DUTCH MCKENZIE HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock Dutch McKenzie had a very unusual accident. While driving on the railroad crossing in the southern part of town his attention was diverted to a friend in another car and he failed to see the motor train approaching and drove into the side of the moving train. The front of his car was smashed in but fortunately he was not injured in any way.

The air compressor on the motor train was badly damaged by the impact.

Parties who saw the wreck said the train gave several signals but he did not hear them as all windows of his car were closed on account of the cold weather.

Nazarene Remarks

Last Sunday we had good attendance at all the services. The spirit of Thanksgiving was manifested in the morning service in a concrete manner, by a very nice Thanksgiving offering to promote our General work in both home and foreign fields. While some were unable to give as liberal as they have given heretofore, yet the offering amounted to more than previous Thanksgiving offerings. The local congregation comes down to this Thanksgiving Day with many, many things to be thankful to God for.

A cordial welcome always awaits you at the Nazarene church a church for all the people. Charlie Harrison, Pastor.

Fellow teachers of Miss Strother have planned a number of prenuptial compliments for her, among which was an informal party given by the Misses Arlene Albea and Frances Brown in the Teacher's building on the school campus. Decorations featured red roses and red tapers.

Another courtesy was in the form of a kitchen shower for which hostesses were Misses

R. D. Woods Given Five Years In Pen

R. D. Woods, Zephyr filling station operator, was found guilty of the murder of Ramond Thompson, 22, at Zephyr last June 30, and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by a jury in 35th district court at 11:30 P. M. today.

Thompson was shot and killed the night of June 30 in Zephyr. Beckam surrendered to officers a short time later. Woods was not arrested in connection with the case until he was indicted by the grand jury July 19.

CAVALCADE WORKINGS SHOWN TO VISITORS

Mrs. R. M. Thompson accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Randolph and Mr. and Mrs. M. Y. Stokes jr. and son Melmoth returned Monday night from a delightful week-end visit to the centennial Exposition in Dallas. While they viewed the Cavalcade as guests of Mrs. Isbell, the mother of Jan Isbell Fortune the author of the Cavalcade they were invited to inspect the sound room where all the speaking is done for the scenes as none of the actors on the stage really speak. They met Mrs. Fortune's daughter and son in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Goodin, of Dallas, who each take more than twenty speaking parts in the play also her tiny granddaughter Lila Jan Goodin, the Indian baby in the Cavalcade. Mrs. Fortune presented them with a number of photographs of the personnel of the play.

While in Dallas they met a number of former Goldthwaite citizens, among them being Mrs. John Cox and daughter Viva, and Miss Emaline Smith. Mrs. Stokes had the pleasure of attending the Kidd-Key college reunion which was held at the Hall of State where she met a number of old school mates, among them being Kathleen Evans Neal, wife of Rev. T. Edgar Neal of Corsicana. Kathleen was the daughter of Rev. Evans once pastor of the Goldthwaite Methodist church. —Reporter

The Methodist Church

The beginning of the new Conference year is most encouraging in every department. With this fine building there should be a great increase in interest attendance, and spiritual growth. The physical development of the church should not exceed the spiritual development of her people. very member should follow the advice of the great writer who said, "But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." If we grow as individuals, we will grow as a church. Two church nights have been planned, one for Monday night December 7 and the second Tuesday December 8. The first group will include the membership from A to L inclusive, with Raymond Little as general chairman, and the second group that will meet Tuesday evening will include all from M to Z with A. H. Smith as general chairman. A short program will be given by each group, and also refreshments served at the close. An important part of the program will be the discussion of the program for the year, and an opportunity will be given each one to make a pledge to the work of Christ Kingdom for the year. The membership is almost equally divided, and it will be interesting to see which group will have the largest number present. Watch for further announcements.

Thanksgiving Day Quietly Observed

Goldthwaite Celebrated Thanksgiving Day quietly. A number of family reunions were held, and quite a few took occasion to spend the day with relatives or friends in other cities. Several attended the Turkey Day football games.

Most of the teachers went to Fort Worth to attend the State Teachers Association in session there. All of the business houses were closed throughout the day. The Eagle force, however, put in the day at work in order that its readers might have the paper on time Friday morning.

MRS. ARTHUR J. MOORE COMING TO GOLDTHWAITE

Mrs. Arthur J. Moore, wife of Bishop Arthur J. Moore, will be the guest speaker at the Methodist Church Sunday morning, December 6 according to announcement by Rev. John K. Beery, Minister. Mrs. Moore has recently returned from a trip to Europe and the Orient where she spent several months with her husband who is in charge of that work of the Methodist Church. She is one of the outstanding Christian leaders of the United States and has a deep and tender interest in womanhood of the world. The community is fortunate to have Mrs. Moore and the house should be filled to capacity.

