On a train from Florence to Pisa a robbery of $60,000 was committed by brigands last month.

It is said that London is overflowing with Americans. When a cup is full one drop will make it overflow.

The latest application of paper is the adoption of paper plates by some of the great restaurants and cafes in Berlin.

There are no mosquitoes at Berzen Point. This he took the prize at the New Jersey State Agricultural Fair—Puck.

"For the children of the poor every city should have a kinder park," Dr Felix Oswald writes; "not a ceremonious promenade, with sacred groves and unapproachable grass plats, but a public playground, with shade trees and swings Maypoles, gymnastic contrivances and a free bathing house and room for all the free menageries and music halls which the Peabodys of the future might feel inclined to add."

The phonograph has not yet been utilized in any manner, and none have ever been manufactured except for exhibition. If Edison had kept the invention a secret and used it only in constructing a speaking automaton for some showman it would doubtless have yielded a fortune. An effort is being made in Philadelphia to turn it to account in connection with the telephone, but nothing has yet been accomplished.

A couple eloped at Falling Springs, West Virginia, and were hotly pursued by the girl's father. His horse threw him, breaking his leg, and the suitor considerably bore him back home. This caused a diversion, giving the young man time to prove that he was not a gambler as his skill at cards had led the father to believe, but belonged to a wealthy and respected Boston family. A peaceful wedding ensued.

An epidemic disease of a peculiarly deadly nature, which carries off cattle and horses by the thousand, and claims also its human victims yearly among the population of the capital, has made its appearance in more than one district of the Provinces of St. Petersburg and Novgorod, and is spreading with alarming rapidity. Horses which, after land, are the most valued property of the peasants, are dying by the score, and many cases of illness have occurred among the population of the infected villages. The local authorities are helpless, owing partly to the want of efficient doctors and veterinary surgeons, and partly to the fatalistic tendencies of the peasants, who, trusting all to Providence, refuse precaution, and sell in the neighboring villages the skins of the beasts that have died of the disease.

AN EXHIBITION of jugs, mugs, and other drinking vessels of Paris will attend the Vienna. The objects exhibited are all of German manufacture, both old and new. American as Bugaboos.

There is in Guadalajara an American missionary, named Watkins, who has told some very foolish stories about the local preachers that they in turn have sought to create a prejudice against Americans. They, in retaliation, and no doubt instigated by those whose interest it is to keep Americans out of Mexico, have openly preached against our people, and as strange as it may seem, have actually made the more ignorant believe that the Americans steal and eat the children of the country and advise all parents to guard well their little ones.

One of the effects of this was seen the other day in Guadalajara, where arrived a party of engineers for one of the railroads. They saluting out from their hotel in the rough dress they assumed, big hats, pants in their boots, red sashes about their waists, that opened at the neck with wide collars, was observed by the people, who gathered about them to the number of two hundred. When they were seen they were taken to be a party of child-eaters they had been told of; stones were thrown, and had it not been that a considerable party took them into their store, shut the doors and sent for the police, who in turn sent for the troops, who dispersed the mob, lives would have been lost.

The same report has come to Tepic and just now American residents are looked upon as cannibals, except by the more intelligent. Indeed, in passing through the streets, I have seen mothers gather their children close until I passed by, as though I was an ogre, instead of the benign-looking old gentleman I supposed myself to be, and upon returning to my home I have been forced to explain like Nicodemus, "How can these things be?"

No Good Preaching.

No man can do a good job of work, preach a good sermon, try a law suit well, doctor a patient, or write a good article, when he feels miserable and dull, with sluggish brain and unsteady nerves, and none should make the attempt in such a condition when it can be so easily and cheaply remedied by a little Iron Bitters. ## THE HOUSEHOLD.

The Responsible Position Occupied by the True Woman in Society.

Household.

A true woman as an element of society, invites the finest characteristics of all that is good in the heart, and shames into secrecy and silence all that is unbecoming.

There may be more of greatness and glory in the higher developments of manhood, but, surely, in womanhood God most delights to show the beauty of holiness, and the sweetness of love of which he is the infinite source. It is for this reason I pray that I may write worthily to young women.

