The total bulk imported last year was 713,432 quintals (or hundredweights). A Lost Lover. Washington Letter.

The officers of the Government receive some very amusing letters now and again. Gen, Walker, the superintendent of the census, received a doleful account the other day of a lost lover. The letter was a bona fide one and was from a lady, an unmarried lady, from one of the Southern States.
She said her lover left her fifteen years ago, taking with him, as a loan from her, a few hundred dollars that her uncle had left her. She gave the name of her lover as also her own, and said her lover might possibly be dead. She had certainly not heard from him since he went way, although she had taken great pains to discover his where-abouts. She had been waiting for the names of the census to be published, but she was getting tired of waiting. Therefore she begged that General Walker would look over the names and tell her where her truant lover could be found, or if he was dead to tell her where he was buried. She enclosed a stamp for a reply. Gen. Walker has not yet had time to go through the fifty millions of names to oblige this faithful woman, but if he does it at all it will be some rainy Sunday when he can't go to church.

Rye a Profitable Crop-Patent Right Extortions-Agricultural Notes.

During several months past the price of rye has been higher than that of wheat in all the leading markets in the country. The crop last year was somewhat short while the demand for it has been unusually large. A very large class of our foreign inhabitants were accustomed to the use of rye in their old homes, and continue to eat it in preference to wheat after they come to this country. Bread made of rye retains its moisture longer than that made of wheat. It has more flavor and on that account is more pala-table when eaten without butter or truit sauce. The great number of person who are daily arriving from various portions of Germany and the Scandinavian counries will cause a large demand for rye next season, and farmers will do well to consider this fact in deciding what grains to sow. The circumstance that the price of rye is higher than that of wheat shows that the former is a neglected crop, and one that is deserving of more attention than it receives. Rye is a more productive as well as a more hardy plant than wheat, while it is less liable to be injured by insects. It will produce a good crop upon a poorer soil, and one that has received less preparation. Many tracts of loose, sandy land will produce large crops of rye on which a paying crop of wheat, corn or potatoes cannot be grown. There are many large tracts of sandy land in the Western States, considered almost valueless, that will produce large and excellent crops of rye. These tracts could be purchased and utilized by growing rye to most ex-cellent advantage. With very few ex-ceptions rye is only raised by small and poor farmers. A large proportion of all the rye produced in the country is raised on little patches of from one to five acres in extent. We have wheat fields extending over several thousand acres, but it is an unusual thing to find even a quarter of a section of land in one body devoted to the grain that is worth more than wheat.

Patent Right Extortions. The American Dairyman in discussing the Patent laws which provide for punishing the innocent purchaser of patented articles, says in alluding to the barb wire decision: "Here is a case in which many thousands of farmers all over the West and Northwest will be held liable for royalties for using an article which they bought in good faith, and one of which they could have no means of knowing that it was an infringement. Prof. Willard shows that the same thing has occurred and is occurring in the dairy, and that relief should be granted by amending the patent laws, so that the innocent purchaser or user of the article should not be made to suffer for the sins of venders should be alone held responsible or indictable for infringements of patents.

Agricultural Notes.

-Speaking of our great wheat crops the American Miller remarks that few people in our country realize how inexhaustible our resources are for wheat growing. The total area of lands available for wheat culture in the United States is not less than 470,000,000 acres. Our entire wheat crop of last year would not supply seed enough to sow such a vast area.

-A writer on ensilage says: "It will assist enormously in making mankind independent of the weather, for the constant use of the plow and the cultivator, and the raising of strong, growing crops will greatly obviate the difficulties from drougth, while the loss and expense of harvesting crops in bad weather will be greatly diminished by this mode of preserving food."

Patti in London. Pall Mall Gazette

To dilate upon the special characteristics of a Patti rentree would be to reecho a somewhat hackneyed story. The same brilliant gathering the same en-thusiastic greeting, and the same pro-fusion of floral tributes with which we have been familiar for nearly a score of years may be chronicled once more. And further, it may be granted that Tuesday's experience did not warrant the idea that natural causes would speedily supervene to cause a change in the attitude of the public toward their greatest operatic favorite. A graduai modifiest operatic favorite. A graduai modifi-cation of Mme. Patti's voice has been in progress for some time. Get a Home.

