6.1 per cent. There was a decrease of 8.4 per cent from 1929 to 1930, according to the same report.

For the year 1931, 183,695 divorces were granted in the United States. During 1930 there were 191,591—a decrease of 7,896, or 4.1 per cent, as against a decrease of 4.9 per cent from 1929 to 1930. The marriages annulled in 1931 were 4,338, as compared with 4,370 in 1930.

The population of continental United States on July 1, 1931, was estimated at 124,070,000, and on July 1, 1930, 123,191,000. Based on these estimates the number of marriages per 1000 of the population was 8.5 per cent in 1931, as against 9.2 per cent in 1930. On the same basis the number of divorces per 1,000 of population was 1.49 in 1931, as against 1.56 in 1930.

For the United States as a whole, there were 5.8 marriages for each divorce reported, as against 5.9 in 1930. The District of Columbia and New York State each has but one cause for absolute divorce. They reported 24.7 and 22.4 marriages, respectively, for each divorce. The rates in the other states ranged from 12.6 marriages to each divorce in Louisiana to 1.5 to each divorce in Nevada.

The census bureau has received many requests for this information. The preliminary reports, according to states and groups of states, have been released in mimeographed form.

HARD LUCK

No commodity has been discovered to replace the ingredients necessary to success in any vocation — industry, application, knowledge. Men fail who work hard because they do not understand the business they undertake. In that respect farming differs from nothing else. Most failures ascribe the fact to ill luck. But if the bad breaks are analyzed, they turn out to be hazards that could have been foreseen and preventive meas-

WAKEFIELD, THE BIRTH PLACE OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

According to a recent statement issued by the acting director of the National Park Service, more than 50,000 persons visited Wakefield, the birthplace of George Washington, during the first year for which an official travel record was kept.

Although full restoration of this old shrine has not been completed and though it is not one of the heavily traveled routes of Virginia, visitors from 43 states and ten foreign countries, totaling nearly 5,000, were reported for one month.

The National Park Service, it was stated, maintains three vanger historians, students from William and Mary College Harvard and the Virginia Military Institute, during the summer months to assist visitors in securing as much educational benefit as possible from their visits to Wakefield.

A museum of colonial relics is being rapidly filled with interesting articles, some from the site of the home of Washington's grandfather, John Washington, and other relics of the period from various places outside of Virginia, such as a grandfather's clock, said to have been made in England in 1700, and a portable barometer manufactured under a British patent granted in 1695.

Another step towards what many believe is the eventual return of the Kaiser or a member of his family to the German throne is the proposal to place his staunch supporter, General Von Schleicher, as head of the German government.

ures taken to meet them. Luck is more frequently responsible for success than for failure, but even in success it is not encountered often enough to justify anyone relying on it as a known factor. The old colonial who told his men to trust in God, but keep their powder dry knew the prescription. Providence is with the careful man who does not stake his future on luck, but tries to build to it. Elbert Hubbard once said that power flows to the man who knows how. It is still true. — State Press in Dallas News.

HON. PHIL H. CLEMENTS PASSED AWAY

Hon. Phil H. Clements died in the home of his son, Mr. R. E. Clements, in this city Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, after an illness covering almost a year. He spent several weeks in the hospital in Temple the early part of his illness, but had been confined to his bed in the home since the early part of the year.

Mr. Clements was a pioneer citizen of this section, having located in Williams Ranch in 1876. He engaged in the drug business there for a number of years and when the railroad built to Goldthwaite and most of the citizenship of the frontier town moved to this place, he moved with them and continued his business here. He was one of the leaders in the movement to organize a new county and it was largely through his efforts that Mills county was formed and he served as the first county clerk of the new county. He also filled other positions of honor and trust in the county and from 1897 to 1903 he was representative in the legislature for this district, which was composed of San Saba, Concho, McCullough and Mills counties for some years and later of Hamilton and Mills counties. For the past several years he was doorkeeper for the Texas house of representatives, which position brought him in touch with many prominent people of this and other states, and he had the distinction of knowing more public men than any other man in the county, and there were few in Texas who had so wide an acquaintance among people of political, professional and business prominence.

Mr. Clements was a well read and intelligent man and there are few people who know the history of Mills county and this section of Texas as he knew it. He was a man of education and culture and was at all times a refined gentleman. He held membership in the Masonic Lodge and was affiliated with the Presbyterian church when that denomination maintained an organization at this place.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Eula Nickols, two sons, Messrs. R. E. and W. D. Clements, four sisters, only one of whom, Mrs. C. H. Ford, lives here. One sister lives in the state of Colorado and two live in Kansas, while his only brother lives in their native state of Indiana. He is also survived by a number of grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

The large assembly at the home to attend the funeral services, conducted by Revs. H. H. Dare and G. C. Ivins, and the immense procession that followed his bier to its last resting place in the cemetery, where burial services were conducted by the Masonic fraternity of this city, assisted by members of that lodge from Mullin, Center City, Star and elsewhere, attested the high esteem in which Mr. Clements was held, not only in Goldthwaite and Mills county, but throughout the state.

The announcement of his death was the occasion of many messages of sympathy for the family and expressions of friendship for the deceased from all parts of the country.

PLANNING TO PAVE PECAN BELT HIGHWAY

(Continued from page 1) ingness to give the land required for widening the road, where their land touched the road, it having been explained to them that there was no money to pay for the right-of-way and the Highway commission was only willing to set back the fences and build the road. Many whose interests will be affected were not present, but assurance was given that practically all of them would co-operate in the plan. Committees were appointed to confer with those not present and report as soon as possible.

