Walls and furniture have been repainted and a new arrangement of the office and stock has been made, which makes the store more convenient for both customer and clerk and gives ample space for stock display.

Lampasas County Wildcat Fails On Initial Tests

Testing was reported still under way Tuesday at Tiger Lilly Oil Company (formerly John Starret) No. 1 Alf Smith, shallow wildcat eight miles west of Lometa in Lampasas county, as operators sought to complete as a commercial well.

Drilled to 841 feet with broken saturated lime logged from 764 feet, top of Ellenberger, by operators, pipe was set on top, and the well showed an estimated three barrels of high-gravity, green oil natural in twenty-four hours. Two-stage acid treatment, with total of 2,000 gallons, followed with no results.

Casing seat was lost and pipe was pulled and recemented. Treatment with another 1,000 gallons of acid, using 22 barrels oil load, followed, and the well flowed the oil load, acid water and a show of sulphur water. operators were to recement casing.

Location is in the D. W. Briggs survey, abstract 37, and on a block of 12,000 acres. It is 11 miles east of San Saba.—Dallas News.

J. T. Soules Wins Speaking Contest For Future Farmers

J. T. Soules, representing the Goldthwaite Future Farmer's Association, won first place in both the San Saba Federation Contest in extemporaneous speaking and the Brownwood District Contest, which took place last week. He will go next to the F. F. A. convention which is being held at Huntsville June 26 and 27 and try to carry off the honors there. At Huntsville he will have to compete against a probable 75 contestants from Area Four.

Last year J. T. and John Bowman comprised the Goldthwaite team and brought home the honors, winning first place in the state, and Goldthwaite has every reason to believe that J. T. will make history repeat itself.

During the meet at Huntsville, the state penitentiary will give a program to entertain the boys and Sam Houston State Teachers College will have an instructive program to present. While in Huntsville the boys will be the guests of the college.

M. B. Coffey, instructor of the F. F. A. group here states that plans for the annual summer encampment for the boys will be made at a meeting soon. Watch the paper for the date of the meeting.

Lions' Club Adjourns Until September

At the regular meeting of the Lions Club Tuesday evening at the Methodist Church, it was decided to adjourn for the summer. The next meeting will be held the first Tuesday in September.

Cotton Pest Control Is A Vital Factor

MILLS COUNTY FARMERS URGED BY CARTER TO FIGHT INSECT PESTS

Last Thursday Mr. Carter, of the Hamilton Cotton Seed Oil Mills, spoke to Mills County farmers in the court house on the importance of dusting cotton for the control of flea hopper and boll weevil. Mr. Carter pointed out the decline in cotton yields in this section was largely due to insect ravages and are preventable.

In 1936 Mills county produced 4000 bales of cotton and last year about 500 bales, and the crop in 1936 was reduced by insect pests.

By early and thorough dusting a full crop could be harvested in Mills County every year. Inasmuch as every person in the county is affected by the volume of cotton ginned, it is imperative that a determined fight be made on the pests. We believe that a farmer makes a mistake when he quits planting cotton. If he has land adapted to growing cotton, he should plant a crop and control the pests. The difference between 4000 bales and 500 bales will pay for dusting and leave a handsome balance, much needed by the farm families and the business of the county.

Mr. Carter stated that an acre of cotton can be dusted seven times at an average cost of $2.28. W. P. WEAVER, County Agent.

Star Routes Awarded

Notice has been received at the Goldthwaite post office that the star route from Goldthwaite to Priddy via Caradan has been awarded to Coney B. McDonald of Priddy for four years at $657 per year. Mr. McDonald is now building a home in Goldthwaite. This route has been served for the past four years by G. W. Smith who will return to his home at Lometa where he has been awarded the star route between Lometa and Richland Springs.

The Moline star route has been awarded to Henry Grady Duncan for four years at $600 per year. Effective July 1 this route will leave Goldthwaite at 8 a. m. instead of 11:30 a. m. as at present.

Crop Prospects Raised By 2.43 Inches Of Rain

Mills County farmers are more hopeful this week since the slow and steady rain of Sunday night and Monday fell. A light shower Tuesday morning amounted to 25 of an inch, swelling to 2.43 inches the 2.18 rain earlier in the week. Crops threatened by dry weather were revived.

Sunday's rain seemed general over wide areas in Central and West Texas. Heaviest rains were reported in Callahan, Eastland and Comanche counties, with seven inches at Clyde, six near Rising Star and nearly that much at De Leon. Considerable damage to bridges and roads in that area was done by the floods. At Ballinger, in Runnels County, the Colorado River rose 21 feet above normal stage overnight.