I believe that God delights in beautiful things. He has put on robes of beauty on all his works. Every flower is dressed in richness; every star is veiled in brightness, every bird is clothed in exquisite taste. Who, studying God in His works, can doubt that He will smile upon the evidence of correct taste manifested by His children in clothing the forms He has given them?

It is every woman's duty to make herself pleasant and attractive by such refined and ornaments as shall best accord with the style of beauty with which she is endowed. But dress is a subordinate thing, because beauty is not the essential thing. Therefore, dress is a subject which should occupy comparatively few of the thoughts of a true woman. Dress in such a manner that your apparel will not occupy your thoughts after it is upon you.

There are multitudes of girls with whom dress is the all prevailing thought; and they feel themselves superior to others who dress more modestly. They actually prize themselves more highly for what they wear than for any charm of person or mind which they may possess. I say dress well if you can afford it; but soon the idea of making dress the grand object in life. A woman was made for something higher than to be a mere figure on which to display dry goods.

A woman's worth is to be estimated by the goodness of her heart, the purity and sweetness of her character. A woman with a kindly disposition and well-balanced temper, is both lovely and attractive, be her face ever so plain and homely.

Beauty is a gift from heaven and should not be abused. A beautiful girl is very apt to think she was made to be looked at, and feeling and acting thus, she learns nothing useful, but becomes proud, self-bearing, selfish, low and mean. God meant that you should be dependent upon man, and that in this dependence should exist some of your profoundest attractions and your noblest characteristics.

Your bodies are smaller than those of men. You were not made for war, nor commerce, nor agriculture. In the degree in which you are dependent upon man for your support and protection is he bound to support and protect you. He is bound to do for you what you are unable to do for yourself. You give, or may give, great rewards for this. God has given you special favor through this simple fact of your dependence. It is your work to soften and refine men, men living without you, by themselves, become savage and sinful. The purer you are the more they are restrained and the more they are elevated.

It is your work to form the young mind, to give instruction and direction, to develop its love for the good and true. It is your work to make some home happy.

If you lead a worthy and womanly life, it will be a home life, free from great excitement. The current of your thoughts will flow in retired channels. Often when you are busy with your household affairs, and going through the weary routine of your life, you will be tempted to repine at their quietness and insipidness.

But do not seek out for yourselves any prominent field of service where you will attract the attention of the world. Remain where God places you. It is proper that you serve the Being who created you, and that you love the One that redeemed you.

All the elements of your character should be harmonized by the tenderest devotion to God. Your heart should be purified, so that all the influence which goes out of it, through the various relationships of life, may be good and only good. By carrying with you a cold and rebellious heart, you induce among the sweet harmonies of the world a harsh discord.

Let your graces add that of unselfishness. Let your graces add that of unselfishness. Let your graces add that of unselfishness. Let your graces add that of unselfishness.

Life is real and earnest. It has home details, and a crown of care for every brow. You must live for others. Build up for yourselves a character strong and beautiful. Begin to take up life's duties now. Learn something of what life is, before you take upon yourself its grave responsibilities.

THE BOSTON GIRL'S WOE.

"The snow has drifted around my heart," sighed a fair young Boston girl, as she and her Brooklyn hostess sat on the floor, lacing their boots, the other morning. "No longer do the spring violets bloom in my life."

"May I inquire what has changed you?" asked the Brooklyn girl sympathetically.

"I will tell you all, from cosmos to omega. You shall know why existence is henceforth a burnt prairie to me. Ah, the dream has flown. The grasses are bending over the grave of that bright hope."

"Did he leave you?" inquired the Brooklyn damsel, in tears.

"Not voluntarily. We were segregated, but through no fault of ours. It was the dispelling of a vision."

"But won't he come back?"

"I fear me nay. Such a differentiation is not to be overcome. I will tell you. We loved. The moon could not beam but he'd hitch up a team and drive into my outstretched arms."

"My!" ejaculated the Brooklyn girl.

"Always. He came until I looked for him as for the stars. Every night until one. Then he came no more to our brown stone mansion door no more. And my heart is sad and weary. Listen. I have a father. Pitiless, cold, relentless, but still he is my father, though he has frozen up my young blood. I assure you it is really all icebergs."

"Did he say the young man mustn't come any more?" asked the breathless listener.

