THE SOUTH AND MANUFACTURES.

Kansas City Times. It is a most interesting inquiry for the political government to investigate the difference in cost on the same article manufactured north of Mason and Dixson's line and south of it. North of this line the motive power made use of is as far as practicable water. But owing to absence of any large streams, the volume of those in which their mills are situated never suffice even in winter time when the water is high, to run the mills. Hence all these mills have immense steam engines to supply the power needed. As some of these mills make use of engines of from five hundred to one thousand horse power, the cost of working raw material is just that much enhanced as the cost of steam exceeds water power. The most careful study of the relative cost of steam to water has shown that on the average it requires an expenditure of twenty dollars more a year for each horse power of steam than it does for the same power by water. Hence in these large mills using five hundred to one thousand horse power of steam the cost of this power is from $10,000 to $20,000 a year. What has been said here of the cost of manufacturing applies equally to cloth, iron, carpet, or any other industry followed North. Again the long winters North requires a commensurate expenditure of fire material to heat the houses of the laborers. Besides this all the different articles of food are less plentiful here than South. These two causes forces the laborer to demand for the same work proportionately higher wages North than he would in the more genial climes and amid the more bountiful supplies of the South. Hence this difference of price must be calculated in striking a balance between the cost of manufacturing North and South. Finally, there is a third and most griev ous import to be added to the cost of manufacturing North-the transfer of the raw material so great a distance, and the consequent brokerages which must The grand jury of Santa Barbara county, Cal., found an indictment against Clarence Grey for the murder of Theodore Glancy, late editor of the Santa Barbara town. There a commission is raid on be paid to each new party handling. Let fer of the raw material to a seaboard the first sale. Next it goes North. There a new commission is paid on the transfer to the manufacturer. Next, after being manufactured, the goods now pass into the hands of wholesale merchants. Next to the jobber. Next to the retail merchant, Here we have six distinct percentages exacted on any manufactured > production, some of these charges would still remain. But with her superior water courses, capable of supplying water power for ten times the number of mills now running in the North; with her cheaper labor; with her saving in freight and brokerages, the South can afford advantages which, if availed of, would soon completely ruin the majority of Northern firms. The only thing she needs to promote these industries to success is money This she will easily obtain if the people of the South are only faithful to themselves and resolute in patronizing home industries. Of course interested parties will decry such action, claiming it to be the result of a vindictive spirit. But this ought to move no one. If a farmer, for the purpose of improving his land, came to the determination to use every article he raised, at home, in order to improve his property, is there a man who would accuse him of unneighborly or vindictive spirit? Why then should it argue a vindictive spirit in the South, if for the sake of building up her own manufactures she would by general action come to the resolution of urging nothing but Southern manufactures? It certainly seems an act of the most ordinary prudence for a person to avail himself of the advantages he has at home before going to his neighbor to have his needs supplied. Hence, since the South possesses advantages for manufacturing which surpass those of the North a hundred per cent, we do not see why any act of temporary self-denial, however contested, which would necessitate the developement of these advantages, should be looked upon as indicating a vindictive spirit.

FRENCH COOKERY.

Its Merit Its Simplicity - The Culinary Claims of the Belgians. London News.

A deputation of Hindoos once waited on Dupleix, who so nearly anticipated the work of Warren Hastings and won the empire of the east for France. The great Proconsul, however, was at that moment engaged on what he considered the most importance of all business, and instead of admitting his visitors sent them a message to the effect that "his Excellency was at dinner, and the Christian religion strictly forbade a man, when dining, to occupy himself about any other earthly affair." The deputation retired, much edified at the piety of the governor. The French have long been our masters in the art of cookery, be-cause they threw their souls into the business from the beginning, not without the implied approval of so severe a moralist as Johnson, who argued that dinner was the chief business of every day, and that a man who cared nothing about what he ate or what he set before his guests was a fool.