Due to the floods north of Brownwood, the Bayou near Brownwood was reported to be nearly over the bridge although Brownwood had had only .14 of an inch of rain at that time.

A Correction

The Home Demonstration Club Clothing Rally will be held on Friday, June 30, and not Saturday, June 30, as appeared in an article in last week's issue.

Steady Progress Made At Oil Well

Satisfactory progress is being made at the J. W. Spinks No. 1 oil test at Williams Ranch. Meanwhile reports from Lometa state that the Tiger Lilly well there is not a complete failure as was believed after the intrusion of sulphur water following acid treatment. Halliburton is cementing off the water, and its owners believe that a small producer will yet be brought in.

Lacy Thompson In Auto Wreck Tuesday Night

Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Thompson had a serious accident Tuesday night while returning home from a trip to Kaufman and Dallas. They were on Highway No. 74-A, seven miles from town, when a car coming from Goldthwaite tried to pass a wagon, which the driver did not see until he suddenly came up on it. He was driving sixty miles an hour and, turning to avoid hitting the wagon, he ran into the Thompsons, hitting their car with such force it knocked them 30 or 40 feet away. Fortunately no one was hurt, except for minor bruises and cuts, but the car was badly damaged.

R. F. BALL, OF FORT WORTH, BUYS RANCH AND STOCK A FEW DAYS AGO

One of the largest real estate deals ever consummated in Mills County was made a few days ago when E. J. Ward, prominent Mills County ranchman, sold his ranch south of Goldthwaite to R. F. Ball, wealthy Fort Worth contractor, for $70,000. The deed was filed in County Clerk L. E. Porter's office June 13th, 1939. The federal revenue stamps on the deed alone amounted to $70, and old age pension stamps $44.

The C-Bar ranch comprises 4540 acres and is situated in one of the best portions of Mills County ranching country.

Tom McCann, son-in-law of Mr. Ball will manage the property. Already several hundred fine Hereford cattle have been sent in and placed on the ranch. Mr. Ball also bought the Ward livestock.

Mr. Ward recently bought the L. W. Whittenburg ranch on the Bulls' Creek road including 687 acres. His grandson, Albert Tully, will manage the holdings. Mr. Ward plans to build a new native stone house there.

Birthday Celebration

processing time tables available.

We know that pre-cooking or exhausting raw fruits and vegetables before sealing will result in a better canned product. Let me stress the importance of exhausting, especially in canning fruits as peaches, plums and tomatoes.

Exhausting is a name given to preheating of the contents of a jar or can of raw fruit to almost boiling. The purpose of this preheating is to expand the fruit or vegetable sufficiently to drive all air or oxygen out of the food and can. This practice will result in a more attractive pack, will prevent loss of flavor, gives less discoloration and spoilage.

A good way to do this is to set the open (unsealed) cans or jars in a dishpan of boiling water (if containers are half gallons, one will need a vessel deeper than a dishpan). Fill the water to within 1 1/2 inches of the cans or jars. Place dishpan over a fire and boil as long as canning recipe designates. Do not allow the cans or jars to cool off after the exhausting process. Seal them quickly while the contents are hot.

The above mentioned bulletin may be obtained in the county home demonstration agent's office for the asking.

EMMA SCOTT, Agent

Why Should They Milk Goldthwaite's Cow?

Did you ever go down to the barn lot some morning with the expectation of getting a full pail of creamy milk and discover that old Bossy had been milked during the night, and there wasn't any more for you?

Something like that has been happening in a lot of small towns in Texas recently. Taking advantage of the good highways, peddlers of various and sundry articles of merchandise have been rolling into the small towns, selling their stocks of what-have-you and then rolling on to the next town to repeat the performance.

These peddlers pay no taxes in Goldthwaite or Mills County.

Their trucks are not licensed here.

They do not support our schools or churches.

They never contribute to our civic enterprises or improvements.

All they do is to skim the cream off our town's business and carry it back to their own home town.

But turn the proposition around. Suppose you load your truck with Mills County products and start to sell it elsewhere. In almost every town you entered you would have to pay a peddler's license or move on.

What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, it seems to us.

We collect from shows and carnivals; why can't we collect from the peddlers and itinerant merchants as well?

The city council, we understand, is studying some such proposition. If you favor keeping part of the cream to build Goldthwaite's streets and waterworks and provide the other improvements we need so badly, now is the time to tell the members of the council how you stand.

and some catty body is sure that in love with them they are saying to themselves "I wish I had a girl like that." "Am I?" unsteadily.

