Pesticides Dangerous To Humans and Pets

Both field crops and vegetables are being sprayed with chemicals at a fast clip. Chemical Companies and pesticide dealers warn the public of the danger of going into field without first checking with the farmer about chemical applications.

Much parathion is being used in the area and can be highly dangerous to humans and deadly for the smaller animals and rodents.

Pet owners are strongly urged to keep pets away from

Check Of Acreage

The ASCS office warns farmers that the deadline for certifying crop acreage is Thursday, August 15. Certification of the acreages of cotton and feed grain and diverted acreage is required for each producer earning price support or diverted acreage payments. "If your farm has been measured, you must still certify the acreages," the office reports.

A word of warning is also issued by the office to the effect that a check of acreage should be made before the farmer comes in as they will be required to know the planted acres of cotton and feed grains and the number of diverted acres. Other information required will be the planting pattern if you planted in a skip row pattern. Idle rows in skip row planting must be at least four rows wide to qualify as diverted acreage.

ASCS said "Make sure you have enough diverted land." The 1969 committee elections will be in September. Ballots will be mailed and September 9 and must be returned by September 18. Any eligible voter living in a community may be nominated for a place on the ballot by other eligible voters in the community petition. At least six farmers must sign the petition and a separate petition must be submitted for each nominee.

All nominating petitions must be received in the office of the county committee by not later than August 16 which is Friday.

It has also been noted by ASCS that sobseans on diverted acreage must be destroyed by September 30.

How Tactic Works To Trap Consumer Extensionist Sounds Warning

Trusting consumers from coast to coast are being trapped by the freezer-meat fraud, according to Wanda Meyer, Extension home management specialist.

The gypster hawk frozen meat in hundred pound lots at come-on prices of 29¢ to 39¢ a pound. They are known as "bait baiters" for their use of "bait-and-switch" selling. A set pattern of fraudulent tactics emerges from the record of state and Federal actions--largely ineffective--against the bait baiters. Mrs. Meyer, with Texas A&M University, tells how the racket works:

The bait--Newspaper advertising is the bait. A typical ad may show a profile of a black angus steer with copy which proclaims: "Gov't Inspected - Tender - Delicious BEEF SIDES. No money down 31¢ pound. Includes: All cuts of beef, steaks, roasts, etc." The first switch--When you answer the ad, the salesman says: "You really would not feed this to your family."

The tour switch--He walks you past good-looking beef, ending at a piece of carcass covered with a thick, heavy layer of yellow fat, known in the trade as a "gem." Then he shows you good-looking meat at twice the price.

The installment sales contract--The "better" meat comes only in larger quantities than you had intended to buy. Therefore, the baiter sells it to you on credit. He sells

Area Field Day Planned Tuesday

Bailey County farmers and those surrounding counties are invited to participate in a field day Tuesday, August 13, and see for themselves "dramatic demonstrations" of the value of chemically fumigating cotton land that is infested by nematodes.

The farm tour, sponsored by The Dow Chemical Company, will form at Muleshoe City Park at 9:30 a.m. Lunch will be catered there after a tour of farms in the area, announced Mike Mecke, Lubbock, Dow nematode control specialist.

Mecke said the group will visit several farms in the area to see results achieved with both pre-planting fumigation and the new post-planting sidress method of fumigating.

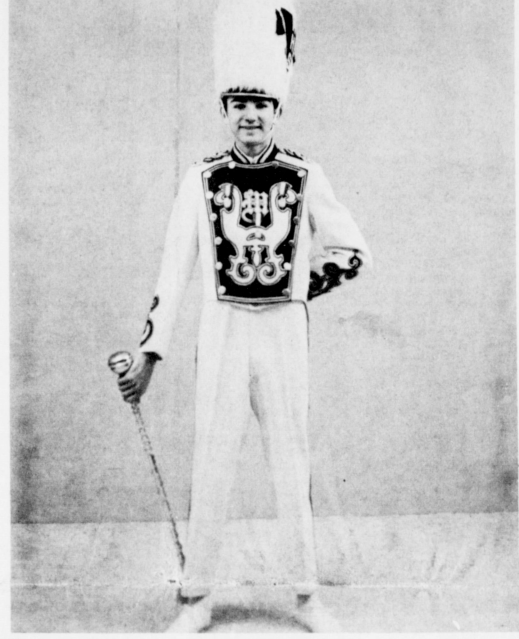

Farmers will examine the difference in cotton which was planted on fumigated land and cotton beside it which was not fumigated, Mecke added. He said the difference is dramatic, thought the cotton was planted on the same day and watered, fertilized, and worked in the same way. Farms to be visited were treated with Fumazone 86, a Dow product, using knife-type application rigs.