We would have every true man build for himself a home, be it ever so humble in its beginning. Industry and frugality and good judgment will make of it the most lovely spot of earth. The man without a home is like a sojourner without a country. The richest, happiest and best man in the wide world is he who has a pretty comfortable home of his own, a family, good health, and owes no man a cent, even though his entire worldly possessions would not sell for a thousand dollars, and though he has never held so high an office as town constable or readmaster.

We sometimes feel constrained to doubt whether a man without a home can at best be but an indifferent citizen and a more indifferent patriot. He cannot feel that interest in other people's real prosperity that he feels in his own, and without such prosperity we could have no country worthy a name. He would scarcely care to risk his life in de-fense of the hearthstone of his landlord, but let that hearthstone be his own, and woe to the invader who should threaten it with desecration. The homes of the people are the strength of the State. Build them, beautify them, own them and be happy. This is the fair deduc-tion from hosts of instances and is the true philosophy of home making and home owning.

-A remarkable fact is noticed in the June number of the Journal of Microscopy. The Lord's Prayer, consisting of 227 letters, has been engraved so small that each letter occupies the space of 1-200 millionth part of a square inch. On the same scale, the whole Bible, with 3,566,480 letters, can be engraved fifty-nine times in the space of only one square inch. It is hardly necessary to state that as yet no one has attempted the task of engraving the Bible.

more he showed no signs of home-sick-"But when old Toss, from the tannery near by, made an attack upon him, al-though Bravo's fleetness saved him from harm, he began to wish he had never left his puppy-hood's home to live with farmer John. ful look in his face.

"Now. Rory was steady and brave and wise. He had no love for running round nights; so it surprised his master, when, just as the sun went down that day, Rory started down the road, and up the lane to farmer John's. On he went, with a grave look, without stopping to greet any old friend, even by a wag of nis tail. Bravo met him, and whisked around him; and after a short consultation, the two dogs crawled into the kennel, Rory staying nearest to the door.

"The moon shone clear and bright, and all was still until about midnight, when farmer John's wife was suddenly awakened by a sound of growling, snarling and yelping. 'Wake up, John, quick, quick! Get up!' she shouted. The far ner leaped from his bed, and, half-dressed, ran to the door, thinking that the dogs were killing sheep; but instead of sheep, Rory and Brave had Toss at their mercy, and were giving him a severe punishment." "Good, good!" shouted Herbert. "That served him just right."

But little Bertha turned a wondering look upon Herbert; she could not help feeling pity even for Toss.

"Let us hear the rest of the story," said Emma.

So I went on,—
"The sharp voice of the farmer made Rory and Bravo release their vimite. and Toss, in a crestfallen way, started for his home; but, before he could get over the fence, Rory gave him a final clutch that sent him off yelping. He never came back; and when he met Bravo afterward, he was careful not to trouble him.

"In a shore time Brayo grew to be so strong and brave, that he could fight his own battles without the aid of his friend

The three children, who had listened very attentively to the story, now talked it over; and they came to the conclusion that Toss received a good lesson, and was probably a better dog after it. "For," said Herbert, "a dog who abuses a smalldog is almost as mean as a big boy who tyrannizes over a little boy.'

The Bear and Her Cubs.

UNCLE CHARLIE. "Are there any people besides Esquimaux in the snow-country?" asked Harry, one day.

"Not many," said I. "There is a small Danish settlement in Greenland; but, with that exception, the Esquimaux and the bears have the country pretty much to themselves."
"Tell me about the bears," said Harry.

"I saw a bear last summer at the White mountains. He was chained to a tree." "But the bear that roams around over the snow and ice of the Arctic regions, is much larger and more savage than the common black bear you saw. It is a dingy white color. When full grown it sometimes measures nine feet in

"I think not, Harry; for the polar tion of the female for its young. This has often been noticed. "A Greenland bear with two cubs was pursued across a field of ice by a party of armed sailors. At first she tried to urge the young ones along by running before them, turning around and calling them to her; but finding that the pursuers were gaining on them, she pushed and threw the cubs before her, one after another, until she effected their escape.

"Each cub would place itself across her path to receive the impulse, and when thrown forward would run onward until overtaken by the mother, when it would adjust itself for another throw.' "Well, that shows that even a bear has good feeling," said Harry, "and some common sense, too, I'm glad that the sailors did not catch them. would those cubs have done without their mother?"