"He did not. He welcomed him like the whirlpool, rings that swallows up all sorts of things. Gave him cigars and talked with him. Pa was too awfully sweet at first, and that's what makes me sit sad, and sighing, and feel as though I am surely dying. I'm just perfectly, terribly cut up about it."

"Then how did he come to go away? I'm crazy to know."

"You shall hear how the disintegration originated. All the time Pa was treating him so nicely he didn't like him. He was making up his mind to have him leave. Oh! the saddest word of tongue or pen is the terriblest of these bad men. Pa separated us. Like the pouring of the vengeful sea he separated my own and me."

"How did he do it? What steps did he take?"

"Give me your attention. You shall know the facts from the protoplasm to the finish. I will tell you of my awful doom right here in your cheerful little bedroom. I wanted an Easter hat, I said to Pa. Must have it. Was coming to see you, you know. Says Pa, 'Give up the lover or the hat. Can't have both.'"

"And you?"

"Gave him up of course! How could I help it? The hat is lovely, but my heart is stone. I move alone without any comfort. It was hard to wreck him, but there was no alternative. Pa made me choose. Don't you think it pretty?"

"And the two girls went down to breakfast, the forlorn girl singing in a low, sweet voice. 'The good sword is rusted, the good knight is busted.'"

Wednesday was a gala day for the Greenbackers, the city was full of them. The attraction was Gen. Weaver and Colonel Roberts, both men of National fame and leaders in the Greenback party. Every preparation that could possibly add to the comfort of the noted guests was done, Jim Ferry of the stone store fairly outdid himself, flags and bunting flying from every available point and arranged in good taste. The Hinckley Hotel, whose guest General Weaver and party was during their stay in the city, was tastefully and handsomely decorated with flags and cedars, and looked cool and inviting; the firm of Campbell and Gillett swung to the breeze flag by the wholesale, as did some few others throughout the city. The Marion Center Band, accompanied by a delegation of citizens, was down and "discoored" frequently to a large crowd. About 2 o'clock a large and orderly crowd assembled at the fair grounds to listen to the speaking; at 2 o'clock Gen Weaver was introduced by Chair man Campbell, and made a splendid speech, one part "how I started the Cottonwood Falls National Bank" was well gotten up, and aptly illustrated his principles. Col Roberts came next; the Colonel is a fire eater in all the name implies; but there is no doubt of his ableness as a speaker, during his speech he made an attack on Mr. Morgan, of the Leader, which we think would have been better unsaid. While we do not uphold Mr. Morgan in his shortcomings we don't think private quarrels should be made public, however great the provocation. The curtains of night descended on the scene; and another great day for Cottonwood Falls, and Greenbackism had become a matter of history.

FROM THE FAR WEST.

Genoa, Douglas Co., Nev., July 13, 1881.

Dear Cottonwood Friends,

The arrival of one of my old friends and school mate's, from Chase county, Miss A. J. Barrington, reminded me of home and the friends I left in Kansas, and I thought, perhaps, a word from our golden state, might be acceptable. A few weeks since I left California, where every thing was looking so beautiful, and came to the sagebrush hills of Nevada. I assure you the change is one I would not wish to be permanent.

The broad plains and fertile valleys were waving with golden grain ready for the harvest. Farmers had already put up their hay and commenced heading and threshing.

On many of the large farms the grain is headed, threshed, and sacked in the field.

Were I a farmer, instead of a teacher, I think I could fully realize that this is really farming.

The crops are not as large as usual this year. In the fall the rains came thick and fast, so the ranchers did not get their grain in until late; and in February we had no rain at all; so, you see we came near having a flood and a drought the same year.

The ripened grain and dead grass makes one think it must be November instead of June; but the heat will soon dispel that illusion; for, in the valleys it is almost unendurable; and all those who are so fortunate as to be idle during the summer months hie away to the mountains.

As I am one of that "happy number, I find myself in the cool and delightful climate of Nevada. The days are just pleasant while many of the nights are so cool that fire is very comfortable.

On the 3d of July, there was a heavy frost which injured the grain somewhat, and almost destroyed gardens. Farming is carried on by means of irrigation. It seldom rains here; but there is considerable snow in winter; Smith Williams an old resident of Chase county whom all the readers of the COURANT will doubtless remember, is pleasantly situated in Carson Valley, six miles from Genoa, which is the oldest town in Nevada, and used to be known as the old Mormon station at the foot of the Sierras.