Those present who expressed a willingness to donate the necessary space along their land lines were R. F. McDermott, Walter Weatherly, J. J. Cockrell, S. T. Weathers, J. L. Cortis, Matt Kyle, H. B. Bradley, Orby Wood, George W. Jackson, Charles M. Bramblett, George Robertson and possibly others whose names the Eagle did not get.

BAPTIST CHURCH

My, didn't it rain last Sunday? Just ask some of these folk who were at the Baptist church if you doubt that statement. Several have made suggestions as to why such a rain. It seems that some think that the Christian meeting started a rain campaign and they did, for we had several little mists during their meeting and lots of clouds, but not an old-fashioned Baptist rain. Naturally we Baptists claim the honor for such a rain, but Bill Woody comes along and says it would not have rained at all had he not gone to church last Saturday night. Well, we had the meetings and we had the rain and if the Methodists will just bring about a little Methodist rain during their meeting, which is to begin in a few days, everything will be in great shape. But we must have a shower in the next few days to keep the ground from baking. So let everybody get ready and get into this Methodist meeting, helping when and wherever you can.

On account of the rain many of the folk didn't get to attend the last services and, therefore, did not get in on the offering for the meeting. We are just wondering if those of you who did not want to help take care of the expenses of the meeting? We know that you do and know that you will, so we have held up the offering and ask that you drop by the national bank and leave your offering for the meeting. Just any amount that you will give will be satisfactory, and received with pleasure. Just remember that we are counting on you helping and will keep the pastor from seeing you personally if you will just drop by the bank and give your offering to Mr. Harrison, who will see that it will be given to the proper parties.

We appreciate the co-operation that was given our meeting by other churches in the town. We have never seen a more beautiful spirit and hope that our church will be in a position to return the favor and assure you that it will be a pleasure to the pastor and church to do so.

We would be ungrateful if we did not express our appreciation as pastor to our many friends who were so thoughtful and kind to us during the meeting. We would like to give every name, but space will not permit. So the pastor and his wife take this method of expressing to everyone our gratitude and assure you that there has never been a time during our present pastorate when we had the co-operation and the help from every conceivable standpoint that we had in this last revival. We will always be found trying to lend a helping hand anywhere at any time to any one.

Regular services Sunday. Let's have good crowds at every service. Just because the meeting is over let's not have a let down in our attendance. The Methodist meeting will be in progress after next Sunday for the next two Sundays, so let's have a record crowd Sunday. PASTOR

A WONDERFUL RAIN

About 2½ inches of rain fell here last Saturday night and Sunday, bringing joy to the hearts of the people and benefiting crops and pastures to an extent which, estimated from a financial standpoint, will mean many thousands of dollars. The cotton crop was beginning to need rain and the pastures would have suffered very soon, if in fact the grass was not already drying. The rain was also timely to put the ground in good condition for plowing and planting fall crops, while stock water was made abundant in every section.

The fact is, the rain came just at the right time, in just the right quantity and now everything is lovely in good old Mills county.

 Compare the good roads and bridges in every section of Texas now with what we had before Sterling, and you'll agree that the state is getting full value for its highway dollars now.

Learn the Truth About Sterling and Jim Ferguson

After Mrs. Ferguson was governor before, all Federal Aid for state highways was withdrawn. Now the Federal Government has offered to spend $15,000,000 on Texas highways in 1933. We can't afford to lose this money by putting the Fergusons back in power. Vote for Sterling and honest highway management.

Texas cannot afford to defeat R. S. Sterling for a second term. In the history of Texas no Democratic Governor against whose administration no charge of dishonesty or corruption has been made has ever been denied a second term. Fergusonism must not be allowed to defeat R. S. Sterling for a second term.

President Hoover and Prohibition

Only a relatively small portion of President Hoover's speech of acceptance last week was devoted to prohibition, and that part came almost at the close of his address, but his prohibition stand has attracted more discussion than all the remainder of his speech.

It is very evident to the majority of political observers after a careful study of the pronouncement of the president that, although in effect a straddle, his real sentiment is decidedly wet. "It is my conviction," he said after enumerating the evils that now exist and declaring for a change, "that each state shall be given the right to deal with the problem as it may determine, but subject to absolute guarantees in the constitution to protect each state from interference and invasion by its neighbors, and that in no part of the United States shall there be a return of the saloon system."

Both the Democratic platform and Governor Roosevelt have made equally strong pronouncements against the saloon, and likewise favor the federal government enabling the dry states to protect themselves against the illegal importation of liquor, consequently the only practical difference in the prohibition stand of the two parties and candidates is that President Hoover in some manner not yet explained wishes to place in the constitution a provision against the return of the open saloon instead of leaving that to congress and the states. Since the president has already complained that the present constitutional amendment has resulted in "an increasing illegal traffic in liquor" in large sections with "grave dangers of practical nullification of the constitution," it is difficult to see how he will secure any greater respect for a constitutional amendment which permits the sale of liquor, but forbids the saloon.

In any event it has now become impossible for any dry to vote for Hoover as a dry and a defender of prohibition. Dismissing as this situation is to the conscientious prohibitionist, it should at least place less emphasis on the question of prohibition and more on the many other important questions which ought to be considered by the voter before he marks his ballot in November.

City Suicides

The number of suicides has been increasing so rapidly within the past few years that the insurance companies are said to be petitioning for the right to extend the suicide clause of their policies from one year to three. Rarely a day passes without the news that some erstwhile prominent man has chosen what must have appeared to him as the easiest way out of his present difficulties.

Exact statistics are not available, but it is quite apparent that a very large majority of suicides now are of men and women living in the larger cities of the nation. Several reasons may be given for this, such as the greater pressure of economic disaster upon city residents and the influence of the example of other suicides in the same city. The chief reasons, however, must be that the unfortunate people who succumb to a suicidal mania have become convinced that life holds no further opportunity and that their friends cared only for what they possessed and not for what they were.

