RANGE RECOVERY FOLLOWING DROUGHT

By Thomas N. Shiflet
Range Conservationist
Soil Conservation Service

Prospects for rangelands undergoing drought recovery in the months ahead are good. Progress in this respect, however, will depend upon the vigilance in which range management is practiced. Proper use of key grazing plants and growing season rest, where possible, are important for rapid recovery of most ranges.

Most pastures improved slowly last year with rainfall a little above normal and much of the progress made cannot be readily seen. During dry years, grasses suffered tremendously on ranges not used conservatively. Growth was slow to start, when the rains came, because key grasses were low in vigor, root systems were short and weak, and there was very little reserve food stored in the roots and crowns. Very few good seeds were produced during this period of drought. Protective cover was generally below that needed for survival of plants, permitting much rain water to run off. During 1957, weak plants which were deferred or moderately grazed were allowed to regain vigor, develop healthier root systems, and store up plant food on which to start this year's growth. Some seed was produced and certain species such as Buffalo grass and Sideoats grama were able to spread by runners and underground stems. Cover and litter was accumulated.

CALENDAR OF FACT AND OPINION

A short time ago 1,500 people representing 128 organizations—including labor, industry, agriculture and consumer groups—met in Washington to urge five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. Speakers included President Eisenhower and his two-time opponent, Adlai Stevenson. It was pointed out that some 4,500,000 workers—one out of each 14—depend on foreign trade for their jobs.

A tax cut, if it comes, is likely to take the form of a reduction of 10 per cent on the first $2,000 of taxable income, and 5 per cent on all income above that. A small cut in the corporation tax—perhaps 2 per cent—is also probable.

An Edison Electric Institute spokesman says that electric utility companies have embarked on 14 nuclear power projects, involving utility investment of about $500 million. In his belief, the current program is adequate for the nation's needs.

Dorothy Thompson writes: "As I see it, we have been living since the beginning of World War II in an economy of perpetual boom, marked by overemployment, overexpansion and overbuying. This boom has now come to be accepted as normal, and as the only desirable economy, identified rather braggadocioally with 'the American standard of living.' Whether it is a good economy, from the viewpoint of steady growth, is highly dubious, and whether it is good from the viewpoint of our civilization and culture is even more so."

☆☆☆

According to Fortune the number of unemployed executives is increasing as a result of the recession—yet there are more top management positions open than ever before. Explanation for this seeming paradox is that most of the job seekers do not appear to have the qualifications that are in demand. Many jobs now open were previously filled by mediocre executives able to get by only in a soft market.

The McClellan Committee which has been investigating unethical practices in labor and business reports that in a 15 year period five unions bilked their members out of $16 million in one way or another. It urges a series of legislative acts to protect union funds from crooks and grafters.

Time says that "the first real casualty of the current recession may well be the middle-priced automobile." Sales of these cars dropped from 37 per cent of the market in 1955 to 29 per cent last year, and this year the decline has been "phenomenal"—70 per cent in the case of one long-established make.

A pending Senate bill would raise the price of federal duck stamps from $2 to $3 and earmark all the proceeds, except for printing and distribution costs, for an accelerated waterfowl refuge purchase program. Even then, a top wildlife expert estimates, it would take about 25 years to acquire the 4 million acres of wetlands needed to round out the federal waterfowl refuge holdings at 7½ million acres, the minimum area thought necessary to assure the preservation of ducks and geese.

Two Major Parties Move Carefully Over Tax Cuts | Republicans and Democrats Watch Each Other Closely

By HENRY CATHCART
Central Press Washington Writer

WASHINGTON—The question of a tax cut has both Democrats and Republicans watching each other like hawks for any move by the other side. Each party wants the credit for any tax reduction.

The behind-the-scenes maneuvering was never more evident than when Senator Frank Carlson (R), Kansas, recently left a House meeting and reported that he had secured a Republican proposal for a tax cut.

Only a few minutes later, Senate GOP leader William F. Knowland emerged from the Senate and emphatically denied that the Republican chiefs had talked with President Eisenhower about any definite tax cut plan.

In addition, the Treasury department promptly issued a statement denying that Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson, who attended the conference, had discussed tax cut proposals. "The reason," GOP leaders have an "understanding" with Democratic leaders in Congress that neither party will advance a tax cut without prior consultation with the other.

Knowland and Anderson wanted to make sure that the Democrats didn't get the idea that they were being double-crossed and the administration was secretly preparing a large measure.