The merit of French cookery is its simplicity. Goldsmith knew nothing about the matter when he talked of "green and yellow dinners" at the French ambassador's. In fact, he puts himself out of court in commending such a compound as stewed pig with prune sauce. Fresh pork can only be served roasted; salt pork, boiled. At the same time it is admitted that in the north of France and in Belgium they serve fruit sauce with sausages. The sauce is none other than gooseberry food, made of green gooseberries less than ripe and unsweet-ened. The Belgians boast that they, of the whole Gallic race, best understand what is good. A wealthy Frenchman, now residing in the Waltoon country, recently indorsed this statement. On being asked why he had expatriated himself, he replied that he had tried four different lands, with a view to ascertaining in which of them the inhabitants kept the best table. "In France," he continued, "they ate well, but drank poor wine; in Germany they drank good wine but ate the most execrable dishes; in England the eating and drinking were alike bad; in Belgium they were both good."

CHASE COUNTY. To Those Wanting Information.

Letters reach us, from parties in the East, almost daily, asking for information about Chase county. The questions are numerous, and it would require too much labor and money to answer them all. So we have decided to give the advantages offered to farmers, stock raisers and business men as briefly as possible: In the first place, money is a necessary article in Kansas, as well as elsewhere; and you will need some to commence with Pluck and energy are, also, necessary ar

As good land as man ever tilled can be had here for almost nothing. Healthier country can not be found. Winter wheat is an almost sure crop; corn yields largely; other grain as well as anywhere else. To give an idea of the way wheat and cora yields in Chase county, we give the follow-ing showing for 1875: Wheat, acreage, 6,013$; yield, 132,102 bushels; value of product. $138.641 58; Corn, acreage, 27.070 yield, 1,136,940 bushels; value of product

Irish potatoes yield 8 bushels to the acre; sweet potatoes. 163 bushels; broom corn. 876 pounds; rye, 22 bushels; barley, 22 bushels; oats, 35 bushels; tobacco, 650 pounds. Thus, it will be seen, that farsing pays in Characterists. ng pays in Chase county.
Farm laborers are paid, per month, with board, from $12 to $26.
Vacant land; sell at from $1.5 to $9 per

Persons that have any knowledge of stock raising will see, by the larte corn product, that this is the place for them to make money. Cattle do well; horses and hogs could not do better. Hogs are hardly ever troubled with the diseases so common in the East. Cattle winter well; in summer our unlimited range furnishes apple. mer our unlimited range

It is conceded that Chase county is the best location for sheep-growers in Kansas; and we honestly believe it to be a fact. Men of competency and practical experience in sheep-raising give it as their opin-ion, that wool of the Merino and other the varieties can be profitably raised here, at a cost of ten cents a pound. It is believed that the finer wooled will pay the best, as a great deal of expense is saved by being able to run themin large flocks. There is able to run themin large flocks. able to run them a large nocks. Indeed a generally a fair competition for the purchase of wool. Our grasses are good and nutritious, and herbs and shrubs plentiul. Our upland is rolling. The business of sheep-growing is bound to be an important one in this county, and the time will tant one in this county, and the time will soon come when our kills and vales will be dotted over with sheep, as Well as cattle Dairy farming is a branch of industry that will pay in this county. It costs very litrle to feed milk cows. Butter and cheese have a ready sale.

Chase county has thirty-six good school-houses, in which school is held, at least, eight months in the year, thus affording better educational facilities than can be found in the older states.

We have Congregative of Cathelia Mathematical Cathelia

We have Congregational, Catholic, Methodist, United Presbyterian, Quaker, and other religious denominations worshiping in this county.

Lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows and other benevolent societies are in flourishing condition in this city.

Chase county building stone has justly ing condition in this city.

Chase county building stone has justly gained the reputation of being the best in the West; and can be found upon almost every quarter section in the county.

To parties having money to invest in the county in the county in the county in the county in the county.