"Yes, dear little thing, if I had you always by my side I could fight the world."

When Jane and Baldy reached home that night, Baldy stamped up and down the house, saying things about Muriel Follette. "A girl like that to criticize."

She yawned. "I'm going to bed." The telephone rang, and Baldy was off like a shot. Jane uncured herself from her chair and lent a listening ear. It was a moment of exciting interest. Edith Towne was at the other end of the wire!

Jane knew it by Baldy's singing voice. He didn't talk like that to commonplace folk who called him up. She was devious with curiosity.

He came in, at last, literally walking on air. And just as Jane had felt that his voice sang, so she felt now that his feet danced.

"Jane, it was Edith Towne." "What did she say?" "Just saw my advertisement. Paper delayed."

"Where is she?" "Beyond Alexandria. But we're not to give it away."

"How does she feel about it?" "Oh, she still thinks that I should go. But I'll stay here," he moved his head restlessly. "I want to be where you are, Jane. And now, my dear, we're going to talk things out. You know that yesterday you made a sort of promise. That you'd pray for me to get back—and that if I got back—well, you'd give me a chance. Jane, I want your prayers, but not your promise."

"Why not?" "I am not fit to think of any woman. When I am—well—if I ever am—you can do as you think best. But you mustn't be bound."

She sat silent, looking into the fire. "You know that I'm right, don't you, dear?"

"Yes, I do, Evans. I thought of it, too, last night. And it seems like this to me. If we can just be friends—without bothering with anything else—it will be easier, won't it?"

"I can't tell you how glad I'd be, as you call it. But it wouldn't be fair. You are young, and you have a right to happiness. I'd be a shadow on your future—"

"Please don't—"

He dropped on the rug at her feet. "Well, we'll leave it at that. We're friends, forever," he reached up and took her hands in his, "forever?"

"Always, Evans—"

"For better, for worse—for richer, for poorer—" which nearly swallowed her up, and stated her errand. "Baldy thought I'd better come, he's so busy, and anyhow he thinks I have more tact." She tilted her chin at him and smiled.

"And you thought it needed tact." "Well, don't you, Mr. Towne? We really haven't a thing to do with it, and I'm sure you think so. Only now we're in it, we want to do the best we can."

"I see. Since Edith has chosen you and your brother as ambassadors, you've got to use diplomacy." "She didn't choose me, she chose Baldy."

"But why can't she deal directly with me?" "She ran away from you. And she isn't ready to come back."

"She ought to come back." "She doesn't think so. And she's afraid you'll insist."

"What does she want me to do?" "Send her the bag with the money and the checkbook, and let Baldy take out a lot of things. She gave him a list; there's everything from toilet water to talcum."

"Suppose I refuse to send them?" "You can, of course. But you won't, will you?"

"No, I suppose not. I shan't coerce her. But it's rather a strange thing for her to be willing to trust all this to your brother. She has seen him only once."

"Well," said Jane, with some spirit, "you've seen Baldy only once, and wouldn't you trust him?"

She flung the challenge at him, and quite surprisingly he found himself saying, "Yes, I would."

"Well," said Jane, "of course."

He leaned back in his chair and looked at her. Again he was aware of quickened emotions. She revived half-forgotten ardors. Gave him back his youth. She used none of the cut and dried methods of sophistication. She was fearless, absolutely alive, and in spite of her cheap gray suit, altogether lovely.

After so many hours of toil and quest... A famished pilgrim... That's Keats, my dear. Jane, do you know that you are food and drink?"

"No. She's asked me to bring her bag, and some other things."

He threw himself into a chair opposite Jane, one leg over the arm of it. He was a careless and picturesque figure. Even Jane was aware of his youth and good looks.

Edith had, as it seemed, asked him to have Towne send the ring back to Delafield—to have her wedding presents sent back, to have a bag packed with her belongings.

She started up the stairs but before she had reached the landing he called after her. "Jane, what have you on hand for tomorrow?"

She leaned over the rail and looked down at him. "Friday? Feed the chickens. Feed the cats. Help Sophy clean the silver. Drink tea at four with Mrs. Allison, and three other young things of eighty."

"Well, look here. I don't want to face Towne. He'll say things about Edith—and insist on her coming back—she says he will, and that's why she won't call him up. And you've got more diplomacy than I have. You might make it all seem—reasonable. Will you do it, Jane?"

