Reelect Fairman Red Cross Head At Annual Meet

E. T. Fairman was re-elected Chairman of the Mills County Chapter of the American Red Cross at the organization's annual meeting last Saturday morning at the Court House. Other officers who were re-elected for the coming year were Warren P. Duren, Vice Chairman; and Glenn Collier, Secretary-Treasurer.

E. T. FAIRMAN

Officers who were appointed were Walter Sams, First Aid Chairman; Mrs. Delton Earnest, Junior Red Cross Chairman; and Ray Duren, Disaster Relief Chairman. Brian Smith was re-appointed Executive Secretary.

In his annual report, Executive Secretary Smith said that for the eleven months ending last May 31, 152 home relief cases were handled, including those involving 20 men on active military service, 118 veterans and 14 civilians. Financial relief was given in 29 cases. Mr. Smith said also that two disaster relief cases were handled and received financial aid.

A splendid camp and hospital report tendered by Mr. Smith showed that in the eleven months up to May 31, patients at the Veterans Hospital in Waco received 95 gifts from the Mills County Chapter of the American Red Cross. The Chapter, in cooperation with the Goldthwaite Lions Club, conducted "Open Houses" for the veterans at Waco on July 10 and October 16 of last year and on January 22 and April 30 of this year. In connection with the "Open Houses," the Chapter and the Lions gave to the veterans at Waco 20 pounds of candies, eight cartons of cigarettes, a violin, and 77 home-made cakes. In addition, Christmas decorations were provided for the Waco veterans last December.

In submitting the accident prevention report for the period of eleven months that ended last May 31, Mr. Smith said that as the result of a course of instruction taught by Ed Gilliam, seven teachers qualified as instructors. In the local schools, 95 students completed the junior accident prevention course.

Gene Dyas In As Jaycee President

Eugene L. Dyas was installed as President of the Goldthwaite Junior Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the Jaycees at the Hangar last Wednesday night.

Yah! Yah! Yah! San Saba Calls On Our Square Dancers For Help

San Saba is off to what the denizens of that remote village hope will be a successful Rodeo, now that Goldthwaite square dancers have gone to their help in the kick-off parade.

The parade that opened the San Saba Rodeo yesterday, Thursday, was assured of success when a square from the Goldthwaite Square Dance Club went down to San Saba, danced in what is considered a square in those parts, and rode a float.

With the ladies in their red and white polka dot frocks and our men in gray shirts with red trimming, the Goldthwaite Square Dance Club helped out San Saba with a square composed of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Johnson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Mohler Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Letbetter, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Letbetter.

The float (contributed by San Saba) was decked in the colors of the Goldthwaite Square Dancers. Jack Locklear went along as caller. (San Saba also contributed a fiddle band.)

Yoo hoo, San Saba. Call on Goldthwaite—any time you need help. Goldthwaite has what it takes.

Tours Next Week To Observe Soil Saving Practices

The Goldthwaite Farm and Ranch Group will make a tour of the Caradan and Priddy communities next Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons to observe conservation practices applied to the land and especially to see various fields of Madrid Clover. The same tour will be conducted each afternoon so that everyone who would want to go can select the most convenient time to make the tour.

The visitors will gather at the Mills County Agricultural Building and leave at 1:30 p. m.

The first stop will be at the T. F. Sansom farm on the Caradan Farm - to - Market Road. Points of interest will be described by Ben R. Day and Work Unit staff members all along the route. The tour will go through Dr. T. C. Graves' ranch, and visitors will see the trial planting of King Ranch bluestem along with other conservation practices being carried out on his ranch. The tour route includes the Washboard Group, the Pfluger Group and will wind up on the J. E. Priddy farm.

Contract Is Let For Repair Work On Court House

The Commissioners Court this week contracted with Truett Aldridge to spruce up the Mills County Court House.

In behalf of the Court, County Judge L. B. Porter and Commissioner J. Y. Tullos signed with Mr. Aldridge a contract to paint and repair all of the windows and outside doors in the Court House.

The contract, which was signed last Monday, provided that work to give the Court House a new look would start within 15 days from the signing of the contract.

Mr. Aldridge was the lowest of several bidders who had responded to a call for bids by the Commissioners Court. The sum agreed upon for the repair of the Court House windows and outside doors was $1,200.00, with Mr. Aldridge providing paint, glass, putty and other materials. Provision was made whereby the Commissioners Court would furnish extra glass and sills if, in the course of the work, it developed that there would be a need for additional materials not called for in the specifications.

The work will be done under the supervision of a member of the Commissioners Court until completion and acceptance of the job by the Court.