JACKKNIFED--The driver of this van truck belonging to the firm of Piggly Wiggly escaped injury when he apparently lost control of the vehicle on a curve approximately two miles west on U. S. 84. Rain slick pavement was a contributing factor to the loss of control of the truck. The accident occurred near 5 p.m. Thursday during a light rain.

They hit the Dakota car broadside, completely demolishing his car and ruining their 1965 Mercury beyond repair. Fortunately no one was hurt and for that they are thankful. If they just had to have any trouble at all, how nice to be so close to home when it happened.

An increase in the amount of cotton sold to foreign markets continues to offer the only hope in the next few years for returning to production of 2 million bales or more on the High Plains and accompanying production increase across the cotton belt.

Exports are especially important to the High Plains, which over the years has sold some 65 per cent of its total production into the export market.

And Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. is playing a significant role in planning for what could be one of the most important cotton export meetings ever held, and certainly is the most important ever held in Lubbock.

Gathering in Lubbock on August 13 and 14 will be the Executive Committee of Cotton Council International, the Special Export Committee of the National Cotton Council, leaders in business and agriculture from this and other cotton areas and top officials from six different agencies of the Federal Government that influence cotton exports.

All will be seeking answers to the question "What more can be done to improve cotton sales outside the U.S.?"

From Government through representatives from the Department of Agriculture, State, Commerce, the Export-Import Bank, the Foreign Credit Insurance Division and the U.S. Maritime Administration.

Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., says "The entire cotton industry has urged Government to encourage increased cotton exports for years, and it appears we have finally gotten their attention. Now they will expect to hear specific recommendations on what each agency can do to improve foreign markets."

"And unless we can deliver specific recommendations our cries for increased exports in the future may well fall on deaf ears. It is something of a 'put up or shut up' proposition."

According to Lubbock's Roy B. Davis, this year's president of the National Cotton Council and the man largely responsible for the pick-up of interest in cotton exports, the tentative format calls for an open, public meeting on August 13.

Producers, merchants, bankers, warehousemen, ginners, and transportation people are expected to participate in this first session, at which each of the Government agencies will be heard from, followed by question and answer periods.

Some of the subjects to be treated by Government people include "The importance of international trade to the U.S. and the significance of Cotton Exports," "USDA Programs to expand Exports of U.S. Cotton," "Export-Import Bank Credits for Cotton," "The Foreign Credit Insurance Program," and "The Changing Shipping Situation and the Opportunity for Cotton Exports to Benefit Therefrom."

Officials of the NCC and PCG are asking that all segments of the cotton industry and others with an economic interest in cotton exports give serious thought to the subjects to be discussed and be prepared to attend and make constructive suggestions during the two-day meeting.

On the day following this open meeting will be meetings of the CCI and NCC committees, plus "working conclaves" of people from Government with business and agriculture representatives.

Bankers will confer with Export-Import Bank officials, producers and others directly connected with cotton will sit down with USDA officials, both producer representatives and merchants will talk with the Department of Commerce, and the transportation industry people will work with the U.S. Maritime Administration.

"In this way," Johnson says, we hope to make this meeting as productive as possible. We hope to see from it some concrete actions in the government and in Government that will take us back to our fair share of world cotton markets."

Johnson pointed out that in the five years 1956 through 1960 the U.S. sold 29.9 million bales of cotton to foreign countries, a 6-year average of almost 6 million per year, while from 1961 through 1966 total exports came to only 25.5 million bales, a 6-year average of less than 4.3 million bales.

Current-year exports are now estimated at around 4 million bales.

Domestic cotton consumption for the past few years has exceeded 9 million bales, so if exports can be returned to a around 6 million, the U.S. producer will be called on to grow at least 15 million bales per year.

"But unless we take the necessary action to bring exports back to former levels, we are doomed to continue needing only 12 to 14 million bales annually," Johnson concludes, "and that is far short of our allotment and processing capacity."

Exports are especially important to the High Plains, which over the years has sold some 65 per cent of its total production into the export market.

All will be seeking answers to the question "What more can be done to improve cotton sales outside the U.S.?"