"Do you mean that you want me to call on him at his office?"

"Yes. Go in with me in the morning."

"Baldy, are you shirking? Or do you really think me as wonderful as your words seem to imply?"

"Oh, if you're going to put it like that—"

She smiled down at him. "Let's leave it then that I am—wonderful. But suppose Mr. Towne doesn't fall for your plan? Perhaps he won't let her have the bag or a check-book or money or anything—"

Jane saw then a sudden and passionate change in her brother. "If he doesn't let her have it, I will, I may be poor but I'll beg or borrow rather than have her brought back to face those—cats—until she wants to come."

When he came in he saw Jane at once, and held out his hand smiling. "You've heard from Edith?"

"Yes. Last night. Too late to let you know."

"Good. We'll go into my room."

Jane was thrilled by a sense of things happening. Outwardly calm, she was inwardly stirred by excitement.

She sat in a big leather chair which nearly swallowed her up, and stated her errand.

"Baldy thought I'd better come, he's so busy, and anyhow he thinks I have more tact." She tilted her chin at him and smiled.

"And you thought it needed tact."

"Well, don't you, Mr. Towne? We really haven't a thing to do with it, and I'm sure you think so. Only now we're in it, we want to do the best we can."

"I see. Since Edith has chosen you and your brother as ambassadors, you've got to use diplomacy."

"She didn't choose me, she chose Baldy."

"But why can't she deal directly with me?"

"She ran away from you. And she isn't ready to come back."

"She ought to come back."

"She doesn't think so. And she's afraid you'll insist."

"What does she want me to do?"

"Send her the bag with the money and the checkbook, and let Baldy take out a lot of things. She gave him a list; there's everything from toilet water to talcum."

"Suppose I refuse to send them?"

"You can, of course. But you won't, will you?"

"No, I suppose not. I shan't coerce her. But it's rather a strange thing for her to be willing to trust all this to your brother. She has seen him only once."

"Well," said Jane, with some spirit, "you've seen Baldy only once, and wouldn't you trust him?"

She flung the challenge at him, and quite surprisingly he found himself saying, "Yes, I would."

"Well," said Jane, "of course."

He leaned back in his chair and looked at her. Again he was aware of quickened emotions. She revived half-forgotten ardors. Gave him back his youth. She used none of the cut and dried methods of sophistication. She was fearless, absolutely alive, and in spite of her cheap gray suit, altogether lovely.

So it was with an air of almost romantic challenge that he said, "What would you advise?"

"I'd let her alone, like little Bo-Peep. She'll come home before you know it, Mr. Towne."

"I wish that I could think it—however, it's a great comfort to know that she's safe. I shall give it out that she is visiting friends, and that I've heard from her. And now, about the things she wants. It seems absolutely silly to send them."

"I don't think it's silly."

"Why not?"

"Oh, clothes make such a lot of difference to a woman. I can absolutely change my feelings by changing my frock."

She rose. "I'll leave the list with you and you can telephone Baldy when to come for them."

"Don't go. I want to talk to you."

"But you're busy."

"Not unless I want to be."

"But I am. I have to go to market—"

"Briggs can take you over. I'll call up the garage."

"Briggs! Can you imagine Briggs driving through the streets of Washington with a pound of sausage and a three-rib roast?"

"Do you mean that you are going to take your parcels back with you?"

"Yes. There aren't any deliveries in Sherwood."

He hesitated for a moment, then touched her shoulder lightly with his forefinger. "Look here. Let Briggs take you to market, then come back here, and we'll run up to the house, get the things for lunch at Chevy Chase, and put you down, sausages, bags and all, at your own door in Sherwood."

"Really?" She was all shining radiance.

"Really. You'll do it then? Sit down a moment while I call up Briggs."

He called the garage and turned again to Jane. "I'll dictate some important letters, and be ready for you when you get back."

So Jane went through the fine old market, with its long aisles brilliant with the bounty of field and garden, river, and bay and sea. There were red meats and red tomatoes and red apples, oranges that were yellow, and pumpkins a deeper orange. There were shrimps that were pink, and red-snappers a deeper rose. There was the gold of butter and the gold of honey—the green of spinach, the green of olives and the green of pickles in bowls of brine, there was the brown of potatoes overflowing in burlap bags, and the brown of bread baked to crustiness—the brown of the plumage of dead ducks—the white of onions and the white of roses.

Jane bought modestly and Briggs carried her parcels. He even made a suggestion as to the cut of the steak. His father, it seemed, had been a butcher.