Mr. Williams has all the members of his family with him, except Bud, and he is only a dozen miles away; on a mountain dairy ranch, near Lake Tahoe.

They are all much improved in health, and, consequently, happy. Carson is a beautiful little Valley. It looks as if it might some time have been a lake in the midst of the mountains. As you stand in the valley, and look around it seems as if there were no outlet between the mountains.

GLENEBROOK.

This is a pleasant little village situated on the shore of Lake Tahoe. The lake is at an elevation of 6000 feet in the Sierras, the mountains extending all round. It is about 30 miles long and 15 wide. The waters are so clear that you can see the bottom at a great depth. It has been sounded 1,900 feet, and in some places the bottom has never been reached. Yesterday we were out on Lonhoar Lake and starvation camp which is a few miles from Truckee. The climate here is so cold now that we have a fire all day.

In a short time I shall return to Red Bluff to my delightful task: to rear the tender thoughts and teach the young idea how to shoot; and perhaps sometime you will hear again from SARAH ROMIGH.

The President is in a very feeble condition, more so in fact than any period of his present sickness; and his recovery is very doubtful.

We have a joke on the Ed. itor which is too good to keep; it happened at the Kansas City depo where he had stopped a few hours on business, on his way to Louisville: It was dark when the train roached K. C., and Mr. T., after striking the platform stood watching the hurry and bustle which all-ways attends the in-coming and out-going of cars in a great city, when a handsome young girl in a seal-skin saque dashed forward, and, throwing herself upon the honest Editor's breast, imprinted a kiss upon his cheek, and said: "You dear old pa, I knew you would be waiting for me! And how's mother, and how's Jennie, and how's John—and oh! pa you take my check and lots hurry!" Our Editor is old and kind of modest like, and very distrustful of strange ladies. He thought the young lady in the seal-skin saque had made a mistake; but he came gallantly up to the scratch, and, throwing both arms around the fair creature, he made up his mind to be a father to her or die in the attempt. Kissing her on the cheek, he exclaimed: "Oh! yer mother's well, an' John, an' (smack) Jane, an' Susan, (smack smack) an, Horace' an'."

By the time her friends could get to her she had slid into a stony faint and they had to lug her home in a hack, while our Editor, as he finished the third round with her outraged young man, and sauntered around the depo, chuckled to himself: "The Editor's getting a little old and stiff an' careless like, but when any young females wants to play a game of copenhagen, they'll find him right on time. And he wandered off up town muttering something about the "Metaphysics of Matrimony," "Human nature," its inconsistency and all that.

The Marion Center Band were naded the 7x9 paper Wednesday evening. Any lady in search of a husband can find one by applying to John Dewitt. At the last meeting of the City Council, N. J. Nyo and Mr. Dobbins were ordered to pay $15 a month for selling beer. Geo. Eates was allowed $70 for grading Court-house grounds.

The Topeka Capital will change its editorial staff and general make-up about Sept. 1st, and under its new management, of which Capt. Henry King is Editor, it promises to become one of the best daily in the State. We understand a child of Tom-Witcher's at Strong was burned to death Wednesday, as near as we can learn the facts of the case are as follows: Tom's wife it seems went off to a neighbors and left the child lying on some quilts near the fire, it is supposed sparks from the stove set fire to the quilts. Another child which was in the house at the time escaped with but slight injury.

FINAL NOTICE. Creditors and all others interested will take notice that, on the 20th day of Aug. 1881, I shall apply to and make final settlement with the Probate Court of Chase County, Kansas, of all matters pertaining to the estate of H. E. Drinkwater, deceased. F. L. DRINKWATER, Administrator. Cottonwood Falls, Aug. 1, 1881. sul-3w

LOCAL SHORT STOPS.

A. Finney has moved to Emporia. Charlie Conaway started for the West, Monday.

The Editor still lingers in the "blue grass" region. Corn cutters are in demand at 10 and 12 cents a shock.

The dry weather has played sad havoc with the grape crop. S. A. Brees, Clerk, reports 215 children of school age in this district.

Chancy R. Simmons has the thanks of this office for some splendid peaches. Mr. Leroy Martin drives the boss outfit of the city. It is a three minute nag.