Some of the subjects to be treated by Government people include "The importance of international trade to the U.S. and the significance of Cotton Exports," "USDA Programs to expand Exports of U.S. Cotton," "Export-Import Bank Credits for Cotton," "The Foreign Credit Insurance Program," and "The Changing Shipping Situation and the Opportunity for Cotton Exports to Benefit Therefrom."

Danger...

Another potential danger is where pesticides come in contact with vegetables. A 15 day waiting period should be observed before picking vegetables if they have received direct applications.

Should a vegetable crop receive only a light application due to drift from distant spraying operation, a period of four to five days before entering the field.

A strong odor is the warning that the field has been sprayed. If you come in contact with insecticides, thoroughly bathe and change clothes.

Attack on Boll Weevil Getting Under Way

Two related attacks on the boll weevil, cotton's number one enemy, are getting underway. One calls for field tests of a new systemic insecticide as part of a campaign to wipe out the weevil on the High Plains of Texas.

Obituaries

T.C. Wiseman

Thomas C. Wiseman, a pioneer resident of this area, died Tuesday, July 30, in the Littlefield Hospital after an illness of some time. Wiseman, a retired farmer, was 83 years of age. He farmed in the Fairview Community having moved there in 1924 from Vernon, Texas.

Wiseman's father, William Henry Wiseman was a Confederate Veteran. His mother was Alice Melvina Townsend. Wiseman was a charter member of Fairview Baptist Church and helped with the organization of several early Baptist Churches in Bailey County.

Survivors include his wife, Rosa; three sons, Alvin, Mule, John R., Medera, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Roy Ogerty, Amherst; one brother, Lewis, Iowa, Kansas and a halfbrother, Dr. Wilford Allison, Jefferson City, Mo.

Twelve grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren also survive.

The USDA will more than match the CPI funds; conducting research and supplying equipment, facilities, and materials. Results of the field tests this summer and fall could have wide application in the entire boll weevil infested area of the Cotton Belt.

Substantial test-demonstration programs in diapause control of the weevil are expected to be undertaken in Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, North Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Texas late this season under a plan proposed by the National Cotton Council. In some states, areas as large as one or more counties will be covered. The Council hopes that at least one large-scale field demonstration can be successfully completed in each of these states to gain information needed for state or regional diapause control programs in following seasons.

Diapause control involves applying insecticides or other control measures after the normal spraying season to kill the weevil population that would otherwise hibernate through the winter. The purpose is to disrupt the insect's life cycle so surviving spring populations will be reduced. The weevil population reductions of 90 per cent or more have been consistently achieved in tests so far.

Research and Extension entomologists and county agents are providing the leadership in organizing and supervising the tests. In the High Plains research, the USDA-CPI effort will also accelerate large-scale testing of several other new eradication techniques that could lead to eradication of the weevil and to better control of other insects.

YOU TELL ME I'M GETTING OLD

You tell me I'm getting old? -I tell you, that's not so. This house I live in is worn out, and that, of course I know. It's been in use a long time. It's weathered many a gale.

I'm not surprised you think it's getting some what frail. The colors changing on the roof, the windows are getting dim. The walls a bit transparent, and looking rather thin. The foundation is not so steady as once it used to be. My house is getting shaky, My house isn't me.

My few short years can't make me old, I feel I'm in my youth, Eternity lies just a head--- a life of Joy and Truth.

I am going to live forever there - Life will go on - It's Grand

You tell me I'm getting old? You just don't understand. The dweller in my little house, is young bright and gay! Just starting on a life to last throughout eternal day! You see only the outside-which is all most folk do see. You tell me I'm getting old-you've mixed my house with me!

Specialist Says Location is As Important as Home Itself

The location of a home is just as important as the building itself. Extension specialist in housing and home furnishing, Tony Lay, suggests some basic points to consider in selecting a home location.

Consider the type of neighbors present. Many prefer to live near people with about the same social, educational and occupational or economic background as themselves. Most people find age level and approximately the same life-style are more congenial which leads to a more pleasant neighborhood, according to the Texas A&M University specialist.

Consider the general appearance and attractiveness of the neighborhood. The development of the street system and lot patterns should be pleasing, convenient and safe. Most people prefer the other houses be about the same age and value as their own.

The adequacy of the community services should not be overlooked. Consider mail delivery, garbage pickup, fire and police protection, storm drainage system and electric, gas and telephone services.

