CITY WATER RESTRICTIONS ARE STILL ON

Restrictions on using water for outdoor purposes are still in effect according to announcement by City Utilities officials. Water customers were notified to refrain from using water for lawns and gardens last week Wednesday when, due to the hot dry weather, the demand was getting greater than the supply.

Officials have pointed out that with the cooperation of all water users there will be sufficient water to supply all customers for domestic needs.

They are hopeful that there will be sufficient gain in the supply so that folks can be allowed to water shrubs before too many days. Customers will be notified to that effect.

In the meantime folks are asked for their continued cooperation by refraining from using water for outdoor purposes.

COLLEGE STATION, (Spec.)

Producers of wool and lambs have until August 19 to cast a ballot for or against putting Section 708 of the National Wool Act of 1954 into effect. The Section provides for an agreement covering advertising and promotional, and related market activities on wool and lambs.

The agreement between the recent organized American Sheep Producers Council and the Secretary of Agriculture provides for deductions from wool incentive and lamb and yearling sheep (pulled wool compensating) payments made to producers under the Wool Act. These deductions will provide a means of financing the market development program. To put the agreement into effect, producers owning at least two-thirds of the sheep and lambs represented by votes in the referendum must cast favorable votes.

If the agreement is approved, the deduction from payments for the 1955 incentive program, to be made in the summer of 1956, will be one cent a pound from shorn wool payments and five cents a hundred pounds of live weight from lamb and yearling payments. The funds will be used by the Council to promote the industry.

Ballots are now available at local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices in each county of the state. Detailed information on eligibility of voters and how the program will operate is available from this same source and producers are urged to become familiar with the question to be decided.

Officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture point out that Section 708 of the legislation enables wool and sheep producers to meet some of their problems on a "self-help" basis and thereby assist in accomplishing the overall object of a stabilized sheep and wool producing industry. The extended voting period is being permitted to give every eligible sheep producer an opportunity to vote. Results of the referendum will not be known until early September.

Experiments Show Spot Oiling Of Johnsongrass Gives 99 Percent Kill

COLLEGE STATION, (Spec.) — Farmers can now get rid of Johnsongrass completely without swinging a hoe.

Spot application of diesel and naphtha-type oil sprays is proving a practical answer to row crop control of Johnsongrass. At College Station four treatments of such oils killed 99 percent of all Johnsongrass in cotton stands in one season. Four trips over a similar field with hand hoes eliminated only 44 percent of the grass.

Homer E. Rea, agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station who has been working with various Johnsongrass killers, believes that successful spot oiling of Johnsongrass is highly significant.

"It does away with intensive hand labor methods which few farmers can afford these days," Rea said.

Varsol 1, Lightfoot 23, No-weed Oil, Lion 1 and Flit 38 are among commercial preparations to use. An ordinary knapsack sprayer applying a half and half mixture of one of these oils and diesel fuel will do the job, Rea explained. About one-third of a teaspoon of oil mixture on the base of each plant is sufficient for results. Best kills are obtained on young grass.

Within hours after the initial treatment Johnsongrass usually this week as they out scored Comfort here Saturday night 9 to 7. The Red Sox were really powerful with the bat Saturday night as they collected eight hits and four of these were for extra bases.

Nute Westerfield was the heavy hitter for the night as he collected three hits in five times at the plate. McLean was next to Nute with two hits in five times at the plate. The Red Sox made a total of nine errors during the game that they had to overcome.

Mike Mistovich, local South Paw, pitched all the game and really did a good job. He struck out 17 batters during the game and scored two of the runs scored by the Red Sox.

Outstanding fielding plays were made by Doggett as he went against the wall in center field to pull down hard hit balls on two different times.

The Hill Country League is fast drawing to a close. Only two more weeks of regular play. Goldthwaite will have to make up a game with Pat's Cubs that was put off during the regular season. This game will probably be played the first Sunday after the season closes.

The Red Sox will go to Fredericksburg next Sunday for a game and then play Boerne here the following Sunday.