George Georg is working the roads in good order and deserves much credit thereof. The old billiard hall is being refitted and overhauled, to be used hereafter as a pool room.

Mr. N. J. Swayze has a field of corn on Peyton creek which he thinks will average 50 bushels per acre. Seventy five persons took dinner at the Union Hotel, and one hundred and twenty at the Hinckley House Wednesday.

Dick Hoffman has rented both of his meat shops to Lawyer Davis, of Strong City, and will go East on a short visit. There will be a meeting at the Congregational Church, Saturday night, for the purpose of organizing a choir. Everybody invited.

Rumor has it that the Santa Fe will carry passengers to the State Fair, at Topeka, from all points east of Newton, for one cent a mile. Married at the Catholic church in Strong City, Monday, Aug. 15, by Rev. J. Wellinghoff, Mr. John Gannon and Miss Bridget Lawless; all of Chase County.

Mrs. Ed. Pratt started for Boston last Tuesday, to make a pleasant visit among friends in the Hub. Mr. Pratt accompanied her as far as Kansas City. It seems to us that by fencing the Fair Grounds this fall, there would be more than enough gate money to pay for the enclosing. We give this for what it is worth.

The Strong City Independent a spy, new paper, R. M. Watson Editor and publisher, is on our table. Long may you survive to work in the interests of Chase County. D. R. Anthony of the Leavenworth Times, yearningly yearns to have his paper called "the great religious daily." We suggest as one more fit to occupy that position in Journalism: Stineberger's Courant; or Miller's Chief.

Mr. J. F. Kirker finding his position in the State Reform School, at Topeka, too confining will resign in September. We understand he has applied for position of Instructor in the High school at Strong City. All teachers interested in the organization of a Teachers Association are desired to be at the office of the County Superintendent, Saturday, August 27, at 10 a. m. MARY E. HUNT. Co. Supt.

Touchingly picturesque, tenderly suggestive, and bewitchingly quaint, is the new fall bonnet, this season, and when it is added to the bright eyes, sunny smiles, cherry lips, and paschos and cream complexion of our maidens, the combination is too much for our "devil." He's witting away fast. There will be an examination of candidates for teachers certificates, at the stone school-house in Cottonwood Falls, on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 2nd and 3rd, beginning at 8 o'clock, a. m.

The examination in the common branches will take place on Friday. Saturday will be devoted to the sciences required for the first grade certificate. This will probably be the last examination this fall. MARY E. HUNT. Co. Supt.

The memory of the oldest inhabitant reaches not back to the time when we had more exquisitely beautiful nights than last week. The air was as mild and balmy as ever sighed over Kansas the breeze; the skies were as unclouded as those whose blue arch bends in crystal purity above the enchanted bay of Naples, the moonlight bathing hill and valley, rock, river and town and silent prairie in a flood of radiance, rich and silvery as ever illumined the sinless bowers of primeval paradise. The temptation to stroll around, arm in arm, with some friend of the opposite sex, star gazing, whispering soft and tender absurdities, and making an egregious ninny of oneself in general, was almost overpowering. Stout, stubborn, and stolid indeed was he who did not succumb.

Mr. Jake Rupert is in the city. Dave Biggam is in from Colorado. Pat Hubbard is again a resident of our city.

Mrs. J. H. Woodmad has moved to Butler County. N. J. Swayze is putting an iron door in the rear end of his bank.

Three small houses were blown over at the quarries last Monday. Fred Shipman has returned home from a visit to Chicago and the East.

Mr. Will Wood and family, of Fox creek, have gone on visit to Rhode Island. Frank Ollinger, Newton's boss barber, was in town this week. He reports business brisk.

And now the small boy wasteth his spare change shooting at a mark. The target gun is in town. And now Guitteau wants to get out of jail on $1,500 bail, and take a trip to Europe; his present position being too confining. Jes so.

Mr. S. F. Jones has the finest residence in this part of the State. It is estimated that its cost when finished will reach $20,000—Independent. Holmes & Minnick, brought 200 head of cattle from their ranch in Butler, last Tuesday, to the farm of the former near Elm Dale. They are beauties.

Clay Martin killed a large hawk on Buck creek one day last week, that weighed 7 pounds and measured five feet from the tip of one wing to the other. Notwithstanding the seemingly small corn crop our merchants are doing a splendid cash business, and say that dry weather affects the trade very little.