To parties having money to invest in manufacturing establishments we can say that Chase county has from seventy-five to one hundred miles of the best water-power in Kunsas with material to be the second to be t power in Kansas, with material to build dams and mills everywhere. The streams are clear and swift-running, with rocky beds. Money invested in utilizing our water-power will yield tenfold. Chase county has room for a Woolen mill.

CAUGHT IN A BRIER-BUSH.

Out in a part of the country where it is very hilly, there stands a red house at the foot of a steep hill whose side is covered with birch and pine trees, and thick undergrowth of brush. In that house live two little children, and what do you think they did one day?

Their mamma was busy baking, and next? asked restless little Susie.

"I know," said Bennie; "let's go up the hill and find where the brook begins. It's hard climbing, and mother thinks I ain't big enough; but I'm bigger now than I was the last time I asked her."

"Well, let's go then," said Susie, eagerly, and off they started, hand in hand at ly, and off they started, hand in hand at first, but they soon found they each needed two hands to catch hold of the bushes and projecting rocks, as they climbed up the hill close by the little bed of the brook. Up and up they went; it was pretty tiresome, but there was fun in it, for the white kitten ran nimbly ahead and kept stopping for them, and the and kept stopping for them, and the brook seemed to laugh out loud as it danced merrily to meet them.

"Haven't we gone much as a mile?"

"Haven't we gone much as a mile?" asked Susie at last, winding her arm around a young birch tree, while she stopped to take breath.

"No, not more than three-quarters, I guess," said Bennie. "See, there's our chimney down there and smoke going out, Mother's making pies."

"Oh, then let's hurry!" Susie exclaimed, starting again, and as she pushed her way around a thick briery bush, there was the white kitten waiting for them just ahead, and there at last was the just ahead, and there at last was the bubbling spring, gushing from among be rocks, the birth-place of their dear

Th. Susie, make a cup of your hand and drink some water!" said Bennie, bending down to do it himself.

"I can't! I can't! I am caught in the briers!" cried Susie, struggling as she spoke to disentangle herself, but it seem-ed as if every thorn on the bush reached out to catch at her, and she could not get away.

Bennie ran to help her but only got his hands scratched, and when Susie turned her head, the briers caught her curls so that she could not move any more without her hair being pulled. This was too discouraging and she began

"Oh, dear! I wish mamma was here," said Bennie, looking wistfully down at the top of the home chimney

"Mamma! mamma!" he shouted then as loud as he could, but the wind blew the wrong way and took the shout up the hill instead of down. Then he said he he would go home and tell her to

"Oh, no, no!" begged Susie. "I don't dare be left alone; there might be bears among the trees, or a snake. Don't go, "Well, I won't said Bennie; "but I wish I had some scissors or a knife. Father ought to give me a knife anyhow; I'm big enough."

Then he sat down by Susie and they wondered what they should do; would they have to go without dinner and supper? Would they have to stay all night there on the hill?

"Oh, I am so tired!" said Susie, moy

"Oh, I am so tired!" said Susie, moy ing her head a little, but it hurt so that she began to cry again. The little white kitten rubbed against he and purred but it could not help her. Yes it could help her! A bright idea flashed into Bennie's mind.

"Let's send a note to mamma be kitty!" he exclaimed. "I've got some paper in my pocket and a little stub end of pencil, and I can print!"

Susie stopped crying and watched with great interest while Ben slowly printed down these words on a torn slip of pa-

"DeeR MaMa, We aiR up heRe Tangild in a BRiRE Bush, CuM!"

Then he found a piece of string in his pocket, and tied the note around the white kitten's neck. When that was done, he turned her head down the hill towards home, and clapping his hands at her said in dreadful tones : "Scat! Scat!"

The frightened kitten darted down the hill, and was quickly down the hill, and was quickly out of sight among the

"Now mama'll come!" said Susie, with a sigh of relief. But Bennie had; thought of something else.