● POLISH THAW—State department experts are studying tentative reports that capitalist-style small business in Communist Poland has made a spectacular comeback in the past year with tacit approval of party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Latest evidence of a free enterprise resurgence comes from reliable data indicating a whopping rise in artisan workshops to 30,000 last year to 138,000 or more at the present time.

The workshops, even as in capitalist European lands, are made up of craftsmen who turn out goods for their own profit rather than as part of the ponderous state economic machine.

Officials in Washington say the beginning of the private enterprise upswing in the Red satellite state dates from October, 1956, when Gomulka flatly told Kremlin bosses to keep "hands off" Polish internal affairs.

● EDUCATION BILL—Top Democrats are widely split on what there should be any kind of a federal aid-to-education bill. A distinct minority, all from the North and West, wants a bill that includes scholarships from Uncle Sam, teacher training, scientific training props and a classroom instruction bill and the one defeated in the last two sessions of Congress.

Another group wants the bill proposed by Rep. Carl Albert and Senator John Sparkman, both of Alabama, which includes all of the above except school construction. Still a third group, small but powerful, wants nothing.

So far, at least, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who can pretty well call the turn on such legislation, is backing the last two and other party leaders in the House don't like it a bit.

Rayburn kisses off the issue by saying there's nothing wrong with American science and science education that some leadership by the Eisenhower administration couldn't cure.

He says United States scientists are as good or better than those in any country in the world, if only they have a program map out for them to follow.

Other Democratic leaders sharply disagree with him—but in the premise of Rayburn's stand but in the politics of the bill. They are under pressure to pass the Elliott-Sparkman bill.

QUESTIONS ASKED ON USE OF STEAM IRONS

Steam pressing is a fast growing trend judging by the increasing number of questions on the selection, use and care of steam irons.

For interested homemakers, specialists pass along these answers to some of the most-asked questions.

When it comes to selection, there are two main types: The flash or open water container type, which is usually filled through the front of the handle. Instructions say heat, then turn to steam. It's important to follow the instructions because the water runs thorough and doesn't turn to steam if not sufficiently heated.

The other kind has a boiler or sealed water container. To fill, the cap is unscrewed or removed. All the water is heated to the steaming point and continues steaming until the water is gone.

Prevent spitting and water spotting by following the manufacturer's instructions for and heating. These precautions apply to steam irons: Don't overfill or roughly, or tilt excessively. It is especially important with flash or open water containers. Be sure the iron is before turning on the Set Iron at correct temperature setting. Water is likely over or the steam may dry if the iron is over-

Use of tap water, which is naturally soft, will result to a deposit of minerals which corrode the metal and clog the steam passageway. De-tilled (soft) water will mineral deposits.

To open clogged steam manufacturers suggest of clear vinegar. This is effective in removing one of the minerals which collects in the iron. Fill the container with 1/2 cup and steam 2 minutes. Let overnight, then clean times. Expect unpleasant

FORD PRODUCES 50 MILLIONTH VEHICLE

WHICH HAS CHANGED THE MOST, CARS OR CHEMISES?—The change in automotive design is made apparent by the contrast between Ford's 50 millionth vehicle—a new four passenger Thunderbird produced at Novi, Mich., March 17, 1958—and Ford's 10 millionth vehicle like the Model T produced in 1923.

But what about women's fashions? The lady with the Model T is wearing a chemise with a "bucket hat" typical of the Model T period. The lady by the new four passenger Thunderbird is wearing a 1958 model chemise.

Ford's 50 millionth vehicle rolled off the assembly line on St. Patrick's Day and was painted — as you might suspect — "Irish Green". Bumper to bumper, the 50 million vehicles would stretch six times around the world. Ford officials predicted the company would produce the next 50 million vehicles in much less than half the time it took to produce the first 50 million.

"The State of Texas will be faced with many problems during this coming regular session of the Legislature with taxation as the number one problem. SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

BY HUBERT L. BERRY

Soil Stewardship Week May 11-18

On May 11 through May 18 churches throughout the District will observe Soil Stewardship Week, a week set aside for special emphasis on the stewardship of the soil.

Last Saturday afternoon a group of ministers led by Soil Conservation personnel observed conservation taking place on the Al Langford and L. B. Burnham farms. Austrian winter peas with excellent growth were observed on the Al Langford farm, and a solid green mat of Hubam clover on the L. B. Burnham farm. The need for such crops was pointed out and the relationship of soil fertility to the economic conditions of the community.

"Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." There are many verses in the Bible which point the way to proper stewardship of the soil. The man who manages his fields, pastures, woodlands, and streams with respect and wisdom shall reap the bountiful harvest and so shall his descendants. However, the man who uses them selfishly, thinking only of his immediate gain, shall bring to grief his land, himself, and his children's children.

Holding these things to be true, churches as well as other community organizations can ill afford to neglect the stewardship of the soil in their overall programs.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Numbers 13:17—14:15.

The children of Israel had come to the border of the promised land. Moses chose 12 men, one from each tribe, to spy in the land to see what it was like and what type of people lived in it.

The 12 men came back, bringing some of the fruit from the land, saying it was indeed a land flowing with milk and honey. But some said that the Israelites would not be able to conquer the strong people there.

Caleb said: "Let us go up at once and possess it (the land) . . . to overcome it." But the people lost faith and they wept, blaming Moses for bringing them out of Egypt; and God was angry with them.

Joshua and Caleb insisted that the land was good, and "If the Lord delight in us, then He will bring us into this land, and give it us . . . Only rebel not ye against the Lord." MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 56:3.

Range Recovery

is paved for more and better recovery now if good management is continued. The more desirable grasses are in position to compete with low order grasses and weeds for moisture, plant food, and light. Seedlings of the better plants can be established to replace the less desirable plants.

Mother Nature has provided the foolproof scheme for restoring native rangelands to a productive condition. Ranchers can reap the benefits of this scheme by understanding and working as closely as possible with nature. Grass was created with the ability to withstand use but will be killed out if the grazing is too severe. About 50 per cent of the current growth of most grasses can be taken if in vigorous condition. The balance must be left to manufacture food for growth and provide cover for soil and plant protection. When a higher percentage of the better plants are taken, they are weakened and growth is reduced correspondingly until the plant dies. Roots cease growth and are unable to absorb moisture. This enables low producing, unpalatable plants to compete excessively and to replace the desired plants if over-use continues. Range condition deteriorates instead of improving when this occurs.

When cover and litter is sparse and plants are weak, recovery can best be accomplished by full growing season rest. This permits the desirable vegetation to have maximum opportunity to spread and replace less desirable species. It also permits maximum growth of all plants to provide adequate cover and mulch. Cover is essential to make effective use of moisture, control erosion, regulate soil temperatures, reduce evaporation, and provide a suitable seedbed for the establishment of new plants. The rest period should extend from early spring through frost for maximum results. Rest at any time is beneficial in assisting nature's cycle of recovery to take place.

Many conservation minded bankers and lending institutions are restocking drouth stricken ranges too soon because of the economic risk in starting ahead of substantive recovery of key range grasses. Conservative ranchers plan to increase livestock only as their ranges recover to a point which will support them without damage to the grass.

Through a system of moderate use of the better forage plants and timely deferments, many ranchers are cooperating with nature in restoring the productivity and stability of native rangelands.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Laughlin and son, Joe, of Midland spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kirby, and Mr. and Mrs. Worley Laughlin.

DOLLARS LOST AS FARMS CONSOLIDATE

A North Dakota economist figures that for every farm which consolidates with a neighbor, industry and labor will lose some 2½ million dollars over a 100-year period.

Mr. E. N. Dornacker of Mayville, N. D., has this theory: The present trend of combining two or more farms into one large one means more land farmed with less equipment, fewer materials and fewer farm hands. "Each time a farmer is forced to leave the farm, industry loses a customer and labor gains a competitor for a job," says Dornacker. "And the neighbors who buy the land will destroy the buildings and operate it from their own farm," he adds.

Here is a partial list of the business which industry will lose in the next 100 years from each farm, he says: The sale of 10 tractors, 10 drills, 15 harrows, 10 combines, 10 discs, 5 plows, 10 cultivators, 5 corn planters, 12 fertilizer attachments, 10 trucks or pickups, 5 weed sprayers, 200 batteries, 40 tractor and 60 truck tires, 5 manure spreaders, 15 hog feeders, 20 water tanks, $50,000 in parts, $5,000 in tools, 1,000 gallons of paint, 1,000 pounds of nails, $15,000 in lumber, 600,000 gallons of fuel oil, etc.

The total of these and other items would amount to $2½ million over the 100-year period, Dornacker says.