From the fact that no person can be found to tackle the Congregational church it would seem to us this city affords a good opening for a painter. Guman & Son are making Rome howl. In other words they have about twenty five men at work on the school-house, and are pushing it forward with all possible haste.

Philip Phillips the great singer will be at Emporia, September 1st. This will be an opportunity to hear a world renowned singer, that our citizens should not neglect. During the late wind of Monday evening one of the large plate windows, in the front of Dr. Pugh's drug store, was broken, also some valuable lamps. Loss about sixty dollars.

Saturday some of Enstie's quarry hands struck for $2, they have previously been getting $1.75, their request was refused, and they quit Monday morning, however their demand was conceded to; so they once more went to work. The people of Strong are to be congratulated on having such a live, wide-awake newspaper in their midst as the Independent. We will say to the citizens of that town, as a localist Bob is a good one, and deserves to be well supported.

The annual organ grinder made his appearance on our streets last Friday. Some day forbearance will cease to be a virtue and the people will rise up in their wrath and band organs and blind men will be spoken of as 'things that were.

The dedication of the new Catholic Church at Strong City will take place on Sunday, Sept 11, Rt. Rev. Bishop Louis M. Ebink O. S. B. Confirmation will be administered at High Mass the by Rt. Rev. Bishop. High Mass at 10 a. M. Vesper at 3 p. m. on Sunday Sept. 4th. First Communion of the Children will take place at High Mass at 9 a. m. REV. JOHN WELLINGHOFF.

His folks were rich: he was their only darling tootsy wootsy boy; he grew up like all 'tootsy wootsy' boys fond of fun, frolic and tangle foot, (we of a man of course footing the bill) This bothered the old gent considerably; He happened one day to pick up a stray temperance paper from Kansas, containing St. John's revelation concerning the finding of the Philosopher's stone that banishes every curse from the land, and man's man perfect. He immediately with an overflowing heart of joy shipped 'tootsy wootsy' who had then attained the age when men know the most, by lightning express, even to Strong City. He came with party trunks' valises, and wedges, that made him scorn the rude native of St. John's domain, who looked on him with envy. The first thing was to tie him tight about for some kindred spirit with which to revel and back to the sunshine and joys of the Amendment. He soon found them, disclosed his immense riches and "set em up," "set em up again and kept "setting em up." Had plenty of (hic) money (hic) and wanted ter (hic) give every one (hic) chance (hic) yer know (hic.) That night, stowed in his little bed he snoozed, a mighty drunken tad. Next morning with an aching head. He messaged to his "loving dad," "The robbers, dad, they took mein. Jayhawkers, outlaws, did I say, Dad please forward me the tin; For little bills I have to pay."

SAVED.

The wind is spent and the gale is past. And the morning sun shines forth at last; It shines on a strip of yellow sand, And a good ship sinking in sight of land.

Over her deck and her battered side Lazily watching the ebbing tide; Out of the struggle and deadly strife, Lo! nothing saved but a baby life.

A wee frail thing is the one poor wife; A wee frail thing to be sound and safe; But all forgotten its brief alarms, It gaily crows in the stranger's arms.

A sailor looks at the little form— 'Tis a tiny craft to have stemmed the storm! He starts as he leads him by, And his thoughts fly back to the long ago.

Just such a babe on his young wife's breast, With clinging fingers his own carress'd; Just such another—but where is he? Wrecked on the voyage of life may be.

Is this but spared that in years to come I may drift away from its heavenly home? The baby laughs as his boy once did; Ah! will it be so? Nay, God forbid!

The sailor's hand had a gentle touch; For the sake of the lad beloved so much; And soft from his lips are the words that fall: 'God bless the children—God keep them all!'

BERENICE.

Mrs. Chudleigh opened the door of her cottage, and came out into the midst of the gloomy, freezing cold, a wistful, anxious look on her white face. Putting her thin, childish hand to her mouth, she called, "Bernie! Bernie!"

Presently there came an answer: "Yes, I am coming, mother!"

And simultaneous with the answer, a sturdy little figure appeared upon the summit of an ivy knoll.

"Ah, Bernie! I have been so anxious and you are so cold!"