Cameron Lumber Company of Waco will be here this Thursday night for a game with the Red Sox. This should be a good game as Waco has always brought a good bunch of ball players here. They have several players from Baylor University. Come out for a good evening of fun at the ball park.

Congress Won't Raise Postal Rates in 1956
Elections Prevent Chance Of Increase Next Year

Special to Central Press Association

WASHINGTON—You can safely bet that Congress won't raise postal rates either this year or next despite the administration's insistence that the post office department must increase its revenues.

P. M. General Summerfield

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, who seeks higher rates to cover the postal service's annual operating loss, made a new plug for them when Eisenhower signed the postal pay bill.

Summerfield said that the $166 million annual cost of the 8.1 per cent pay raise made it more imperative than ever that the Post Office increase its revenues. However, his appeal fell on deaf ears in Congress. Legislators say that any boost in postal rates is still a long, long way off.

SCIENTIFIC DEMANDS—Officials are becoming increasingly alarmed over the government's difficulty in trying to recruit physicists, engineers, chemists and other scientific personnel into federal service.

Although these jobs pay well, they are not being filled rapidly because the apparent fear by some scientists that they will be gagged by government security regulations. They supposedly fear being barred from discussing topics necessary to permit the exchange of ideas in their fields.

A recent case in point are the eight out of 10 scientists who ducked out of a panel discussion on radioactivity because security prevented them from talking about something they were not sure was classified or not.

OPERATION ALERT—The government's latest "Operation Alert" test of civil defenses is being heavily criticized as "worthless." Critics point out that little was learned from the practice dispersal which the public is not already aware of. They see the major civil defense need as less apathy and more interest, arguing that make-believe "games" will only sooth public fears about the real danger.

However, even these cries have helped alert the nation to a subject which will get greater airing in coming months.

VACCINE PROBLEM—Don't think that the troubles of the Salk polio vaccine program are just about over. Government health officials frankly are fearful that there may be many more anarisis in the months to come.

They realize that the number of polio cases will continue to mount as the peak of the polio season approaches and that by mid-summer, many hundreds of vaccinated children may contract the disease.

Government officials say this won't be because of any imperfections or faults in the vaccine—at least they hope not. What they want the public to realize is that the Salk shots do not provide complete immunity against polio.

The truth is that the vaccine won't "take" for a number of children, and immunity is not complete until a youngster has had all three shots required in the inoculation process.

Some of the boys had good luck when they rushed down to the Colorado River a few days back to try and get their share of fish when it was reported the river was on the rise and fish were woosy. While not everyone was fortunate enough to make a catch, one of those who did, was none other than C. D. McLean. In fact he was spending some wet money the next day. He handed a store clerk a dollar bill saying: "That's a wet dollar bill, it got 'dunked' while I jumped in after a big catfish yesterday evening."

The Red Sox started off the season with a bang—winning a number of games in a row—in their 1955 season. For a while it looked like things were going to continue all the way. But, that was too good to be true. When their table was turned they started to go down the other way with a goodly number of games chalked up for them on the losing side. That's baseball for you.

Some of the boys did a good job of getting Charles Conradt fixed up, but good, after he umpired a baseball contest between the Red Sox and the Austin, 7 Up'ers. According to some of the Austin players the Empire should have been killed. In fact they thought he couldn't see. So the next morning some of his fellow businessmen friends brought him a white cane, some dark glasses and a tin cup. But, you know Charles. They just can't outdo him, or undo him. He took up their little game and with his (or their) white cane, dark glasses and tin cup he came up the street to the coffee table with a group of them and carried out the act of a blind man to the best tradition.

and cooler weather while there is less demand for water we have plenty of water. When the extreme hot summer weather hits us, and as a rule little rainfall comes our way about the same time, then we start using more water than the city water system can deliver under such peak demands, and we start thinking about needing more water.

As little as a lot of us may think about it, that is the time when we need to start making plans for more water. If we start making plans now we may have more water when we need it this time next summer.