They drove back then for Frederick. Briggs went up for him, and returned to say that Mr. Towne would be down in a moment.

Frederick was, as a matter of fact, finishing a letter to Delafield Simms:

"I am assuming that you will get your mail at the Poinciana, but I shall also send a copy to your New York office. Edith has asked me to return the ring to you. I shall hold it until I learn where it may be delivered into your hands."

"As for myself, I can only say this—that my first impulse was to kill you. But perhaps I am too civilized to believe that your death would make things better. You must understand, of course, that you've put yourself beyond the pale of decent people."

Our Cemetery

Have you visited the Goldthwaite Cemetery lately? Are you interested in keeping it looking nice and neat? If so, please make a contribution to the cemetery fund being raised by the few ladies who are vitally interested.

You may say you keep your own lot and don't care to pay for others, but if you stop to think, you will see how one clean lot will look surrounded by a wilderness of weeds and grass in lots belonging to those who have long since gone away or have forgotten their dead—you will surely contribute some small amount to help pay a man to clean alleys and neglected graves. Then the entire grounds will be seen to best advantage and the public will know that Goldthwaite and Mills county people have not forgotten or neglected the last resting place of their loved ones.

Ebony

By Clementine Wilmeth Briley

A very beautiful social affair for our community this past week was the garden wedding of Miss Vivian Day to Earl McCaleb, of Anson. The wedding took place at 7:30 Thursday, June 15, at the Day home. The yard, which is Mr. Day's special care, presented a well kept lawn interspersed with flower beds and evergreens. In this setting was arranged the white-ribboned aisle leading to the altar which was flanked on either side by tall vases of pink gladioli and painted daisies.

LaNelle Carruthers, of Moody, accompanied by Grace Briley, of Ebony, sang "I Love You Truly." Then began the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Carruthers. Charles H. Robertson, head of the Bible department of Abilene Christian College was the officiating minister. Perry Day, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Charles H. Robertson, Jr., of Kerrville, Cecile Reed, Sterling City, Ruby Lee Horton, Odessa, and Mrs. Landon Hill, Merkel. They wore pastel colored dresses and carried baskets of painted daisies.

Little Janet McCaleb, of Anson, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin dress with long train and a veil. After the ceremony the bride's cake and punch were served to a garden filled with guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Day. She is a graduate of Brownwood High School and Abilene Christian College. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee McCaleb, of Anson. He is also a graduate of Abilene Christian College.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, wore a gown of white marquisette, made princess style, with short, puffed sleeves. Her veil was finger-tip in length. She carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart rosebuds.

Williams-Reynolds Wedding Sunday

One of the culminated romances of the school year just closed took place in the Caradan community late Sunday evening when Martha Lou Audra, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reynolds married Raymond Harper Williams, teacher of the Midway school. This romance began in December of last year when the present bride, a graduate of the Goldthwaite High School of last year, assisted Mr. Williams in putting on a community play at the Midway school, which is located near the little community of Caradan in this county.

The wedding took place at the

home of the bride's parents at seven o'clock in the evening and was in the nature of a garden party. In the large spacious yard, a cedar hedge set the wedding scene apart from the rest of the world and under a large ancestral tree an altar had been improvised. In this altar stood Rev. E. E. Dawson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Goldthwaite. Loretta Platt, a high school graduate niece of the bride, played Mendelssohn's wedding march and the wedding party, headed by Miss Daphne Reynolds, sister of the bride, led the way as maid of honor. She was followed by the junior best man and bridesmaid, Lewis Oatis, nephew of the bride, and by Kathleen Platt, niece of the bride. They were followed by W. W. Reynolds with the bride on his arm.

They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Forest Harper, his cousin, and Rev. Dawson having asked "who giveth this maid in marriage?" and Mr. Reynolds having answered, "I do," the bride and groom took their places before the altar and the beautiful ring ceremony was read by Rev. Dawson.

A lovely feature of the ceremony was the parade of the flower girls. These tiny tots were dressed in rainbow tints of organdy and were led by tiny Shirley Jo Reynolds, of Hollywood, aged three, who is already in training for her place in the film world. Other flower girls were Deanie Reynolds, Letha Reynolds, Marie Reynolds, all of Caradan, and Lola Jean Platt, of Gatesville, all of them being little nieces of the bride. An imposing and important part of the procession was the ring bearer, the manly young lad, Jackie Seauqa, a nephew of the groom. Miss Catherine Fairman, who was accompanied by her sister, Sasah, sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride was dressed in a lovely satin gown which had been designed by Mrs. Dan Yates, of Goldthwaite, as a love offering to the bride. The gown was styled after her mother's wedding gown of 1900. The yoke was honey-combed and the dress was set off by a long satin train cut with a swing curve. This ensemble was topped by a filmy bride's veil studded with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. The whole effect was to accentuate the figure of the young bride and to set off her dark beauty. The train bearers were Glory Oates, of Austin, and Reatha Mae Horton, of Caradan.