"Not a bit; but I took a longer tramp than usual. But only see the faggots; they're as clear and rich as butter!" and the sturdy little figure advanced, drawing after him a small sled heaped with pine knots.

The woman's moonlight face lit up to absolute radiance, and a tenderness that was touching, beamed from her great, blue-gray eyes, as they rested on the boy—a stalwart, sturdy little fellow, robed and wrapped like an Esquimaux, with white hair, and an honest, manly face. Ben Chudleigh's own boy!

When they had crossed the threshold, she kissed him, parting the frozen locks on his brow. The lad blushed like a cardinal in her caress, and then fell to unloading his sled, and heaping the fire with faggots.

"There, now, mother," he said, as the ruddy blaze shot up the broad chimney, "isn't that nice? Now you shall sit down and get real warm, and I'll make the tea; I'm such a strong fellow I never get tired!"

Benny threw on fresh faggots, and got out his illuminated primer to amuse himself, while his mother did her sewing; but somehow the bright pictures failed in their usual interest. His ears were full of the sea's wild sobbing, and his blue eyes—bold, kind eyes, so like his father's—wandered furtively to his mother's face.

A lovely face, fair and refined; a face that, in its early bloom, when all its rare colors were unfaded, and all that superbly abundant gold-brown hair was in its glory, must have been wondrously beautiful. But now all so indelibly sad, so full of an unending remorse.

The lad's eyes filled with childhood's quick tears as he watched her, and his face grew solemn with a vague, doubtful wonder.

"Mother," he said at last, just the least quiver in his voice, "mother, was it all right between you and father when he went away? I've wanted to know so long."

The mother looked up, startled and amazed; a swift, burning red shot up into her white cheeks, and then she let her head drop forward on the sewing stand, and burst into passionate sobbing. The child grew pale with fright and pain.

"Oh, mother! poor, dear mother!" he whispered, going to her side, and dropping kisses and caressing touches on her bowed head, "I'm so sorry! I didn't think it would hurt you so!"

She drew him to her bosom in silence, and still sobbing. His childish questions had cut her heart like a knife. "Was it all right with her and father when he went away?" Ah, no! it was all wrong; and now, God pity her! it was too late ever to make it right—the cruel wrong must live through all the time, and eternity, perchance!

How vividly, sitting there in the ghastly glimmer of the firelight, did she remember that last parting, three weary years ago. Bernie was but a wee lad, then, and his father, who had followed the sea all his life, was starting on a long voyage. He wanted a paper of some importance, a promissory note, or something of the kind, and came to his wife for it.

Berenice, his pretty girl-wife, had taken care of all his papers and all his money since the first day of their happy marriage, he being a great, careless, loving, fry-hearted fellow, as sailors usually are. But Berenice was quite busy that morning getting his outfit in readiness; and the March winds blustered down the cottage chimney, and puffed the smoke and ashes about, and put her out of humor; and, perhaps, for all her sweet child ways and rare beauty, this petted wife of Ben Chudleigh was a bit impatient and quick-tempered by nature or because of too much petting and indulgence, as is often the case. At any rate, she declared that it could not be found and that it had not been entrusted to her keeping. Ben opened his handsome blue eyes in amazement.

"Why, Berenice," he said, not a bit cross, only decidedly, "you know I gave it to you. I always give you things I wish taken care of."

"A foolish habit too," retorted Berenice, spitefully. "Why not take care of them yourself? And you may hereafter, I won't have my desk crowded with any such rubbish," and making good her words, she tossed the papers she had been overlooking on the floor.

Ben looked down at the promissory note. There were receipts and business papers, and amid them, old love letters and bits of faded blossoms, that had passed between him and Berenice in the days of their courtship.

"Why, Benny," he began, and then finding his voice unsteady, he stopped short and turned away.

His wife saw in an instant what she had done, but with the perversity of a child, instead of trying to make preparation, she made matters worse.

"I shan't look another bit," she said, petulantly, pushing the papers aside with her pretty foot. "I've wasted half the morning already. You better see so, I wish you were gone!"

"I'm going now, then, Berenice. Good-by."

He did not even turn to look at her, but strode from the room and out into the doorway, and Berenice standing breathless, heard him kiss the child, and say:

"Good-by, little one! Be a good boy to mother, don't forget."