Goldthwaite Schools Commended By Austin After Auditor's Check

After the closest possible examination of the Goldthwaite Grammar School and High School, the Texas Education Agency at Austin has sent glowing commendation to Superintendent of Schools H. E. Patton on the administration of the public schools here.

During the last week of the academic term, three different auditors from the Texas Education Agency at Austin scrutinized the local school records.

There was the usual routine audit of the accounts of the school lunch room. Another examination was made in Goldthwaite by a representative of the accrediting committee of the Texas Education Agency. A third auditor also made his own independent check of permanent record cards, attendance records, and other files of the Goldthwaite school administration.

The gratifying findings of the auditor were reflected in a letter to Superintendent Patton from P. E. Hutchinson, who is the Program Review Officer of the Texas Education Agency.

"May we express our appreciation for the helpful manner in which you assisted the auditor from the Texas Education Agency who was in your school recently," Mr. Hutchinson wrote to Superintendent Patton.

"The audit report shows your average daily attendance for the first eight months of the current school year to be 506.14. All accounts and records of your school appear to be in good order and meet the requirements of the Texas Education Agency. . . . We wish to again thank you for the courteous reception extended the auditor on his last visit."

School Figures Filed In Austin Make Good Quizz

Annual reports that were filed in Austin this week by County Judge L. B. Porter in his capacity as Mills County Superintendent of Schools, ex-officio, disclosed some highly interesting facts.

Mrs. Lois Hudson, who is Assistant County Superintendent of Schools, made a summary of the reports. Then, she posed the question, "Did You Know That?"

Of the approximately 575 children enrolled in the County schools at Star, Priddy and Mullin, all received a medical examination either by the school nurse or family physician.

That defects were found in 250 children, with 127 suffering from deficient vision, six from speech disorders, eight from deficient hearing, 19 from lowered vitality and nine from nervous disorders.

Mrs. Hudson pointed out that cumulative health records were kept up to date for each pupil, and that approximately 300 minutes a week were devoted to health instruction in the different grades in the schools.

Courses were taught in safety education and driver training education in the schools, Mrs. Hudson said.

She added that Judge Porter's reports to Austin also showed that for the four County schools in Goldthwaite, Mullin, Star and Priddy, 24 bus drivers received a total of $12,600.00, that the fuel for the buses cost $5,766.00, that tires and tubes cost $1,019.85, that batteries cost $142.30, that repairs to the buses cost $4,827.94 and that the cost of Mills County school bus transportation, as paid by the State, added up to $35,184.30.

In announcing the summary of the reports, Judge Porter and Mrs. Hudson stressed the importance of State Aid to Mills County Schools. They pointed to the necessity of maintaining a high daily average attendance, and they emphasized to parents that if children miss school and fail to ride the buses for only 13 days each school year they cause the County to lose State aid that otherwise would be granted.

Parents also were reminded that the average daily attendance of each child determines the number of teachers that the schools may have and the amount of money paid to Mills County Schools. Each school day missed by a child is not only a loss to his education but also causes his school to lose teacher units and funds.

Democrats Meet Next Monday AM At Court House

The Executive Committee of the Mills County Democratic Committee will meet at the Mills County Court House at nine o'clock Monday morning, June 19, it was announced this week by Joe Palmer, Chairman.

The chief purpose of the meeting will be to prepare for the July 22 Democratic primary election, at which there will be voting for nominees on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Palmer said that at the meeting next Monday morning, names will be drawn for places on the ballot and other business necessary to preparation for the primary will be transacted.

New Land Erosion Hazard Is Found And Coped With By The Soil Service

A new erosion hazard that threatens to hinder the establishment of other conservation measures has been discovered by technicians of the Soil Conservation Service and is being studied here by Charles Haenisch, Soil Conservationist with the Goldthwaite Work Unit. Some farmers are having difficulty in getting cover crops of vetch and clover established. Crops suffer for moisture soon after a rain, and the excessive runoff from some fields indicates that something is causing the soil to shed much-needed water during a rain.

Mr. Haenisch, in several tests on different soils in this area, has discovered a "restrictive layer" in the soil profile at the bottom of the plow sole that is causing the greatest damage. The restrictive layer is not exactly a hard pan, since it is about one inch thick and is made up of fine particles of soil that make it practically waterproof. Usually this restrictive layer is found 4 to 6 inches under the soil surface, and forms a bottle-neck that impedes the flow of water through the soil. Deep plowing has only a temporary effect in breaking up this layer.

In the test that Mr. Haenisch uses to determine the extent of this inhibiting factor, he holds a given amount of water on the soil surface with concentric rings and measures the amount of water that the soil will take up at five minute intervals. Each test is run until the soil takes up water at a uniform rate for an hour. The rate of water in-take in the soil profile is expressed as the number of inches of rainfall per hour that the soil will absorb after it becomes saturated. It measures the permeability of the soil.