Such conditions are less likely to exist in the country and small towns. Every day nature unfolds before the eye a panorama of hope for the future. Agriculture is itself a series of unpredictable events varying from fair success to dismaying failure. The weather now plays havoc with the plans of men, now nurses the growing crops to a profitable maturity. And so the man who must realize his own weakness in the face of natural forces is led to develop strength and resourcefulness in meeting disaster, and when all looks black around him, he can still press on with the reassurance that "tomorrow is another day."

There is less pretense, bluster and bluff outside of the cities than in them. Sincere friendships do not thrive behind plate glass windows or under artificial lights. Only so long as a man has plenty of easy money, will he have plenty of fair-weather friends. No doubt some of the suicides which have occurred recently have been hastened by the disillusionment that came to men when they realized that their so-called friends had vanished with their riches.

Various remedies have been suggested to allay the distressing spread of suicide. Probably none will succeed. But when men and women return to a saner, more natural way of living then the suicide rate will drop again.

How Many Should Vote?

After listening to the Dallas News urge the voters to vote for so these many years, it is rather disheartening to find after nearly a million Democrats did vote at the July primary, that the News thinks that is too many. Instead of commending Mills county for its progressiveness in turning in 2253 votes, after only 1968 poll taxes had been paid last January, the News points a questioning finger in our direction, and asks, so to speak, "How come?"

The reason the News thinks the voting figures of many counties are too high is because their total is more than the total of poll tax receipts issued in the county plus 15% allowed for exemptions.

Even on that basis Mills county has not voted too strong. Fifteen per cent of its 1968 poll tax receipts is 295, and these figures added together give 2263. Accordingly Mills county lacked 10 votes of getting into the big voting league of East Texas counties, like Gregg with 4205 poll taxes and 2726 votes.

In 1930 Mills county issued 2362 poll tax receipts. Fifteen per cent of this number is 355, or 60 more exemptions to which Mills county was entitled in 1930 than it is this year. As a matter of fact, the number of exemptions is not affected either by economic conditions at the time poll taxes are paid or by the apathy of the voters. When July comes along with politics as hot as the weather, the voter without a poll tax is barred from the polls, but his father and son, the overs and unders, march up and cast a ballot as good as anybody's. When it happens that a sizzling hot county campaign is also being waged, the overs and unders come out stronger. That there are plenty of them is proved by the last census which showed 520 native white men and women in Mills county who were then over 65—not 60—years of age. The News had better figure some more.

POSTALS GO TO WORK

Since first class postage has been increased to three cents, frugal minded persons have turned to the lowly postal card as a means of carrying their messages through the mails at bargain rates. One Western dairy even prints its milk drafts on postals and thus evades the two cent bank check tax and two cents postage.

Even some lovers, whose daily exchange of heart throbs was not exempted from the general increase in postage rates, are now using post cards, and some of them are said to have developed an ingenious code system which means a great deal to them, but is just a lot of nonsense to the curious minded person who reads the message on the open-face card.

One user of the mails is denied the right to send his messages on post cards or postals. If he mails them at all, he must seal them in an envelope and pay the full three cent rate. This user is represented everywhere for he is the man, woman or business with a past due bill to collect. Current bills may be made out on postals, but not even a one cent balance, if it is past due, may be included. The penalty includes both fine and imprisonment.

SPEAKING FOR MYSELF

In his acceptance speech last week, President Hoover paid a profound tribute to the ability of the people to understand big words. "I desire to speak so simply and so plainly that every man and woman... cannot misunderstand," he said in commencing, and almost in the next breath he was talking about "governments fallaciously seeking to build back by subsidizing industry and employment with taxes that slowly sapped the savings upon which industry must be rejuvenated." Read that aloud and see how simple it sounds. Again, all in one paragraph of 28 lines he used these plain words: "Some souls timorous enough to doubt the validity and effectiveness of our ideals; "haphazard experimentation;" "organic development of our national life;" "co-operative action which builds initiative and strength;" and "That is not liberalism, it is tyranny. It is the regimentation of men under autocratic bureaucracy with all its extinction of liberty."

It would be interesting to know how Abraham Lincoln would have expressed the thoughts concealed in these ponderous phrases. Regardless of what one might think of what Lincoln said, no one could ever accuse him of talking over the heads of his audience. For example in June, 1858, when he addressed the Illinois Republican state convention, which had just nominated him for senator to oppose Douglas, the future president said: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the union to be dissolved—I do not expect the house to fall—but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing or all the other."

In this discussion of simple language, I cannot resist bringing in a quotation from the King James version of the Bible. Turn to any chapter you please, you will find the thought there expressed in such simple words and phrases that "he who runs may read." Yet the dignity and fitness of its style have never yet been surpassed. So many appropriate passages come to mind, it is difficult to single out one for quoting, however it is my opinion that the last chapter of Ecclesiastes has no rival in English prose for the resonant beauty of its expression.

Read aloud, if you will, verses six and seven: "Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern. "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." —MYS.

THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

Dust from an erupting volcano may take as long as three years to return to the ground.

Potash was manufactured from sunflowers in Russia as far back as the sixteenth century.

It is safer to vaccinate babies under a year old than any other age, says a doctor in the U. S. public health service. He also recommends giving diphtheria immunization before vaccination.

In a zoo at Chester, England, a monkey deliberately fashioned a hangman's noose, placed it about his neck and hanged himself before a group of spectators, who thought he was only playing. No satisfactory explanation of the act has been made.