SILLO INSPECTION

Fifty 4-H club boys and farmers inspected the silo on L. H. Soules farm November 7, when it was opened and the silage fed to cattle, horses and goats. The stock ate with relish convincing the skeptical that the "stuff" was a high quality feed.

This silo was filled with corn cut and packed properly and the silage is an excellent product.

Mr. Soules will feed silage balanced with cotton seed meal to breeding ewes and fall lambs.

Thirteen trench silos have been built and filled in Mills co. this year.

A. V. LOGAN, 83, DIES SUD- DENLY IN SAN BENITO

San Benito, Oct. 31.—A. V. Logan, 83, retired attorney who served as county commissioner of the San Benito precinct from 1921 through 1932 during the country's greatest period of development, dropped dead at his home here, 538 South Bowie street, at 8:50 p. m. Saturday while playing checkers with his wife.

Death came without warning, and Mr. Logan had made no complaint of illness recently. A resident of San Benito for the past twenty-five years the deceased retired from public life four years ago. He was active in civic and governmental affairs almost from the time he came to the Valley a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Logan was prominent in Masonic affairs.

Before making his home here, he was county judge of Mills county.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Logan of San Benito; a daughter, Mrs. B. F. Newsome of Houston; and two sons, Tom R. of San Benito and H. S. of Houston.

Judge Logan and family are kindly remembered by many friends who knew them during their residence in Mills county. He was elected County Judge on the Populist ticket and cast the deciding vote on the location of the Goldthwaite and San Saba bridge, the commissioners having tied. He built a ranch house and the place now owned by Charles Cornelius. When elected Judge, he bought a lot now occupied by the C. L. Stephens residence.

His children attended the Goldthwaite public schools.

His name is among those of our honored pioneers.

A mass of data is being compiled by the experts who are making a nation wide survey of the wool scouring industry for the Texas Planning Board. Scores of plants have been visited, woolen manufacturers interviewed and wool brokers contacted. Upon completion of the survey the data will be put in shape for persons interested in wool scouring and the establishment of wool scouring plants in Texas.

DEATH STALKS THE HIGHWAYS

Hays, Kans.—A statewide movement to enact legislation which will seek to curb the serious increase in the destruction of life and property is spurred on daily by such sordid scenes of truck and motor car disasters as shown above.

In this head-on collision ten miles west of Hays the occupant of the motor car was killed and the truck driver received serious bruises and cuts. In every community there is developing a determined effort to regulate speed, size of trucks, more rigid inspection of brakes, lights and other equipment and more equitable taxation for the upkeep of state highways.

and misrepresentations perpetrated by the Defendant herein and hereinafter set forth the said marriage was void or at least voidable at law. Plaintiff alleges that at the time of her said marriage she was a minor of the age of sixteen, and that defendant procured the said marriage without the consent of her parents, and the said defendant obtained from the County Clerk of Refugio County, Texas a marriage license upon his representation and affidavit, which was false, that the said Plaintiff was eighteen years of age. That said marriage ceremony was performed and that thereafter the plaintiff upon learning of the false affidavit of the defendant immediately separated herself from the said defendant. She alleges that her consent was not freely given to the said marriage and that such conduct of the defendant in falsely swearing to procure the marriage license was so cruel, outrageous and insupportable in its nature that upon learning of the same she could no longer live with the defendant and thereupon separate herself from him. She further alleges that after her said marriage to the defendant she learned that he had been married before and that he then had a living wife, and that this fact was not made known to her until after said marriage with the defendant, and that had she known this fact she would never have married the said defendant. GETTYSBURG'S ANCIENTS

We are reminded that Gettysburg, Pa., has a distinction other than that of being the scene of the greatest battle ever fought on American soil. It is the country's only town, large or small that can boast two newspapers which are more than 118 years old.

Through peace and strife, the Star and Sentinel—established in 1800 and carrying an account of Washington's death in its initial issue—and the Compiler, established in 1818, have carried on. They appear on Saturdays, and it would be interesting to know how fully they covered the event of '63 outside their doors. That battle opened on a Wednesday, but did not conclude until Friday, which is crowding the deadline a bit, for a weekly.

Gettysburg is a community today of 5,500 souls, and one hopes there is among them now a few with the self-sufficiency and spirit of their sires. It was a burghess of Gettysburg who when told that Lee and Meade were converging on the place, sent warnings to the rival commanders, calling the attention of each to a local ordinance against the discharge of firearms within the corporate limits.—Detroit News.

It's Window-Dressing Time!
By Valletta Taylor

NEW curtains and draperies at your windows will go a long way toward dressing up your whole house for Fall and Winter. And when you get into the shops and see the great variety of Fall designs, you'll probably be sorry that you haven't more windows to deck out in new costumes.