To prove that a restrictive layer existed in some of our soil, Mr. Haenisch set up his concentric rings in a stubble field and found the soil would take in 1.2 inches of water per hour. He then removed 6 inches of the top soil and repeated the test. The subsoil soaked up water at the rate of 7.5 inches per hour. An adjoining cotton field took in only one-quarter inch per hour. A buffalo pasture over the fence allowed 5.25 inches per hour to pass through its profile. A 3.5 inch rain caused serious damage to this field. Since the soil could not absorb the rainfall, the excessive runoff scoured the land and broke the terraces.

In the Priddy community, a field of pasture land that had been plowed up and planted to cotton had an intake rate of 6.25 inches per hour. No runoff was observed in this field during a 4 inch rain. The adjoining field that had been in cultivation for some time had a permeability rate of only one inch per hour.

What causes this restrictive layer to form is the question the conservation farmers and ranchers are asking. Mr. Haen-sch believes that the lack of organic matter in soil is allowing the finely ground particles of soil to settle on the subsoil. After the first few rains, the particles cement together, making an impervious layer in the soil. Mr. Haenisch compares this process to the action of sugar that is poured on prepared breakfast cereal. When the milk is poured on the cereal, the sugar settles to the bottom of the bowl.

Another factor which prevents the free flow of water through the soil is the compaction which results from the travel of rubber tired tractors and implements over the soil, especially when the soil is moist. When livestock are allowed to graze on wet fields, compaction and puddling result. It is this water-proofed condition of the soil that causes high runoff rates, that shuts out the air in the soil, and causes crops to suffer because no water is stored up.

How can the conservation farmer and rancher break up this bottle-neck in the soil and make the land absorptive again? Four years of hairy vetch on T. F. Sansom farm, one mile East of Goldthwaite, improved the soil condition to the extent that it would take up 6.5 inches per hour. Deep-rooted perennial grasses on the Sulton Dudley ranch near Democrat opened the soil so that it would soak up 7.0 inches of water per hour. There are no erosion hazards in these two fields. James Aldridge, Democrat farmer, studied the problem and decided to use flat sweeps to break up the restrictive layer. He ran the sweeps 7 inches deep and bedded and rebudded the field that was to be seeded to wheat. A tandem disc leveled the land and left most of the dead straw on top of the soil. When Mr. Haenisch checked the permeability of this field last week, he found it would take 4 inches of water per hour. Mr. Aldridge can prove that he lost no runoff water from his terrace outlets this year. Conventional plowing, Mr. Haenisch found, increased ject to the July 22 Democratic Primary.

Now, Ben Ramsey is going around the state of Texas, meeting people, giving them a chance to know him, and asking them to hear about his ideas of government. It was fairly late in the day when Ben Ramsey came to Goldthwaite this week, but he assured me that he will be back. I kept him so long as I picked his brain and tried to look into his heart that he spent just about all his time at our house. He was frankly politicking when he arrived, but I felt, when he left, that a friend had departed—even if my wife was gazing longingly after that dimple.

I did what I could to encourage Ben Ramsey to go full speed ahead with his politicking. I told him what I have said in the editorial columns of the Eagle—that politicking is the way free men govern themselves. Ben Ramsey is alert to the dangers to our freedoms, and I believe that if we had more men like him in public office, we would have less reason to worry about what the Socialists and economic planners are doing to us.

Ben Ramsey calls himself "just a country lawyer." If that is what he is, then I am all for country lawyers. I believe that a man's politics should be governed by his intelligence and by his honest belief in what he considers to be best for the most people. I have no patience with Party regularity or with the idea that a man inherits his politics and that once having voted for the candidate of any given Party, he should vote ever afterward for candidates of that Party. As a rule, politicians rate me pretty low because I am proud to be an Independent; it is the Independents who often upset the apple cart in elections. But I think any man could look himself straight in the eye when he shaves and feel right comfortable about being willing to delegate his powers as a free citizen to a political candidate like Ben Ramsey.

If ever you have a chance to sit down for a long chat with Ben Ramsey, I think you will enjoy yourself. He is a good story teller and he has a rich store of good stories on which to draw. But to my mind, the most important thing about him is that he is motivated by a great desire to serve his fellow-men. He is aware that he has had a valuable experience in public life here in Texas and he wants to use that experience in the office of the Lieutenant Governor.

In one of his printed pamphlets, it says of Ben Ramsey: "He believes in the things you believe in." That, I think is so, if you believe in human freedom in the dignity of the human individual, in efficient, economical and unselfish government—government in the interest of the welfare of people and not government for the sake of perpetuating machine politicians in office.