"I'm going to send a letter in a boat now," said he, and again he slowly pinned on another ragged slip-

"DeeR MaMa, We aiR up heRe TangILd in a BriRe. CuM. This he fastened to a piece of birch bark, and launched it down the little tumbling stream, which carried it swiftly out of sight. "New she'll come pretty soon," said he sitting down in perfect faith to wait. Their mama baked her bread that morning, and then she baked her pies and made cookies and got dinner over before she had time to think much about the children. Then she stepped to the door to see how they were getting along, and called them, but there was no an-The wind blew in her face and the white kitten rubbed against her feet.

"Where are the children, kitty?" she asked, looking down, and then she spied the note tied around the white, furry neck. She took it off and read the blurred words:

"DeeR MaMa, We aiR up heRe TangILd in a BRirE BuSh. CuM."

She caught her sun-bonnet off the nail and started, but hardly knew which way to go. They were up the hill, of course, but she might miss them. As she stood irresolute, right in sight down the brook came the little birch-bark raft, with a piece of paper pinned to it which was too wet to read, but it told her all she wanted to know, for now it, was plain wanted to know, for now it was plain that they had gone along by the brook. So she started swiftly up the hill, pushing the bushes aside, with the little white kitten running before her, and as it was not nearly a mile nor even a quarter, that the little ones had gone, she soon reached the spot where Susie stood wearily in the grasp of the brief bush, and Ben sat patiently waiting at her side. Was there ever a tangle that a mamma could not set right? Gently and skillfully she freed first the curls, and then the little dress, and then with her light-hearted girl and boy followed the stream back again, just in time to meet papa as he came to dinner.

The Grandest Canyon in Colorado

Gunnnison News. The grand canyon of the Gunnison, which begins only a short distance from town, is equal in grandeur and wildness Their mamma was busy baking, and they went to play by the little brook in the yard. They were making a bridge of scenery to the canyon of the Colorado, and throws the canyon of the Arkansas into the shade. It is upward of ninety miles long and the mountains rise on either side to the height of upward o 5,000 feet. As yet the trout alone trav erse the cleft mountain pass. The quickest way to send or get a dispatch from the outside world is via Lake City. The time consumed between Lake City and time consumed between Lake City and Gunnison is one stage, or twelve hours, while a dispatch from South Arkansas requires five days to reach here, as it follows the present very circuitous mail route and takes the back track to Pueblo, route and takes the back track to Pueblo, thence to Alamosa, Lake City and Gunnison, over 390 miles out of a direct line. Thus a dispatch from Denver to Gunnison, via South Arkansas, would take two days longer to reach its destination than would a letter from the same point. A Scene at the Arion Ball.

Among the gay maskers that crowded the floor at the Arion Ball on Thursday evening was one lady who apparently defied all efforts at detection. She seemed familiar with many notable people, and her frequent mention of their names and associations fairly puzzled them to locate her identity. When masks were taken off, and recognition followed recognition, many good jokes were laughed over when discoveries were made as to personality.

But amid all this scene no one seemed to recognize the strange lady masker; her face was devoid of all disguise, and while she still persisted in calling many by name, none seemed to know her, until at last a gentleman with whom she was in conversation exclaimed: "Why, you are Mrs.—

(mentioning the name of a lady well known to out thester, were for the past thirty years.") (mentioning the name of a lady well known to our theater-goers for the past thirty years.) What have you been doing to yourself? You look—well, certainly not over twenty-five. (She is double that.) This is, without exception, the most wonderful transformation scene I have ever witnessed." "Well," replied the lady, acknowledging her identity, "I don't mind telling you, or anybody else for that matter, for I do not believe in keeping so important a matter secret, particularly so important a matter secret, particularly when my own sex can receive so much benefit. You know very well how wrinkled my face had become, and how many great horrid red freekles I had, and in fact I was horrid red treckles I had, and in fact I was becoming generally passe.