Among the new curtains are the very fashionable lace nets of American design. They come in all-over novelty lace styles or with borders and make your windows attractive whether used alone, or with draperies, or over Venetian blinds.

Informal
One new Fall setting which we just saw for a living room combines yellow cotton homespun draperies with glass curtains of cream-toned lace net. Yellow is the most sunny color there is, so it is a smart choice for Fall. The draperies are trimmed with a two-inch uncut fringe in a matching yellow. The square mesh design, open in weave so that the room can capture all the sunshine that comes near the windows. This type of window treatment is ideal for a living room furnished with comfortable early American maple or any other informal type of furniture.

The rough textures in lace net curtains go well with rough-textured draperies, such as the novelty cotton, and the cotton-and-rayon weaves.

More Formal
For more formal rooms, such as those furnished in the popular Eighteenth Century English styles, a little more formality in curtains and draperies is needed. In the sketch the furnishings are 18th Century English. Printed linen draperies with a bold floral design hang at the windows, falling very full to the floor. The lace net curtains used with them are an American design, very open and lacy, but simplicity itself. The lace net looks as if one row of insertion were set upon another.

If you like modern ways of dressing up windows, you can find an enticing selection of modern designs in lace net curtains and draperies. The new mohairs, in both traditional and modern patterns, are having a great vogue this season and they blend in well with the modern laces. Both mohairs and lace net curtains are washable and that's something that every woman is glad to know.

THANKSGIVING

To celebrate the mellow mood which is now upon us, we are sharing with you here a pleasant sonnet which came to us from that famed poet, Jesse Stuart:

Thank God we are not blind to autumn days,
These minute things between us and the sun,
Covered with dark and light and smoke and haze,
These fragile things that quickly come undone.

But we can see as eyes will let us see,
The husk of what was once the summer green;

This husk now falling from the chestnut tree,
But clinging to the oaks in red-dish sheen.

And we can see the wild geese on the sky,
And powdery puff of cloud where lies a wind.

And we can hear a lonesome wind pass by,
After it passes see the tree tops thinned.

We thank the God of life that we may be,
One with this garnered soil and fruited tree.

THE JUNIORS THANK YOU

The Junior Class has recently turned its sale of candy over to the Seniors. About thirty-six dollars was made by the Juniors. They take this means of expressing their gratitude to all those who made possible the raising of funds. Among the number that helped are the mothers who sold candy at the football games, the girls that sold it at the school buildings, and the patrons.

It has been the custom in Goldthwaite High school a number of years for the Junior Class to entertain the Seniors at some time during the year. This year the Juniors will continue the tradition by giving a banquet in honor of the upper-classmen in the spring. The funds raised by the sale of candy will be used for this purpose.

Again the Juniors thank you for your co-operation in making their business venture successful.

FRESHMAN COUNCIL

All over the world there are people who are criticizing and abusing, and saying that "something ought to be done about it." Are you one of these persons? Someone has to do it, why not you? Stop waiting for others to step in and do the small, yet significant things which must be done. Get busy and do them yourself.

If you have a car, you want to step on the starter, and immediately hear the purr of the motor. You don't want to have to use the crank. That is the case with people. Don't be a crank; be a self starter. If something has to be done, do it.

We were glad to welcome Pansy Nell Huggins and Jenave Singleton into our class last week. Each of them would appreciate your friendship.

FOOTBALL

By the time the public reads this item the annual clash between San Saba and Goldthwaite will be a matter of history and the score will be well known. Also the football season will have closed. Those who have followed the season and the team believe that it has been worthwhile. Many good and valuable lessons are learned from the game of football. It is a lot more than just a rough and tumble affair as some think it is. With the close of this season as a student body confidently hope that ere another season approaches we may have a suitable ground in our own town for games.

LOCAL F.F.A. CHAPTER, FATHER AND SON BANQUET

On Friday night, December 11 the Goldthwaite Eagle F. F. A. chapter will hold its first annual Father and Son banquet. The place of the banquet has not been decided, at this banquet, all of the Vocational Agriculture boys will bring their fathers, and several out-of-town guests have been invited. The boys will have charge of the program and the home economics girls will serve the food. We are all looking forward to this event with pleasure.

WHO'S WHO?

Looking into the past of that most likable math teacher, Mr. Robert Peterson, we find that he is a native of New Mexico. At the age of six he moved to Mineral Wells, Texas, where he received his primary and secondary education. He graduated from high school with honors in 1933, and in the fall of that year, he entered Abilene Christian college. He received a degree in math there last spring after only a little more than three years of college work, and is now teaching that subject in Goldthwaite High school. His home is now in Jacksonboro, where his father is a lumberman.