Good luck, Ben Ramsey. Come and pull our latchstring again. Since you want to be the Lieutenant Governor of the great state of Texas, I think you deserve to be elected—and I think Texas would be fortunate in having you back in public life.

Rodeo

Some of the finest stock, equipment and human talent has been brought to Mills County for the Rodeo by the Producers, Buck and Tommy Steiner. The Rodeo itself, as planned by the Mills County Rodeo Association, is a tribute to the war veterans of the County.

Local entrants in the calf roping contest will include Malcolm Jernigan, who is President of the Mills County Rodeo Association; Howard Spinks of Goldthwaite, and Henry Schoen of Priddy. The list of Mills County amateurs who will try bull riding was published in the Eagle last week. It includes Les Bain, Howard Campbell, Mayor Loy Long, Burl Holland, Everitt Holland, Jack Long, Jack Locklear and Howard Spinks.

Archer set for himself a deadline of 45 days for a Grand Reopening. He said he was deeply grateful for countless expressions of sympathy, and he took in stride and with good spirit a great deal of joshing, including suggestions that he might find it easier to do business on the sidewalk rather than inside the store.

Despite the fire in the Archer Grocery, business continued as usual in the adjoining stores of Yarborough & Duren and the H. B. Davis 5 and 10 cents store.

Mr. Archer said that pending a complete inventory and the sorting of his stock he was unable to make a precise estimate of the damage resulting from the fire.

The guest speaker of the evening was J. F. Saegert, father of Jesse Saegert of Goldthwaite. Mr. Saegert told of his experiences in public school education over a span of 45 years. During that period he was a teacher, a principal, a county superintendent and for 29 years he was superintendent of schools at Seguin.

A buffalo pasture over the fence allowed 5.25 inches per hour to pass through its profile. A 3.5 inch rain caused serious damage to this field. Since the soil could not absorb the rainfall, the excessive runoff scoured the land and broke the terraces.

In the Priddy community, a field of pasture land that had been plowed up and planted to cotton had an intake rate of 6.25 inches per hour. No runoff was observed in this field during a 4 inch rain. The adjoining field that had been in cultivation for some time had a permeability rate of only one inch per hour.

What causes this restrictive layer to form is the question the conservation farmers and ranchers are asking. Mr. Haen-

sch believes that the lack of organic matter in soil is allowing the finely ground particles of soil to settle on the subsoil. After the first few rains, the particles cement together, making an impervious layer in the soil. Mr. Haenisch compares this process to the action of sugar that is poured on prepared breakfast cereal. When the milk is poured on the cereal, the sugar settles to the bottom of the bowl.

Another factor which prevents the free flow of water through the soil is the compaction which results from the travel of rubber tired tractors and implements over the soil, especially when the soil is moist. When livestock are allowed to graze on wet fields, compaction and puddling result. It is this water-proofed condition of the soil that causes high runoff rates, that shuts out the air in the soil, and causes crops to suffer because no water is stored up.

How can the conservation farmer and rancher break up this bottle-neck in the soil and make the land absorbent again? Four years of hickory vetch on T. F. Sansom farm, one mile East of Goldthwaite, improved the soil condition to the extent that it would take up 6.5 inches per hour. Deep-rooted perennial grasses on the Sutton Dudley ranch near Democrat opened the soil so that it would soak up 7.0 inches of water per hour. There are no erosion hazards in these two fields. James Aldridge, Democrat farmer, studied the problem and decided to use flat sweeps to break up the restrictive layer. He ran the sweeps 7 inches deep and bedded and rebudded the field that was to be seeded to wheat. A tandem disc leveled the land and left most of the dead straw on top of the soil. When Mr. Haenisch checked the permeability of this field last week, he found it would take 4 inches of water per hour. Mr. Aldridge can prove that he lost no runoff water from his terrace outlets this year. Conventional plowing, Mr. Haenisch found, increased

FATHER'S DAY

By KELLAR D. CLENDENING

Father, generous, faithful—
 Always true and kind,
 Trustworthy, able and willing,
 Honest, respectful, sincere;
 Earnest, obliging and cheerful—
 Righteous, courteous and dear.

Generous, faithful, father—
 Energetic, loyal and helpful,
 Never the poor to abuse;
 Eager, hopeful and pleasant—
 Revenge — he would not use.
 Orderliness was his watchword,
 Under no load would he shirk—
 Songs were an aid to his work.

Faithful, generous, father—
 Always a friend, when needed.
 In every task was his soul;
 Tirelessly planning and toiling—
 Holding fast to his goal;
 Fearlessly fighting life's battle,
 Unswerving in service and faith—
 Lighting life's path with his soul.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harris and children visited several days with relatives in Silsbee and Beaumont. Her mother, Mrs. A. B. Sheppard, who has been visiting her daughters, accompanied them back to Goldthwaite.