Of course, his argument has a few holes in it. Actually, two small farms combined into one large one would eventually call for additional machinery over what the buyer owned at the time of consolidation. And the more hours a machine is run to handle a larger acreage, the quicker it will wear out. In addition, larger farms call for more farm buildings—but not as many as two separate farms.

Even so, underneath all the smoke of Dornacker's theory smolders some fire of truth. It can be more economical to maintain one large farm as opposed to two smaller ones from

Farm Housing Loan Program Is Expanded

An expanded farm housing loan program, designed to speed up farm building construction improvement as well as act as an additional anti-recession measure, was announced today by Walter T. McKay, Farmers Home Administration State Director, according to Aston W. Cole, the agency's local County Supervisor.

Now an owner of a farm in agricultural production and on which the operator plans to produce at least $400 worth of farm commodities for sale or home use may qualify for the 4 per cent long-term housing loan provided that he meets other standard eligibility requirements.

Formerly an eligible applicant had to own a farm that produced a more substantial part of the operator's annual cash income.

Loans may be made to build, improve, or repair farm houses or other essential farm buildings, and to provide water for farmstead and household use. Mr. Cole said that in addition to financing major construction, the loan funds can help meet many other needs for farm and farm home modernization such as adding bathrooms, utility rooms, better kitchens, and many other improvements to the home as well the farmer's standpoint—resulting in a corresponding loss to industry.

as to farm service buildings. While tenants and farm laborers are not eligible, the owner may borrow to do the construction work or make improvements for them.

The loans are made to farm owners who need credit to finance building improvements or repairs, but find that adequate credit is not available through banks or other regular credit channels. The interest rate is 4 per cent and loans may be amortized over periods up to 33 years.

Eligibility for loan assistance is determined by the three-member County Farmers Home Administration committee, and applications are now being accepted in FHA County offices.

Center City News

By MRS. JOE GREEN

I have been in Llano three weeks taking care of our daughter, Mrs. Ace Kincheloe, who has been sick. She is some better at this time and I will be at home now. While I was in Llano our granddaughter, Beverly Jean, was in a car wreck. She was not seriously injured and our daughter and both children had the three-day measles. When it rains it just pours.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Hill spent the evening with us Sunday and Merlene Head spent Sunday night with Eva Faye.

Sunday School was held at each church here Sunday but no church service at either church.

I wish to correct a mistake I made in my letter a few days ago. Rev. Jesse Long called my attention to the mistake. Dr.

and Mrs. Lowell Ryan, the District Superintendent, were at the Methodist Church. I called him the Presiding Elder. Excuse me for making the mistake but one of the members of the church called him the Presiding Elder and I did not know the difference, so excuse me for making that error.

The Methodist Church at Center City has been nominated the church of the year 1958 out of Kerrville District to the Conference Commission on Town and Country Work. They are hoping they will take the Conference honor. Final decision has not been made.

Dr. Lowell Ryan complimented the Methodist people of Center City for having such a fine spirit and such a fine enthusiasm which was shown in the Quarterly Conference at Center City April 13.

Mrs. Jack Elms and Mrs. Lois Owens attended the Vacation Church School Training Institute held recently in San Saba.

Eva Faye and I visited Audrey and Gary Head last Sunday night. Gary has gone back to the army.

Darrell Head has been on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Poer visited with Mrs. C. M. Head and Truett Sunday.

Mrs. Audrey Head visited in Dublin last weekend.

Mrs. Virgie Wild has been at home for a few days. She visited in San Saba last weekend.

Mrs. Ranson visited a few days with Mrs. Wild while she was at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pearce had several of their folks as guests over the weekend.

We extend our deepest sympathy to the Weathers family and the Duren family in their loss and may God bless both families.

Mrs. Charlie Horner visited with us Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ising are visiting today with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Frank.

NEWS from YOUR COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

BY GEORGE G. REESE

Five registered Duroc gilts and one registered boar pig will be distributed in May to the lucky 4-H Club members in Mills County.

If you would like to enter the contest write an essay on "The Value of Producing Hogs as a Source of Cash Income on our Farm." The essay is not to have more than 500 words. This program has been in Mills County since 1948 and is sponsored by Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

The payment that a club member makes for one of these gilts to return a gilt pig out of the first litter farrowed by the gilt he received.

This endless chain has distributed 55 gilts to Mills County 4-H Club members since it was started.

The essays should be in the County Agent's office by May 1958.

Southern blight of peanuts is one of the major problems in the production of peanuts in Texas. Losses from the disease may vary from a trace to almost complete failure.