President Garfield Shot Down in a Wash.

i igton Depot. On last Saturday morning President Garfield was shot down in the B &. P. depot at Washington. He was starting to Long Branch to meet his wife. The two, in company with others, were contemplating a visit to New England. After the President was shot he was conveyed to the White House. 1 hrough Saturday, Sunday and Monday his condition was critical, and little hope was entertained for his recovery. Tuesday his symptoms were for the better, and it now seems probable that he will survive. Charles Guiteau, the assass'n, is in jail at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.-President Garfield was shot this morning. The shooting was done by a slender man, about 5 feet 7 inches in height. He refused to give his name, but it is said by persons who profess to know him, that his name is Dooly. The prisoner was arrested immediately after the firing by officers in the de pot. He was first taken to posice head-quarters, and subsequently removed to the district jail. The shooting occured in the ladies' room of the depot immediately after the President had entered, walking arm in arm with Secretary Blaine on their way to the limited express train, which was about ready to leave. Secretary Blaine on hearing the pistol shots, two in number, rushed in the direction from which they came, with a view of arresting the would-be assasin. Before reaching the man, however, the Secretary returned to the President and found him prostrated. Both shots took effect, the first in the right arm and the second just above the right hip and near the kineys.

The President had alighted from his carriage and was passing through the ladies' room to the cars. When about a few feet inside of the room, the assassin, who was within three feet of him, fired one shot. The President was dazed, and made no attempt at self-protection. Blaine had turned towards one door. The assassin fired the second shot in ten seconds. The President fell, and Mrs. White, who attends the ladies' waiting room, rushed to him pot. He was first taken to notice head quarters,

AND RAISED UP HIS HEAD.

Blaine also rushed to the a-sistance of the Presdent. The assassin passed out toward; B street, but Parke, ticket agent, jumped through the window and caught the assassin, who made no resistance. Officer Carnev, a depot policeman, rushed up and took hold of the assassin, and immediately afterward Officer Scott also took hold of him. Parke let the officers have him, and turned his attention to the President. Help came and the President was taken upstairs, and he said not a word until he was laid down, when he asked that his shoes be taken oft, saying he felt pain in his feet. As soon as his shoes were removed, he said to Secretary Windom; Go right now and send a telegram to Mrs. Garfield, saying I tel considerably better, and if she feels well enough to come to Washington immediately. This dispatch was sent, and a special train was at once sent to Long Branch for Mrs. Garfield. Secretary Blaine was not going with the party, but went down to bid the President good-bye. He said: "The President and I were walking arm-in-arm towards the train. I heard two shots and saw a man run. I started after him, but, seeing that he was grabbed just as he got out of the room, I came to the President and found him lying on the floor. The floor was covered with the President's blood. A number of people who were around shortly afterwards have some of that blood on their persons. I think I know the man. I think his name is Dittor. The assassin is about five feet seven inches in height, of strong though not stout build.

an ivory handle. The calibre was very large. It is what is known as a Cantornia pistol. It made a very loud report.

Parke says both shots were fired while the assassin was behind the fresident. When Officers scott and Carney got hold of the assassin and were taking him to police headquarters he said voluntarily to them; 'I did it and will go to jail for it. I am a stalwart and Arthur will be President." He had a letter in his hand and wanted the officers to take it to Gen. Sherman, saying it would be all right. The prisoner made no resistance, saying he had contemplated the killing of the President and it was for the good of the country. About 9 o'clock the assassin went to a hackstand adjoining the depot and engaged a hack from Barton, a colored hackman. He said he wanted to go to Greenwood cemetary in a short time and wanted the hackman to drive very fast when he should get in the hack. He agreed to pay $2 for the hack on condition that the hackman would drive fast. When stopped the assassin was going to the hack he had engaged, and he insisted that it was important for him to go on and deliver a message to tieneral Sherman. When the officer refused to let him go, he begged them to take the letter he had to General Sherman. Following is a copy of the letter the assassin wanted deliver devered to General Sherman. "July 2, 1881.— T . A. While House" letter the assassin wanted de vered to General Sherman: "July 2, 1881.—7 · 1. While House The President's tragic death wa : sad necessity, but it will unite the Republican party to save the republic. Life is a firmsy dream, and it matters lutle when one goes republic. Life is a milittle when one goes.