The bride's going away costume consisted of a navy blue marquisette dress with tea rose accessories and a large picture hat. The happy bride, and groom left amid showers of rice for a wedding trip to Galveston. They

The couple was attended by the bride's sister, and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Cockrum, of this city. Mrs. Cockrum wore a navy sheer frock with white hat and shoes and a corsage of white gladioli.

Birthday Party

Friday, June 9th, we attended Mrs. T. S. Gerald's 84th birthday celebration. Her children planned to surprise her. They began arriving about nine o'clock with well filled lunch baskets. About 11:30 we went to Judge J. R. Gerald's and spread our lunch on the lawn under the honey locust trees. Every one enjoyed the lunch and especially the three-tiered birthday cake furnished by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Burney.

All the children except two boys were there. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Gerald, of Springdale; Mrs. A. L. Smith and children, Dr. Francis Smith and Wylene, of Winters; Mrs. J. W. Burney, of Evant; Mr. and Mrs. J. Pope Gerald and daughter, Dorothy; Mrs. Pope Miller Gerald and little daughter, of Hamilton; Judge and Mrs. R. J. Gerald, Mrs. W. D. Hunter, of Floresville; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Batchelor and boys, Mrs. Clifford Rose, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gerald and boys, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Worley and little son, of Goldthwaite.

Prof. and Mrs. A. H. Smith and son called in the afternoon, and Mrs. Earline Roberts, Jeanette and John visited a while in the morning.

Several nice gifts were brought. We left about 5 o'clock, wishing Mrs. Gerald many more happy birthdays.

Mrs. C. W. Batchelor.

expect to return early this week and make their home in the Caradan community.

The groom is a native of the Star community. He has attended Daniel Baker College, at Brownwood, where his parents now live. He has been the principal of the Midway school during the past year. The happy young couple plan to build them a home on a five acre tract across the road from the school and Mr. Williams will teach the Midway school again next year.

After the wedding, which was attended by many friends of both the bride and groom from all parts of the state, the wedding cake, which had been baked in a Chinese design, was cut by the bride. Punch and cake were served to about two hundred guests.

COME AND GET IT — MAYBE

If Director Little of the Old-Age Assistance Commission has guessed right, 85,000 aged Texans will qualify for pensions in addition to the 118,000 now getting monthly checks.

If the new pensioners are paid as much as the others are receiving this month — an average of $14.15 from the state and the same from the federal government — this will mean an additional $7,216,000 a year from the Texas treasury, or an aggregate for this one purpose of $17,234,700.

This is more than the entire state government cost when Pat Neff became governor.

Under the new law, the applicant may have millionaire children or brothers or sisters and still qualify for a pension. Other requirements, according to the Texas Weekly are as follows:

Approval will be given the application of a person who meets constitutional requirements with respect to age, citizenship, and residence provided: (1) He does not own real estate in excess of a residential homestead, as defined by the Constitution, which in the country may be as much as 200 acres of land and in the city lots worth up to $5000, regardless in both country and city of the value of the house; (2) He does not own personal property worth more than $1,500 if married or $1,000 if unmarried; (3) He does not have more than $360 in cash at the time he applies for assistance; (4) He does not carry more than $1,000 life insurance.

Already only one state in the union is receiving more old age assistance money per capita of population over 65 than Texas. That is California with $47.38. Texas last year received $40.33 per capita and other states each with more old people than Texas received the following amounts:

Massachusetts, $39.69; Ohio, $33.41; Illinois, $30.53; Michigan, $25.78; Pennsylvania, $25.34; Missouri, $24.47; New York, $21.12, and Indiana, $17.37.

Taking the United States as a whole, the Weekly points out that the total amount allotted by the Federal Government for old-age pensions in the fiscal year 1937-38 was equivalent to $26.83 per capita of population sixty-five years of age or older at the time of the 1930 census. In other words, the aggregate sum of Federal money granted for old-age assistance in the entire country was equivalent, on a basis of the per capita of old people, to less than 67 per cent of the Federal money granted for this purpose in Texas.