The recent trend toward the irrigation of peanuts has magnified the problem in some sections. Control measures are hampered by the nature of the disease and the difficulty of applying fungicides to the portions of the peanut plant. A method to control southern blight of peanuts with chemicals has been attempted in Texas for several years under greenhouse and field conditions. But it was not until Terracolor was used as a control that field testing with fungicides started showing promising results.

Major field tests with Terracolor and other chemicals started in Texas in 1956 by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. They were conducted on various soil types and under a wide range of conditions. In one of the tests in which Terracolor was mixed in the soil in the bed prior to planting, the incidence of southern blight was significantly reduced, with a disease index of 3.5 compared with 7.5 in the check plot. A disease index of zero meant no disease, and an index of nine denotes severe infection.

In tests in 1957, Terracolor gave a significant increase in grades for both irrigated and non-irrigated peanuts. An average of $74.30 per acre from two rates, 18 and 36 pounds per acre, was received over the check plots, however, the cost of the application it costs one dollar per pound of active ingredient) must be subtracted to get net increase. Although Terracolor looks promising, it is not yet recommended except on an experimental basis. More tests and evaluations are necessary. More information on Terracolor may be obtained by ordering Progress Report 2014, "Terracolor for the Control of Southern Blight of Peanuts," from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

How to make swine production in Texas more profitable is the single objective of the program planned for the 7th Swine Short Course scheduled for Texas A&M College, May 5-6. Every person in Texas interested in improving and expanding the state's swine industry is invited to attend. Program details are available from my office.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

How you are making summer vacation plans. Why not in Texas? Texas has much to offer—on its fine lakes, and mountains.

Year travel in America all records so says the National Park Service, which figures on some 180 areas. Figures on these national installations totaled 59,300,000 in 1957. This was an eight per cent increase over the previous year. An interesting fact was that facilities of the park were used more last year than any other previous year. The number jumped to a total of 59,300,000.

Increased interest in these places, far removed from the tensions of modern urban life, reflects the appreciation of our people for their national parks," says Director Conrad L. Wirth.

It might be interesting to note that the greatest number of visitors to a national park was the 2,943,732 who were clocked at the Great Smoky Mountains in North Carolina and Tennessee. Smallest was to Isle Royale in Michigan.

In Texas the only national park installation is the Big Bend National Park in Brewster County.

Right now figures are not available on those who went to the various lakes in Texas. However, the Corps of Engineers say more persons visited Lake Texoma in 1957 than visited in any other national installation.

Licenses Sales Up—Popularity of sport fishing and wild game hunting took a big upward swing in 1957. A total of 34,195,183 licenses were sold, representing an increase of 1,031,352 over 1956.

There are more fishermen than hunters, with 19,000,000 buying the sport fishing license. Total cost to hunters and anglers—for licenses, permits, tags and stamps, (not including the federal duck stamp)—was $90,617,093. On the other hand, hunters paid more for their privilege, $47,000,000 against $42,000,000 by fishermen.

Texas was in the top ten in hunting licenses, with 412,961 sold in 1957. Michigan was first with 1,250,004. For fishing licenses 417,620 Texans and 9,416 non-residents spent a total of $427,036 which put Texas in 14th place in the United States.

There'll be another jump this year. Texas licenses have increased from $1.65 to $2.15 for either resident or non-resident. All salt water fishermen are required to have licenses sold in 1958.

Ownership of a hunting or fishing license is a privilege in Texas, where there is so much

LINER BRINGS SORAYA—Former Queen Soraya (center), who was divorced by the Shah of Iran because of their childless seven-year marriage, is shown aboard the liner Constitution as it approached New York. fine hunting and fishing available. It will continue that way as long as we proceed in an orderly manner to manage our land, to get the best advantage of wildlife.

An abundant crop of game or fish is no more an accident than a good crop of cotton or grain. You have to work for it. That is being done in Texas, but more and more help is needed, in view of the tremendous increase in outdoor interests.

Tournament Time—If you want to enter the Texas Bass Tournament on the Highland Lakes, May 22-25, write Earl Golding, outdoor editor of the Waco Tribune, or Russell Tinsley, outdoor editor of the Austin American. They have application blanks and details.

This year's tournament will be on Lakes Buchanan, Inks, and Granite Shoals, three top Central Texas Lakes. Make your cottage reservation early.

Why not take a little weekend run to these lakes and study them? Learn which one you want to fish, and where you want to fish. Right now the scenery around the lakes is beautiful. Your whole family will enjoy the trip.