SIXTY-FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED

Monday, November 9, marked the sixty-first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Boler, 305 Fifth street, Brownwood. The occasion was celebrated on Sunday the 8th with a number of sons and daughters and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Boler, as well as friends present. The noon hour was marked with a delightful spread of delicious eats. The day was climaxed with music in the afternoon before the hour of departure. The guests were interested in hearing the stories of "ye olden times," related by the couple, of their childhood days, courtship. The marriage license was procured in Philadelphia, Penn. and the wedding took place in their home town, Union, Mississippi on November 9, 1875. A few years later they moved to Hill county, Texas, thence to Indian Gap, Hamilton county, where investments were made in black-land farms and for many years engaged in farming and stock raising. Here the ten children were born and reared. Two daughters have passed on many years ago. The farms are now owned and operated by some of the sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Boler moved to Brownwood 16 years ago and have made their home on Fifth street since that time. They enjoy fair health and look at life with a more optimistic viewpoint than many people who are younger. Unfortunately Mr. Boler's eyesight failed him some three years ago, losing perhaps the sweetest of all the senses.

Their children are: J. Mark Boler, Bangs; Mrs. W. F. Swindie, Indian Gap; Mrs. Oscar Swindie, Priddy; J. Austin Boler, Ranger; B. O. Boler, McDaniel Alvin Boler, Goldthwaite; J. B. Boler, Indian Gap; Mrs. Pearl Brannon, Brownwood. XXX

A comprehensive study of the causes of accidents on Texas highways has been started by the Texas Planning Board which has included safety in its planning program. Results of the study will determine what recommendations will be made to reduce Texas highway accidents.

Although more than 500 soil types have been found in Texas, making possible widely diversified crops, the State sticks to cotton as its chief crop in the face of loss of foreign markets and a steady decreasing yield per acre and a loss in quality, according to experts advising the Texas Planning Board in its study of land uses in the State.

Traveling Clinic Brings Health to Children

If little Johnny or Mary, living in a remote section of the 1,094 square miles included in the large Los Angeles school district, has a toothache, infected tonsils, bad eyes, or any minor physical ailment, his parents don't worry. For soon the traveling healthmobile, the only one of its kind in America, will be along with its staff of oculist, dentist, and nurse. The unique healthmobile is a part of the medical service furnished the Los Angeles schools, and which penetrates to every little hamlet and community in the vast empire of the school district. The carload of health constantly travels from school to school, filling teeth, taking out tonsils, testing eyes, and caring for children who would otherwise be neglected.

JUNIOR-SENIOR THANKS. GIVING BANQUET

November 21 was the date of the annual Junior-Senior banquet, and this was the thirteenth banquet for Mullin High school. This one was under the auspices of the beloved home economic instructor Mrs. Harkey and her capable direction, and she received the cooperation of all her co-workers for her system and efficiency.

The auditorium was attractive with a profusion of golden chrysanthemums in decoration. The tables were arranged for effective decorations in Thanksgiving colors. The horn of plenty, the lovely tall lighted candles burning brightly and the daintiest favors with the king of birds for adornment all together created a beautiful picture and many said it was one of the prettiest banquets ever held here.

- Program
1. Junior toast, Frances Willman.
 2. Senior Reponse, Raymond Hamilton.
- (Cocktail)

 9. Reading, "The voice of Thanksgiving." Grace Noll Crowell, Geneva Templin. (Dessert)

THE JUNIORS AND SENIORS

The seventeen Juniors and eighteen Seniors were all dressed beautifully for the occasion. The young ladies, the ladies of the faculty and a few guests wore evening dresses of lovely creation.

The students look forward to their banquet from the first year in high school and a few have dreams of it from primary days.

It creates great animation in the student body and encourages them in the beautiful side of life.

About eighty guests were present including the thirty-five Juniors and Seniors.

The out of town guests were the distinguished Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flentge of Gatesville, Judge and Mrs. R. J. Gerald of Goldthwaite, Mrs. Coffey of Corsicana.

Brief talks were made by several of the guests but the principal address was by Mr. Flentge.

The banquet was a brilliant occasion and the menu evidently originated in mythology for the ancient Gods knew the acme of of foods.

The first course was cocktail. Second chicken and dressing, salsas, potatoes and peas in a nest, celery adorned, olives, hot rolls, coffee, and the dessert was delicious and tempting pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream.

An epicurean would have been overjoyed with this menu. Many words of praise bestowed upon the 1936 class of Juniors for this great banquet, their mothers and co-workers of P. T. A.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

ON EDUCATING PARENTS

EDUCATORS at a "Child Helping Conference" recently voiced a plea for parental education as a means of helping backward children.

Huge figures were cited as the cost in one state of reteaching pupils who failed of promotion in school because of conditions arising through parents' ignorance and carelessness. And it was suggested that a small fraction of the amount allotted to training parents in the proper viewpoint toward their children would be a solution to the whole problem.