DRIVE TO ARRIVE ALIVE

"Drive to arrive alive!" There's a lot of good common sense packed into that short, catchy slogan the Texas Safety Association, the Department of Public Safety and the National Safety Council are using for their vacation driving program this month.

After all, when a driver starts out on a motor trip his goal is to get where he's going and to get there healthy and happy so that he can have some fun. It would certainly defeat his purpose if a careless driving necessitated a detour to the hospital—or worse!

What kind of driving, then, should he adopt to get him to his destination alive—and in good health and spirits? To begin with it should be courteous driving. The courteous driver is pleasantly relaxed, gives other drivers a break and is always prepared to yield the right of way to prevent accidents. His behavior is in sharp contrast to that of the selfish

Hurry Bug who drives along a road with no thought for other road users. The Hurry Bug is intent on getting to his destination and heaven help anyone who gets in his way. Don't be a Hurry Bug, make courtesy your code of the road!

Another characteristic of the kind of driving we're talking about is that it's law abiding driving. The intelligent driver knows that in order to stay safe he must stay within the law. He familiarizes himself with the laws of the area through which he intends to drive, and when he drives through that area OBEYS the law.

The third major consideration is that driving should be geared to conditions. A motorist should always drive at a speed that is safe for prevailing conditions. Conditions of weather, the road, the car, and his own physical and mental state. If he's a driver who knows that any adverse condition calls for application of the rule: "Slow Down and Live."

That about sums up the message contained in the July message, "Drive to Arrive Alive." Unfortunately, many motorists will probably consider themselves too smart to follow its advice. To their sorrow they will arrive in a badly battered condition—or they may not arrive at all. Don't let this happen to you!

No wonder this great '55 Pontiac is setting all-time sales records!

It's bigger, smarter and more powerful than any other car at anything like the price!

A sales success like Pontiac's starts on the drawing boards—with engineers and designers who have been schooled for years in the Pontiac idea of giving more people more car for less money. With its long 122" or 124" wheelbase and extra, big-car heft, Pontiac provides road-hugging comfort you get in no other car near it in price! Now take this big, roomy car and surround it with the distinction of Twin-Streak styling and Vogue Two-Toning—beauty that obviously is calling the turn on the future—and you have another reason for Pontiac's phenomenal sales success.

That alone would be enough for most cars—but not for Pontiac! Pontiac corners the market on value with the most powerful engine within hundreds of dollars of its price. The sensational 200-horsepower Strato-Streak V-8 with four-barrel carburetor* is the most modern power you can buy. You're on even terms with anything on the road—and you enjoy the greatest economy and dependability in Pontiac history.

If by now you're thinking "This is what I've wanted all along!", we suggest you stop in and talk dollars and cents. That's when you'll get the final reason for Pontiac's record popularity—the fact that you can fit a big, powerful, future-fashioned Pontiac into any new-car budget! You'll never find it easier to get into the fine-car class than right now! *Low extra cost option

Texas Farm Income Increases Two Percent During First Five Months

AUSTIN, (Spec.) — Texas farm income edged upward 2% during the first five months of '55 in comparison with the same period of 1954, according to The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. During May Texas farmers' income passed the half billion mark; by the end of the month the year-to-date total was $555,710,000. The greatest increase over last year has been in income from cattle, up 4% to a total of $139,242,000 for the first five months of 1955. Other important increases were registered in fruit and vegetable income, up 17%; mohair, up 45%; and wheat, up 80% from the first five months of 1954.

Texas farmers' income has increased in spite of a general decline in the prices received for farm commodities. The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that prices paid to farmers for all products averaged 4% lower this May than in May 1954, although there have been several conspicuous price increases, particularly for fruit, up 43% from May to May.

The increase in Texas farm revenue from sale of cattle ran counter to the 15% decline from last year in prices paid for meat animals. Prices of dairy products rose 4% from May to May, but in Texas income from marketing of dairy products totaled 5% higher for the January-May period of this year than for the corresponding months of 1954. Carload shipments of fruit and vegetables in Texas during the January-May period were down 9% from last year. The most striking increase was in carload shipments of honeydew melons, up 520% from 1954.