It appears to us that it won't be long before those who are now bragging about passing this new bill, will be apologizing for it. What they have done is to open the gate to the feed lot without putting any more feed in the trough.

The invitation is "Come and Get It!" But echo queries, "Where?"

OLD TIME SINGIN'

When folks gather by the thousands to sing old time songs and new songs sung in the old time manner and to hear musicians and singers whose talents have made them famous, we can't get very much alarmed over the state of their affairs.

While some cities were holding Jitterbug Sprees and such like atavistic antics, Goldthwaite entertained the singers of six counties in a thoroughly wholesome and old-fashioned affair in which "a good time was had by all."

There may not be as much style to our singing conventions, but there's a lot of lasting satisfaction.

So Common - So Important

"Before my startled eyes the morning paper, folded neatly beside my mail, fell gradually apart and crumbled into dust. As I watched, amazed, several magazines did likewise. Horrified, I seized my mail and began frantically to open it. Even as I worked, envelopes, letters, checks, a telegram slowly went to pieces in my hands. My desk was littered with gray dust.

Memoranda of the day before, my calendar, blotter, telephone directory withered away. Even the pictures on the walls turned to empty frames, staring at me with vacant glassy eyes. In sudden panic, I dialed "Information," only to find that paper everywhere was vanishing.

Government, business, transportation, printing were paralyzed. A frantic people watched currency, securities, legal documents, life insurance policies decay into nothing. Great industries saw blue prints, orders, files, payrolls, records, everything disappear. Libraries were gutted with this plague. Our law and the treasures of literature were gone. And with all this went—Civilization!

Not a pretty picture this, but an imaginary one that may make us realize the importance of that very common article—which most of us use so carelessly—PAPER.

White Says Roosevelt Is a "Major Miracle" Guard Against Typhoid Fever

On return to his prairie home after three weeks in Washington, New York and Boston, the veteran Republican editor and leader, William Allen White, describes in a leading editorial as the highlight of his trip East a visit to President Roosevelt.

"I found him rugged; the six years of his hard life in the White House have not broken him," says the Sage of Emporia. "Indeed he seems less harassed by events than he was two or three years ago. He is unperurbed by the calamities of the time, husky and has lost none of his charm. We heard him talk for an hour and a quarter upon a most delicate subject to 150 editors one evening." White is President of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. "For the most part, at least 50-50, these editors came into the room hostile to him. They went out at least 90 per cent with their guards down—pleased. The old smile still has its pulling power; the old manner a gay candor with a light and sophisticated touch-and-go, happy, ingratiating, still magnetic.

"But Lord how they hate him. I don't mean the editors. I mean his enemies, who are mostly in the privileged classes. Not since Grover Cleveland... have I seen and heard such hate, such venomous, spiteful, wicked, malicious hate poured upon any man. In the last six months of his White House days, Hoover was our head devil. Upon him we visited our sins.

"How this man now in the White House, who must know how a certain section of Americans loathes him, lies about him, covers him with their slime; how he can smile and keep sweet and saw wood, is a major miracle to this affiant. ... What a man!"

Austin, Texas.—If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last two or three years, go to your family physician and have him give you three "shots" that will protect you against that disease.

This advice comes from the Texas State Health Department, and is addressed particularly to those persons planning vacations away from home or those who regularly go on camping, fishing or such trips.

Typhoid is contracted by way of the mouth. Each case comes directly or indirectly from some previous case. You eat or drink the germs that cause the disease, in food, water or milk contaminated by the discharges from persons who are ill with the disease or who have had it at some time.

Modern medical and public health practices have greatly reduced the occurrence of typhoid but it is still a menace to those unprotected against the disease. Protection of public water supplies from pollution, pasteurization of milk, inspection and supervision of food supplies, improvement in household sanitation and hygienic habits, better sewerage disposal and careful investigation of typhoid outbreaks to determine the source of the disease are measures which have contributed to the diminution of the incidence of typhoid in Texas. But there are still sources of infection to which individuals are exposed, that cannot be reached by public measures, and for which vaccination affords additional protection.

Hitler may spring a surprise peace plan, report has it. Probably it will name a surprisingly large number of land pieces that Der Fuehrer wants.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Hamilton

In an interview with Judge J. B. Pool on Thursday morning, the county's chief executive informed a Herald-Record representative that he is confident of a wide coverage of very fine permanent road improvements in Hamilton county during the remaining months of this year and early in 1940.