Don't forget to inquire about the tax levels in the location. Consider the tax level in relationship to the community services and facilities provided. Also investigate the possibility of special assessments for streets, sidewalks, etc. the specialist reminds.

A fifth factor to consider is the location in relation to community facilities such as schools, playgrounds, shopping centers, churches, and place of employment. If a family has been accustomed to these conveniences they might be unhappy without them.

Remember, when looking for a house, not to just look for a house but also for a neighborhood, reminds Miss Lay. It may be wise to choose the neighborhood first and then pick the house.

Know the Care Of Your Knits

COLLEGE STATION August—With the increase of knit fashions, knowing the care they require is important. Check the fiber content of the knit garment or piece goods you purchase and pass the information along to your dry cleaner, recommends Graham Hard, Extension clothing specialist. Many knit garments are not labeled permanently. Therefore, your drycleaner has no way of knowing the fiber content unless you give it to him.

The Texas A&M University specialist stresses that because acrylic knits must be handled differently from wool knits.

True Words
The youngster wolfed his dinner while Father looked on disapprovingly. Finally the not-too-proud parent spoke: "Jimmy, you're a pig. You know what a pig is, don't you?"

The small fry looked up and replied complacently. "Yup, a pig is a hog's little boy."

Knits containing heat-sensitive fibers should usually be air-dried and often cannot withstand the steam of finishing. A dryer which is furnished the care information will be able to give you better service, reminds Dr. Hard.

Wayland College Opens Academic Year

The Wayland College 59th academic year will begin September 5.

Significant of the growth of the college as the new school year approaches, Dr. Roy McClung, Wayland President, pointed out, is the recently completed $500,000 Haral Memorial Auditorium, construction progress on the $500,000 Moody Science Building and addition of seven modern faculty offices in the administration building.

Dormitory reservations show that student retention at Wayland will be above normal, said Mrs. Audrey Boles, registrar.

Freshman pre-registration is normal.

Fall semester final examinations will be December 16-20.

The microfilm, an innovation at Wayland and in this part of the country last year, and very well received by Wayland students, is scheduled January 6, when classes start, through January 24, date for final examinations.

The microfilm affords students the opportunity to earn a maximum of four hours credit during three weeks of daily classes aimed at concentrated study.

Deadline for making application for enrollment for the fall semester is August 26. Dormitories will open August 28 for orientation of new freshmen. The dining hall will open on the same date for orientating freshmen.

Students will begin moving into dormitories September 1 and the dining hall will open at 7:45 a.m. the next day.

Orientation of all students is scheduled September 2.

Sophomores, juniors and seniors will register September 2, starting at 8 a.m. Freshmen and transfers will register September 4, starting 8 a.m.

A major event in the long history of Wayland College is scheduled for September 5, dedication of the Haral Memorial Auditorium to be highlighted by a convocation and program with religious emphasis on that date.

The dedication observances will continue during the week for the structure provided with funds donated by Mrs. John Haral, Abernathy, an alumnus and former faculty member at Wayland.

My wife, Mrs. George Cabrera, joins me in expressing our thanks to the doctors and nurses at the Lubbock hospital who were so attentive during my surgery and stay there. We also deeply appreciate our many friends who sent cards, flowers and phone calls to those who came to visit after my return to Muleshoe. On Top

The Bible, "God's holy word," is still the best seller, and most quoted book.

From the original Greek and Hebrew this book has been translated into many languages.

Through the centuries men have devotedly studied and sought out the truth in the Bible. When one reads the Bible with an open mind, God's word is "as sharp as a two edged sword."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Panhandle Congressman Bob Price, a member of the House of Representatives Republican Task Force on Agriculture said the group had approved a number of recommendations and other information for consideration by the Platform Committee of the 1968 Republican Convention, Congressman Odin Langen (7th Dist. Minn), Chairman of the Task Force, submitted the Republican Platform recommendations to Governor Walter J. Hickel of Alaska, Chairman of the Platform Subcommittee on Agriculture and Natural Resources,

Proposed CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NUMBER FOURTEEN ON THE BALLOT (HJR22)

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That the Constitution of the State of Texas, Article III, be and the same is hereby amended by deleting therefrom Section 18, and substituting in lieu thereof the following: "Section 18. No Senator or Representative shall, during the term for which he was elected, be eligible to (1) any civil office of profit under this State which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which may have been increased, during such term, or (2) any office or place, the appointment to which may be made in whole or in part by either branch of the Legislature; provided, however, the fact that the term of office of Senators and Representatives does not end precisely on the last day of December but extends a few days into January of the succeeding year shall be considered as de minimis, and the ineligibility herein created shall terminate on the last day in December of the full calendar year of the term for which he was elected. No member of either House shall vote for any other member for any office whatever, which may be filled by a vote