Yet, as 1955 advanced toward mid-year, Texas farmers and ranchers received somewhat higher prices for their products. The mid-June index computed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicated that Texas farm products sold for over 1% more than a month earlier. The bulk of the increase was attributable to livestock and livestock products, up nearly 3% from May 15. Calves at $16.10, up 2% per hundredweight from mid-May, led the price advance.

With the exception of butterfat, up two cents per pound, all dairy products and poultry showed decreases; eggs remained unchanged from mid-May. Carload shipments of livestock in Texas were down 28% from April to May but were still 12% higher than May 1954. The major factor in the April to May decline in livestock movements was the 33% drop in shipments of cattle.

PINK BOLLWORM RESEARCH

Cotton cultural practices, a vital factor in the control of the pink bollworm, are being improved through research by Texas and U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologists.

Texas has been experimenting to determine under what conditions the pink bollworm can and cannot survive the winter in stalks or trash left in cotton fields. The highest rate of insect kill was achieved from:

1) Fall Plowing to bury infested cotton bolls and trash in the warm humid areas of southern Texas.

2) Allowing stalks to stand overwinter and be plowed under in the spring in colder northern Texas. (This method has not yet received full approval of all entomologists, due to the varying climatic conditions.)

Records on the percentage of kill by early plowing under of the stalks showed a survival of only .04 percent in Port Lavaca fields. The rate was higher, 1.35 percent, at Waco.

In the colder regions, allowing stalks to stand through the winter and then plowed under in the spring proved effective under ideal weather conditions. Prolonged cold resulted in a pink bollworm survival of only .01 at Lubbock, .01 at Vernon and .03 percent at Chickasha, Oklahoma.

Generally, spring plowing under of infested trash and bolls was less effective than fall plowing in all locations. Test plots at Waco and Mount Pleasant were studied where bolls and trash were allowed to remain on the surface of the ground. This method resulted in nearly 22 percent of pink bollworm survival.

The pink bollworm is the worst of all cotton insect pest. It is found in all cotton producing areas of Texas and in parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas.

This research is only one phase of an intensive program through the cotton belt aimed at developing effective ways of controlling the pest. Rigid federal and state quarantine and control programs have only slowed its spread. Complete eradication is still a remote possibility.

Highlights And Sidelights On The U.S. Development Of Atomic Energy

The following is the second of a series of seven articles discussing the highlights and sidelights which have accompanied the nation's development of atomic energy. Prepared at the Hanford atomic energy plant, the series deals with the human things which followed in the wake of the first historic announcement that man had harnessed the atom. It touches upon the things which lie ahead.

BY BILL JURY

General Electric News Bureau Hanford Atomic Plant

The story of the amazing transformation of a land of sagebrush and sand into a true desert oasis is another chapter in America's atomic history. Desert wasteland in Southeastern Washington was selected as the site of the now famous Hanford atomic energy plant nearly 13 years ago because its sparse population and the nearby Columbia River and abundant electrical power met the requirements of scientists and engineers.

Thousands of workers and their families moved into the area to help construct and maintain the plutonium-manufacturing plant, now operated by General Electric Co. for the AEC. They soon realized they would have to fight the ageless desert before they would be comfortable in their new home.

The nearby village of Richland was a logical townsite for the new families—almost flat and plenty of room to grow—arose to a low crown from the Columbia and Yakima rivers on the east, south and west and caught the full effect of every wind that swept across the desert.

The Atomic City immediately embarked upon a vigorous campaign to save its homes and belongings from the screaming winds and frequent dust storms which roamed the arid waste unchecked. To combat the wind, dust and summer heat, a program of tree and shrub planting was begun in an area already capable of supporting sagebrush.

A few hardy old trees were salvaged from the nearby village of Hanford. They were dug up, lifted and moved by truck-mounted cranes and replanted in the new townsite. While the transplanted trees were cared for a search began for species of trees which could survive Richland's cold winters, hot summers and then, somewhat alkaline soil.