Exercise Care—This is a pretty good time to check your life preservers. Some of them may be old and worn. They might not carry your weight should you have to use them in an emergency.

Every boat should have a good life preserver for every passenger. No child under 12 years of age should be permitted to ride in a boat without wearing a life preserver.

Keep in mind that the cushion type is better than nothing. But you'll find that a good life vest, on the body, is much more effective, should you find yourself flopping around in the drink some time.

Also, if you operate a speed boat, stay a reasonable distance away from boat fishermen. Don't try to swamp them or even rock their boats with the waves from your runabout.

talk to your landowner friend and sell him the idea of cover and food improvement. Your local game warden will be glad to help you with this program.

There was a very fine seed crop of quail for this year. The State Game Farm at Tyler soon will have a big crop of birds that can be bought at reasonable prices, for restocking. Your local warden is familiar with this program and can give you a great deal of assistance.

Rod-Rac — You've seen Lazy Ike Lures. Who hasn't? But did you know that the Kautzky Co. of Ft. Dodge, Iowa, makes a Rod-Rac. It's exactly what the name implies... a rack for holding your fishing rods. It mounts on the wall of your den, in a closet, or on the porch.

Made almost entirely of bakelite, the Rod-Rac holds three rods of any size in a soft-rubber mount. Eliminates the necessity of dismantling rod and reel. Mighy handy—and looks good, too.

JOE SWANNER

Brownwood, (Spec.) — A Brownwood resident has announced for the State Senate from the 16th District.

The candidate is Joe Swanner, 34, a citizen of Brownwood the last 12 years.

In announcing his candidacy, Swanner stressed economy saying: "If the problem is to be solved without over-burdening our people with new taxes, ordinary, simple household rules of economy must be applied to state government."

"As the campaign progresses, I will outline my views on taxes and other problems confronting our state government. I will discuss these views in a forthright way."

"There will be no dodging of questions or any issue; but rather an encouragement of frank and open discussion on all issues."

"If elected to the State Senate, I will treat the office as a public trust. Among other things, I will make my income tax return (which will show sources of all income) available for any constituent to see."

A graduate of Howard Payne College, Swanner is married to the former Regina Brooks, a member of a pioneer Brown County family.

Swanner, who classes himself as a country newspaperman, for several years served as assistant to U. S. Representative O. C. Fisher.

During his service with Fisher, Swanner retained ranching interests in Brown County with his late father-in-law, V. W. Brooks.

Swanner served during World War II in the Pacific theater, and is still a member of the Naval Reserve.

The Swanners have two children, Risa, 3, and Joseph Brooks Swanner, 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Burns spent last weekend in San Antonio visiting their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Billy E. Hightower. They also attended the Battle of Flowers.

PARENT PROBLEMS

Helping Youngster Who Doesn't Talk Plainly

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

THE child who, on entering school, does not talk plainly is him most so that you know greatly handicapped, no matter how bright he is. His teacher and schoolmates treat him as though he were younger than he is. This makes him feel queer, and hampers good development of his personality.

As soon as your child can speak in sentences, it is not too early to help him make correct the common sounds of words. Don't stop him to say the word after you. Just say more slowly and distinctly, as you talk of read to him, those words whose sounds give him most trouble.

Rhymes and Stories

It might be well to read to him rhymes and stories which contain or repeat these troublesome words. Nonchalantly, at relaxed times, you might ask him to repeat some of these words after you, watching your mouth as you say them, whether he be three, five or six. He might also like to look in the mirror then to watch his mouth and yours. Try to avoid making him self-conscious of his speech.

Have Hearing Tested

If he has many difficulties with sounds of words, you should have his hearing tested. Even if his hearing is poor, you should still proceed in the foregoing ways.

Especially if your child is in school, you should secretly write down the words which trouble him most so that you know which words and sounds to work on. Do remember that the older he is, the more likely he will be to feel self-conscious about his difficulty.

An older brother or sister might do most to help this child if there were nice relations between these children. Sometimes a playmate might be induced to help him. A few words of explanation and persuasion to such a young teacher on your part could further his thoughtfulness and skill.

Time for Play

It is very important that this child has enough time for play with other children of his own age. His success at play with them might do more to help him speak more plainly than anything else. Anything that will make him want to be more grown up should help him.

(My bulletin "The Young Child's Speech" may be had by sending a self-addressed, U.S. stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.)