ARE TEXANS MEN OR SHEEP?

Our own Congressman, Representative O. Clark Fisher of the 21st Congressional District, is a member of the political party that has been in power nationally in this country for 17 years. In his column on this page this week, Representative Fisher starts off by saying: "A solemn contract made between the Republic of Texas and the United States defining the conditions under which Texans would enter the Union was scrapped and repudiated last week..."

The tremendous loss to our public education system threatened by the Tidelands decision is serious enough, of itself, but there is at stake also the great principle of freedom for men whose record is not one of the docility of the sheep who graze on Texas pastures.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

By Congressman O. C. FISHER

On June 2, the editor wrote in the Eagle's Aery of his grave concern over the fact that we are on the road to war.

A solemn contract made between the Republic of Texas and the United States defining the conditions under which Texas would enter the Union, was scrapped and repudiated last week when the Supreme Court by a 4-to-3 decision held that the confines of Texas as set out in the annexation agreement is no longer binding on the Federal government.

It was the Tidelands case—a billion dollar lawsuit—whereby ownership and all income from minerals under the submerged coastal lands will go to Uncle Sam following June 23, 1947, and not to the school children of Texas as has been the case since Texas agreed to enter the Union.

Let's remember the names of the three men on the Supreme Court who affirmed the principle of sanctity of contract in making their decision. They were Justices Reed, Minton and Frankfurter.

And while we're at it—not that it will make much difference, I suppose—let's remember the names of the four who held otherwise. These were Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Douglas, Black and Burton.

A reading of the opinions by Justice Douglas for the majority and Justices Reed and Frankfurter for the minority, is both interesting and revealing.

"The Congress of Texas," wrote Douglas, "on December 19, 1836, passed an act defining the boundaries of the Republic. The southern boundary was described as follows: 'beginning at the mouth of the Sabine River, and running west along the Gulf of Mexico three leagues from land, to the mouth of the Rio Grande.'"

The Justice, in reciting the historic facts, conceded that the annexation agreement contained the provision that Texas "shall also retain all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits."

But despite these solemn and stubborn facts, the Justice proceeded to theorize that when Texas came in she agreed to other states and therefore must have retained nothing other states did not retain, and ruled in effect that therefore the United States is not bound by the contract of annexation.

The weak logic of the majority opinion was exposed by Justice Reed in a brief dissent. His opinion is based upon judicial reason and not on a political philosophy. Here are a few of his expressions:

"Equal footing", he pointed out, "has heretofore brought to a State the ownership of river beds, but never before has that phrase been interpreted to take away from a newly admitted State property that it had theretofore owned. I see no constitutional requirement that this be done and I think the Resolution of Annexation left the marginal sea area in Texas. The resolution expressly consented that Texas should retain all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits."

Mr. Frankfurter in taunting the majority opinion for robbing Texas of its rights as set forth in the annexation contract, recognized the binding effect of the agreement and the undisputed fact that Texas owned the tidelands when admitted. In conclusion he expressed amazement at the majority opinion: "The Court now decides," he concluded, "that when Texas entered the Union she lost what she had and the United States acquired it. How that shift came to pass remains a mystery to me."

The Eagle's Aery

By The Editor

On June 2, the editor wrote in the Eagle's Aery of his grave concern over the fact that we are on the road to war. Since then, he has received from Mrs. J. S. Owens a very moving letter. It raises the most important question of "what can we do?" about the direction in which the world is heading.

"Dear Mr. Ekins: I have just finished reading 'The Eagle's Aery' (of June 2) and I feel that I must write to you. But first of all, please understand that I am writing to you personally, not to the Eagle. I do not doubt, as you say, that millions of Americans go about their daily living, heedless of the grave condition of world affairs. But there are many of us common folk, plain, every-day people, who are very fearful. What can we do about it?"

"Since the last war, I have seen no hope whatever for world peace. The future has looked so grim and threatening. I have been so very, very afraid. It seems that our leaders care for nothing but their own ambitions as politicians. But what can we do?"

"Our oldest son was killed during the last war. He was just a kid of 19—a boy who had been away from home very little, who knew only friendliness, kindness and love. He was just a kid who had not the slightest idea of what war was like and, with the least possible training, was sent out to the hell of Okinawa as a replacement. He was killed after having been in the army for ten months. (The son of whom Mrs. Owens writes was James Thomas Owens, who served with the Seventh Infantry Division during the campaign on Okinawa, where he was killed in action on May 24, 1945. The Military Order of the Purple Heart was awarded to him posthumously.)"