The first step was the establishment of a tree farm. The project started out with around 75 types of seedling trees and was built up to include 150 varieties. In the end, about 75 types proved to be adaptable.

Western pine and spruce and many trees native to the midwest fared the best. Lawn trees were selected with the idea of getting something which would stand a little breeze blow. In this case, catalpa, maple and sycamore were favorites. The street trees were of varied types, mixed to prevent a single pest or disease from wiping out the entire plantings in one sweep. They included Norway maple, European Linden, ash and American sycamore. All grew tall and dense after long and continuous watering.

Since 1943, approximately 25,000 trees and shrubs have been saved or planted in the city. The program included everything from foot-high shrubs to 100-foot trees. Today, more than 100 miles of streets throughout the city of over 27,000 persons are lined with trees.

The fight to stop the wind and provide shade for the residents soon developed into a two-fold struggle. The other effort was the planting of shelter belts around the city to lift the force of the prevailing winds.

The first shelter belt was planted along the west side of the city, and consisted of five rows of trees. An overgrown windbreak, the five-row belts were made up of shrubs on the windward side, with progressively larger trees in each of the four rows.

This forced the wind over the other belts, and the street and lawn trees held it there until the wind was safely over the city. Tests have shown that the effect has been a reduction in wind velocity of several miles per hour throughout the sheltered city.

Once the wind and sand had been controlled, the new families planted, watered, fertilized and trimmed their lawns with the care given a child plucked away from the burning desert wastes.

Today the transformation has been completed. Richland has been turned into a veritable "oasis" nearly as miraculous as the product its citizens have produced in the nearby Hanford atomic energy plant.

WHERE REDS DOWNED TWO PLANES

THIS MAP SHOWS the area where two Nationalist Chinese planes were shot down by Communist Chinese MIGs. In one of the attacks, an American Army doctor was wounded. Identified as Lt. Goodrich, he was aboard a transport which crashed on Tungshan Island (1), of the Matsu Group, after its left wing was riddled by shrapnel. He was flying to aid a stricken American in the off-shore islands. The other plane shot down was one of two Nationalist trainers on a routine patrol over northern Formosa Strait. (Central Press)

Brown-Mills Soil Conservation News

By CHARLES HAENISCH

Farming and ranching at a profit during drought requires conservation "know how." Leading conservationists over the country who have mastered the art of making effective use of their soil, water, and plant resources are more than breaking even during dry years. Fertile soil, both range and cropland, has hidden reserve for quick maturity of plants during scant rainfall seasons. Soil that is in good condition readily absorbs rainfall, crusting is negligible, re-planting is seldom necessary, grass and planted crops have sufficient aeration and fertility for immediate growth, and plants are made more vigorous for resisting insects and ensuing dry, hot weather.

High runoff from rainstorms during May and June cost many farmers and ranchers in the Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District severely in terms of flood damage and low production in grass and field crops. Many pastures and fields which were relatively bare of cover were wet no more than six to 10 inches deep following the rainstorms which varied from four to eight inches in this area. Much of the soil and humus was carried away as runoff from protected watersheds.

Examples of water taken from Bennett Creek during the recent rains point out the need for more intensive soil conservation program on this watershed. Many cooperators in the watershed noted severe soil erosion caused by the heavy rains. Some ob-served however that where vegetative cover and other soil conservation practices were on the land, the amount of soil erosion was greatly reduced.

On Clear Creek in the Brown-wood work unit area, a watershed similar to Bennett Creek watershed, the flow was estimated to be about 8,000 cubic feet of water per second or 3-, 600,000 gallons per minute under the Brady highway bridge on a ten foot rise. Using the silt content of this ten foot flow from sparsely covered land the flow of the streams and the storage capacity of reservoirs is greatly reduced. The amount of silt carried can be varied drastically by the type and degree of cover on the watershed. During recent floods soil erosion was in direct proportion to the vegetative protection on range and cropland. Moisture penetration studies also reflected the importance of cover in getting deep penetration.