"With the passing of czars and kaisers has passed the tyranny of autocratic parental government," one educator said. "Today we train the child through obedience, and not for obedience."

One is impelled to the thought that a few enlightened parents do that. Many are still trying to maintain the home as an unlimited monarchy—and when the forces of modern life lead to revolt, they call upon God to witness their martyrdom. When there is no revolt they are unconscious of the evil they have done.

And trying to force the lives of their children into the courses they themselves wish them to take is not the only known parental crime. Lack of appreciation of childhood as a period of life important in itself, not merely as a means to an end which they regard as worthwhile, is one. Another is failure to respect the child as an individual. Perhaps the greatest is lack of effort to understand, to the very limits of their mental capacity, what the individual child has to contend with—from within and without—and striving to the utmost of their ability to provide the opportunity for his fullest expression as an individual. "I got along that way and I guess he'll manage" is the most obvious label to that crime.

If educating parents is necessary to help backward children, it is no less important to give bright children "a break." The more gifted a child is, the more he is in need of wise guidance. The most tragic waste is that of fine energies on the wrong track for the lack of this guidance because of the ignorance or, what is worse, the indifference of parents.

More Enduring Than Bronze

Somewhere in the odes of Horace, the Latin Poet, there is a line about "monuments more enduring than bronze." Even in that age of heroes it was recognized that character was more important than reputation, and that what a man is ranks in importance with what he accomplishes.

What are some of the monuments more enduring than bronze which a man may leave behind him?

First there are good deeds as contrasted with great deeds. Those kindly actions prompted by a sympathetic heart with hope neither for praise nor return have a way of living on and on. Alexander Stephens, who became vice president of the Confederacy, was a poor, mishapen little orphan. Two men were impressed by his brightness and educated him. After he had become a brilliant lawyer, he magnified the good deed by educating dozens of other worthy young men. Undoubtedly there are today men and women receiving aid and encouragement because of that good deed more than one hundred years ago.

There is personal influence. As truly as every man casts a shadow when walking in the sunlight, so does every man influence to greater or lesser degree the lives of those with whom he lives. Probably no one of us has failed to adopt in manner of dress or speech or attitude something that impressed us, either consciously or unconsciously, in someone else. What are we leaving as a heritage to young generations? Is it a way of saying good morning, a manner of eating or talking or dissipating? Or is it something more important than any of these, a nobler philosophy of life or a kinder attitude toward our fellows?

There are memories of us that will outlast our lives. When one important man passed away, even his closest associates felt relieved. His was a rule of force. Though he was just or believed himself to be, he was feared for his power and for his vindictiveness. Those who mourned his passing did so only with their lips. In their heart of hearts they felt the lifting of a shadow and the passing of a cloud. The tales they tell of him are of clever deals and ruthless reckonings. Another man living in the same town left hundreds who felt his going as their personal loss. Little children told of his friendly patience, aged men and women spoke of his thoughtfulness, those who had suffered reverses remembered how he had helped them, those who had been disheartened and discouraged, recounted countless ways in which he had encouraged them. Truly the memory of this man will be kept alive by the kindly spirit that characterized him.

Friends, too, may stand as monuments of a fruitful life. For a good life attracts good friends. Give a man wealth and position and he will seemingly have a multitude of friends. But strip him of his wealth and power, and you will see his fancied friends fade as swiftly as the petals on a frost bitten rose. The few he keeps are the friends that admire him for what he is, not what he has. Those are the friends to prize. They are the ones who testify to his qualities of real greatness after he is gone.

Not everyone can be great or powerful or famous. This would be a sorry world indeed if only Ceasars lived and moved upon it. Comparatively few have the opportunity to perform deeds of valor or to establish institutions that will entitle them to shafts of marble or a statue in the square. But each of us can, by the things we do each day, little things most of them, leave memories and friends behind us that will serve as monuments "more enduring than bronze."

Banks Able To Lend

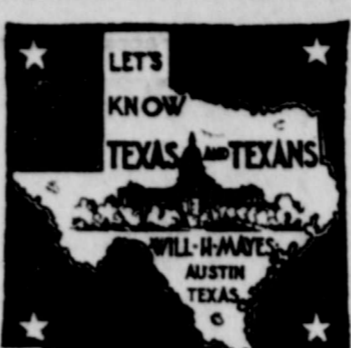

During the recent presidential campaign a great to-do was made over the claim that the nation's banks were so loaded with government securities that they would not be able to make needed loans to private industry. The facts in the case are that the banks are now in position to increase their loans enormously.

In the first place, the member bank reserves kept in the Federal Reserve, as shown by the October reports, were $2,160,000,000 in excess of the amount required to be kept against deposits in the member banks. Thus, the member banks had the means of greatly enlarging their deposits through an expansion of loans and investments. In addition, the excess in reserves reported at the end of October was artificially small due to the fact that the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System arbitrarily raised the reserve requirements by 50 per cent on August 15.