"We have three 'teen age boys at home. The oldest will be 18 next November. They are just happy-go-lucky farm boys who still are going to school, who walk with their Dad, love fishing and swimming—they are just typical country boys. Must they, too, be sacrificed in a world war? God forbid! But what can we do?"

"I love my family. I can feed them, make their beds, and keep their clothes clean and mended. I can make a home for them, advise them, fuss at them—and love them. And, I can pray for them. Is there anything else that a woman such as I can do? Mr. Ekins, you are a man who has seen humanity suffer the agonies of war in many lands. You have a grasp of world affairs that is denied to most of us. As a man who can see and understand world conditions, who has an understanding of people, I ask you: What can we do?"

When that letter reached the Eagle's Aery, it was signed, simply, "Sincerely yours, Mrs. Farmer." It was easy to know, however, with the clues of a son who was killed on Okinawa and three 'teen age boys at home, that the writer was Mrs. J. S. Owens of Route 3, Goldthwaite. So the editor asked Mrs. Owens for permission to share her wonderful letter with all our readers.

Rain is about the most frequent thing we have these days, making it hard for farmers to get their planting done, their crops plowed, and their grain harvested. More than one combine worked Sunday afternoon trying to save some of the ripened grain.

The Nelson Williams family of Junction brought Mrs. Callie Egger to the Cecil Egger home Saturday. They returned home Monday, but Mrs. Egger will stay with the Cecil Eggers for awhile.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Reeves had for guests Wednesday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie, of Mullin; her sisters, Misses Nell and Shirley Guthrie, of Baytown; and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Guthrie of San Antonio. The Ted Guthries were on their way to Maine where he works every summer.

Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Mitchell and children returned to Beaumont Saturday after a week's stay at the Briley home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Smith spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wilkins at Ridge. They found visiting there Cleta and Wanda Egger, children of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Egger of Eldorado. They brought Wanda, a charming little beauty, home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Blue Thompson and Ezelle went to Comanche Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lockett.

The Griffins visited Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Crowder at Eastland Saturday. They brought back with them Norma Sue and Cecil Jr.

Bro. Little of A. C. C., who preaches for the Church of Christ at Mullin, and Mr. and Mrs. Brack of Mullin were in our community Sunday afternoon. They called at the Whitteburg home, the Stanley Reeves home, and the Briley home.

At the Eugene Egger home Bill Ketchum of Goldthwaite spent Saturday night, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Egger spent Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wilmeth, Miss Marie Wilmeth, and Mrs. Ralph Wilmeth and children, Lucy Gale, Nancy, and Joe, spent Thursday at the Briley home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert McMullen visited at the Griffin home Saturday afternoon. They promise to attend our singing next time. We surely would welcome Hubert's excellent bass.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Caywer and Elizabeth of Orange arrived Thursday night for a brief visit with Mrs. Edna Dwyer. Saturday they visited Austin's mother at Brady. They returned to Orange Sunday. Mrs. Caywer is taking her M. A. from the University of Houston this summer.

Mrs. Stanley Reeves had for her guests Sunday night her sisters, Mrs. Hawkins White of Brownsville and Mrs. Lanford of Ardmore, Okla. Mrs. White returned to Brownsville Monday, but Mrs. Lanford remained for a longer visit.

Mrs. Wm. A. Belich and Billy of Lubbock arrived at the Briley home Saturday and returned to Lubbock Monday. Bill was gone to Detroit to visit his relatives. He was to return Sunday and go to work for the Firestone Co. at Lubbock Monday.

Mrs. W. A. Burn writes from England that she and Mr. Burn were leaving there May 27 by plane and would arrive at Manila about June 6.

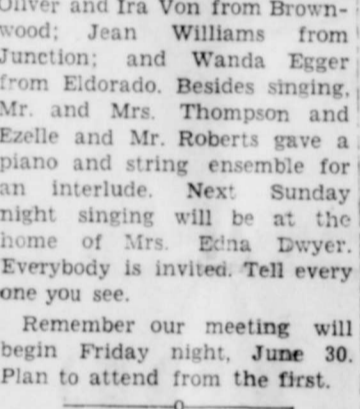

Miss Marie Wilmeth, head of the Homemaking Department at Abilene Christian College, left Wednesday for Manhattan, Kansas where she will spend the next two years taking her doctor's degree.