Silt clogged streams impose a problem for municipal water users in and above the loss in storage capacity from siltation. The cost of filtering mud and silt from municipal water supplies has cost $27.00 per million gallons in one watershed study, whereas another study revealed the cost for filtering water from a well protected watershed having little active soil erosion to be only $8.50 per million gallons. The problem of water development and management is so closely associated with land management that many soil conservation districts are being asked to help solve municipal water problems. The matter of protecting the storage capacity of present municipal water supplies is of importance. When we realize that the withdrawal of water in the United States for all uses is estimated to have doubled every 25 years since 1900 and that the need will likely double again from the 1940 to 1975 period, dependable storage capacity may well be the limiting factor in the growth of a community.

Ernest Allen Funeral Services Are Conducted In Blanket Thursday

Funeral services for Ernest Allen, 67, were held in the Presbyterian Church of Blanket, at 5:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon July 7, with burial in the Blanket Cemetery. Services were conducted by Revs. Chester Wilkerson, J. W. Burgett, Guy Self, Jess Bigbet, W. T. Reynolds and Clarence Bryant. Members of the Blanket Masonic Lodge conducted graveside rites.

Mr. Allen was born in Scott County, Ind., August 4, 1887, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Allen. He passed away in his drug store from a heart attack Tuesday, July 5. He came to Goldthwaite with his family in 1891.

After finishing high school at the age of 12, Ernest took up the study of pharmacy and was a pharmacist in the H. E. Brown Drug Store at Goldthwaite before beginning similar duties in 1908 with a drug store in Blanket.

Later he purchased this store and had operated this oldest established business in Blanket as the Allen Drug Store until his sudden death.

Mr. Allen was vice-president of the Blanket State Bank; an active leader in the Blanket Methodist Church, including service as Sunday School Superintendent and teacher of an adult class; a past master of the Blanket Lodge and past worthy patron of the Order of Eastern Star.

Survivors are the widow, the former Lillian Cobb; a son Ernest Allen Jr., a grandson, Ernest Allen III both of Maracibo, Venezuela; three sisters, Mrs. Hardy Blue of Santa Anna, Mrs. Elmon Kirby of DeLeon and Mrs. Lois Calvert of Houston; two brothers, Harry Allen of Goldthwaite and Jack Allen of Houston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Yancy San Saba spent last Friday at Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Gray.

PARENT PROBLEMS

Should Reckless Youth Be Permitted to Drive?

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

IT'S amazing how readily parents will sign a child's application for a driver's license or car ownership, when they know he is a careless, dangerous driver. Many of them haven't the courage to say No; yet once the youth has the license, his parents may have no power to revoke it.

On April 20, however, Governor Averill Harriman signed a bill passed by the Legislature of the State of New York, giving this state's parents the power to have their child's license taken away. The bill requires the State Motor Vehicles Commission to revoke a junior license if one parent withdraws his or her consent. Once it is revoked, the junior license can't be reissued for thirty days.

Still Holds True

Previous to this law, parents in New York State had nothing to say about whether a child between 16 and 18 years of age could continue to hold a license. To my knowledge, this still holds true in all other states. Of course, courts have, on occasion, revoked licenses at the request of parents.

Usually, however, most parents tend to be lenient in this matter, regardless of the youth's proved unfitness to drive. Perhaps, in spite of the new law, human weakness will prevail; but it is to be hoped that most parents have the courage of their convictions and call on this law, necessary.

Torturous Hours

Think of the torturous hours some parents endure, riding with a youth who refuses to heed warning to drive more carefully. This could easily be avoided, the parent—after the first warning had been ignored—had the youth pull off the road and refused him the use of the car several weeks or months.

It's not just a matter of parents' peace of mind, but effective education of the youth in safe driving. If he goes on a heedless, reckless driver in parents' presence, how likely will he be to drive safely when he is on his own?

Not Firm Enough

Unfortunately, many parents lack the fortitude to be decisive in such matters. Some are actually afraid of their child.

I receive letters from worried widows who confess they sign a permit for a son's license against their better judgment and are now paying a penalty. Of course the time begin to prepare the teen-ager accept No as final is when he is tiny-ager.