SOME SUNNY FACTS

The sun may be 93,000,000 miles away from the earth, but astronomers now know nearly as much about the chemical composition of its outer layers as they do of the surface layers of the earth. For this intimate knowledge of the sun, says the Pathfinder, we are indebted, in large measure, to Dr. Henry Norris Russell of Princeton university. He claims it is now possible to count the atoms in the atmosphere of the sun, and that the amount of any given element there can be computed by interpretation of the solar spectrum, he says, has already led to the identification in the sun of 62 of the elements and a dozen or so chemical compounds. His latest researches show that the composition of the sun's outer layers is strikingly similar to the average composition of the earth's crust. On a clear day, according to meteorological tables of the Smithsonian Institution, prepared by Dr. Herbert H. Kimball, of the weather bureau, the sun at noon gives 465,000 times as much light as the full moon at its brightest. Not only that, but it gives some 12,000,000 times more light than all the stars in the sky on a clear night. This same noon-day sun, it is calculated, has an intensity at the earth's surface of 9600 foot-candles, which dwindles to 33 foot-candles at sunset.

Keeping Up With Texas TELLS ABOUT TEXAS

A writer in one of the daily papers tells about the vastness of Texas and her products as follows:

"Texas produces one-third of the cotton crop of the country, and nearly one-fourth of the cotton of the world. Texas supplies 80 per cent of the sulphur of the world, 60 per cent of the mohair, and 40 per cent of the quicksilver.

"Texas has 6,200,000 head of cattle, and allowing 8 feet for each cow, if all were one cow, it would be 50,000,000 feet long, or 94,000 miles long and while John Garner was milking Bossie on his Uvalde ranch, the descendants of Mahomet could be feeding her hay on Mount Moriah at the gates of the Mosque of Omar.

"Texas oil production is almost 1,000,000 barrels per day, which at 100 barrels per car would be a train 75 miles long; one month's production and the train would be 2250 miles long, reaching from Fort Worth, to Montreal, Canada, and four month's production would reach ancient Babylon, where Daniel was cast into the lion's den.

"Texas produces 4,000,000,000 feet of gas per day, sufficient to supply every city in the United States, but let us go on to other distinctions.

"Texas coming into the Union added 265,000 square miles of area into her territory, and brought on war with Mexico, by which we acquired 1,000,000 square miles and 1500 miles of seacoast, on the Pacific ocean, made us 15,000 miles nearer the far East, with her millions than was Europe, which made us great.

"Almost one-half of the total area of Uncle Sam's domain was the result of Texas coming into the Union."

What Other Editors Have to Say

BACK TO THE FARM

The old farm can't be such a bad place after all. According to an estimate by the department of agriculture the farm population was 31,260,000 persons on Jan. 1, 1932, as compared with 30,612,000 on Jan. 1, 1931, or a gain of 648,000. The increase in 1931 was the largest and most significant recorded by the department's bureau of agricultural economies in the 10 years in which it has been estimating changes in population. For seven years of this period annual decreases in farm population were reported with only 1930 and 1931 showing appreciable gains. While 1,472,000 persons left farms for towns and cities last year more than 1,679,000 moved farmward. In 1930 the movements from farms to cities and from cities to farms were almost equal. Some 1,727,000 persons moved from farms to cities while 1,766,000 moved back to the soil. It would be a mistake says the bureau, to count all these as additional farmers. It brands this movement not a genuine "back to the farm" movement because very few of them are engaging in farming as a business. Rather, it looks on this movement to the farm almost wholly an attempt to obtain low-cost housing and partial subsistence.

TEXAS CENTENNIALS

For more than a decade Texas has been passing through a series of centennials, no one of which, however, has received formal public attention. The series began December 23, 1920, which was the 100th anniversary of the appearance of Moses Austin before the Spanish governor of the province of Texas at San Antonio de Bexar, "from which incident," in the words of the Texas Weekly, "the establishment of Anglo-American civilization west of the Sabine dates." Seven months later, July 16, 1921, occurred the centennial of Stephen F. Austin's crossing of the Sabine and setting foot on Texas soil for the first time. At this point nearly two years went by with no centennial, but on April 14, 1923, arrived the 100th anniversary of the confirmation by the supreme executive power of Mexico of the grant to Stephen F. Austin of the right to establish a colony in Texas.

The present year is rich in centennials for the Lone Star State. They include the anniversaries of the adoption of "Turtle Bayou Resolutions," June 13, 1832; the battle of Nacogdoches, Aug. 2, 1832, and the first consultation at which the question of separate statehood for Texas was formally favored, the consultation having been held Oct. 1, 1832. And so the centennials will continue until they culminate in the 100th anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, which took place April 21, 1836. That day was, indeed, the culmination of the movement for Texan independence, but we should hardly consider the series of anniversaries complete until Dec. 29, 1945, the 100th anniversary of the admission of Texas to the union.

Whether they are so dazed by this extraordinary concatenation of centennials as to be unable to do anything but watch them rush by or cannot make up their minds which one to celebrate, Texas citizens have taken no formal notice of any of them. The nearest they have come to such action is to sanction the proposing to the voters in November of an amendment to the state constitution authorizing the state government to participate in such a celebration and to contribute toward financing it. Rather strangely, this proposal seems to be so unpopular that members of the legislature running for re-election have not ventured to advocate its adoption. We cannot believe, however, that the state will fail to celebrate the centennial of the battle of San Jacinto in 1936 with fitting ceremonies. — New York Evening Post.

SPECULATIVE

Goldthwaite Eagle: The Chicago Board of Trade, the largest wheat futures market in the world, has been ordered closed for 60 days beginning Aug. 8, by the department of agriculture. The reason for the order was the refusal by the board to admit the Farm Board subsidiary, the Farmers' National Grain corporation, to membership.