That was the last. When, after a moment of stunned bewilderment, she hurried to the door, he was gone.

But he would come back. All day long sitting with Benny on her knee, she said it over and over, he would come back, and they would make it up.

But night came, and the dusk of the March sunset, a sailor came up for her husband's sea-chest. Berenice was too proud to ask a question or send a message; but the long lonely night subdued her pride. As soon as the sun rose, she made her way down to the pier, where his vessel lay, but it was too late; the craft had sailed at day break, and her husband had gone.

Month followed month, year drifted after year, and Berenice lived, and Benny grew up a sturdy lad, never forgetting his father's parting command. He was a good boy to his mother; but all his simple, unaffected devotion, so like his father's, could not drive the unspoken sorrow from her eyes, or the stinging remorse from her heart. And now she sat there by the blazing fire, with her thin hands clasped, and such a wistful, hungry look in her great, shining eyes, that poor little Ben felt awed and frightened, and crept away to his bed in the corner, not daring even to see her again.

But the child could not sleep. He lay listening to the voice of the winds, as they roared and whistled through the pine hills, and to the ceaseless moan and thunder of the sea, raising his head and anon to look at his mother's white, sad face, and wondering in his heart, if God and his angels were so good and merciful, why they did not do something to comfort her. A strange terrible feeling came over him, an indescribable presence of something to come.

"Mother!" he called, sitting up in his bed. "Oh, mother! what is it? I can't tell, but I feel something; indeed I do!"

But he did not heed him. The old sea dog lifted his pointed ears, and listened intently; then he arose, and pattered across to the child's bed, with a look half human in his eyes. Bernie laid his cheek against his shaggy head.

"What is it, Triton?" he whispered. The dog listened again, then he bounded to the door, and began to scratch and sniff beneath it.

"Oh, mother! mother!" called Bernie in amazed fright.

She arose with trembling hands, and a death white face.

New York Newspapers.

Special to Cincinnati Enquirer.

John Russell Young told me a day or two ago that the Evening Telegram, which is about thirteen years old, was worth $1,000 a week profit to Bennett.

One of Jay Gould's brokers also says that the Tribune has been completely discredited from Gould; that it was detached through a put or a call on the stock at a certain figure given some time ago, when the property was not apparently going to be worth as much as now, and Mr. Reid has extracted the property at a very prudent price. The opening of the new Brooklyn bridge, a few rods from the Tribune office, makes the real estate value of enormous value, bringing the 700,000 people of Brooklyn almost in one crowd out to terra firma in New York. The builders are hard at work putting up the great rear extension of the Tribune block, which will make it the most extensive newspaper edifice in the new world.

Nothing on Earth So Good.

Worcester (Mass.) Spy.

Certainly a strong opinion said one of our reporters to whom the following was detailed by Mr. Henry Kaschop, with Mr. Geo. E. Miller, 418 Main street, this city: I suffered so badly with rheumatism in my leg last winter, that I was unable to attend school, being compelled to rest.

I heard of St. Jacobs Oil and bought a bottle, after using which I felt greatly relieved. With the use of the second bottle I was completely cured. In my estimation there is nothing on earth so good for rheumatism as St. Jacobs Oil. It acts like a charm.

The London Consulate-General.

New York Times.

In his new capacity as Consul-General at London, Gen. Merritt will receive a salary of $60,000 a year, and will be allowed, besides, $1,200 for house rent and $3,000 for clerk hire. The income of the London Consulate-General is about $50,000 a year. The present Vice-Consul is Mr. Nunn, an Englishman, who has been retained in the service for many years because of his intimate knowledge of the relations and business of the consular service with English affairs.

Having been cured by St. Jacobs Oil, I recommend the same to all sufferers with rheumatism, says Mr. L. Shillman, 2804 Calumet avenue, Chicago, Ill.—La Crosse Republican Leader.

Manufactured and recommended by the medical profession for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Pains, Headache, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, and Constipation, produce better results.

Dr. Harris's is a medicine of such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by a more violent attack. At this time I bought the use of four boxes of Dr. Harris's, from which I derived almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently exhausted. I have used three bottles of the same, and with double the ease with which I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil cure and vigor of body, has come also a clearance of thought never before enjoyed. If the same medicine does the work, I know not what I give it the credit. J. P.