188-hp Buick SPECIAL 6-Passenger, 4-Door RIVIERA, Model 43

This 4-Door Beauty is the Newest Hit in Hardtops

YOU certainly ought to come in and see for yourself why this new kind of hardtop is headed for the best-seller list.

It's a Buick Riviera, of course.

Which means the low and rakish look of a Convertible—a solid steel roof overhead—and no center posts in the side window areas to obstruct your view.

But that's only the beginning.

Here you get two extra doors. They open to the rear compartment. So no one in the front has to move when someone gets into or out of the rear.

Here you get massive half-pillars on either side on which the front doors latch and the rear doors hinge. (That's why you see no center posts above the door line.)

Here, too, you get wholly new principles in body design and strength that give the extra safety of rock-firm solidity at the top, sides and bottom.

And here—bless those Buick engineers!—you get a lot more room in the rear compartment.

For the 4-Door Riviera gives you over 9 inches more hiproom and 5 inches more legroom—yet with no increase in wheelbase or over-all car length.

So we repeat—you certainly ought to come in and see this stunning new kind of hardtop.

It's the very last word in beauty, comfort, convenience. It's available in Buick's two lowest-priced Series—the SPECIAL and the CENTURY. And it's all Buick—with Buick power, Buick ride, Buick handling—and the spectacular performance of Buick's Variable Pitch Dynaflo.*

News Of The Ebony Community

By CLEMENTINE WILMETH BRILEY

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Egger and Ynell returned Thursday from a visit to the Orvel Eggers at Bentonville, Ark. They left there at 4:15 a.m. and arrived home at 4:30 p.m. A distance of over 500 miles. Mrs. Egger said Little Rock was the most beautiful place they passed through. Ray Thompson and his friend, Jimmy Russell, of Fort Worth took advantage of the Fourth and spent from Sunday to Monday at the Blue Thompson home.

Frank Crowder said a car drew up to his gate last week and the man said, "Who lives here?" Frank answered, "Nobody." As he got out of the car, Frank recognized him as his cousin, Lawrence Haley, of Charlotte near San Antonio. He and his family had come to fish in the Colorado. Sunday Frank and Mrs. Edna Dwyer were commenting on the ever falling memory of oldsters. Frank says he goes prepared. When anyone asks him his name, he reaches in his pocket and gets out a little piece of paper from which he reads, "Crowder."

Letters from the Mitchells and the Beliches Friday said they each arrived home July 4 at 4:30. Almost 900 miles apart. But for the Beliches it was El Paso time which means 5:30 here. The Mitchells had been gone over two weeks. Ruth said their grass was high and their flower beds looked like a wilderness. The Beliches had been gone hardly a week. A neighbor watered the yard for them. Grace said the tomato vines were really growing and the pansies and sweet peas were still blooming.

We visited our County capital last week. It was the first time we had been to Goldthwaite for about a year. I was impressed with its clean, neat appearance. It seemed that all the business houses on the square had put on new fronts. And most of the ones we went in were redecorated and pretty on the inside. And how we did enjoy that new ex-cursion of pavement from Regency road near the Ashton place to the Ridge School house. I couldn't help remembering those long, rocky hills that harassed our buggy nags in the days of long ago.

Gottlieb August Tischler Is Buried At Priddy Saturday July 2

Funeral services for Gottlieb August Tischler, 60, were held at Zion Lutheran Church of Priddy, Saturday July 2. Ser-

Where the road turned off the pavement for Regency there were two signs; "Regency" for the Regency road and "Ebony" straight ahead. When we came home last May, I was quite elated to find at the place where the Ebony road leaves the Richland Springs road a sign which said, "Ebony 3 miles, Regency 11 miles." It was the first time we had ever rated a road sign form the Highway Dept.

A question I pondered during our absence was, "Have the phones come to Ebony?" The first rumor was, "Nothing doing. Not enough customers." Now I hear the rumor reversed. I learn for sure there is a phone at Regency.