In case the Chicago Board of Trade should decline to close for 60 days or any days at all, how would the department of agriculture go about forcing the closure? No doubt it would have to make application to a federal court for an order, and a deputy marshal, to put its demand into force. The board, on the other hand, no doubt would appear in court with a lawyer and make representation to the effect that the agricultural department was attempting, without legal authority, to enforce an arbitrary order. Whether the Chicago Board of Trade is permitted to choose its own members only a Chicago lawyer probably would be able to state positively. No Philadelphia lawyer would be dependable in a case of such delicacy. The secondary question is, why doesn't the Chicago Board of Trade want the Farmers' National Grain corporation to join? Is it because the latter concern is assumed to have farm board capital behind it, meaning government money, therefore, is in a position to intimidate or squeeze or bankrupt members who have only private capital to operate on? There hasn't been a free market in either grain or cotton since the farm board began operations. Whether the crippling of the speculators has been good for the farmers is questionable. But it is not questioned that the markets have been lower since the farm board started its operations than they ever were before within the memory of the oldest bear or bull in captivity. It would be unfair to give the farm board all the blame, but nobody believes that organization has been any more successful than any other government experiment in business.— State Press in Dallas News.

WHERE IS THE FIRE?

There is a story going the rounds, of two lady school teachers of Brooklyn, who, spending their vacation exploring Western Canada, stopped in Alberta. One of the pair is inclined to be worrisome when traveling, and she couldn't rest until she had made a tour of the corridors to hunt out exits in case of fire. The first door she opened, unfortunately, turned out to be that of the public bath, occupied at the moment by an elderly gentleman taking a shower. "Oh, excuse me!" stammered the flustered lady. "I'm looking for the fire escape." Then she ran for it. To her dismay, she hadn't got far along the corridor, when she heard a shout behind her and, looking around, saw the gentleman, wearing only a towel, running after her. "Where's the fire?" he hollered.

In business it is not infrequent that such a remark as that of the timid, flustered teacher starts a flood of rumor resulting in real damage to banks, commercial houses and even entire communities. Much of the "news of impending disaster" is as ridiculous and unfounded as that which sent the old gentleman of the bath towel racing through the halls in search of an imaginary fire.

Those who have had news to impart should first make sure they are dealing in facts and then, unless the telling may serve some legitimate purpose, should keep their unhappy news to themselves. During the past two years the fellows looking for the fire escapes have caused a lot of unnecessary trouble, and, figuratively, have stripped a lot of their fellows of even a bath towel.—The Southwestern Ambassador.

A CURE FOR "DEPRESSIONITIS"

There's no argument in this editorial. It's merely a collection of facts, incontrovertible, eloquent facts that confound those who profess to see America slipping down into a state of effortless despair.

America's mutual savings bank deposits are 1,233,000,000 higher than they were at the peak of the boom three years ago.

Total bank savings today exceed $29,000,000,000, equal to more than $1000 for every family in the land.

Savings depositors number 52,000,000, nearly two per family.

The number of Americans owning stock has increased almost 40 per cent since 1929.

A group of 102 companies which had 5,539,036 stockholders at the end of the boom year had 7,675,143 stockholders at the beginning of this year.

One company alone today has over 665,000 stockholders, a gain of more than 195,000 since the boom. This company has assets exceeding $3,200,000,000.

No other nation on the face of the earth can show such widespread ownership of money and stocks. Our total stock of gold is $4,000,000,000. Britain has only $588,000,000. Currency in circulation aggregates $5,464,000,000, or $700,000,000 more than in the boom. A recent offering of $450,000,000 of U. S. Treasury securities elicited subscriptions totaling $4,196,296,700—more than nine times the amount offered.

Our total national wealth, estimated at $329,700,000,000, is greater than that of a dozen continental European countries combined.

The income of the American people exceeds a billion a week. The per capita income is greater than in any other land. There are six or seven persons gainfully employed for every person idle.

It took a billion and a quarter pounds of candy to satisfy our sweet tooth in 1931—no decrease from the 1930 total.

Never have we been so well equipped as we are today to resume an epochal forward march.—Colliers.

TOO MUCH DUPLICATION

Texas undoubtedly wastes a great deal of money on schools. Some school men will splutter over that statement. Others will frankly admit it. But admit it or deny it, the fact stands unchanged. The absurdity of two state schools in the same town, both turning out accredited teachers, can be defended on many grounds, but not upon those of efficiency and economy to the taxpayers of Texas. Dallas, for example, has every selfish reason for wanting Denton to keep both the North Texas State Teachers' College and the College of Industrial Arts. But that notable example of duplication would not have occurred had the collegiate system of Texas been in charge of a board of education, instead of under the control of the legislature.

It is unfair to the city of Denton, however, to assume that there is no other duplication. But a short distance from Denton is another state school at Commerce. San Marcos is an hour's journey from the University of Texas, but San Marcos has a state school which is duplicated in large part at Austin. There are still other instances of like import.

The state board of education has thus seen to be wrestling with a hard problem indeed. It is certain that we shall not have money enough to run all the schools which the state has established, if we are to run them as they ought to be run. We probably would be able to obtain money enough to do all the necessary school work of collegiate grade in Texas if we eliminated duplication and used the same sort of business judgment that a manufacturing corporation would employ. What we actually do, however, will doubtless be dictated by the necessities of politics. All schools will be retained and operated on starvation.— Dallas News.

Hamilton

Monday night during the Ferguson rally at the district court room someone stole the car of A. R. Eldson and took it to the J. T. Dempster farm, where they took the tires, tubes, etc., to the amount of about $70, and left the car, presumably because they could not start the engine.

It is reported that Julius Schmeigel, about eighteen years old, and a companion were walking in a pasture near Aleman Sunday, when a bullet from an unknown source struck him in the neck and felled him. His companion saw him fall and managed to get him to his home and the wound was given treatment. There was no one in sight and it is a mystery where the bullet came from.