Consequently, if the Board so desired, it could reduce requirements and so make possible a much greater expansion of loans and investments than that provided by the present reserve base. In the second place, member banks were in a position to increase their reserves with the Federal Reserve banks by the discounting and sale of bills to the Federal Reserve banks. For instance, the volume of discounted bills at the end of October amounted to only $6,000,000 compared with the small average of $952,000,000 in 1929.

The Federal Reserve banks had a sufficient volume of gold certificates to back a large increase in member bank balances deposited with them, together with an increase in the circulation of Federal Reserve notes which would tend to accompany any increase in deposits. The ratio of total reserves of the Federal Reserve banks to deposit and Federal Reserve note liabilities combined amounted to 80.0 per cent at the end of October, or about double the minimum requirements of 40 per cent certificates held by the Federal Reserve banks and backed dollar for dollar by gold held by the United States Government, the Government had approximately $2,100,000,000, including $1,800,000,000 in its stabilization fund, which could be used to build up the gold reserves of the Federal Reserve banks. Also, the Government's power to reduce further the value of the dollar provided a means of increasing the Reserve bank's gold supply. If the dollar should be devalued from the prevailing figure of 59.06 per cent of the old dollar to the authorized figure of 50 per cent, it would increase the value of the total gold stocks held by the Government at the end of October by $2,000,000,000.

Finally, the member banks at the end of October faced the prospect of building up their reserves with the Federal Reserve banks through the deposit of gold in the member banks. This was indicated not only by the continuation of gold imports into the United States but by the high rate of domestic gold production.

NEXT YEAR'S EXPOSITION

It has been decided by officials of the Texas centennial exposition that the show will open again next June for the 1937 run. In making this decision, the officials followed the example set by other recent world's fairs, and in view of the fact that no other major show of this kind is scheduled for next year, it is quite likely that the decision will prove to be a wise one. Any celebration of the scope of the centennial exposition always suffers the first-year handicap of heavy initial investment and operating expenses, while the burden is greatly lightened during the second year.

Plans already are being made for the 1937 show,—the name of which, incidentally, probably will be changed to Pan-American Exposition or something of the sort, a change that is clearly indicated since 1937 won't be Texas' centennial year—and we have the word of officials that the encore showing will be as different from this year's version as human ingenuity can make it. All the entertainment features will be changed, according to Director General H. A. Olmsted. Cavalcade of Texas, considered the outstanding feature of the exposition by thousands who have seen it, will be continued, but it will be completely rewritten. Obviously, there are enough colorful events in the history of Texas to make a second, entirely different pageant feasible.

It is believed that most of the commercial exhibitors will show again at the 1937 exposition. Here, too, changes may be expected, though it is to be hoped that the entertaining and educational nature of some of the outstanding exhibits will remain pretty much as they now are. It has been said before, but it can well be said again, that a liberal education can be gained from an intensive tour of the commercial exhibits at the exposition. Naturally, there will be some changes in the exhibits, and these changes, added to the sweeping shifts in entertainment features, will make the 1937 exposition a wholly new show—and one that, we may be sure, will be

UNITED STATES REJECTS

Part of the naval agreement made at Washington in 1922 provided for the nonfortification of a large area of the Western Pacific. This agreement (Article 29) expires December 31 of this year and Japan would gladly see it renewed, especially since it would leave the Philippines practically defenseless, to say nothing of British Hong Kong.

The British government soundly defended Washington several months ago as to its policy in the matter. The American government secretly notified Great Britain in September that it did not wish to renew, seeing that the nonfortification agreement was a concession made to help Japan to consent to the naval ratio part of the treaty. Since Japan refuses to renew the naval ratio treaty, the United States sees no reason why the agreement should be renewed.

The state department considers that the Far Eastern problem is still open and that nothing should be done to tie the hands of the government until a fair settlement is reached. Then, too, the government has in mind certain fortifications in the area under consideration and prefers to await developments in respect to Japan's plans in that region. A renewal of the agreement would virtually make the Western Pacific into Japanese waters. The United States is not yet prepared to admit that Japan is to control the whole of the Far East and its adjacent seas.—Dallas News.

worth seeing. Happily, the present lighting effects and the beautiful Esplanade of State will not be changed.

Meanwhile, the attendance mark of the centennial exposition is marching steadily upward, and it now appears that the final figure will be substantially more than 6,000,000. Those Texans who have not yet visited the exposition will have to go into action if they expect to view the wonders of the 1936 show. Next year's celebration, remember, will have different features.—Texas Weekly.

HENRY EDWARDS

Not all the country's abler newspaper men migrate to the large cities. Some who might rise to high position in a metropolis prefer to remain in a smaller community in which they can give more intimate service to an integrated constituency. The grassroots publisher or editor has satisfaction that seldom come to the journalist in a great city.