Mrs. Edna Dwyer is delighted with her new well. She says the windmill cannot pump it dry. So now she can water all she pleases, and her blooming crepe Myrtles are gorgeous. A red-bird built its nest in her flowering quince at the edge of the porch, down low where you could look right into it. They hatched four little birds.

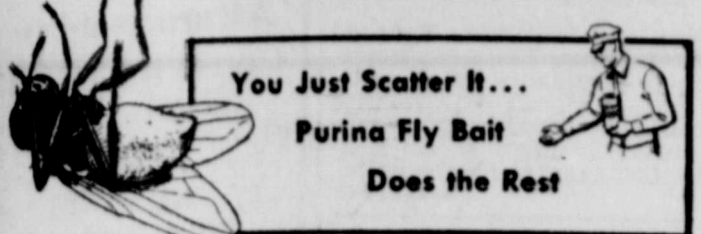

The summer drouth seems on. The radio keeps talking about a heat wave, but out here the days and nights are delightful with a cool breeze blowing most all the time. Last week when the children were all here, John and Billy slept on cots out doors. And though they had some cover, they said before day they got so cold they were miserable. If our family keeps increasing we wonder how we'll solve our sleeping problem. We have two cots. Grace brought two from El Paso, and we had to borrow one from Mrs. Dwyer.

I've wondered so long how it would seem to be at home without a horse, a cow, a pig, a chicken, or a dog. I find it rather nice. There is still more to do than time or strength will permit. We do what we can. The days pass pleasantly. The dawns are beautiful. The crepe myrtles and the oleander are lovely with bloom. The moonlight nights are romantic. And the mocking bird sings. I hear him singing in the night—a joyous, lilting melody.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Locklear of Weatherford and son, Corp. Tommy Locklear of Fort Campbell, Kentucky, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Locklear last Sunday.

Army Recruiting Service To Conduct Special Drive During July

Brownwood, Texas U. S. Army Recruiting Station, under Daniel R. Dawson, will conduct a special recruiting drive in this area during July aimed at enlisting qualified young men among the most attractive of the Army's recruiting programs ever offered. The program is "Operation Gyroscopic" and the Technical School Program.

Men enlisting in "Buddy Teams" of two, three, four or five will be kept together during the three year training period. If a young man chooses to enlist under "Operation Gyroscopic" he will be enlisted for the 3rd Armored Division, now stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, but scheduled to depart soon for its new station in Europe. Such an enlistment will guarantee the enlistee of service in the European Command as a member of one of the most outstanding armored divisions in the world. Enlistees will be sent to Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, for preliminary processing for approximately one week, and then sent directly to Fort Knox in order to receive basic training before joining their regular unit departing for Europe in the near future. The advantages of such an enlistment are plain; a stabilized tour of overseas duty, followed by a stabilized tour in the United States as long as the enlistee remains a member of the organization.

The other program— called the Technical School Program— is open only to high school graduates and will allow an enlistee to choose the technical school training of his choice before enlisting, and receive a guarantee in writing of attending the school of his choice before he actually enlists. More than 100 technical schools are open under this program to young men of this area who desire to learn a profitable trade or profession. Such schools as Helicopter Repair and Maintenance, Guided Missiles, Automotive Repair, Signal Corps, Engineer, Public Information, and many others designed to produce highly skilled technicians for a modern, up-to-date Army.

While these courses are primarily military, their value to civilian industry has been praised by such industrialists as RCA's David Sarnoff and Henry Ford II of the Ford Motor Company. Their written statements give credence to the claim that the Army technical school program is among the finest to be found anywhere in the world. Through this type of training, a young man can learn an outstanding trade or profession, gain valuable on-the-job training and experience while serving out his enlistment, then step into a high-paying job as a skilled and experienced man.

Both "Operation Gyroscopic" and The Army Technical School Program are controlled by quotas set by the Department of the Army so interested young men are advised to take immediate advantage of either of these programs by contacting Sgt. Daniel R. Dawson at 102 North Center in Brownwood, between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. daily Monday through Saturday each week.