"The Agricultural Plank of our platform must reconfirm the traditional concern which the Republican Party has had for the importance of Agriculture that began with the establishment of the Department of Agriculture under President Lincoln," Price said. "The material and recommendations we are submitting to the Subcommittee encompass a number of Task Force proposals and studies aimed at restoring the economic level of rural America through the expediency of adequate farm income. Our primary objective must be an adequate price for the farmer's commodities to stabilize farm family income and subsequently provide the economic stimulation so badly needed in rural America.

"The farmer's economic position has slipped considerably under eight years of Democrat Administration," Price said. "With wheat prices at a 25-year low, the parity ratio of depression-year levels and farm production expenditures setting new upward records, our future food supply is being threatened as our food producers face extinction."

"Price said the Republican Party has a great opportunity on the farm scene. "When the nation's largest single industry is in trouble, all America is threatened," he said. "There are no easy solutions, and the Republican Party can do no less than to tackle the problem with firm resolution. The American farmer is the keystone of our national strength, and the Republican Platform must represent our concern for the preservation of this greatest of resources."

An important educational bill passed by the House recently, the Vocational Education bill, was amended by the Senate and is now before a House-Senate Conference Committee where the differences will be resolved. The House bill brushed aside Administration proposals which amounted to little more than a few administrative changes and passed a strong and meaningful bill which should be a long step toward training the nation's disadvantaged youth in our over-crowded and under-riden cities as well as in isolated rural areas where trained employees would help attract industry and stop the migration of young farm people to the over-crowded cities.

The critical shortcomings of our current vocational-technical education programs can readily be seen from the report, submitted in January of this year, by the Advisory Council on Vocational Education. It shows that, while only one out of six high school graduates achieve a full college education, only one out of four led in a vocational education program. In other words, approximately 60 per cent of high school students enter the work-world unprepared to hold a job.

The Administration has a large and growing profusion of manpower programs which, unfortunately, add up to a sorry record of performance, and which reveal an extraordinary lack of any sense of priorities. For example, more Federal dollars are budgeted this year for the 40,000 enrollees in the Job Corps than for the support of vocational-technical education with 7-million enrollees.

In this connection, an excellent feature of the bill is the section directing the Commissioner of Education to study the means by which the existing Job Corps facilities and programs might be transferred to State or joint State-Federal operation in conjunction with the residential vocational schools program.

for a modern structure of occupational education which will satisfy the requirements on the total population in all parts of the country. We cannot permit millions of young Americans to grow into adulthood without salable skills, or preparation for additional training that will be needed in fast-changing job market.

Vocational education in the Panhandle has assumed added importance in both high schools and junior colleges. The new Technical Institute planned for Amarillo Air Force Base will offer training in special and advanced skills.

The vocational bill will assist such schools to expand training opportunities for vocational educators, to help modernize vocational-technical curricula, to infuse the concept of "learning to earn" into elementary education, to bring high-quality vocational-technical education to those who need it and involve more citizens at the local, state, and Federal levels in assessing employment needs and the performance of our schools.

Woody Plants and Brush Control

Woody plants in the U.S. cause an estimated economic loss of up to 5 billion dollars yearly. Ranchmen lose their share of Texas' 100 million acres rangeland. Woody plants use four to eleven times more water to produce a pound of dry matter than do range and pasture grasses.
Texas rangelands should produce about 90 percent of the forage required by livestock grazing. They are now producing about 50 percent because of improper grazing management and heavy infestation of brush and other undesirable plants.
The Soil Conservation Service made a brush survey of Texas grassland and found 82 percent of Texas' grasslands were covered with brush and a large percent of that so dense that most of the moisture entering the soil was being used by brush instead of grass.
There is much less water used on an acre of grassland than on an acre of woody plants the report shows. It is estimated that approximately 10,000,000 feet of water could be saved each year by brush control.
A producer may be eligible to receive 50 percent of the cost of controlling brush on rangeland, not to exceed $2,500, through the Great Plains Conservation Program. Technical assistance may be obtained by contacting the Blackwater Soil and Water Conservation District or the local Soil Conservation Service.