Thursday, Aug. 11, about 700 people gathered at the Newton old home place to enjoy the annual reunion, for which the family is noted. Where once a small space was reserved for cars, now special parking room has to be provided. Early in the morning visitors began to drive in and carry boxes filled with cookery pleasing to the palate, and to this was added barbecued beef and mutton. Originally there were fourteen children of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. J. Newton, but two sons and two daughters were called by death. Most of the families live in communities contiguous to McGirk.

Wednesday of last week Mrs. O. A. Smith was found with a rope tightly bound around her neck at her home in Fort Worth, which had caused her death. After some investigation the jury that held an inquest gave the opinion that death was self-inflicted. The family formerly lived at Stephenville and the interest Hamilton county feels in the tragedy is that three or four of Mr. Smith's brothers live at Carlton and that he was reared there. They were married and lived in Hamilton county for several years. — News.

Lampasas

The state proposes to build highway No. 66 through the county if the county will donate the right-of-way and set all fences back. The state will make some improvements in highway No. 74 under the same conditions and will straighten and put highway No. 53 in first class condition. It is estimated that $800,000 will be spent on the Lampasas highways and the cost to this county will be $40,000. Highway 66 has already been built into the town of Burnet.

The state also offers to build a new straight highway from Belton to Nolanville, Killeen, Copperas Cove, Kempner and Lampasas if right-of-way is furnished. The survey has started.

A public meeting of the city council was held Friday afternoon and at the meeting the budget for the city of Lampasas was presented and accepted by the members of the council. In 1928 the indebtedness of the city amounted to $165,000 and on July 1, 1932, the indebtedness had been reduced to $145,000 and during the time the city has improved the city waterworks plant, built the city hall and also helped in the paving around the public square.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors was held Tuesday morning and at that time it was voted that the organization would assist the local Red Cross chapter in securing a car of flour to take care of local needs.

The Texas Band Teachers' school meets here from Aug. 22 to Sept. 3. This place has been designated as the permanent meeting place and local citizens hope that a large number will be in Lampasas this year for the school.

The first bale of this season's cotton crop was ginned Wednesday, Aug. 10, at the Gillen gin. The cotton was raised by L. A. Ellison of Kempner and the bale weighed 457 pounds and brought 7c per pound. — Leader.

San Saba

The San Saba County Baptist Association will convene at Hall Thursday night, Sept. 1. All the churches in the county are urged to send a full quota of messengers and many visitors to this meeting.

The Richland Springs Watermelon Association has closed the shipping season with a record of 23 full carloads going over the rails in carload lots. As compared with last year the 23 cars brought the farmers $2180 against 43 cars that brought $2500 last year.

Surgeons amputated the arm of Fred Townsend, Jr., in a Temple hospital Monday evening. In an automobile accident Fred suffered a broken and badly lacerated arm last Saturday night a week ago.

Committees from three counties, Gillespie, Llano and San Saba, met with the highway commission in Austin last Wednesday to ask for a lot of improvements on highway No. 81, the Pecan Belt highway. After considerable discussion the commission agreed to build a concrete, or hard surface, roadbed for this highway through these three counties on the sole condition that the counties furnish the state a 100-foot right-of-way.

At the regular meeting of the local school board Monday night Supt. H. H. Sampson filed his resignation and Prof. W. M. Campbell of Grapevine was elected superintendent of the San Saba school. Supt. Sampson will take the superintendency of the Grapevine school.

Ed Mabry of the Wallace community brought the first bale of cotton for this county, of the 1932 crop, to the San Saba gin Monday, Aug. 8. It was ginned by Ponton & Vogel old gin and weighed 424 pounds. The first bale was brought in last year on August 19. It was raised on the Mabry farm and brought in by F. C. Vaughn. — News.

Lometa

Wednesday afternoon from five to seven, Misses Ava Webb and Norma Sue Tippen entertained at the home of the latter, honoring the house guest, Miss Gracie Mae Middleton of Caldwell and Geraldine Hester of Goldthwaite.

Prof. and Mrs. J. J. Montgomery and Miss Margaret, went to Dallas last Friday to attend the wedding of their son, Dr. J. C. Montgomery of Mineral Wells. Dr. Montgomery and wife will be at home in Mineral Wells after a short trip.

J. L. (Jimmie) McMahan and family spent the first two days of this week on the Colorado river fishing and having a good time. Jimmie is noted for his large catches. This week he landed a 13-pound and also a 10-pound catfish, which he placed in the Santa Fe lake here.

The Lometa School Board met Tuesday night and decided to open the school here on September 5. Teachers have been selected and everything is in readiness for the opening of what we hope will be a very successful school year. — Reporter.

THEY PAY FOR CACTUS

Perhaps not many people have looked upon the thorny cactus as a commercial crop, but it is a fact that Texas people receive quite a snug sum each year from the sale of cactus. Northern and Eastern people are using more native flowers, shrubs and plants from Texas for ornamental and landscaping purposes than ever before, and the cactus is becoming one of the most popular of the ornamental plants. The sale of cactus alone by Texans to people of other states last year brought considerably more than $100,000. The figures were given out by the state department of agriculture. Other native flowers and plants in demand in other states include the wild clematis, cinesa, hu-sache, yucca, Spanish dagger and blue bonnet seed. Plants can not be shipped to other states without having been declared free of soil disease.

LONGHORN CAVE

The cave is located in Burnet county, Texas, between Burnet and Marble Falls.

The discoverer is unknown. The spectacular entrance doubtless has been known to pioneers and residents of that section for generations. Records prove that General Lee, stationed near the cave in 1840, captured bands of Indians by surrounding them and driving them into the entrance.