During the war thousands of brave boys went down without a tear. I-presume the President was a Christian, and that he will be happier in Paradise than here. It will be no worse for Mrs. Garfield, dear soul, to part with her husband this way than by a natural death. He is liable to go at any time, any way. I had no ill will towards the President; his death was a political necessity. I am a lawyer, a theologian and a politicalian. I am a stalwart of the stalwarts, I was with General Grant and the rest of your men in New York during the canvass. I have some papers for the press which I shall leave with Byron Andrews and his cojournalists, at 1420 New York avenue, where all reporters can see them. I am now going to the jail." [signed] Charles Gitteau.

Doctor Townshend, health officer, was the first to reach the President. The President was shot from the right as he entered the ladies' reception room of the depot, with Secretary Blaine. The ball entered above the third rib, but whether it took its course towards the spine was not ascertained. The wound was probed by Dr. Bliss, who reported that in inserting the probe the course of the ball did not extend toward the spine. Still it is not certain it did not. It was the unanimous opinion of the physicians that the need for the President was not the probing of the wound, but rest. The extent of the danger of the wound, but rest. The extent of the danger of the wound is not yet known, and more an be told when he passes, as the kidneys are injured. A HUMAN LIFE IS OF SMALL VALUE.

CARRIED TO HIS ROME.

The President at 10:20 was conveyed to the Executive mansion under a strong escort of metropolitan police. Two companies of regulars from the Washington barracks, were ordered out to preserve quiet. Great excitement prevailed and the streets were thronged with anxious inquirers eager to learn the condition of the Pre-ident. The shooting occurred in the presence of some fifty or sixty ladies. There was a rumor that the shooting was done by an ex-Consul to Marseilles, who was removed from office. The pistol with which the firing was done is a California weapon with an extremely heavy calibre, better known as a "Bull Dozer."

Station Agent Carney arrested the assassin, who said: "I did it! I am a stalwart and Arthur is now President. Take a letter I have here to General Sherman and he will tell you all about it."

The President was shot twice. One ball entered from the rear to one side and is believed to have passed through the kidneys. The doctors held out some Hope of a Possible Recovery, the doctors held out some Hope of a Possible Recovery, but it was plain that they felt but little, it any, hope. One shot went through the arm, The President talked to a Western Associated Press reporter and said he felt pretty strong, considering his wounds, but complained of a tingling sensation in his feet as annoying him more than anything else. The man who shot him wrote his name on a card, "Chas, Gitteau, Attorney-at-Law, of Chicago," Washington was wild with excitement, and the whole populace gathered about the Baltin ore & Potomac depot. The man evidently had deliberately planned the assassination with the idea, so far as can now be ascertained, of making Arthur President.

A. F. Rockwell,

The name of the assassin, as written by himselt, is Charles Gitteau, and he says he is an attorneyat-law at Chicago. The Star says in an extra that when the assassin was arrested he said: "I did it, and want to be arrested. I am a stalwart, and Arthur is President now. I have a letter here that I want you to give to General Sherman. It will explain everything. Take me to the police station." It was utterly impossible to gain access to the White House, the police and soldiers being all around it, and would let no one but cabinet officers in. There was communication by telephone, which was the only way to reach them.

SOMMTHING ABOUT GITTEAU.

way to reach them.

SOMETHING ABOUT GITTEAU.

Charles Gitteau, the would-be assassin, is a foreigner by birth and has been a very persistent applicant for a consular station. He has haunted the Executive mansion for several weeks, and his disappointment in not getting what he want-ed led to a temporary aberration of mind.

Gitteau's Life in Washing on. WASHINGTON, D C., July 2.-Charles Gitteau the assassin of the President, is a Canadian Frenchman by birth and hails from Chicago. He came here in the month of February with recommendations from various parties in Illinois, to secure a United States consulship to Marseilles, France. He went in March to the weil known boarding house of Mrs. Lockwood, formerly Mrs. Rines, 810 Twelfth street, and tried to secure board. Mrs. Lockwood did not like his appearance and gave him an out of the wry room in the Locesof getting rid o' him. He pretended to know deneral Logan and others then boarding there. Mrs. Lockwood states he act strangely at times, and about the middle of the month when she presented his bill he could not pay. He afterwards let the house and sent Mrs. Lockwood a note saying he was expecting a $5.000 position and would soon pay his bill. Mrs. Lockwood a howed this note to General Logan, who said the man was crazy.