Henry Edwards, who died at his home in Tyler at the age of 65, typified the best qualities of the county-seat publisher and editor. His pioneer work made him known as the father of East Texas journalism. His editorial ability enabled him to win repeatedly the A. H. Belo cup, awarded to the most outstanding weekly newspaper in Texas. His fine character and personal popularity led to his election as president of the Texas Press association.

Mr. Edwards did not limit his interest and his energy to newspaper work. He was a civic and religious leader, giving help to many enterprises. The Community Chest, East Texas Rose Festival, be remembered by those who profited by his encouragement and valued highly his ship.—Dallas News.

Jimmie Prestridge of San Antonio, driver of the Central Freight Lines truck which was wrecked on Highway 66 Tuesday, died about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning at the local hospital.

He was badly bruised and suffered from internal injuries sustained when the cab and engine of his truck were driven back against the body and Mr. Prestridge was pinned beneath the wreckage for over two hours before his cries for help were heard.

The deceased was 38 years of age and made his home in San Antonio. He is survived by his widow and three children. No other details about his relatives were learned here. The body was carried back to San Antonio for burial. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon in San Antonio.

Complete recovery from the bone infection that cut short his high school athletic career, has been assured by doctors to Jack Hunter Wigginton, Brady High School football luminary, returned home Sunday from Temple where three weeks ago he underwent an operation. He will remain in bed a month. He was one of the trio of captains of the Brady football team.

Brady

Sixty-five registered Herefords, including a number of fine bulls, brought a total of $7,898.50, or an average of $121 per head, at the first annual auction sale of Lewis Brook & Sons, held on their ranch eight miles east of Brady, Friday afternoon. The sale was preceded by a barbecue, at which approximately 400 persons were served.

Earl Gartin was auctioneer, and he was assisted by Sam McLaughlin of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association, Frank Farley of the American Hereford Journal, and O. B. Peterson of the Dalley Drivers Telegram of Kansas City. A large crowd of both men and women assembled early for the barbecue and sale.

Fritz Wilhelm, rancher of Menard, was out for the sale still praising President Roosevelt and the cattle and sheep industry of Texas. Mr. Wilhelm says he looks for the next four years to be good ones for the ranchmen and believes Texas is just starting to grow.

Walker White, one of Mason's youngest and largest landholders of that county, was on the grounds for the sale. Roy Capps of Mason was the leading buyer when the sale was all talled up. Other Masonites in attendance were J. B. Kidd and A. M. Harkey.

From Richland Springs were Edd Gibbons, M. T. Burleson and J. T. Galloway. They state things down their way are in fine shape and they never saw the range better. The Richland Springs country is one of the finest locations in the world for good ranches and livestock of all descriptions.

Seven schools in McCullough County collected approximately 100 in prizes from the Allin-Stafford Post of American Legion, which sponsored the American Legion School Contest here the past week, judging from which was terminated Monday night.

The essays will be judged some time this week, according to H. C. Braly, Legion official in charge.

"The last few days I have been observing in the New York newspapers, dispatches from Texas farmers to sell their turkeys at the present low market", Mrs. Harris wrote the Brady Chamber of Commerce, "and I thought perhaps you and the Texas growers would be interested in the correspondence which I exchanged with the New York Herald Tribune about Texas turkeys."

Coleman

Two cotton and cottonseed thief rings that have been operating in Coleman county are believed broken up today by Sheriff Frank Mills.

In making the arrest the sheriff recovered a total of $2,500 for three gin operators and a Talpa farmer, J. Miller Brown.

Sheriff Mills is a native of Mills county and has made a wonderful record for himself out at Coleman, he is a grandson of the late F. M. Soules of Star.

Coleman received nationwide publicity Tuesday when Robert Ripley, author of the famed cartoon, "Believe It Or Not," mentioned the fact that Rush Johnson, Coleman constable, "although deaf and dumb is a member of the Coleman Fire Department." Mr. Ripley's cartoon appeared in scores of United States daily newspapers.

Mr. Johnson has been an officer here for years, having served as night watchman, deputy sheriff and constable. He also has been a member of the fire department for years. In the latter organization, however, he seldom takes little part in fighting flames but usually helps to guard the equipment and keeps spectators from interfering with the work of the firemen.

Harvey (Mut) Lewis, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lewis of this city, will be able to resume his work with the state highway department within the next day or so, according to his physician, Dr. M. E. Weaver.

The young man was struck by an automobile driven by a Mr. Lee of Coleman about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon while at work for the state highway department. The accident occurred while young Mr. Lewis was serving as a flag man about six miles out on the Coleman-Abilene highway.