The cave, and a 500-acre park surrounding its mouth, is owned by the state of Texas. It is being developed, opened and operated under the supervision of the Texas state parks board, of which D. E. Colp of San Antonio, is chairman. Jack Nassamer, of San Antonio, is making development possible, and will be in charge of concessions.

The surface park is being developed and beautified as a playground; club houses, tourist cottages, dude ranch and other facilities for the visitor are being built. Construction of two dams, which will form a lake for boating, swimming and fishing is under way. The best of talent and ability available in the state has been recruited for these projects. Jac. L. Grubbs, well known landscape architect, is in charge of beautification, and John Marriott is architect of the buildings.

The cave itself defies description. In excess of eight miles has been explored. Walls, ceiling and floor is covered with an amazing abundance of crystal, onyx, marble and calcide cave formations. Erosion has carved many of the passageways in an amazing manner.

Rooms are so spacious that one chamber is being fitted out as a restaurant. The largest recess, which, architecturally, is a natural theatre, and which will seat several thousand people, is being equipped with seats, lighting effects, scenery, etc. It will be the world's only underground theatre, and will be utilized for dramatic presentations, conventions, public meetings and the like.

Longhorn Cave and Park doubtlessly will soon become one of the country's most popular state parks. — Lampasas Leader.

TO SEE ECLIPSE FROM AIR

Dr. Justin Lee of Evanston, Ill., has revealed his plans to study the next eclipse of the sun from airplanes and captive balloons.

The Northwestern University professor will make his observation at Freyburg, Me., Aug. 31. He will seek to learn the changes in temperature and air pressure at a series of specific altitudes during the eclipse. The planes and balloons will carry instruments necessary for the measuring.

"Three or four balloons will be used in the first 1000 feet of altitude," he explained. "Commercial planes will be held at 3000 feet and 15,000 feet. I am negotiating with the U. S. navy for a special plane to operate at 25,000 or 30,000 feet.

"No series of observations has ever been made to find what happens to pressure and temperature during an eclipse."

FIVE DOLLAR BILL MAKES AN APPEAL

I am a five-dollar bill. I was born in Washington in the U. S. mint. Uncle Sam created me in order that I might serve his people. Let me tell you my first duty. It is circulation. I am supposed to go from one place to another to meet obligations of my fellow men. There are a great many of us. Some of smaller, other of larger denomination. But our purpose is the same. It matters not how long I remain in your community, so long as you grant me a visit from one individual to another. About the worst you can do to me is to pack me away under a mattress or bury me in the ground. I like to stay in your town, especially in times like these. If you keep me going I will make many of you happy. But, if you send me away, naturally I will make another community happy and yours will feel my going sadly. You know I am really happy right here if I can have company with a few others of my kind. I can tickle your pocket a while and then go over to your neighbor and tickle his. It's a lot of fun. But when you send me off to a big town, they slip me into a big roll, tie us all up into a vault. We then do our circulating en masse. I never see daylight for a long time. The big boys keep me choked up. Let me stay with you, I'm worth a thousand dollars to your town, because I am able to aggregate that amount by constantly changing hands among you. The birth-rate among us has dwindled down to almost nothing, and the constant hoarding has made me the more valuable. I'm in your pocket now and don't belong to you. Send me over to Jim and square up with him. He'll pass me along to John who is anxious to settle with Frank who needs a few groceries from Henry. Henry is so anxious to apply me to his doctor's account. Old "Doc" wants to wipe out the red in the bank. The cashier will again slip me to someone who wants a pair of shoes. This man pays me to the butcher, who passes me to the farmer for a calf. See how it worked! There are quite a few of us in your community. We can do much to bring back good times if you handle us intelligently. The moral. Keep your money at home and keep it in circulation. — Flatonia Argus.

HEALTH HINT

What to do for six common ills of summer, especially of vacationists, is tabulated by Dr. Leverett D. Bristol, health director of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Sunburn leads the list, and for this Doctor Bristol's prescription is simple soothing applications such as carbolated petrolatum ointment, plain vaseline or a mixture of three parts of olive oil with one part of lime water. Heat exhaustion, marked by symptoms of collapse and stoppage of circulation of the blood, is distinguished from true sunstroke, the latter being associated with pain in the head or unconsciousness. For both conditions the advice is to send at once for a physician and to remove the victim to a cool place. For heat exhaustion, however, Doctor Bristol advises keeping the body warm and giving stimulants, while for true sunstroke the body is to be kept cool and stimulants are to be avoided. Ivy poisoning, fourth of Doctor Bristol's list of summer ills, is to be treated with strong alkaline laundry soap made into a paste with water and spread over the affected skin. A doctor should be consulted as soon as possible. Insect bites and stings end the list, with a recommendation of treating either by a paste of baking soda with water or by a compress wetted with diluted ammonia. Bites infected with germs should be watched for and treated vigorously.

Howling dogs are continuing nuisances. Magistrate Rudich said in Flatbush Court, New York City, but crowing roosters, quacking ducks and cackling hens at a poultry market are but transient guests bound for someone's table. With this observation he freed Morris Friedman, poultry market proprietor who had been charged with violation of Section 215 of the sanitary code pertaining to harboring nuisances.

Sue Halperin, 22, of New York City passed a traffic light. She thought the policeman's whistle was someone trying to flirt with her, which was why she disregarded it, she said in court. She won a suspended sentence.

Psychoanalysis is free to the poor of Vienna. The institute is ten years old, and has had 2245 patients in the last decade.

Gulf Hurricane Sweeps Coast

Worst Storm Since 1915. Brings Death and Destruction to Wide Area.

Storm warnings were broadcast along the Texas coast from Port Arthur to Freeport Saturday as a tropical hurricane that was being hovering over the Gulf of Mexico suddenly swept landward with accompanying gales that registered 70 miles an hour. Coast guardsmen scurried up and down the coast warning fishermen and tourists and so saved many lives.