We were happy over our singing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Egger Sunday night. Added attendants from our own community included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reynolds and Thelma Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Howse and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Egger, and Mrs. Edna Dwyer. Attending from out of the community were Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Turbiville and Frances and Laura Lea and Mrs. Dale Reid and Benna and Judy from Goldthwaite; Melva Jo Pafford from Ridge; Jo Ann and Shirley Rowlett and Mr. and Mrs. Hulon Egger and children from Regency; Mr. and Mrs. Daz Oliver and Ira Von from Brownwood; Jean Williams from Junction; and Wanda Egger from Eldorado. Besides singing, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and Ezelle and Mr. Roberts gave a piano and string ensemble for an interlude. Next Sunday night singing will be at the home of Mrs. Edna Dwyer. Everybody is invited. Tell every one you see.

Remember our meeting will begin Friday night, June 30. Plan to attend from the first.

SWELL PARTY
Barnes & McCullough, "Everything To Build Anything," on the night of June 7 entertained just about all the carpenters and painters in Mills County. A Duco representative showed a movie film and even gave away samples of his product (paint). The nearly 30 men who were present had a wonderful time for themselves at what has become to be a Barnes & McCullough habit.

Jamboree Scouts Invite Public To Br'wood Sunday

Four Goldthwaite Boy Scouts—Lathon Jernigan, Penn Barnett, Ray Campbell Hudson and James Gilliam—will spend the coming weekend at Lake Brownwood in preparation for their trip later this month to the National Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania.

Lathon Jernigan joined the local Jamboree delegation following the announcement of a vacancy in the Comanche Trail Council's quota.

At Brownwood this weekend, the Scouts will duplicate the Jamboree setting—an Indian village—and parents, friends and the public are invited to see it for themselves Sunday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:00 o'clock, when there also will be an exhibition of Indian dancing. The weekend shakedown camp will be at the State Park on Lake Brownwood.

The Goldthwaite Scouts, who will be accompanied by Dr. T. C. Graves, will leave for the Valley Forge Jamboree on the morning of June 24.

(Continued from Editorial page) ous decisions as this that has brought the great Supreme Court into so much public disrespect in recent years.

While our able Attorney General, Price Daniels, will file a motion for a rehearing, the chances of getting one of the judges to reverse his decision against Texas are, of course, extremely remote. Daniels did a brilliant job in presenting the case in behalf of Texas. But the cards were stacked. Now, Congress will try again. A bill will likely come before the House soon to undo the Supreme Court decision and quit-claim all minerals under tidelands to the respective coastal States. But chances for enactment at this session are very remote, what with the President being sure to veto any bill that may be passed. I predict the House will pass a tidelands bill by a substantial majority. But we will get considerably fewer votes than we received for a similar bill before the 89th Congress when only 29 House votes were registered against it. The Senate, however, did not act, and facing a crowded calendar it is rather doubtful that the Senate will act this time.

Faith Is Theme Of Methodist Services

It will be recalled that three years ago both the House and Senate passed a Tidelands bill but President Truman vetoed it. It will be a long and hard battle to get the Supreme Court's injustice corrected but surely right will eventually prevail.

Eagle's Aer

Your letter, Mrs. Owens, shows that despite your fears you do not want to despair; you do not want to quit and see your three living boys go off as cannon fodder. Don't quit, please don't. In your own work-a-day world, you are doing everything you can to contribute to peace and happiness. If you, and everybody else who cares, will try to make those whose lives we touch understand that they are centers of influence, then there could be a tremendous road of protest against the insanity of war. But it will have to come soon, and the protest will have to be loud enough to reach the ears of enslaved peoples who have been indoctrinated against us and against all other men and women of goodwill.

We came out of the last war in a position to say that we would use our strength and know-how to see to it that nobody could obtain from us the means of making war. We could have kept the promises of the Atlantic Charter that were made to oppressed and colonial peoples who thirsted for freedom. We could have said in plain terms that we recognized Communism as an evil as monstrous as Nazism or Fascism, and that we would not appease it. We could have refused to sanction the veto power in the United Nations. We could have applied in Asia the same policies we tried to apply in Europe, and so could have saved China from being engulfed by the Red tide.

We failed. The voices of warning that were raised were too few. It was easier for most people to drift and to be bothered only about their own selfish concerns than it was for them to exert their energies against the repetition of tragedy. I have pondered your letter for several days, Mrs. Owens. I have thought about it in the still, dark watches of the night. I have concluded that if there were enough persons like you there still might be hope. You, now, can only talk to as many people as you can—to your friends and neighbors. Talk from your good mind, and from the heart in which you bear your sorrow. You can help to make more people have the awareness of danger, where not enough of them had it before. You and those whose lives you touch may be able to light a spark that, if it keeps flickering through the next dark valley, could break into a shining light to help generations yet unborn.

Human life is not just a matter of one generation, Mrs. Owens. What you are doing and can continue to do with those three boys of yours well could be the answer to the question you ask so persistently in your fine letter.

By ORA BLACK (Written For Last Week.)