Hamilton went all day Wednesday of this week without mail service from the north, our main daily mail source, on account of a freight train wreck on the Santa Fe railroad blocking the passage of the train bringing the mail from Fort Worth to Stephenville when three cars were overturned and a number of other cars were derailed four miles west of Tolar at about midnight Tuesday night. However, no one was injured.

Local men of authority state in the Herald-Record this week that right now Hamilton is in line for the greatest development program in the history of oil and gas tests in this territory. Promoters from the most powerful organizations in the nation are scouting this county, and are securing needed information on real estate wanted for completing blocks for drilling.

Friends and acquaintances in Hamilton and throughout the county were sorrowfully shocked when news reached here of the death in a Sherman, Texas, hospital, June 11, of Pauline Estelle Israel, grand daughter of Mrs. L. A. Townsend, and a ward of Mrs. Beatrice Ballard and husband, an aunt of the young girl, with whom Pauline had lived at Gunter, Texas, for some six years. Pauline Estelle Israel was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Israel at Goldthwaite, Texas, on February 10, 1922. She was orphaned in the death of her mother some twelve years ago.—Herald-Record.

Comanche

Three new producers were added to the Amity shallow field last week according to John Roberson who was in Comanche Tuesday. The Jim Whitesides well on the A. K. Anderson lease came in as a producer and is making from 5 to 10 barrels per day. The McCarter Company well on the I. W. Roberson tract is believed to be good for 20 barrels daily and another light well was brought in on the Mary Smith tract.

Approximately fifty to sixty miles of Rural Electrification lines of Project 1 of Comanche county have already been laid and A. C. Thomas, superintendent of the local project, is optimistic over the chance of getting the first rural electric power for the county turned on by July 15. In the construction of this first sixty miles, around 750 poles have been erected. An estimated one hundred and fifty Comanche men have received employment in the building of these lines.

Self-examination may be profitable experience if in the right spirit and purpose. It may be a blessing to look at one's life and accomplishments in praise, but the very best is thus brought about by first step toward better may prove to be a blessing. Paul, whose life was studying together for the months, made a review of his life and experiences in his epistles. We read them all, but in the time before us we find that had laid hold of him without which life is meaningless and useless. Victory over both these circumstances. He was clear about his eternal had a goal toward which was directed in every and he had in view which was to be his his God. What an opportunity we have to bring as related to ourselves as Lord's Day.

I. Living Above the Gospel's Salt. Phil. 1:12-16.

Paul had been in prison for some time. He was not for a moment who were assigned to at his house the day after and in the morning of the trial to win each one as a designated period of Paul then sent him out to "the whole Praetorium" all the rest" (v. 13). A consistent and good life Paul must live day.

Not only were some of the brethren enough ample to preach the gospel in verse 13 that advantage of the trial in prison, went out to show that they were not making their own expression of their popularity. Paul had over circumstances of God that the gospel was even though it was a trial.

II. Facing Evil. Phil. 1:21, 24.

To Paul, departure would mean his limited service for the future had a strong hope and to be with the Lord not to be present privilege and was God's will that he in the flesh, he should be literally to live in Christ. It is a man's life, that he should follow that the reason men fear the place of saying "to be they say "in live in prison." "pleasure" or "III. Preparing for Phil. 3:12-14.

These are the words who possibly was the man and Christian time. Was he established? No, the Spirit and the vision of the had not yet attained press on.

The spiritually man has no word of commendation, he glory. He does not fail to hold his own have been put under is not content merely own, for he knows that is to go back. Ours let us go to God's blessed take a forward step tomorrow, and the day may, like Paul, press on to the prize of the goal in Christ Jesus.

Scripture speaks of reward which shall faithful Christian in life of holiness and Christ. It is no task that Christians are able of their reward, be true of every word that the love of Christ strain him. On the fact that it is important that we there is recognition of the righteous Judge, may properly look for receiving of the crown from His hand, the Christian has gone from beginning to end through all eternity.

Dr. T. R. Sealy Buried Saturday

Dr. T. Richard Sealy was laid to rest in the Santa Anna cemetery last Saturday morning following funeral services in the Methodist church.

A vast assemblage attended the funeral, an hour and a half being required for the line to pass before the casket in the church. Flowers filled the chancel and lined the walls of the church.

Dr. J. M. Campbell of Gold-

On Tuesday before his death, realizing that the end was near, Dr. Sealy transferred his hospital to Dr. Lovelady, one of his associates in the hospital.

Dr. Sealy's life reads like a romance. From a poor orphan boy he rose to an honored position in American history. He