But while Galvestonians and their guests kept safe and comparatively dry behind their granite seawall, the swirling wind played havoc in smaller communities nearby.

More than 30 lives are known to have been lost and property damage running into the millions of dollars is estimated as a result of the storm. Angleton was hardest hit with a number of dead and 300 injured and many others suffering from exposure after their homes and belongings had been swept away. Freeport and West Columbia suffered nearly as much, and organized relief has been requested for them from the Red Cross.

As far away as Sealy the wind blew a string of empty boxcars 11 miles, and pranks of the storm were noted in many places. An old gray mare left hitched to a post was missing, but the saddle, which had been tightly cinched, was left at the post. In Galveston the spray dashed high over the seawall and flooded nearby hotel floors with several inches of water. In Houston much damage was done to plate glass windows and to roofs. Many sections of the city were without electric lights, telephones and street car service Saturday night and Sunday.

At Palacios 7400 National Guardsmen struck camp and marched into permanent structures just before the storm broke. Cotton and rice fields were especially hard hit, the damage to these crops being estimated at $2,000,000.

PRIDDY VS. POTTSVILLE

On Friday the German school boys from Priddy, a bunch of lads under 15 years, with their teacher, Weimar Hein, made a trip to the Pottsville German school for a ball game, which was won by the Priddy boys by a 19-4 score. The players for Priddy were: Alfred Tiegan, 1st base; Raymond Schrank, 2nd base; Julius Simms, ss; L a y a r t, Schwartz, p; Pete Kunkel, c; Paul Schwartz, 3rd b; Victor Schrank, lf; Clarence Rost, rf; Shorty Chuman, cf; Walter Drucekhamer, cf.

PTOMAINE POISONING

Last Saturday the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Limmer of Priddy became desperately ill with ptomaine poisoning. It was thought they were poisoned from eating canned corn or watermelon. They were given prompt attention, but a little boy 8 years old died Sunday morning and his remains were interred in the cemetery there on Monday. The other children recovered, but were very sick for some time.

EBONY

Our revival services conducted by Bro. J. Eddie Weems of Abilene Christian College came to an abrupt close at 12 o'clock Sunday, when the rain got so hard we could no longer keep comfortable under the tabernacle. No doubt it would have been the biggest day of the meeting if the weather had permitted, as there were to have been three services and dinner on the grounds. Many had planned to come from a distance. But enough got there to have a good morning service and there was plenty of dinner for everyone. Brother Weems did some fine gospel preaching, especially teaching and edifying the church, and he promises to come back again.

The rain which fell Sunday was the first we had since about July 3, but it was a soaker and all our hearts are singing now.

Miss Edna Germany came out of Brownwood Sunday and remained until Monday afternoon, the guest of Miss Marie Wilmeth. Miss Germany has taught in the school here and is very happily remembered by her pupils and patrons. She now teaches in the Port Arthur schools.

Miss Alline Lovelace returned Saturday from a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Alvin Hanna, and attended the meeting here the past week.

Miss Virginia Moore of Brownwood has been visiting at the Day ranch for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert McMullen and children returned to their home at San Angelo Wednesday.

Miss Marie Maxwell of Bowser visited Miss Letty Crowder and attended the meeting here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Haley of Brownwood visited Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Smith Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ode Henson of San Angelo visited Mrs. Henson's sister, Mrs. Allen Lovelace, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Ellen Hawthorne of Pecos county visited relatives here this week. Mrs. Hawthorne used to be one of our good citizens and we like to see her here again.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Egger and son, Herman Glenn, of Regency visited Mr. Egger's parents and attended church here Sunday.

Oakland played the Ebony ball team a close race here Saturday afternoon. The score stood 10 to 12 in favor of Ebony.

Mrs. Arle Egger of Ridge visited her mother, Mrs. Will Crowder, and attended the meeting last week.

Mr. Henry of Brownwood and Mrs. Henry attended services here Friday night.

Miss Oleta Crowder has been visiting relatives at Ridge for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry of Elkins attended church here Sunday.

Finding the roads impassable Bro. and Sister Weems and J. Eddie, Jr., did not go to Brownwood as they planned Sunday afternoon, but spent the night in the hospitable Day home.

MOUNT OLIVE

We have had an excellent rain out here and every late crop is certainly brightened up. A few of our people are suffering from severe boils and carbuncles this week. According to J. H. Roberts and Elmer Koen, boils are nothing to be appreciated.

Our singing school started Monday and an excellent crowd has been attending. We still have room for more pupils and everybody is cordially invited. Rev. Lawrence Hay's revival at Caradana is being attended by several of the mountain folks and some splendid sermons have been reported.

James Hodge made a business trip to Hamilton Saturday. Ab Hodge is still failing and male nurses are required to attend him at night.

Misses Clara Belle Burleson and Helen Roberts of Indian Gap are attending the singing school.

Proc McCullough made a business trip out here Monday. Curtis Koen of Pampa is visiting homefolks this week.

Mr. Pack of Waco is attending our singing school. We are very glad to have him and all other singing professors to aid us in learning to sing.

For the last two Sundays this reporter has fibbed about singings, so we will not have singing at Mount Olive this Sunday.

As I hate to make my brother reporters jealous, I may as well close. ABE

SCALLORN

We had a good rain Sunday. Rained steady all day.

Several from here attended the barbecue and ball game on the river. The girls played Nabors Creek. The score was 16 to 18 in Nabors Creek's favor. The men and boys played, but never learned how they scored.

Mrs. J. C. Street and two daughters, Mrs. Ben Cope, Mrs. Arle Minton Justice, spent Sunday and Sunday night in Frank Hines' home.

ARE TODAY'S BOYS TOMORROW'S CRIMINALS?