The rain out our way for the past few days has amounted to several inches. Our grandson, Huntis Black has a government gauge but we've failed to get the exact amount up to date. Our other grandson, Layton, a lad of 10 years is bringing down a good salary or at least he's happy over the pay checks each week. Today (Monday) he brought in a brand new pair of boots, a rodeo shirt and a tie so we are guessing he is to be in the parade Thursday and believe me he's a good rider as well as his big brother.

Mrs. Flo Wilke and father spent the week end in Ballinger, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cherry.

Sunday Mrs. C. H. Black and son, Layton, the writer and Billie motored seven miles below Lampasas to one of nature's lovely spots of Sulphur creek to visit an Aunt, Mrs. Lizzie Bradley who will celebrate her 93rd birthday the 25th of this month. Aunt Lizzie is very active and has a keen interest in current events and when it comes to playing games with cards and dominoes such as canasta and rummy, you will have to be very good to win. All of her seven living children and their families plan to be present for her birthday.

Mrs. Chas. Wright of Mullin and Mrs. Earl Blake of Brownwood visited Friday with their mother, Ora Black.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Henry and children, Imola, and DeWayne called Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bishop.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlie O'Bannon were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Forehand and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of Killen were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Brown.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 18.

The Golden Text is: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God . . . All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be still and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth" (Psalms 46:10).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Belief is changeable, but spiritual understanding is changeless" (page 96).

High Blood Pressure

Hardening of Arteries, Pains in Left Arm And Side—

Elmer G. Johnson, President of Harlingen State Bank, Harlingen, Texas, writes on Feb. 20, 1948:

"Please send another bottle of Liquid Garlic, also send a bottle to my sister-in-law, Mrs. Hulda C. Dutton, 45 Atwater Terrace, Springfield, Mo.

"I have some good reports to make on the effectiveness of garlic used. Mr. Turner, Texaco dealer here has taken two bottles and is much better, his blood pressure down about 60 points. Mrs. W. F. Nelson, San Benito, who was in bad shape, is also very much better and her blood pressure down considerable. This garlic works, and you are doing a fine job of producing it for the benefit of those suffering from high blood pressure or heart trouble."

Whose Home Are You Buying?

Look at it this way: Every month's rent you pay your landlord could be going into a home that will be all yours someday—if you buy or build your own home. Our home-financing plan calls for monthly payments—just like rent—that fit your budget. It never requires lump sum payments, never needs refinancing. Let's Talk It Over!

Madrid Clover being used for grazing, hay, and soil improvement will be seen under every condition. Questions on when to plant, how much to sow, and how to use Madrid Clover, will be answered by farmers who have had experience with it.

Dr. Graves, leader of the Group, points out that the tour will be an opportunity for farmers and ranchers to observe what the other fellow is doing to protect and improve his soil. He urges everyone who possibly can to make the tour during one of the three days—Jans 22, 23 and 24.

Soules Burned At A & M Lab When Acid Spills

J. T. Soules, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther H. Soules, Sr., of Goldthwaite, was severely burned on his forehead, wrist, right arm and shoulder last Friday night, June 9, about 8:15. The accident occurred in the A. & M. laboratory at College Station, when Mr. Soules went to place a bottle of sulphuric acid on a shelf above his head. The bottle tipped over, pouring the acid over him and disintegrating his clothing. His right eye was also injured, but it is believed that his sight is not permanently impaired.

Mr. Soules will be in the hospital for some time, and is doing as well as can be expected. He is in the A. & M. Campus hospital at College Station.

Mr. Soules is to receive his Master's Degree in Agricultural Science from Texas A. & M. College in July.

Land Hazard

(Continued From First Page.) the water in-take to 2.75 inches per hour, but after the soil had been wet for 17 hours, the rate of intake was reduced to 1 inch per hour.

Mr. Haensch says that a farmer can probably find a restrictive layer in his field if it does not produce crops as it should. Vetch and Sweetclovers will not grow in fields where the soil is compacted and void of air space. Proper plowing and a good growth of hairy vetch, Austrian winter peas and sweetclovers seem to be the solution to eliminating the inhibiting layer to crop production. Heavy applications of organic matter, Mr. Haensch believes, will soon make the soil absorptive and it will hold the rain where it falls.

Deep-rooted perennial grasses on range land allows water to enter the soil at a faster rate than do inferior grasses on an overgrazed range.

"The rainwater that gets in the soil is what makes the crops grow," Mr. Haensch says. "Every farmer and rancher should have a blotter on his land instead of a raincoat, so that it will soak up the rain when it falls."

Mr. Haensch said that if a field will absorb 4 inches of water per hour, not many rains will wash it away.