Three weeks ago he met Mrs. Rickford, of Mrs. Lockwood's boarding house, on the street, and requested her not to say anything about the bill he owed, as it would hurt him in his efforts to secure the position. Mrs. Lockwood says that Gitteau was a great bore to General Logan, so persistent was he in his efforts to secure that gentleman's efforts in his behalf. Since leaving Mrs. Lockwood's house, he has been stopping at various places, but never at a great length of time, for the reason that he appeared to have no funds. He told one of the boarders at Mrs. Lockwood's that he expected to be appointed Minister to France, but did not desire it to be known. Up to day before yesterday, when he registered at the Riggs house, he had been stoping, for the ast six weeks, with no baggage but a paper box, at $20 Fourteenth street.

Col Robert G. Ingersoll says he knew the assassin well, and had always regarded him as a quiet, sober and sane man, and he has no special profession, but has been an officeholder and office seeker. Col. Ingersoll is of the opinion t at his insanity is feigned. The assassin's resolution to murder President Garfield was evidently intended, by the close watch he has kept upon the movements of his excellency for the past few days. Mr. Brooke Darrell of the Treasury department immediately recognized him as identical with a man whom he had seen hangling about the neighborhood of the W weil known boarding house of Mrs. Lockwood, formerly Mrs. Rines, 810 Twelfth street, and as they arrived and departed. Gitteau, it is said, held the position of Consul to Marseulles during the last administration, having been appointed through the influence of General Logan. When this administration came into power, he was recalled, and some charge that in his desperation he resorted to the pistol for revenge. City Postmaster Ainger, who was present at the shooting, is quoted as saying; "I have been in many a battle, and have seen many men mortally wounded, and never one with a face that more clearly showed certain ceath, than the President's."

WASHINGTON, July 6 .- The President's condition continued favorable vesterday. and at 2 o'clock this morning he was resting easily. The physicians, who are much encouraged, have no longer a fear of peritonits, but regard suppuration with some anxiety. The President yesterday increased the amount of nourishment with no unfavorable results.

Resignation of Senators. Providence Journal. The National Government has been in existence for nearly ninety-two years, and since its organization there has been up to the present date 211 United States Senators who have voluntarily resigned their seats in the national Senate. The striking fact in the case is that a large proportion of them came from the large proportion of them came from the thirteen original States. The list is as follows: Maine, 9; New Hampshire, 8; Verment, 6; Massachusetts, 17; Rhode Island. 7; Connecticut, 6; New York, 13; New Jersey, 9; Pennsylvania, 8, Delaware, 11; Maryland, 9; Virginia, 14; North Carolina, 8; South Carolina, 15; Georgia, 14; Alabama, 4; Kentucky, 11; Tennessee, 11; Ohio, 8; Illinois, 1; Arkansas, 1; Michigan, 2; Mississippi, 9; Louisiana 6; California, 1; Iowa, 2; Minnesota, 1; Kansas, 1. This last resignation was made under compulsion, that is to was made under compulsion, that is to say, the incumbent had the choice of resigning or meeting the alternative of expulsion. John M. Berrien, of Georgia, resigned on three diffirent occasions—1829, 1845 and 1852. When he tendered his resignation the second time the Le-gislature accepted it, but he was immediately re-elected by a nearly unanimous vote. He was a man of the very highest order of ability, his public and private morals above reproach. The following named Senators, most of them distinguished in the annals of fame, each reguished in the annals of fame, each resigned their seats on two different occasions: Daniel Webster, Hannibal Hamlin, Simon Cameron, John M. Clayton, John Forsyth, Jefferson Davis, George W. Campbell, Andrew Jackson and John J. Crittenden. When Gen. Cass was nominated for President in 1848 he resigned his seat in the national 1848, he resigned his seat in the national Senate, deeming it a proper and dignified course. This act elicited much comment from the press of that day, and the Whig papers especially predicted his defeat for the Presidency, and as a candidate for re-election to the Senate; but when the Legislature of Michigan assembled in January following he was e-elected to complete his original term, it being nearly as long in duration as that of Mr. Conkling when he recently surrendered his Senatorial trust to the appointing power. The circumstances attending many of the above resignations constitute highly interesting chapters in our civil and political history, but their republication in the present condition of the public taste would not elicit one tenth the interest with which the daily

On taking the plate from the top of the metallic coffin, through the glass the child was seen with every feature just as perfect as the day it was put in the grave. In its hands was the little bouquet of flowers which was put there npon its buriel day, perfectly preserved. Its check was slightly more florid than when buried. The child was not buried until three days after death, and was then brought from Fayetteville to this place for interment.