Fire thought to have been caused by defective electric light wiring caused an unestimated damage — probably not more than $4,000—to the Hicks Tire and Rubber Company, Commercial Avenue and Live Oak Street shortly after eleven o'clock Wednesday night.

BOARD PLANS TO PUSH TEXAS MINERAL RESOURCES

A drive to interest out-of-state industries in Texas minerals has been launched by the Texas planning board's mineral resources committee.

The committee, armed with 33 volumes of maps showing the location of practically every important mineral deposit in the state, will search out those industries using minerals similar to those found in Texas and then will attempt to induce these industries to help develop the state's mineral resources.

Data contained in the 33 volumes was collected by the committee's mineralogists with the co-operation of several state and civic agencies and of the landowners themselves who have, in many instances, brought the attention of the committee to deposits of rare minerals.

While the drive to "sell Texas minerals" is on, the committee will continue to probe the state's great underground treasure vaults for additional minerals and new deposits. Reports on deposits of minerals in Mills county have been requested from residents of this county.

OLD-AGE ASSISTANCE

Approval of a new plan for old-age assistance in Texas and a federal grant of $840,000 for aid to the needy aged in that state was announced last week by the Social Security Board in Washington. This action will release checks from Austin for about 96,000 needy aged qualified for aid.

This plan is based on the law passed by the Texas legislature October 31 to repeal its original old-age assistance law passed in November, 1935. The major change is that the State Board of Control now becomes the state administrative agency, supplanting the former independent Texas old-age assistance commission. The state continues to exercise entire financial and administrative responsibility.

Under the new plan, more emphasis will be placed on individual investigation to determine the extent of need. According to recent estimates 96,600 needy aged persons in Texas are now receiving assistance under cooperative Federal State plan.—Dallas News.

LEFT-OVERS

Ever-mounting living costs have increased the homemaker's left-overs problem. Foods cost too much these days to throw away the smallest amount of meat, vegetables, or fruits left over from meal to meal or from day to day.

But if repeated immediately and often left-overs soon lose their appeal with the family appetite. Left-overs cannot be kept too long, even with the most modern refrigeration. What to do?

Some mothers and housekeepers have solved the problem by masquerading the left-overs. After a bit of deft camouflage it is almost impossible for the family to unlabel any such dish "left-overs" and turn up its collective nose at it. Under this scheme left-overs from one meal can be served the next as an entirely different dish.

For instance, left-over meats may be disguised by the use of gravy, white sauce, tomato sauce, or by making them into meat loaf decorated with sliced hard-boiled eggs. Left-over vegetables can often be combined to make a new dish for the next meal. Some left-over vegetables may be combined with left-over meats to form a palatable new dish. But the combining must be done carefully, the disguising skillfully. It takes a lot of planning and delicate seasoning if the problem is to be solved effectively.

JERRY MUSKRAT'S TROUBLES BEGIN

JERRY Muskrat watched Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter start on their journeys. Billy was going to a distant brook. Little Joe was going to the Big River. Both intended to stay away until they were sure the trapper, who had just begun to make trouble along the Laughing Brook, would be so discouraged that he would take up his traps.

When Jerry had said good-by to Billy Mink and Joe Otter there had been something of a wistfulness in his squeaky voice. The fact is, Jerry would have loved to go visiting also. But he knew that it was quite out of the question. In the first place, he is a slow traveler on land, and he felt that on land he would be in even more danger than if he stayed at home, despite those dreadful traps. Then, again, winter would soon come and he must be prepared for it if he would live through it. Billy Mink and Little

Civil War Battle Scene Becomes Park

The federal government is converting into a park the Kennesaw battlefield, 25 miles from Atlanta, which was the scene of one of the bloodiest conflicts in the Civil war, when armies commanded by Johnston and Sherman met in their famous battle. Photo shows scene looking down Cheatham's Hill on Kennesaw battlefield. One thousand Federal soldiers died in an attack on the Confederate position on this hill.

FORMER PASTOR HERE DEAD

Mr. M. McGirk very kindly furnished the Eagle with an account of the death and funeral of Rev. R. A. Gay who some years ago served the local Presbyterian church which was active here at that time.

The Rev. R. A. Gay, 82-year old retired Presbyterian minister, died at 1 o'clock Friday morning at his home, 334 East Sherman street, Paris where he had been in failing health several years.

He was born in Tennessee, July 11, 1854, son of Jacob E. and Emily Gay, and came to Texas at an early age. He studied for the ministry at Lebanon Theological school in Tennessee and returned to Texas as ordained at Lanniss, Fannin co. in 1880. He was active until 1925, serving pastorates in the Paris, Waco and McGregor presbyteries and spent two years in Arizona. He had lived in Paris several years.

He was married at Springhill, Fannin county on June 8, 1882, to Miss Martha L. Sadler, daughter of John and Nancy Sadler, and they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary here in 1932.
